Irvin Carlson, the star of last year's aggregation, will again be in the lineup, as will Holzknecht, Hadrath, Kiland, Brown, Hermanson and Penney, together with one or two new arrivals who have not before been seen in a Thief River uniform. Plummer, the red-headed forward who last year was the mainstay of the Bemidji team, has secured a position in this city and will be in the line-up. Taken as a whole it is doubtful if a more promising bunch will appear on the floor at any basketball game in the state. If the support is equal to last year the season should prove most successful.

LAMBS FROM THIS COUNTY AT ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK EXHIBIT

Helen Satre Wins Fifth Prize in Statewide Field of More Than 200 Entries.

Helen Satre of Pennington county won fifth prize on her lamb at the junior live stock show held at St. Paul last week in a field of over 200 entries. Other exhibitors from this section in the sheep division were Marion Hunt of this city, Arthur La Vaug and Wesley Sheldrew of Grygla, and Daniel Vaughan of Goodridge. Donald Hardesty of Thief River Falls exhibited a fine Holstein calf. Misses Satre and Hunt attended the show in person.

Four hundred Minnesota farm boys and girls wound up the summer months' work by an excellent exhibit at the show. Calves, sheep and hogs raised by the club members were shown for two days and afterwards auctioned off to the highest bidder. The grand champion exhibited by Miss Virginia Scanlon of Belview, sold on Friday afternoon for 50 cents a pound. The animal was a grade Angus weighing 1350 pounds. The price was 20 cents a pound over that brought by the Wisconsin junior champion at the Madison show.

Following the show a banquet was given to all members in attendance. The club members were photographed by motion picture camera men, whose films will be displayed all over the country. Mayor Hodgson of St. Paul presented the silver cups to the winners after declaring that their triumphs were not complete in themselves but that they should lead the juniors to even greater endeavor. He urged them to co-operate with their associates in promoting not only good animal husbandry but better citizenship.

GREAT SHOWING BY PENNINGTON IN PAST DECADE

County Now Surpasses 18 in State of Minnesota in Point of Population.

Passes Kittson and Crowds Roseau Hard for Second Place in Northwest.

Increase in Persons of American Birth Most Remarkable Feature of Report.

Pennington is one of the youngest counties in the state as well as one of the smallest in area. It is also generally regarded as among the smallest in population, the prevailing impression even among the people residing within its borders being that in number of inhabitants it probably exceeds only Red Lake, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Lake and Cook counties.

As a matter of fact Pennington is eighteenth from the bottom, according to the figures given out by the census bureau, being larger than most of the closely settled counties in the southern part of the state and having a considerable edge over a number of its neighbors, most of which are larger in area.

Interesting Comparisons.

Pennington county with its 12,091 population is topped by Dodge with 12,562 and followed by Pipestone with 12,050. A glance over the list of communities having a smaller population than Pennington is liable to provide something of a surprise, very few persons, even among those who keep well posted on the development within the state, having stopped to realize that Pennington is more populous than such well-settled communities as Hubbard, Kittson, Rock, Wadena and Stevens counties. The following comparison will prove of interest:

Pennington	12,091
Pipestone	12,050
Lincoln	11,268
Rock	10,965
Wadena	10,699
Kittson	10,638
Wilkin	10,187
Hubbard	10,126
Grant	9,788
Stevens	9,778
Big Stone	9,766
Sherburne	9,651
Kanabec	9,086
Clearwater	8,569
Lake	8,251
Traverse	7,943
Red Lake	7,263
Mahnomen	6,197
Cook	1,841

Among the Leaders.

Among northwestern counties Penningtons' increase is only exceeded by that of Marshall in numbers and stands as leader in the percentage column. The following table gives the population of the seven counties in this immediate district for the years 1910 and 1920, together with the increase in population during the decade:

	1920	1910	Inc.
Clearwater	8,569	6,870	1,699
Marshall	19,443	16,338	3,105
Pennington	12,095	9,378	2,719
Kittson	10,638	9,669	969
Polk	37,090	36,001	1,089
Red Lake	7,263	6,564	659
Roseau	13,305	11,338	1,667

Gain in Native Population.

Out of the total population of 12,095, 9,544 are classified as "native white." Of this number 4,905 are males and 4,639 females. There are 3,069 persons in the county of native parentage, 4,217 of foreign and 2,251 of mixed parentage. Of the foreign-born population 1,484 are males and 1,060 females. There are three negroes residing in the county—all males. The per cent of native whites is 78.9 and that of the foreign born 21.0. There has been a steady increase in the proportion of natives making their home in the county during the past ten years. In 1910 there were 6,603 persons coming under this classification while at the present time the number is 9,544. On the other hand, the foreign born population has decreased, being 2,759 in 1910 and 2,544 in 1920.

There were 3,382 males 21 years of age and over at the time of taking the census, classified as follows: Native, 436; foreign or mixed parentage, 1,511; foreign born, 1,432. The civil status of these latter was: Naturalized, 1,191; first papers, 104; alien, 67; unknown, 70. There were 2,374 males between the ages of 18 and 44 years, and 2,237 females.

Few Are Illiterate.

The total number of persons 10 years old and over was 9,075 and of this number 63, or .07 per cent, were found to be illiterate. The percentage ten years ago was 1.4 per cent.

But two illiterate persons were found in the entire 1,242 in the county between the ages of 16 and 20 years.

There are on an average nearly five persons to a family in Pennington county, the number of these latter being given as 2,484. The number of dwelling houses is given as 2,372.

Gymnasts Will Meet.

The Thief River Falls gymnasium, under the direction of G. A. Fallness, is now in running order and has a steadily growing membership. The winter's program of work has been mapped out and will be ushered in with a get-together meeting Thursday evening, Dec. 1. All those desiring to join the class are requested to make application previous to that date and be on hand for the lunch and smoker that is to follow the meeting. Men's classes only will be taken this year and none but actual members will have the privilege of the rooms.

Hearing on Assessments For Paving Friday Night

There will be a hearing on the paving assessment before the city council at a special meeting tomorrow evening. Notices have been sent to all property owners affected and it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

The plan of assessment followed by the council is the same as that employed in nearly all Minnesota cities and while it is likely that there will be more or less objection develop there is slight likelihood of a change being made.

The city of Luverne is having difficulty over its paving assessment for the reason that the intersections were charged against the abutting property. In Thief River Falls this part of the cost is borne by the city at large so there should be no objection on this particular score.

REV. BARACKMAN RESIGNS AS PASTOR OF LOCAL CHURCH

Has Accepted Call From First Presbyterian Congregation at Lincoln, Kan.

Rev. Rufus L. Barackman, for six years pastor of the Twentieth Century Presbyterian church in this city, will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday and will leave shortly thereafter for Lincoln, Kan., where he has accepted a call as pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He expects to take up his duties at his new home on the second Sunday in December.

The decision on the part of Rev. Barackman to resign from the pastorate here came as a surprise to the many friends of the family, no previous intimation of such intention having been given. The state of Mrs. Barackman's health, however, makes it advisable for them to move to a warmer climate and the call issued by the Lincoln congregation was therefore accepted.

During the six years that Rev. Barackman has occupied the pulpit of the local church the congregation has grown from a total of only 64 to one of 164, while all other activities in which the members were engaged have grown correspondingly. This increase has been made in spite of the fact that 15 families have moved away from the city in that time. Rev. Barackman states that the cooperation he has received from the people with whom he worked has been of the most satisfactory character and regrets deeply that circumstances are such as to make a change of field necessary.

The departing pastor has taken a deep interest in civic affairs and has frequently been called upon to assist in carrying out measures for the betterment of the community. He enjoys the confidence and respect of the people of the entire city regardless of their church affiliations and his influence and counsel will be missed in many matters.

A public reception in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Barackman will be held in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, to which the general public is invited in order that they may have an opportunity to bid farewell to the popular couple.

No arrangements for filling the local pulpit have as yet been made by the congregation.

DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER BIG FIGHT PICTURES COMING TO PRINCESS

Greatest of All Fistic Battles Will be Shown in Films at Popular Prices Saturday Afternoon and Evening.

The most talked-of picture ever filmed will be shown at the Princess theatre on Saturday afternoon and evening, Nov. 26. It is the authentic Tex Rickard film exhibition of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Jersey City on July 2, and is said to be the best picture of a prize fight ever filmed. Every movement made by either man in the great bout is depicted faithfully and clearly, the cameras having been so placed that nothing would be missed.

Not only is the fight itself faithfully portrayed, but all the interesting scenes connected with its staging are shown, the work being under the personal supervision of Mr. Rickard. Fistic celebrities from all over the world are shown and every detail of a match which caused more comment than a presidential election is reproduced.

This picture has been shown at all the larger theatres of the country, the admission price running in many cases up to two dollars. Manager Brumund announces that the price of admission in Thief River Falls will be 50 cents for the evening performance and 25 cents for the matinee.

LEAVE TO URGE DRAINAGE PLANS AT WASHINGTON

Officials of Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District on Important Mission.

Will Lay Matter Before Indian and Interior Departments For Consideration.

Geo. W. Walker of this City Chief Engineer of Project, Member of Party.

The following article, taken from the Minneapolis Journal of Sunday is of particular interest to the people of Pennington and surrounding counties:

Plans for the early development of the big Red Lake drainage and waterpower project will be considered at Washington next week. C. G. Selvig of Crookston, president of the board of directors of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy district, left Minneapolis last night for Washington with three engineering experts, who, with him, will lay the subject before the secretary of the interior. His associates on the trip are E. V. Willard, state commissioner of drainage and waters; George W. Walker of Thief River Falls, chief engineer of the project, and Adolf F. Meyer of Minneapolis, consulting engineer.

The Red Lake drainage and conservancy district was organized under a state law passed at the extra session of 1919, and works under authority of the district court. It was officially recognized by act of congress last February and given power to put through the big project, which is a combined drainage and waterpower enterprise. When completed, it is expected to bring the following benefits:

Relieve from periodical floods 236,800 acres of land in the Red Lake Indian reservation, making available for agriculture some of the richest lands in the state.

Protect 248,500 acres outside the reservation from floods.

Make Red lake, with its 441 square miles of water area, a great reservoir, regulating flow of the Red Lake river and preventing its overflow.

Provide a constant flow of water in the Red Lake river, making development of its great waterpower possibilities practical, with a minimum flow of 600 cubic feet a second insured all the year around, supplying cheap power for Grand Forks, Fargo, Crookston and other Red River valley cities.

The main task in deepening and straightening the Red Lake river, which for the first 40 miles has a very slight fall and runs through a flat, swampy region. After that, the river has a rapid fall until it reaches Fisher, near the Red river. The plans call for payment of part of the cost by waterpower interests. The rest would be assessed against benefited land. Under the federal act, Red Lake Indian tribal funds may be drawn upon to meet assessments against the Indian land, which later will be charged to the land after it is patented.

Success of Project Forecast.

Mr. Selvig, who is principal of the branch state agricultural school at Crookston, has been a leader in the movement for several years. He predicted last night that the success of the project will make one of the richest agricultural section of the state. Lands east of Red lake now overflowed at high stages of water will be reclaimed, and settlers from that district attended a conference on the project at Bemidji, Oct. 28.

"The regulated level of the lake under the present plan will be two feet or more below the unregulated high stages of water," said Mr. Selvig. "Dams at the outlet of the lake will provide for a three foot storage.

660 Cubic Feet a Second.

"That amount of water, over an area of 441 square miles, will afford a continuous minimum flow of 600 cubic feet a second for three years. This does not allow for evaporation, but rainfall ordinarily is sufficient to take care of that factor.

"Waterpower now developed on the Red Lake river is available now only seven months in the year. When it is assured 12 months in the year, waterpower companies will spend millions of dollars on development. The fall in the river between Thief River Falls and Fisher is so rapid as to make waterpower plants every six miles practical, we are assured."

U. S. Approval Required.

The federal law provides that detailed plans for the project must be approved by the secretary of war and the chief of engineers. All work within the Red Lake reservation must be approved also by the secretary of the interior.

"Before acceptance of the plans," the law says, "the Red Lake drainage and conservancy board and the secretary of the interior shall ascertain and agree upon the maximum and minimum levels between which the water in Red lake shall be permitted to be fluctuated."

Agitation for this improvement has been under way since 1892, or 29 years. Only within the last two years, however, has it made any headway. The last legislature allowed $25,000 for survey work, which is now under way.

May Erect Storage House For Pure Seed Potatoes

A meeting of the Red River Valley certified seed potato growers is called for Monday of next week to be held in Crookston, at which time a matter of considerable importance is to receive attention, according to the announcement made by O. K. Berget, secretary of the association.

The storing of seed potatoes in quantities sufficient to fill any orders has been a problem confronting the association and the matter of erecting a storehouse to be owned and used by the association members for seed potatoes only is to be considered.

Storage structures owned by similar organizations in other states have been studied and reports as to the results obtained by the construction of frost proof houses. These will be presented at the meeting Monday, and if the plan meets with favor a building will be erected during the coming year.

This building, according to tentative plans, will have facilities for the handling of potatoes in any quantity, and it is probable that storage facilities will be provided as the need may be developed for potatoes of all kinds, common marketing varieties as well as certified seed stock.

YOUNG MEN BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF MAKING MOONSHINE

Eddie Gesselquist and James Iverson Held to Grand Jury in $500 Bonds.

Eddie Gesselquist and James Iverson were bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge N. W. Tarrant on Friday, charged with operating a still for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Hickory township. Bail was fixed in the sum of $500 and the accused were released upon its being furnished.

Both are young men and were arrested by Sheriff W. J. LaBree on Wednesday of last week. Sheriff LaBree, in company with Leonard DuChamp, went to the house occupied by the two men for the purpose of conducting a search. According to the sheriff's testimony on the witness stand, they entered the place and found Iverson sitting near the stove reading by the light of a lamp. Gesselquist went upstairs and was followed shortly by the sheriff, but not before he had time to throw a 15-gallon jug out of the window. This jug, according to the witness, contained malt or mash. The searchers also found a number of bottles and jugs scattered about the room. Gesselquist later went out to the woodpile, where he secured a gallon bottle filled with a liquid and proceeded to smash it with an ax. The bottle smelled of whiskey, the sheriff stated.

Gesselquist on the stand swore that he does not know what "mash" is and that the stuff found was grain they were soaking for horse feed.

County Attorney Theo. Quale carried on the examination for the state while the accused were not represented by counsel.

SCHOOL ANNUAL TO BE BEST OF SERIES

Publication to be Financed Entirely Through Subscriptions This Year.

The 1922 Prowler, annual publication of students of the Thief River Falls high school, is now in the making and will be one of the finest issues ever turned out in this section, if all plans of the managers and editors are carried out. In certain respects it will be different from any of its predecessors.

In the first place the book will contain no advertising matter. The school authorities have forbidden the soliciting of business of this kind for the purpose of meeting the expense, and this will have to be taken care of solely through subscriptions to the book. The action of the Merchants association in deciding to turn down advertising in all programs, annuals, etc., would make it a difficult matter to finance the undertaking in this manner.

In order to proceed with the publication of The Prowler it will be necessary to contract in advance for the sale of 350 copies at $2 each. This should not be a difficult matter, practically every business man in the city having pledged himself to take one or more copies in lieu of an advertising outlay. The book will easily be worth the sum asked.

The Prowler is a complete history of the school's activities during the year and should be in every home in the city. The work will be profusely illustrated and contain the photos of the faculty members and the graduating seniors. The undertaking is worthy of support and it would be regrettable if it were to fail through lack of this.

Misses Laura and Emma Jorgenson, teachers in the local schools, left Wednesday afternoon for Fargo to spend Thanksgiving.

1000 ENTRIES OF PRIZE POULTRY AT FIFTH SHOW

This is Number Expected at Annual Exhibition on Dec. 6, 7, 8 and 9.

Interest Evinced is Greater Than For Any Previous Show of the Kind.

Ordinary Fancier Will Have Opportunity in Special Class Now Added.

The fifth annual exhibition of the Pennington County Poultry association will be held at the auditorium, Thief River Falls, on Dec. 6, 7, 8 and 9. Premium lists will be distributed this week and fanciers from all over this section are preparing their prize birds for entry.

More interest is being evinced in this show than in any previous similar event, both by residents of the county and those residing at a distance. Inquiries have come from Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas, besides a large number from other points in this state, requesting that premium lists be sent and stating that it was the intention of the writer to enter one or more coops of chickens at the exhibition.

Farmer Class Added.

In order to make the exhibit more interesting to the farmers who do not particularly specialize in poultry raising, a class has been added for their particular benefit. This will give them an opportunity at the prizes without bringing their stock into direct competition with that of the professionals. It is particularly desired that farmers bring in their best birds for entry in this class as it will stimulate interest and encourage them in the breeding of a higher class of poultry. Experts will be on hand to point out the advantages of breeding blooded stock and in this manner a greater stimulus will be given the industry.

1,000 Birds Expected.

The first annual show of the Pennington County Poultry association was held five years ago, when 200 entries—many of the scrub variety—were exhibited. Last year there were 800 birds shown and the effort toward improvement was most marked. A large share of the coops contained thoroughbreds, the strains being about equally divided between the famous layers and the heavier table bird. Officials of the association believe there will be 1,000 chickens alone exhibited at the coming show and that the exhibits of ducks, geese, turkeys, guinea and pea fowl will be greater than ever before.

Breeders, feeders, fanciers and all others interested in the poultry game should make it a point to attend this show and to become exhibitors. This affair will be one of the biggest and best in the state and by far the largest and most important to be held in the north section.

First Indoor Concert by Band to be Given Dec. 11

The first free concert of the winter season will be given at the auditorium on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 11, beginning at 3:30 o'clock. Leader H. S. Snyder has in preparation a program that is sure to please, being composed of a judicious mixture of the classic and popular.

It is the intention to make these concerts a monthly feature throughout the winter if arrangements for practicing can be made. The band has been meeting in the Commercial club rooms on Monday evenings in the past but this plan will have to be discontinued unless a compromise can be affected. The Community Girls now use the club room for their meetings every other Monday night, which throws the band boys out of very essential practice on two nights every month. It is very much desired that the two organizations can so arrange their meetings as not to conflict with one another and the matter will no doubt be taken up for discussion by both at an early date.

Winter concerts have always proved popular in the past and it is to be hoped that the citizens will not be deprived of them this year.

Council Buys Additional Lots For Park Purposes

The city council at its meeting on Tuesday evening authorized the purchase of lots 12 and 13 in block 19 and lots 9 and 10 in block 25 of Porter's addition for park purposes. These plots abut the 12 lots recently acquired for the same purpose and will make quite an addition to the tract. The tract is situated at the southern limits of the city and reached by what is known as Lovers' Lane. It lies along the bank of the river and constitutes an ideal property for the purpose intended. Two of the lots were the property of Augusta Chelstrom and the others were owned by W. H. Lee of Snohomish, Wash. The price paid to each of the former owners was $100.

SELVIG FOR CONGRESS?

Charles B. Cheney, political writer on the Minneapolis Journal, professes to have information tending to show that C. G. Selvig of Crookston is to be brought out as an opponent of Congressman Steenerson for the Republican nomination in the coming primaries. Ever since Steenerson entered congress twenty years ago the Journal has been fearful of his overthrow a few months before election, but the veteran has always upset the dope. It must be admitted, however, that seldom if ever has a candidate of the calibre and standing of Mr. Selvig been brought out against Mr. Steenerson and if the former should enter the campaign in earnest it would mean one of the hottest primary fights ever witnessed in the district.

The Journal writer goes at some length into the political history of the Ninth and professes to have discovered considerable opposition to Mr. Steenerson within the ranks of his own party. The article follows:

"C. G. Selvig, principal of the state school of agricuture at Crookston, may be brought out as a candidate for congress in the ninth district. Leading republicans of the district have been talking about it. There are predictions that his name will come up before the republican district convention next March.

"The Steenerson organization was against the convention bill, and influenced several votes in the house against it, on the ground that it would be possible for the Nonpartisan league to capture the republican convention. Now that it is a law, Mr. Steenerson's name probably will be presented to the convention. There have been reports, however, that he would not be a candidate next year.

Mr. Steenerson has been in congress since 1903 and his present term will make 20 years' continuous service. He has had some rather narrow escapes at times, but generally has gone through elections with colors flying. In the last two elections he has been fortunate in having the solid backing of all anti-radical forces in the district, in opposition to the Nonpartisan league. In the 1918 primary election, he defeated F. M. Burton, a socialist railroad engineer, 3,800 margin. In 1920 he had a close call in the primaries, defeating N. E. Thormodson by 713 votes, but the swing toward sound government landed him an easy winner in November.

"There has been considerable latent opposition to Mr. Steenerson among republicans and the antis have been looking around for a candidate. Mr. Selvig has been proposed because of the work he has done in the district, which has made him one of the best known men in that section of the state. He has many former students scattered through the valley counties. He has been one of the main workers in the Red River Valley Development association, and is president of the board of directors of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy district, which has charge for both state and federal governments of the big Red Lake river project."

A COMMON SENSE SOLUTION.

... to stand for a cut in wages averaging 8 per cent for piece workers and for 3 to 7½ cents an hour for others. This conclusion was reached after a committee of union men had examined the books of the companies. The cut goes into effect Nov. 28 and it is expected that 125,000 workers in the industry will agree to the new scale.

This satisfactory outcome proves what can be accomplished when employer and employe get together with the intention of doing just what is fair toward one another. The packers threw open their books and records to inspection by the workers and the latter were convinced that it would be to their own and the industry's best interests to accept a lower rate of pay. They were practically permitted to fix the amount of the reduction themselves.

While such proceeding is rather unusual its success should encourage others in trying the plan. That the men surrendered nothing in the way of essential rights is evidenced by the attitude of Chairman A. S. Triplett of the employes' organization, who gave the following decidedly succinct statement of their position:

"A wage cut had to be made and we made it. We saved the cardinal principles for the men, however."

INTERESTING FIGURES.

Pennington county has every reason to be proud of the showing made in population and material gain during the past ten years. The figures just published by the census bureau show that we have more than held our own with neighboring counties during the decade in these respects, while the details furnish many other items of much interest.

While an increase in population of some 26 per cent is in itself a highly satisfactory showing, the fact that those who have arrived during the past ten years are nearly all native Americans is ground for congratulation, even though there is no fault to be found with the class of immigrants that have selected this section as the place in which to build their homes.

The figures show that the addition of a very small fraction would make our population average five to the family, there being 2,481 of the latter in the county. There are not quite dwellings enough to go around, these numbering 2,372, but even that is a very good showing.

The percentage of illiterates in the county is so small as to be negligible, while the population is almost pure white, Negroes, Asiatics and Indians hardly being found in sufficient numbers to make it worth their being counted. It would seem as if we are just a little short of womenfolks, there being 3,382 males in the county to 2,798 females.

An article in another part of The Times goes more into details as regards this interesting showing and will be found worth careful perusal by everyone.

SOUNDS GOOD, ANYWAY.

It was naturally expected that any serious objection to carrying out the disarmament program proposed by the American government would be interposed by the interests generally believed to profit most through the waging of wars, and the big steel companies of the county were uppermost in people's minds when this thought was given [illegible]. If the men at the head of these enormous enterprises are to be [illegible], however, they are [illegible] of us to have [illegible].

Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, for instance, has [illegible] an unqualified endorsement of the program announced by Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes. He said in an address delivered [illegible] in New York:

"The carrying out of that plan [illegible] quarters, but such a thing as financial loss can be of no consideration when compared to the inestimable boon to mankind which would be involved in the realization of that magnificent plan.

"If disarmament inflicts a money loss upon us, the American iron and steel industry will accept it gladly. We will not do so in a spirit of mere idealism and self-sacrifice, but in a belief that the greatest permanent, material prosperity would be brought about by the concentration of the energies of mankind upon constructive activities; upon means for well-being and not for the destruction of civilization."

Judge Gary, head of the United States steel corporation, speaking on the same subject in another city, said:

"It is true that most of the sixty thousand workmen will be thrown out of employment at first. Some method of taking care of them and finding new work for them can be found. Dependent industries will likewise be affected, as well as the business of cities where they and the navy yards are situated. That is a temporary evil to be borne as part of our contribution to peace and lower taxes."

All of which sounds fine and patriotic and must be taken at its face value. There is no more reason for doubting the sincerity of these men than there is for questioning the motives of any person who is unreservedly backing up his government in this disarmament proposal. There are those who will refuse to look at the matter in this light, but they would be unable to find anything to commend in the attitude of Gary or Schwab, no matter what the proposal happened to be. To most people, however, the support given the government's program by these men will be welcomed as sincere and highly important.

The Common Cause.
(Duluth Herald.)

A beautiful thing happened at the annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Duluth.

Among the speakers were a priest of the Roman Catholic church, a Jewish rabbi, a Congregational minister and a Unitarian minister.

And each, in his different way, spoke from the same text: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." All spoke in the heartiest spirit of earnest co-operation in the common cause of mercy and relief. All barriers of sect and creed were swept away, and Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, appeared shoulder to shoulder in the spirit of human brotherhood under the fatherhood of God which will be the salvation of a world that needs that salvation so much.

It was only a little place. It was only a little group that was gathered there. But the spirit that prevailed there is mighty—mightier than all the forces of evil. And it is a spirit that is working in the hearts of men these days, a leaven that will break down the barriers which set men apart and that will yet bring them together in a unity of love against which the storms of evil in this world will beat in vain.

The Golden Age.

Pretty little sowthistle standing in the sun,
How many thistles when your work is done?
Some for my master, some for your damp,
Some for your neighbor that lives down the lane.

A mightier fellow, though covered with yellow,
The wind is at his command
To speed him around all over the ground,
His progeny seizes the land.

Little Bo-Peep will pasture her sheep
And sleep 'mid its glorious bloom.
The quail and the rabbit will all get the habit;
Oh, boy, for the sowthistle boom!

Its value as feed, and plenty of seed,
The stems for fodder or silk;
And after it's seized and thoroughly squeezed,
It will amply supply us with milk.

So why should we worry when it's in a hurry
To spread its relief each fall?
For yearly taxation and all that relation,
We'll need no money at all.

—A. G. Anderson.

What Other Editors Think.

WE'VE NOTICED IT, TOO.

Montevideo News: A news item from the U. S. mint states that silver dollars are being manufactured again, as "there has been a genuine shortage of silver dollars." Now that our attention is officially called to it we do recall having noticed the shortage of whatever silver dollars ever drifted into our casual and very fleeting possession.

DON'T THEY?

Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch Speaking of love, how does it come that in real life their cheats never go up and down like they do in the moving pictures.

WE CAN'T KEEP OUT.

Ivanhoe Times: The indifference with which many people view the disarmament conference at Washington indicates that they do not fully realize that the future of this country may be swaying in the balance. If the conference accomplishes definite results we probably will enjoy a long period of peace. If they fail, another world war is inevitable in order to adjust the political and commercial differences that are exasperating Europe and Asia with every setting of the sun. In such an event the United States can not hope to escape. The day is past when we can sit calmly on the fence and watch the other fellow "go to it." Some nation will be sure to kick the fence from beneath us, as the kaiser did in the last war.

MINNESOTA AGAIN LEADS.

Little Falls Transcript: Minnesota again was in the lead in the number of new settlers for October. During that month 57 car loads of stock and household goods came into the state owned by prospective settlers. Wisconsin got 22 and Iowa 18.

TIME TO BEGIN CAMPAIGN.

Dawson Sentinel: It is none too early to begin the campaign for the adoption of Amendment No. 1—the Rural Credits Amendment—which has been submitted to the people of Minnesota, and which will be voted on at the general election a year hence. It would have been well if the farmers of the state could avail themselves of a rural credit system at the present time. They cannot, but they should see to it that one is provided as soon as possible. Tell your neighbor about the Rural Credits Amendment.

USED POOR JUDGMENT.

Minneapolis Journal: Two gentlemen at Crookston picked out an express train to run into, head on. It is annoying to slow up, but a fast train should be given the right of way. Always.

GETS FIRST HAND KNOWLEDGE.

Murray County Herald: Mayor Hodgson of St. Paul was last week forcibly ejected from a street car in the Capitol city, of which he is mayor, for refusing to pay two fares for riding one block, to an outsider the episode smells of high handedness. If the mayor of St. Paul would be accorded such treatment, we just wonder what we poor country "hicks" would get for a similar offense.

THERE'LL BE A CROWD.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Carl Eastwood of the Le Sueur Herald tells the anti-tobacco reformers that we will all smoke some day. Knowing which way he is headed, Carl hopes for a lot of company.

SHOULD BE BORNE IN MIND.

Dassel Dispatch: The state Farm Bureau federation sends out a news article this week which acknowledges the great debt that the farm bureau owes to the newspapers of the country. Without the support of the newspapers, always given freely and most of the time at a great expense, the farm bureau would have consumed ten years of time and a lot of money in making the progress that it has made in the past three years. This is not a boast but just a simple statement of fact which is all too easily forgotten by those who have benefited.

BETTER NOW THAN LATER.

Hibbing Tribune: It's pretty late to do your Christmas shopping early but you can do it today, which is apt to prove more satisfactory than Christmas eve.

BE LOYAL TO YOUR TOWN.

Norman County Herald: Why not be fair to your home town? Do your buying with the merchant who is your neighbor and friend, who, when you need it, will give you accommodations you could not get away from home, who helps keep Ada going and growing by paying taxes and licenses here, paying store rent here, paying wages to employes here, buying his own household supplies here. The home business man is a big factor in the growth and development of the city. When it is necessary to raise funds for church or charity he is the first to give, and he gives liberally. The question is largely one of town loyalty and of good business practice. It is not loyalty to a town to buy goods in other towns that could be bought as cheap and as well as home, and it is poor business policy to pay merchants in other cities more for goods than home merchants charge for them.

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Thief River Falls. No Thief River Falls resident who suffers backache, or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

E. L. Krogstad, railroad brakeman, 523 State Ave., N., Thief River Falls, gave the following statement Nov. 30, 1917: "When I was living up in the Roaring River district, the hard water disordered my kidneys. Every morning I woke up with a terrible pain through my kidneys and my back became weak and lame. It hurt me to stoop or bend in any way and my kidneys acted irregularly. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they fixed me up in such good shape that I haven't been troubled since."

On Aug. 8, 1921, Mr. Krogstad added: "The cure I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills has been a permanent one. I sure think Doan's are a good remedy and I gladly confirm [illegible] statement."

Rendering a Positive Service

The Daily News, Minneapolis, Minnesota, prints the following editorial in its issue of November 14:

When Magnitude Discards Mystery

Frankness is being better recognized a big asset in all human relations, including business.

The bigger the business, the greater the need for frankness.

It wasn't always so; in fact, until only a few years ago, the reverse was true so far as actual practice was concerned and magnitude paid a penalty for the mystery in which it chose to cloak itself.

As one of the biggest of the big industrial and commercial organizations, the Standard Oil Co. used to exercise its full proportionate share of mystery. That this policy has been changed—deliberately and conspicuously—is a development that is as radical as it is interesting to students of publicity.

For three years, Standard Oil has been out of its shell telling the public exactly how it was doing things, why it was doing things and what it was driving at. It has made large use of advertising space in newspapers without regard to their attitude toward itself. It has conspicuously evidenced its desire to talk to the people and to put out its products for a price that included good will.

Today, instead of merely making its products available to those who MUST buy, Standard Oil is employing extensive publicity to make people WANT to buy. There is a very great difference, just about the difference between the exaction of tribute in one case and the rendering of positive service in the other.

Entirely aside from commercial considerations, a policy of frankness and service will tend to iron out some disagreeable wrinkles in the things that are. And the benefits will go to both sides of the equation.

To render a positive service is not alone the desire of those responsible for the management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). It is a well-formed, clearly-understood determination.

This determination to render a positive service is expressed in the multitude of products manufactured by this Company from crude petroleum. The housewife, the motorist, the farmer, the physician, the fabricator of raw materials, almost every special branch of human endeavor, has been considered and that part of the petroleum which will render to each the greatest service, has been segregated and made instantly available.

This is the method chosen by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to make tangible the positive service it is endeavoring to render.

The campaign of advertising which is being carried on has as its object a frank discussion of the ways and means used by the Company in delivering this service, a discussion which tells what it is doing and how it is doing it, and why.

That there is a better understanding of the motives of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and a feeling of increasing confidence in its integrity and straightforward frankness is indicated by the number of favorable comments which the campaign has elicited from the editorial departments of newspapers, big and little, throughout the eleven states served.

Justice, equity, frankness, a basic desire to render a positive service, and a determination to take all of the people into its confidence are the underlying principles governing this organization.

Thanksgiving

Three hundred years ago, a day was set aside for the first Thanksgiving, a day when all people should put away their daily toil and give thanks to God that their lives had been spared and provision made for the coming winter. How little they had, compared with the present, for which to be thankful. How great were the dangers and hardships which they faced daily. Yet they were truly and sincerely thankful for what they did receive and saw fit to express their thanks to the Giver of all our blessings.

Three hundred years have passed since that first Thanksgiving day and with the passing of each year our blessings have increased and our dangers and hardships have been lessened. And so in turn we, too, set aside a day to offer our thanks in a similar way and to the same God as did the Pilgrim Fathers long ago. Then there were but few, today there are millions; then, their blessings could be counted on the fingers of one's hands, today our blessings are legion. They lived in constant danger and hardship; we live in safety and comfort. Should not our thanksgiving be in proportion to our blessings? Should we not, each and every one, seek to show our appreciation in a larger, broader way? Can we not let this one day, which we have set aside, be but a beginning in our giving thanks? Let each one on this day not only offer thanks for our many blessings but also seek some way in which to show during the days to come our gratitude and appreciation. Let each one, as we sum up these blessings of ours, endeavor to pass them on to others who are less fortunate. Let each one strive to make this Thanksgiving Day as joyous and sincere as did those few determined settlers so many years ago.—A. J.

A Thanksgiving Story

"Thanksgiving day tomorrow. Thanksgiving! Huh! What have I got to be thankful for, I'd like to know. We've got just barely enough food and clothes. Of course, there's a roof over our heads. The way we work, too. Yes, we'll have a turkey, won't we? Six or seven of 'em. Oh, well! Now let me see. Corn bread for supper (same as yesterday.) It's about time the boys were getting home. My boys—Roy and Clark. Why, why, they're something to be thankful for. I never thought of them in that way before. They're regular little blessings, that's what they are!" These were the thoughts of the Widow Jenkins as she prepared a meagre evening meal for herself and her children.

A brisk knocking, followed by the immediate opening of the door, interrupted her thoughts.

One glance revealed the unconscious form of a boy about twelve years old in the arms of a traffic officer. Behind them was Roy and a doctor.

The mother did not say a word. She opened the door leading into the bedroom, with a hard, sullen look in her eyes. While the doctor worked over Clark the policeman told Mrs. Jenkins what had happened.

Roy and Clark had been selling papers and had had good luck. They were hurrying home to show their mother.

A girl of about five or six came out of Benton's with her mother and began crossing the street. The child saw someone she knew and began running. Her mother called to her but she did not hear.

No one knew just exactly how it but Clark saved the child and he himself was very badly injured. He was dying.

After the policeman left, there began a night of waiting and praying for the mother.

Her boy, her eldest son, was on the point of death. By the side of his bed she knelt. The doctor told her he could do nothing more. But—God. The Ruler!

"Oh, God, don't let my boy die! My hero boy! My Clark! If he should die, God—but don't let him die! I trust you, God! I believe in you!"

Then came dawn—Thanksgiving morn; and in the Jenkins' small bedroom was the dawn of a wonderful love and thankfulness. God had saved her boy. Mrs. Jenkins had a great many things to be thankful for. Greatest of all was the help of God. —L. R. '25.

Get Acquainted With the Teachers and Their Work.

Dec. 5 to 10 is Education Week. This is a good time for the parents to meet the teachers. In my teaching experience I have never worked with a group of men and women who had the welfare of the students so much at heart as the high school teachers of Thief River Falls. Neither have I ever worked with teachers who were more agreeable and so willing to co-operate for the good of the school. Come and get acquainted. I know that you will like them.

The week of Dec. 5 to 10 has

We are not going to "show off." We want you to see and learn to know us just as we are. Find out what your children are doing in school, from kindergarten to high school, and find out first hand how they do it. Our schools are your schools.

Monday evening, Dec. 5, the Parent-Teachers association meets at 8 o'clock in the Lincoln high school building. We shall be glad to welcome you to this meeting.—M. P. R.

Shall He Die?

Sick? Yes! Seriously? Very!! Will he die? In all probability!!

Is there nothing we can do? Certainly, surely, positively, unquestionably, of course! But if you don't, and don't do it right away quick, then overtake the undertaker and have him undertake to take over the undertaking.

Well, vot iss los? It's the 1922 Prowler, that's what it is! The 1922 Prowler, I said! Can you hear me? Can you HEAR me? The Prowler! The Prowler!! The P-r-o-w-l-e-r!!! Are you going to let the 1922 Prowler die? Well, he will, will, will—unless you help! Can't you see, hear, taste, smell, feel that I am serious? Then you have no senses! But if you have no senses, maybe you have cents? Ah, that will help! That's what we need!! No, we need both: Sense enough to realize that NO Prowler would be a calamity to our students, school and city, and cents enough to buy one! Students, parents, business men, citizens, we MUST have your subscriptions right away. Three hundred fifty as a very minimum must be subscribed for before Dec. 1 four hundred ought to be subscribed for. Only one hundred seventy-one have been subscribed for to date. We have one hundred seventy-nine to go.

What greater asset has a city than its schools? What more effective advertisement has a city than its schools? What more effective advertisement have the schools than a snappy, happy, peppy annual? If you would advertise your city, not your individual business, make it possible by your subscriptions for a liberal number to go through with the 1922 Prowler and send them to your relatives and friends. Call us by telephone and tickle our ears with a "Send someone over to take my subscription." Oh, that's fine! Now you're talking! That's great! "Ain't we got fun!" There'll be no funeral after all. Yes, there will be if you don't subscribe. No, there won't. Yes, there will. No, there won't. Well, let's see! Tell you for sure Dec. 1.—S.

How I Earned Money to Buy An Annual.

"We must have 350 subscriptions by Nov. 30 or we can't publish an annual."

I hadn't been planning on buying an annual (my pocketbook was rather empty) but that woke me up. Why, we just MUST have an annual. The school year wouldn't seem complete without one. Then the superintendent spoke of earning money. That's just what I would do. So I began immediately to try and earn some money. Fifty cents wouldn't be hard to earn before the end of the month. I was going to help put over the annual!

Once in a while I had taken care of Mrs. Blake's children and how I wished that she would call me up. She didn't, though. But Wednesday afternoon I met her near the auditorium and asked her if she was going to see "Ole and the Newsboy." No, she wasn't going. She had been to a party last night, etc., etc.

When I got home Thursday after school mother said to me: "Mrs. Arnold called up and wanted to know if you would take care of Burton. As you weren't home I told Elsie to go."

"Oh, mother!" I exclaimed. "If only I'd have been home!" and I told her all about it.

She laughed but grew sober again as she said, "I'd like very much to be able to give you the money, but as it is—"

"You aren't going to give me any of that money. I know just how it is. About four days from now I'll be showing you my subscription. This will be great fun because I've never earned myself anything yet."

Who says Friday is unlucky? It sure was my lucky day. After school I asked Mrs. Grand if she needed anyone to clean her house. She usually gets Alva Benson and Alva gets thirty-five cents for just cleaning downstairs. It took quite a good deal of nerve to ask her but didn't we have to have an annual? Mrs. Grand is an invalid, you know.

"Well, you're only twelve but I'll try you out. I'll try you out," she said.

There wasn't much to do and I wasn't a bit tired, and she gave me thirty cents. As I was leaving she called me back and said, "Is your brother home? I'd like to have him clean off the sidewalk."

I told her he wasn't home but I'd be very glad to do it. I'm a pretty strong girl and anyway that annual. She gave me fifteen cents. I told her that she helped me get my annual. She was very pleased.

Well, that other five cents wasn't hard to get and then I had my fifty. They only need three hundred and forty-nine subscriptions now!—Lucille Roark. '25.

Red Cross Drive.

The Girls' Community club contributed its services to the Red Cross to carry on the local drive, which began Armistice Day, Nov. 11, and citizens and business men have already responded generously.

The Red Cross is a worthy organization deserving the aid of all the people. Its work is carried on in every part of the world, and there is no nation that does not respect its sacred position.

The annual report declared that an increasing effectiveness on the part of the Red Cross to deal with emergencies was manifest during the last year. "Through its chain of chapters linking virtually every county in the country with headquarters at Washington, the Red Cross has established a network of communication through which instantaneous relief may be dispatched to any part of the United States.

"Through its nursing service, its home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition, first aid and life saving numerous other ways designed to acquaint the masses of citizens with proper methods of living, the Red Cross carried its message of health into all parts of the country."

Red Cross relief was extended upon forty-three occasions during the year. Disasters ranged from the grasshopper plague in Dakota to the Chinese famine. Famine threatens many parts of the world today. In this great universe there are always devastating fires, earthquakes or other forms of destruction causing mysery. Who is always first on the field? The Red Cross. Who knows but what Thief River Falls may next need the help of the Red Cross?

It is up to you who are safe and sound to supply aid. If you have not already done so, answer the roll call now with your contribution.—C. B.

The Commercial Department

The course of study in the Commercial department this year varies from that of previous years since one instructor has all of the work.

The subjects offered are: Bookkeeping, open to Sophomores; Stenography I, Typewriting I and Commercial Arithmetic to Juniors; Stenography II and Typewriting II to Seniors. The second semester a course in Office Training will probably be offered. This will be open only to Seniors who have completed Typewriting I and II and are taking either Stenography I or II this year. This course aims to present the routine of office work in a practical manner and thus familiarize the student with the many duties he may be called upon to perform.

The enrollment by classes this semester is as follows: Bookkeeping 26; Typewriting I 24; Typewriting II 16; Stenography I 24; Stenography II 20; Commercial Arithmetic 28. Bookkeeping, Typewriting I and II are all double period subjects, or 80 minutes of class work required instead of the usual 40 minutes.

The aim of the department is to train the young men and young women so that when they are graduated, they may accept positions as bookkeepers, typists or stenographers and make good in the eyes of the business world. A successful graduate of the business department must have a knowledge of the particular allied subjects as economics, commerce, history, English, correspondence and mathematics. The cultural side as well as the technical side of an education must be given special attention. More than this, the business course should so equip a Senior with college entrance credits that he can pursue his work in college, if he prefers this to immediate entrance into business. More co-operation between the universities and high schools will make the business course meet this two-fold demand. The business department must train students to live happier lives and more useful lives and if in so doing it requires them to be proficient in a few clearly defined subjects, we may properly understand a business course.

The business world demands faithfulness, promptness, determination in addition to ability. In order to meet these demands the student needs to pa ythe price—and the price is not to be paid in dollars and cents, but in hard, conscientious work.

Are you students in the Thief River Falls high school going to pay the price in hard, conscientious work —well done—E. H.

Two Modern Motorists

Pete: "'Lo, Bill."

Bill: "'Lo yourself. Where yo goin'?"

Pete: "Goin' down ta buy a new tire for my benzine buggy. Comin' up from St. Hilaire the other night I heard an awful noise from the rear and at first I thought the sheriff of Red Lake county was trailin' me. On second thought, I was glad he missed if he was shootin'. Soon found I had a blow out in the left hind tire, so I wheeled in on the rim and noticed I beat the passenger, too, for that day."

Bill: "That's nothin' unusual for a bus like yours. Why don't ya get a car like mine that's easy on tires—a real road eater? Suppose you had a well behaved, classy lookin', smooth runnin' 'Lastwell' like mine. Say, Pete, you don't know how it feels to pilot a real, honest-to-goodness steamer like mine—all 'go'—and and rarin' for more."

Bill: "Never mind, Bill, talk is cheap, like air at the fillin' station. You say I don't know how it feels to drive a real substitute for the horse? Get out! Why, last summer, when I was out West climbin' mountains that looked like they went straight up and shook hands with the moon, that little old haywire of mine slid up those snarly roads like greased lightn'n' never for a minute hesitatin' to spit back into the carbutor nor speculatin' about turnin' back. No, sir, Bill, no signs of anything but gladness to work in its iron heart. Why, Bill, that little pile of tin cans I keep in the shed behind the house can go 57 miles per hour and not turn a hair, give for an average 28 miles to the gallon of gas, and oil—well, I put some in the crank case about twice a year out of force of habit."

Bill: "Some mustang you've got, Pete. Lives like an air fern, eh? You want to tell that gas and oil story to the Oil Trust when they send you their bill. I'll have to admit my wheelbarrow does use some oil and gas occasionally but it is very easy on air. By the way, Pete, how does it feel to 'fliv' through the air on wings of tin, 57 miles an hour, with thirty by threes under ya, no springs present but those in your watch, and the engine shimmyin' to and fro between the frame and your lap and back? How does it feel, I say?"

Pete: "I can plainly see your little ice wagon never carried you over 30 per hour, so I can sympathize with you, Bill. Every nerve in your body tingles and vibrates with—"

Bill: "The car?"

Pete: "No, no. With the thrill that only comes once in a while."

Bill: "Yeh, I'll bet. By the way, Jake Poordriver was tellin' me about his new car the other day. Says he, 'Say, Bill, I've got some boat now; hot and cold runnin' water, steam heat, electric lights, self stopper and unmountable rims, yep, some scow.' 'Well,' sez I, 'what kind of a horn have ya got?' 'Horn?' sez he. 'Don't need any.' Sez I, 'How's that—don't need a horn?' Sez he, 'I've got a little sign painted on the radiator which knocks 'em cold and says Dodge Brothers.'"

Pete: "Har! Har! Say, Bill, d'd ya ever see his old 'expense account'? Well, I reckon ya have but you'll see her no more 'cause she's headed for the museum."

Bill: "In other words, you mean to say if he would jack up the horn button and put a new car under, he would have a new car, eh?"

The Psalm of Lincoln High

Tell me not in mournful numbers
School life is an empty dream,
Eight hours only do we slumber,
And things are just what they seem.

Life is real, life is earnest,
To be Seniors is our goal.
Use your barins and use them plenty and an "A" you'll get at roll.

Some enjoyment and some sorrow
Come to greet us on our way,
You must act that each tomorrow
Finds you keener than today.

Talk is cheap and time is fleeting;
And our students strong and brave
Must arise and speak out clearly
Or sit still and just behave.

In our rooms so bright and cheerful,
Tho some seats are small and tight,
Whisper not lest all too tearful
You may sit at teacher's right.

Trust no future howe'er pleasant,
Come today and don't be late,
Don't pretend you're sick and ailing,
Present always, you're first rate.

Lives of great men all remind us
We must not forever smile
And departing leave behind us
Far less paper in the aisle.

Paper which, perhaps, another
With his back all sore from "gym"
May be told in accent bitter,
"Clear that aisle up neat and trim."

Let us then be up and doing!
Things will happen sure as fate.
Keep achieving, keep perusing,
Lessons learn ere it's too late.

Debate

There has not been as much interest shown in debate this year as we should like. This is probably due to the fact that classes in Journalism and Public Speaking are not offered and also that all of the experienced debaters were graduated last year. Also the question, government regulation of coal prices, is not one which easily secures interest.

Because of the small number of contestants, it has been decided to eliminate the preliminaries, and the coach has chosen the following boys to make up the team: Ole Helle, Lloyd Alnes, Albert Stengelson. Although they are all inexperienced, they are doing very good work and give promise of making a strong team.

The question in spite of its seeming "dryness" is a fine one for debate, as it has two well-balanced sides and arouses little prejudice.

The first debate is to be held with Roseau early in December. Sides and places of meeting have not yet been selected.

Ruth in a Rush.

The greatest bugbear which confronts the Junior class each year is a lack of funds for the heavy expenses incident to the Junior-Senior banquet and for the work on the annual at the beginning of the following year. As a result, Juniors are usually associated with "after-the-game" lunches, candy sales, bazaars, and the like. The Junior class this year have decided to swell their bank account by presenting a play. They have selected a three-act comedy, "Ruth in a Rush," which they plan to present shortly before Christmas in the auditorium of the high school. A summary of the play and a list of Miss Chamberlain Gives Inspiring Talk.

Last Wednesday Miss Chamberlain delightfully entertained the high school students with a talk on poetry. Ordinarily it is difficult to interest folks in poetry, to say nothing of entertaining. Miss Chamberlain, however, handled the subject so skilfully that everyone showed a keen interest.

Miss Chamberlain first explained the origin of poetry. Then she pointed out how expressive poetry was compared to other forms of expression. After a short talk on poetry in general, she read the following poems, which were enjoyed very much:

Trees—Joyce Kilmer.
After Sunset—Grace H. Conklin.
Good Company—Karl W. Baker.

These three poems served to illustrate how nature lovers found poetry useful. Then by reading "Mystery," by Ralph Hodgson, "Feet," by Mary Carolyn Davis, and "Gen. William Booth Enters Heaven," she pointed out how poetry was a means of expressing intense religious feelings. "Mother o' Mine," by Flora S. Rivola, and "Music I Heard," by Conrad Aiken, served to illustrate how love gained expression through poetry. Finally, character of different types of people was described thru poetry in "Richard Carey," by Edwin A. Tobinson, "The Man With the Hoe," by Edwin Markham, and "The Awakening," by Flora S. Rivola.

Better Speech Week has been observed at the Central by all the English classes of the eighth grade. To stimulate an active interest in this work, slogans such as "Good English is largely a matter of habit. 'Get the habit!'" have been placed on all the blackboards, and pleasing posters have been hung in the English room. All errors of speech have been listed and a contest, which will not interfere with the regular class work, is being carried on whereby they hope to check the use of any bad English. The students have written short themes on Better Speech, given dialogues contrasting the use of good and bad English and learned a pledge promising to improve their oral and written English. Improvement of speech, if it is to be effective, must be practiced in the home. We would appreciate your co-operation.

Jokes and Personals

Mr. Rapacz has lately assumed the duties of a detective. If he suspects that a student's excuse is forged he uses the telephone to check up with the parents.

Henry Arneson, accompanied by his sister Eileen, entertained us with a violin solo last Friday.

Orrin Storholm has changed instructors in Ancient History. Orrin has a class of his own with Mr. Rapacz.

There is considerable rivalry among the three sections of Sophomore English over their standing in dictation exercises. The third section, which consists entirely of girls, is ahead most frequently; lately, however, the other sections have been gaining on them and sometimes have passed them.

Eleanor Sanders will be absent two weeks or more in order to take care of her aunt, Mrs. Barlow, who is ill.

Citizen meeting boy from Northrup school (grade made known upon application): "Who was the first president of the U. S.?"

Boy: "John Bratrud."

The Senior class is seriously considering the use of Bitulithic in their class rings instead of Onyx. The terms of the contract are being gone over with Superintendent Collard.

Taken from a composition: "When Galli Curci sang in the auditorium in Chicago lately, the house was packed full of people who came to hear the wonderful soprano. Five hundred people were seated on the stage and all the Nigger heavens were filled besides the seats below the stage."

Thief River Falls has organized a Parent-Teacher association. Thief River Falls is going to have a live, snappy and active Parent-Teacher association. You should belong to the Parent-Teacher association of Thief River Falls. At any rate, come to the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Thief River Falls Monday evening, Dec. 5, in the Lincoln high school building. You ought to be acquainted with the many fine parents we have in Thief River Falls. You certainly ought to know the up-and-doing teachers we have in Thief River Falls. Your attendance and active participation will make the Parent-Teacher association of Thief River Falls a success.

"A successful Parent-Teacher association offers to the parents—

A MEANS of securing definite information about the course of study, the recreation facilities, the opportunity for vocational training, the health standards of the school, and the home conditions of the children whose parents are not members of the association.

AN OPPORTUNITY to meet the teachers to whom a large proportion of their children's time is entrusted, and to meet also the parents of their children's playmates.

AN AVENUE through which they may secure the educational methods and equipment they desire and create the school atmosphere with which they desire to surround their children's school days.

A successful Parent-Teacher association offers to the teachers—

AN ASSURANCE that the parents are "behind" them in their efforts to improve the school as much as possible.

AN OPPORTUNITY to meet the parents of their pupils so that they may judge them more fairly and sympathetically and so that they may have an opportunity for frank, fair criticism of the children's individual and collective needs.

AN AVENUE through which needed improvements and equipment may be brought to the attention of the voters and the School Board."

American Legion Corner

The end of the war meant the end of many of the comradeships that grew strong in the service of God and Country. But for thousands of former service men the end of the war has not meant the end of comradeship and service. Today, many are members of an organization whose platform is "Service to God and Country." Many buddies, who served their country bravely in war have neglected to join this great organization. The time is ripe for all buddies of the great war to unite under the banner of The American Legion. Dues for 1922 are now being collected by eleven thousand posts throughout the nation. There is no initiation fee. See the nearest post adjutant. You will feel prouder and better once you belong to a great organization, pledged to a great cause.

Just as there is a bond between all former service men, so too there is a bond between the service men and the women back of them during the dark days of the great war. That is why the American Legion Auxiliary has been organized, to help carry out in peace the ideals for which their men served in war. For men are at their best when their women are behind them, not driving, but cheering, encouraging, helping—believing as only women can. The Auxiliary is the Big Sister of the American Legion. Every mother, wife, sister and daughter of every Legionaire should join it and help "carry on."

Rev. Christian Reissner of the Chelsea Methodist church of New York tells of an American doughboy who, during the dark days of 1918, wandered into a French cathedral to sight-see. He noticed a distinguished military man enter, seek a secluded spot and kneel in prayer. With American curiosity, the doughboy watched the officer and saw that he remained on his knees for one hour. The American followed him out—to find that it was Marshal Foch.

A fat negro woman watching the parade had the right spirit. Her husband started ambling down the street out of the parade, as he was passing her vantage point. When he told her he was getting tired, she waved her two flags vehemently and stepping time to the band music, exclaimed, "Lan' sakes! Yo' all's too stiff. Limber yo'self up and get back in de parade!"

Iowa had probably the longest line of marchers in the parade, with the exception of Missouri and Kansas, but Illinois and Minnesota had more post banners in line than other states. Minnesota had forty, backed up by one additional, the colors of the Giantvalley Boy Scout Troop of Minneapolis Giantvalley Post, which will also receive the "Bar of Honor" to be awarded all banners carried in the parade.

CREAMERY RECEIPTS 65 PER CENT OVER THOSE A YEAR AGO

One Thousand Dollars Was Paid Out to Producers Every Day During October.

Cash receipts at the Thief River Falls co-operative creamery for the month of October averaged $1,000 per day, while receipts of butterfat during the same period showed an increase of 62 per cent over last year. The total receipts amounted to $24,000 and the price paid averaged 43 cents per pound for butterfat in sour cream and 46 for that in sweet cream. The showing is considered by Secretary Peter Engelstad as particularly good for this time of year.

Out of a total of about 200 patrons, 36 received sums greater than $50 for the product of their herds during the month, these top-notchers being as follows:

Hans Anton, $283.14; M. T. McFarland, $189.55; P. Engelstad, $185.41; Jens Kierk, $148.10; Henry Koop, $120.23; Paul Engelstad, $101.15; Fred Copp, $96.31; Henry Pope, $86.41; S. STOCK RUNS FALL OFF; MARKET FIRM

All Classes of Stock Move at Steady to Slightly Higher Rates at St. Paul.

South St. Paul—Producers are taking the proper course this week in cutting down receipts, as this is usually a week of dull live stock markets on account of the Thanksgiving holiday. The falling off in receipts acted as a tonic in all branches of the trade and all classes sold on a steady to strong and in some cases slightly higher basis.

Part loads of best grass beeves sold from $6.70 to $6, with a seven-load string of South Dakotas averaging around 1190 pounds going to packers at $5.50, bulk between this price and $4.75, and a few commoner ones down around $4.25. Butcher she stock sold largely from $3 to $4.50, load lots up to the latter price, a few of the best offerings up around $5. Canners sold largely at $2 and $2.25, cutters $2.50 and $2.75, bologna bulls $2.25 to $3. The market for veal calves opened steady with last week's close, bulk best lights to packers at $6.50, a few extra choice vealers 25 to 50c higher. Comparatively few stockers and feeders were good enough to sell at $5.25 to $5.75, bulk of the trade being from $5 down to $3.50, some of the commonest kinds slightly less.

Hogs opened strong to 15c higher than Saturday's average, range $5.75 to $6.75, bulk $6.15 to $6.75, bulk desirable pigs $7.25, few $7.50. Fat lambs mostly $8, some Dakotas $8.10 to $8.50. Bulk best light and medium weight ewes $3.

Sale of Christmas Seals Next Important Campaign

The fourteenth annual sale of Christmas Seals conducted by the Minnesota Public Health association, of which Mrs. J. M. Bishop of Thief River Falls is a vice president, will soon be inaugurated and it is expected that the state will improve on its previous excellent record in the sale of seals.

The proceeds from this sale all go toward the fight being made on tuberculosis and a wonderful work is being accomplished. Statistics show that in the United States 114 persons out of every 100,000 died of tuberculosis in 1920, while in Minnesota the toll was 90 out of every 100,000 population. The percentage has been steadily cut down since means were first provided through the sale of Christmas seals for waging a state-wide fight against the disease and those who have made a study of the subject are convinced that a vigorous campaign will eventually stamp out the scourge entirely.

The campaign in Pennington county will again in all probability be placed under the direction of County Agent J. J. McCann, secretary of the county board of health, who has successfully conducted two previous sales.

CLOVER SEED MEN OF STATE TO FORM MARKETING UNIT

Warehouses for Collecting and Scarifying are Part of Plans Considered.

With plans well outlined for marketing the sweet clover and other farm seeds of its members, the Minnesota Seed Growers association, Incorporated, a state wide farmers co-operative organization, was organized at Crookston on Monday. The new association is the outgrowth of a movement that has been under way for several months among the seed growers of Minnesota and was crystallized at a meeting called by H. J. Hughes, director of markets of the state department of agriculture. Representatives from practically all counties of northwestern Minnesota were present.

The immediate plans of the association are to collect, clean and scarify sweet clover seed at convenient shipping points or at one central point and to market through the central organization. Arrangements are being perfected to establish a warehouse and cleaning station where large quantities of seed may be assembled, cleaned and loaded on cars.

Among the incorporators are leading seed growers of Minnesota, including P. B. Gaas, Crookston, president; W. E. Casselman, Ada, vice president; E. R. Clark of the Northwest Experiment Station, secretary-treasurer; Chas. Franks, Warren; Thos. Ryan, Mentor; H. M. Femrite and R. F. Quaintance, Crookston.

The selection of a business manager is being taken up by the new directors and locations for warehouses and cleaning stations are being considered.

S. G. Rubinow of the Red River Valley Sweet Clover Growers Exchange, a North Dakota association which has headquarters at Grand Forks, conferred with the growers in regard to the possibilities of co-operation among the state organizations of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Idaho, through an interstate agency. W. R. Porter of the North Dakota department of markets also addressed the meeting and emphasized the necessity of adequate warehouse and cleaning facilities.

Phonograph Sells Stoves; Relieves Tired Salesman

Selling stoves by phonograph is a novel wrinkle but it seems to be successful. The Larson Furniture company this fall secured the agency in this section for the Estate Heatrola, something entirely new in heating devices, for which there has been an unusual demand. When it comes to explaining the merits and operating plan of the "stove with a furnace in it," the salesman puts a record on the talking machine and stands to one side while the spiel is being made. As the manufacturers themselves have adopted this means of telling about the good points of their product nothing is left out and the entire story is told at once. The idea has proved a good one, the Larson company being hardly able to keep up with the demand for the stoves.

I wish to announce that I have again begun work doing shoe repairing at Loken's harness shop and will be glad to see all my old customers, and also new ones. First class work guaranteed. KNUT KOLSTAD.

RE-ELECT HOWARD FARM BUREAU HEAD

Membership at Present 1,500,000 With Organizations in Forty-seven States.

J. R. Howard was unanimously re-elected president of the American Farm-Bureau federation on Tuesday at the third annual convention of the organization, held at Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Howard, in discussing the convention, reviewed the activities of the federation in the past year, devoting particular attention to the plan for handling crops through the United States Grain Growers, Inc., with a membership of 25,000. The proposed co-operative marketing of live stock will be in effect Jan. 1, he said. He declared that largely through the efforts of the organization, farmers have been saved more than fifty million dollars in freight rates alone, and declared the American Farm Bureau federation is responsible for the recent enactment of the packer control legislation at Washington.

The report of J. V. Coverdall, executive secretary, showed a total membership of 1,500,000 in forty-seven states.

Legion Meeting Tuesday.

There will be a special meeting of Eklund Post, American Legion, held at the commercial club rooms Tuesday evening, Nov. 29. Plans for the annual New Years dance will be discussed and other matters of importance are expected to come up for consideration.

Public Forum

More Objections to Ditch.

Editor Times: Parties who own land in Marshall county and are familiar with values and conditions there tell me that when the project of the new drains (Consolidated No. 1) in northern and eastern Marshall county was brought up six months ago, that there was so much opposition that the court decided to postpone the matter until Nov. 28. If carried through at this time the effect of this additional taxation for drainage will destroy the small value the land now has and means confiscation, because the owners cannot keep on paying taxes for from 15 to 25 years when the land to be drained is unsalable, being too far from the railroads to cultivate profitably.

As a matter of fact, the land is now too heavily taxed and many owners are making up their minds to let the land revert to the state. Parties having experience know that it does not pay to hold non-producing lands for very many years, even tho the original price was very low.

This new project may be forced through in spite of the settlers' protests, by parties who are to derive a benefit. All this is manifestly unjust to a new section and to lands not now in demand for either investment or settlement. Besides the low prices at which bonds would probably sell on the money market would work a further hardship and loss in financing the work.

There should be a determined and strong protest by all land owners in Marshall county against draining lands far removed from railroads and assessing any part of the cost on the lands already paying a drainage tax, as well as by owners struggling to get buyers and settlers to locate in districts that have been drained for several years.

This new drainage (Consolidated No. 1) should be postponed for at least five years, or until such time as the land already drained has been settled and made to produce crops. Then, and not until then, would there be a reasonable demand for the drainage of land much farther away from a railroad, and by that time there might be extensions of railroads which would reach the new territory.

Respectfully yours,
E. M. HINCHMAN.
Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 21.

And Still They Come.

To the Editor: I read Representative Berve's letter in regard to Judicial Ditch number one, in a recent issue of your paper with a good deal of interest and hope you will permit a few observations in connection therewith, and in regard to drainage matters in general. It is no doubt true as he says that people interested should make it a point to be present at the hearing and at least state their position in regard to the matter. It can do no harm and may do some good, and it is a cinch that unless the people affected speak up, the proceeding will go through.

The great trouble now is that the people of eastern Marshall county and Beltrami, like everywhere else, are too sick and tired of drainage matters to turn out. The matter could just as well have been disposed of at the June hearing instead of bringing it up now again late in the Fall when it will be hard for many people to get there unless they go to a great deal of expense and take about three days for the trip. There were hundreds of people at the June hearing. Not one out of fifteen or twenty favored the ditch. Then why continue the hearing? Why force all the extra expense on the people? Was it hoped there would be another flood, or was it a plan to slip the ditch through?

The writer has very little confidence in the ditch hearings, especially in Judicial Ditch matters. The ditch is generally steam-rollered through, even if three-fourths of the tax payers are against it. The writer happened to be present at the hearing in regard to Judicial Ditch number 30, (extension of 18) Pennington county. There was solid opposition. Probably not one out of ten favored the undertaking. Still the court ordered the ditch established. When the farmers came in and objected the attorney for the ditch felt quite huffy, and during the recess said they were nothing but a "set of damned Bolsheviks" anyway.

The people of Marshal and Beltrami counties have had a great deal of experience with ditch matters hearing and but little or nothing was. They have gone to hearing after hearing, but little or nothing was accomplished. As soon as a handful of people sign up a ditch petition, through it goes regardless of the wishes of the tax payers. It has got so now that one can frequently hear it said that "even the judge has gone ditch crazy." All authorities seem to be decidedly hard of hearing when the plain people speak. This has been the experience of all who have had occasion to fight ditches, particularly judicial ditches, during the last ten years.

There are too many of our public officials, supposedly servants of the people, who want to play an autocratic part in ditch affairs. They are unwilling to let the people think and decide for themselves, and so they try to play the role of the good "papa" to their children. Even our courts have become infested with that sort of public officials.

Yes, by all means, let as many as can go to the hearing on Judicial Ditch number 1. Let us fill the city of Warren and have our say once more. Particularly should those who were not present at the June hearing try to be present now.

Let us take a little more note of the actions of our public officials and remember some at election time. That is one time when we can take things into our hands and have an effective word of our own.

This letter may seem strong but it is written intentionally so by one who feels that he knows something of what is going on, having lived in northern Minnesota for ten years or more. People have been called to ditch hearing after hearing, all to no purpose. When things reach the state where a ditch is ordered established against the wishes and over the protest of three-fourths of the taxpayers it is going pretty far. It is time we begin to have a little publicity on the work of the various ditch authorities. What is the use of having hearings in ditch matters if the outcome is to be decided, not by what people think and want, but by what some public official may happen to think and want?

Marshall and Beltrami counties already have extensive ditch systems. Up to this time ditching has been a necessity. It is now time for those of us who are living here to find out if this territory shall continue to be the milking ground of engineers and ditch contractors, or if we shall be permitted to work out our future free from the domination of the drainage autocrats.

Yours very truly,
W. P. JACKSON

Some of the Things the Red Cross is Doing to Help Afflicted Humanity

In the United States last year 75,432 people were killed by accidents and there were 3,500,000 disabilities due to industrial accidents.

Over 300,000 were injured in railroad accidents alone.

To try to prevent this waste of life and labor 437 Red Cross chapters last year conducted 5,100 First-Aid classes with an enrollment of 104,496 students.

During the year 20,172 persons completed the course and received their certificates.

In the United States last year 7,000 people were drowned.

Under 1,276 examiners 6,096 life-saving certificates were issued during the year. One hundred and sixty Life-Saving Corps have been organized to date.

During the last year 177 Red Red Cross Chapters rendered relief in emergencies caused by 70 disasters in the United States.

There are 328 Chapters now organized to deal with disasters.

During the year the amount expended for Red Cross disaster relief totaled $1,600,000. Since 1881 the American Red Cross has dispersed $14,052,734 for disaster relief.

The fact that the American Red Cross stands equipped and ready to cope with disaster is alone sufficient to justify its existence.

Your membership dollar will help to keep it always ready for traditional duty.

In answer to the appeal for the starving children of Europe, the Cross contributed $5,000,000. Chapters contributed to the European funds.

The American Red Cross is now entrusted with the expenditure of $10,000,000 for medical aid to the children of central and eastern Europe from the fund of $30,000,000 raised by the European Relief Council for food and medical aid.

In answer to the call for clothing, 1,613 Red Cross Chapters are now carrying on production on reconstructed garments, layettes and hospital supplies for use both at home and abroad, but particularly in aid of destitute children oversea.

With the first tidings of need the American Red Cross appropriated $600,000 for relief in famine-stricken China and later another $500,000. 611,000 native workers and their families have been fed and cared for by the American Red Cross and 903 miles of perminent roads, built by labor paid for with food, stand as a barrier against future famine.

In all of this work the American Red Cross invites you to take part.

YOUR Red Cross membership will help to strengthen the organization.

Finds Big Tooth

Red Lake Falls Gazette: While operating the gravel loader at the Paradis gravel pit three miles west of Brooks last week Pril Gother of this city found a tooth of such proportions that it is evident that it came from some prehistoric animal. The tooth is petrified and in such good state of preservation that the enamel on it is still visable. The surface of the tooth measures two and one-half by three inches from the top to the tip of the longest prong, of which there are six, measures two and three-fourths inches. The member was taken from the gravel pit between seven and eight feet below the surface of the earth. The specimen is now on display at Spillanes.

Railroad Man, Well Known Here, Dead at Minneapolis

Ernest H. Taylor, traveling claim agent for the Soo railway, died at his home in Minneapolis on Tuesday morning, after a lingering illness. Deceased has been a sufferer for many years but did not give up active work until six months ago. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and three children. Mr. Taylor at one time made his headquarters in this city and was a member of the local lodge of Elks. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance over the entire Soo system and was a most highly respected citizen. The funeral was held from the family home on Wednesday.

Help and Comfort

At the house of mourning, begins when the final word is spoken, and the last loving ministry in life gives place to the proper care and preparation for the burial.

To the grief-stricken it is a great comfort if they can be sure that their loved ones, during the intervening hours, will be in safe hands, treated with respect and tenderness and prepared according to latest approved methods for their final resting place.

Then, too, it is often appreciated, when from experience and observation the undertaker is able and willing to aid by suggestion of casket, trimmings and furnishings in one harmonious whole.

It is our aim to make our service complete in every detail.

Woman's Club Meeting.

The next meeting of the Woman's club will be held on Monday afternoon, Nov. 28, at the Commercial club rooms. A Thanksgiving program has been arranged. Mrs. Oscar Mellby will lead the Current Events, and Mrs. W. W. Prichard, Sr., will have charge of the lesson, "The Story of the Pilgrims." At this time Mr. McCann will present the silver loving cup to the street which has made the most improvement during the summer months. A ladies' trio, composed of Mrs. G. W. Booren, Mrs. Geo. Johnson and Miss Meta Kiland, will conclude the meeting. It is desired that all members who have subscribed for the Federated club paper send their remittance to Mrs. E. C. Richards at the earliest possible moment.

Birthday Frolic.

Eleven boys and girls were guests of Richard Mabey at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Mabey, on Friday evening, when he entertained at a party on the occasion of his 12th birthday anniversary. Various games and contests furnished merriment. Those present were Gladys Christianson, Faith and Lucy Warner, Elaine Evenson, Madge LaBree, James Warner, Billy Froehlich, Gordon Storholm, Donald Snyder, Ned Beiderman and Rueben Johnson.

Surprise Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kielty was the scene of a surprise party Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Paula Gray on the occasion of her birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in playing cards. The high score was awarded to Mrs. H. L. Schuster, while Mrs. John Rolland carried away the consolation prize. Mrs. Gray was presented with a handsome gift as a token of friendship.

Rice-Himley.

On Tuesday, Nov. 22, at the Trinity Lutheran parsonage, occurred the marriage of Olaf Rice and Miss Ida Himley, both of Plummer. Rev. T. E. Sweger was the officiating clergyman. The witnesses were Miss Gudrun Rice and Ralph Rice, also of Plummer. After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Rice will be at home at Plummer.

Teachers Entertain.

The members of the board of education and their wives and Supt. and Mrs. I. T. Simley were guests of the Northrop faculty at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eyde. Favors and decorations were in keeping with the Thanksgiving season. The dinner hour was followed by cards.

Undertaking Parlor Remodeled.

The Hicks undertaking parlors have been undergoing a remodeling and now present a greatly improved appearance. The room has been repainted and refurnished, a new late model automobile hearse has been purchased and a number of other modern conveniences installed. An automobile pall-bearers car has also been purchased, but this has not arrived yet, although it is expected most any day. This will give the establishment one of the finest equipments of its kind in the county.

A Timely Sale.

As will be seen by the announcement of Olaf Neset in another part of The Times today, an opportunity is presented for the saving of money on the purchase of jewelry, watches, glassware and diamonds. Mr. Neset has made heavy reductions in all lines carried by him and it will be to the advantage of anyone wishing goods of this kind to make their purchases now. It is a particularly good opportunity to secure the appropriate things for Christmas gifts.

Cost of Raising Potatoes Is Placed at $53 Per Acre

(Grand Forks Herald)

Farmers interested in potato growing have made interesting estimates of the cost of raising potatoes per acre and per bushel. Their standings are substancially that under the average conditions of yield, the costs of labor and material prevalent in this locality, the cost of raising an acre of potatoes is about $53.00, and with the average yield of 130 bushels per acre, about 41 cents per bushel. As in all such cases the cost per bushel depends very largely on the yield per acre. Weather conditions influence yields, but aside from weather conditions the chief factor in the production is labor. Upon the amount of labor intelligently expended upon an acre of ground depends very largely the yield from that acre. One hundred and thirty bushels per acre may be considered a fair yield under ordinary conditions of weather and cultivation. It is very far from being the maximum possible yield under farming conditions. The small plot intensively cultivated may yield 500, 600 or more bushels per acre. These figures have often been exceeded. Yields of 200 bushels per acre on large areas are not at all uncommon. The cost per acre is increased slightly by additional labor, but there are certain costs which are stable. The seed cost, which is one of the most important items, is exactly the same whether the future treatment be good, bad, or indifferent. Planting cost is identical, and the cost of spraying is the same whether the crop be good or poor. The additional labor which may be expected to yield additional results consists in better plowing and more frequent and more thorough cultivation. These things add somewhat to the cost per acre, but this slight additional cost per acre can be made to increase the yield very materially, if the labor is well expended, and it is upon this theory that the most successful potato growers proceed. No labor is considered too much which will yield more than it cost in additional bushels of potatoes, and while this theory works out in a larger way perhaps in the potato industry than in most others, it applies in principle to the growth of every crop raised. More labor and better crops increase cost per acre and decrease cost per bushel.

FINISH PAVING, WINNING RACE AGAINST SNOW

Shoveled Way Through Last Half Block But Completed Job Tuesday Evening.

Amount Paid Out in Wages Totals $85,000—Everything Possible Bought Here.

Exceptional Record Was Made Throughout Entire Job Considering Season.

The paving work for the present season in Thief River Falls was completed on Tuesday evening, the Bitulithic and Contracting, Limited, of Winnipeg, having put the finishing touches on the last yard of the 23½ blocks included in the contract. They were just one jump ahead of the weather man as the first snow of the season to amount to anything had fallen on Monday night. Only a half block remained to be completed, however, and scrapers and shovels soon cleared the way for the surfacers.

The first shovelful was excavated under the contract on Sept. 12, but weather conditions were such that the work was not properly gotten under way until the 21st. From that time on rapid progress was made, 42,500 yards of overburden being excavated and the concrete base laid in 23 days. As soon as the cement on the first block poured had sufficiently dried, the surfacing crew followed, the first completed block being opened to the public on Oct. 17. The contractors have been fortunate throughout, the weather being ideal during the greater part of the time while there have been but few lay-ups from other causes. Snow has bothered but little and cold weather delayed the work hardly at all. There are those who fear that putting on bitulithic surface with the thermometer below zero may not give the best results, but the contractors maintain that the same pavement has been put down in the city of Winnipeg when it was 20 below, and has turned out entirely satisfactory.

Large Sum Spent Here.

Roughly speaking, the contractors have distributed $160,000 locally in a little over two months. Eighty-five thousand dollars of this sum has been paid for labor alone, by far the larger part going to citizens of Thief River Falls and vicinity. Besides this there were 500 carloads of gravel and sand used at a cost of $14,500. One local concern furnished the cement, which cost $27,000, and another provided the coal used at the heating plant and for steam rollers, totaling 300 tons and costing $3,300. Three thousand dollars were spent locally for repair work, while the purchases of lumber, hardware and other miscellaneous items footed up $4,000 more. The Soo railway was paid $21,000 for freight handled and the Great Northern $2,000. The quantity of asphalt used for surfacing totaled 450 tons.

Upset All Predictions.

It is doubtful if a better paving record has ever been made in this state for this time of year. It was freely predicted that it would be impossible to complete the job before winter stopped operations, but it has been done and citizens as well as contractors are highly pleased.

Mr. Collard and Mr. Boyle will leave about the end of the week for Winnipeg, while Linn Nesmith, surface foreman, will leave today for his home in the state of Oregon.

NO CHANGE MADE IN ASSESSMENTS FOR PAVING COST

Very Little Objection Develops at Hearing of Taxpayers on Tuesday Evening.

A public hearing on the final estimate of the paving contractors will be held at the council rooms on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The bill for the balance due submitted last Tuesday evening was held up in order that any objectors or persons with claims against the contractors might have a chance to be heard.

Last Friday was the time set for hearing objections to the assessments levied against property affected in the paving district. R. A. Dorrowman of the engineering firm in charge of the work, was present and explained matters to the rather small crowd of interested citizens present. He said that no other plan of assessment was possible under the city's present charter, although other cities, operating under home rule charters, might employ a different system of providing for the payment of the improvement.

City Attorney H. O. Chommie said that the only way in which any different system could be employed would be by the assessment of benefits. This would require that the entire plan under which the work has been carried out be altered and would involve endless controversy as it would be impossible for any two men to agree as to just how much the assessment in a number of given cases should be.

Some objections being raised by owners of corner property for being compelled to pay the entire cost of paving along the long side of their lots, it was again pointed out that no other plan of distribution was permissible under the law.

Residents of South LaBree avenue and North Main avenue between Fifth and Sixth objected to being assessed for storm sewer benefits when the additional drainage did not in the least help their property. After considerable discussion and careful inquiry as to what could legally be done in the matter, the assessment in the regions referred to was reduced one-third.

Mayor Bratrud objected to the city being assessed for storm sewers at the intersections but as it had previously been decided that the cost of paving at these points should be charged against the municipality as a whole it was decided to let the matter drop.

The session produced no fireworks of any kind, those present being on hand more for the purpose of gaining information than anything else.

SENSATIONAL CLOSE IS PREDICTED FOR MARKET CAMPAIGN

Ford Automobile to Be Given Away as Windup of Great Merchandising Week.

The greatest Market Week in the history of this section will close at 6:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon with the giving away of a Ford car. This automobile will become the property of some person who has purchased a dollar's worth of merchandise at a Thief River Falls store during the week.

While the weather had a tendency to slow down business during the first two days, a steady increase has been noted and it is expected that by the end of the week all trading records will be broken. Every store reports an unusual volume of business for this time of year, showing that the public is taking advantage of the price reductions offered and at the same time standing a chance of becoming the owner of a Ford car without its costing them a cent.

The present series of Market Days will end with the presentation of this car on Saturday afternoon, but nearly all merchants have arranged to carry the bargain-giving period over the holidays. If low prices can bring it about, it is the intention of practically everyone to clean up on all reasonable goods as there is always a considerable loss connected with carrying these wares over to another season.

What the merchants at this time wish to impress upon their customers is the fact that it is a mistake to hold off on holiday buying until the last minute. Stocks at this time are complete while later on the assortment will be more or less picked over. Prices cannot be made lower than those quoted for Market Week and many of the inducements now held out to the buyer will be withdrawn after Saturday night. While it is not likely that any increase in prices will be made after that time there will be no opportunities to secure an automobile free with a dollar purchase.

The merchants wish to express their appreciation for the excellent patronage they have received during the time these Market Days have been held. They hope it has been demonstrated that they are at all times willing to do their part in keeping things going and standing their share of the losses incident to changing conditions. The public has been the beneficiary in this campaign of price-cutting and will benefit still more if advantage is taken of the great final slash made during the remainder of the week.

From now until Saturday night all roads leading to Thief River Falls should be crowded. The city will be the bargain center of the north part of the state.

Arm Broken in Fall.

Mrs. E. O. Erickson, wife of the chief of police, met with a painful accident on Saturday evening while at the Soo depot. She was walking across the floor in the general waiting room when she slipped and fell in some manner, breaking her right arm above the wrist.

Basket Ball Aspirants in First Tryout For Season

The basket ball team had its first try-out of the season on Tuesday evening at the auditorium. All the old-timers were on the job when Coach G. W. Connell began tossing the pill around, and every last one gave promise of whipping back into shape in short order. A number of requests for games have already been received but it is not likely that any outside team will be taken on before the middle of next month.

Myrum Plummer, the new member of the outfit, who last year starred for Bemidji, appeared in a Thief River uniform for the first time. He has secured a position as salesman for L. L. Cohn of the Palace Clothing house and as he has had considerable experience in this class of work he will be right at home.

There will be a hard practice grind before much actual playing is staged, but when the boys once do get started it is expected that they will improve on last year's exceptional record.

GUNS IN CHURCH NOT PERMITTED; PASTOR UPHELD

This is Reply of Gen. Rhinow to Question Submiteed By Thief River Minister.

Rev. Carlstedt of Strandquist Right in Position Taken at Funeral of Soldier.

No Disrespect to Legion Members or Gold Star Mothers Offered, Says General.

A rather heated controversy has arisen in a number of towns to the north of Thief River Falls over the refusal of Rev. P. G. Carlstedt of the Swedish church at Strandquist to permit members of the American Legion to carry arms into a church at Salem during a military funeral. Rev. Carlstedt has been attacked, not only by Legion members but also by a number of newspapers in the district, the claim being made that his attitude is "un-American," and particularly offers an insult to Gold Star mothers.

Other clergymen, regardless of denomination, have very generally supported the stand taken by the Strandquist pastor and a rather deplorable controversy has arisen. This has been made more acute by the thoughtless stand of newspaper editors who ewre not very sure of their position but took it for granted from reports at hand that Rev. Carlstedt had issued an arbitrary ruling and that it was his intention in some manner to reflect upon the rights of the American Legion.

Appeals to Adjutant General.

In order that clergymen might be set right on the subject and know what position to take when asked to conduct funeral services for former soldiers, Rev. Albin A. Larson of the Swedish Evangelical church of Thief River Falls, applied to Adjt. Gen. W. F. Rhinow of St. Paul for information, quoting the Strandquist incident, which was substantially as follows:

Rev. Carlstedt was asked to conduct services over the remains of a former soldier named Quarnstrom, who lost his life while serving with the army in France and whose body had been sent home for reburial in the cemetery of the Salem church in Marshall county. Members of the Stephen Gust post of Strathcona autoed to Salem for the funeral to pay their respects to their comrade. They arrived in uniform but had no other regular equipment, being armed with shot guns in lieu of rifles. Rev. Carlstedt did not object to the presence of the boys in uniform and simply requested that the firearms be stacked outside the church. The Legion boys maintained that a soldier's gun was a part of him when on duty and, refusing to enter the church unless permitted to do so under arms, elected to remain outside. Rev. Carlstedt was severely censored for his stand by Legionaires and newspapers.

Rhinow Upholds Pastor.

Gen. Rhinow's reply to the question of Rev. Larson upholds the stand taken by Rev. Carlstedt in every particular and will prove of value in preventing similar misunderstandings in the future. The general says:

"I have for acknowledgement your communication of the 21st, relative to a difficutly which has arisen between members of the Stephen Gust post of the American Legion and Rev. P. G. Carlstedt of Strandquist, Minn.

"In the particular case which you mention Rev. Carlstedt was certainly in the right when he forbade the carrying of guns into the church. A church is a sacred edifice and one place into which arms or men under arms should not enter. The authority for this statement is the Customs of the Service of the United States Army.

"In the event that there is an armed escort at the funeral, they remain outside during the services or stack their arms and enter unarmed, and should it so happen that a guard of honor is detailed where a body lies in state within a church, the guard of honor is unarmed.

"There has been no insult to the Gold Star Mothers or to the American Legion by Rev. Carlstedt.

"Trusting that this communication will serve to clear up the unpleasant feeling which you state has prevailed, I am very truly yours, W. F. Rhinow, The Adjutant General."

VALLEY DAIRYMEN MEET AT DETROIT

Eighteenth Annual Convention to Be Held Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 7-8.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association will be held at Detroit on Dec. 7 and 8.

There has at no time been a greater interest in dairying in this section of the state than at present, which no doubt will bring the largest attendance ever to the Detroit convention.

A splendid program has been prepared. Many of the best authorities on dairying will address the convention.

Detroit farmers have just opened a new modern creamery which in itself is worth the trip to see. This new and progressive creamery association offers a $25.00 silver trophy to the creamery having the largest number of its patrons in attendance at this convention. Detroit creameries are barred from competition.

Having splendid hotel and railroad facilities makes Detroit an ideal place for this convention.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the week of Dec. 4 to 10 has been designated by the National Educational association, the American Legion and other organizations co-operating, as American Educational Week;

And Whereas, the city schools of Thief River Falls are preparing to observe the week of Dec. 4 to 10 as such by being at home to all parents, patrons and friends of education;

Now, therefore, I, John Bratrud, mayor of the city of Thief River Falls, do hereby officially proclaim the week of Dec. 4 to 10 as Educational Week for Thief River Falls and do hereby urge upon all our people to visit the city schools as invited by the school authorities.

JOHN BRATRUD, Mayor.

DITCH HEARING ON JUDICIAL NO. 1 IS AGAIN POSTPONED

Will Next Come Up at Thief River Falls July 18—Opposition Very Strong.

More than 150 interested farmers were present on Tuesday when the hearing on a petition for the establishment of judicial ditch No. 1 in Pennington and Marshall counties was held at Warren. Nine-tenths of those present are said to have been opposed to the project and these represented about 500 more whose names were on petitions presented to Judge Grindeland, asking that the ditch be not established.

At the close of the hearing the matter was again postponed, the next hearing to be held at Thief River Falls on July 18, the date of final hearing being set for July 25 at Warren.

There is a feeling prevalent that the court would set aside the petition without further delay, as objection against the project has developed to such an extent that its granting would be diametrically opposing the wishes of a large majority of those most interested, but there are certain contingencies that must be taken into consideration. The expense already incurred is so heavy that the total abandonment of the undertaking would fall with great severity on the bondsmen. It would mean the ruination of these parties were they compelled to foot the cost of the preliminary work already accomplished. The probabilities are that by the time the next hearing is held some way will have been found out of this difficulty.

The petitioners presented a modified proposition involving the construction of two ditches, but Attorneys James Manahan and H. O. Berve, for the objectors, argued that the court had no jurisdiction to consider such a modified plan.

Never has a ditch proposal in either Marshall or Pennington counties met with such determined opposition. The farmers against whom the cost will be assessed should the ditch be constructed say that the increased taxation will mean the virtual confiscation of their lands.

Road Work Proving Boon to Neighboring Farmers

State Road Engineer B. F. Umland has just completed graveling the highway between Hazel and St. Hilaire, this being federal aid project No. 83. The stretch is four and seven-tenths miles in length and was completed in less than a month. At one time there were 80 teams employed on this project, which furnished a good deal of work for the farmers of the neighborhood. Exceptional time was made in surfacing this highway and an excellent job has been done.

The surfacing of state road No. 7 running north and south past Goodridge has been begun and will be completed during the winter. This stretch is three miles in length and all local teams will be employed. With the completion of this highway the state road program for the present season will be completed.

As part of next year's undertaking the graveling of Road No. 4 west of St. Hilaire will be taken up, as will similar treatment of No. 5, known as the Angle road, southeast of Thief River Falls.

Executive Board Meets.

Rev. S. W. Swenson and August Lundgren of Warren, and Rev. A. F. Nelson of St. Hilaire, executive committee of the mission board of the Red River Valley conference, Swedish Augustana synod, were in the city yesterday for the purpose of holding a business meeting, this being the most convenient point at which to gather. Routine business took up the greater part of the committee's time and the members returned to their homes last evening.

905 RESIDENCES IN CITY HARBOR 1,002 FAMILIES

Present Population of Thief River Falls About Equally Divided as to Sexes.

Natives Outnumber Those Born in Foreign Countries More Than Five to One.

City Shown to Be Larger Than Two Harbors, Fairmont, St. Peter or Hastings.

There are 905 residences in the city of Thief River Falls housing a total of 1,002 families. This is about the average for cities of this class throughout the state. Bemidji has 1,440 dwellings for 1,515 families, while in Crookston the ratio is 1,351 dwellings to 1,533 families. The percentage of families and residences in the three cities corresponds very closely to the difference in population.

Out of a total population in the city at the time the census was taken of 4,685, 2,377 were males and 2,308 females. Of this number 1,426 were of native parentage, 2,363 of foreign or mixed parentage, and only 895 were foreign born. One lone negro was found and no Chinamen, Japs or Indians.

There were 808 children in the city under seven years of age. The number from seven to 13 years inclusive was 699 and of these 681 attended school. Out of a total of 178 who were 14 and 15 years old, 163 were enrolled in the schools. The city had 454 youths and maidens between 16 and 20 years of age and 193 of these were still pursuing their studies. Of the total foreign-born population 373 were naturalized citizens of the United States.

Persons 10 years old and over in the city when the enumeration was made numbered 3,563 and of these 44 were classed as illiterate. Of the native whites coming under this classification there were 2,073, with but six illiterates, while among the foreign born 38 out of 889 were found to be illiterate. A total of 16 males and 27 females over 21 years of age were illiterate.

In the 4,000 Class.

Ely is the only city in the 4,000 class with a larger population than Thief River Falls, the St. Louis county town having 4,902. Out of this number, however, 1,060 are foreign born. Following is a list of municipalities in this class, together with the population of each:

Thief River Falls	4,685
Fairmont	4,630
Hastings	4,571
Two Harbors	4,546
Montevideo	4,415
St. Peter	4,335
Anoka	4,287
Northfield	4,023

Detroit has a population of 3,426, while that of Alexandria is 3,338.

Norwegians in Lead.

The census report does not give the the place of birth of the foreign born residents of Thief River Falls, but the table for the county shows that almost every civilized nation is represented. The only omissions seem to be Italy and Jugo-Slavia. The total number of foreign born in the county is 2,544, the place of nativity and number in each case being as follows:

Austria, 19; Canada, French, 25; Canada, other, 89; Czecko-Slovakia, 67; Denmark, 73; England, 21; Finland, 14; Germany, 122; Greece, 3; Hungary, 9; Ireland, 6; Netherlands, 1; Norway, 1,511; Poland, 29; Rumania, 4; Russia, 10; Scotland, 10; Sweden, 509; Switzerland, 1; all others, 21.

RED LAKE PROJECT HAS APPROVAL OF DEPARTMENT HEAD

Further Details of Plan to Be Placed Before Officials at Later Date.

The delegation of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy commission which has been in Washington during the past week to lay details of the flood control and conservation project before government officials are expected to return this evening. The mission has been most successful, according to all reports. Harry C. Stevens, representing the Minneapolis Journal at the capital, states that a full understanding has been reached between officials of the Red Lake drainage and conservancy district and of the Indian bureau relative to the proposed project for drainage and flood control in that district.

Commissioner of Indian Affairs Charles H. Burke has not given final approval to the plan of the district officials and he will withhold action until more complete data has been presented by the engineers of the conservancy district.

"The conference with Commissioner Burke and other officials of the Indian bureau have resulted favorably," C. G. Selvig, president of the conservancy district, said. "The preliminary plans placed before them by our delegation have been commended by Mr. Reed, engineer of the bureau, and an understanding has been reached on further information to be placed before the bureau later.

"Upon our return to Minnesota the engineers of the state and of the district will amplify the preliminary data placed before the bureau, and they will be submitted at another conference to take place here the latter part of December."

Several years ago the army engineers made a survey of the proposed improvement and made a favorable report on it, stating that it was practicable and feasible. Approval of the chief of engineers and the secretary of war will be required before construction can be begun.

The members of the delegation paid their respects to President Harding. Those in the delegation were Mr. Selvig, E. V. Willard, state drainage engineer; George W. Walker, Thief River Falls, and Adolph F. Myer, Minneapolis, engineers of the district.

WELL WATER NOT SATISFACTORY TO STATE'S CHEMISTS

Objections Are Such, However, as Would Seem to Be Quite Easily Overcome.

Reports of the state board of health on the quality of water secured from the deep well at the power house are not exactly satisfactory but it would seem as if most objectionable features might be eliminated without much trouble. The bacterial content is found to be relatively high, the water of low turbidity, high color, relatively hard and free from encrusting material. The iron content is high and chemists also found indications of contamination. Whether or not this condition is one that constitutes a danger to users the report does not state.

Among the recommendations made is the cleaning out of the drain at the top of the well so that the waste water does not collect there. This water now stands around the pipe casing and a drain should be provided for leading it out onto the ground. The cover on top of the underground reservoir is unsatisfactory in that it permits the drainage of water into the big container. The emergency cross connection with the Red Lake river should also be removed. Certain changes are advised in the manhole opening of the reservoir, and other minor defects should be looked after.

The verdict of the health authorities is that the water at the present time is unsatisfactory from a sanitary point of view in spite of the fact that it is taken from a well 264 feet in depth.

Just what the next move will be is not known but it is probable the council will instruct Supt. Legvold to make the changes recommended in the hope that the board's objections may be overcome. The water from the well has been very generally used since the supply from the river was cleaned out of the mains and no evil effects have been reported. The authorities are yet hopeful that the water will pass inspection as this would obviate the necessity of installing an expensive filtering plant at this time.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR ELKS SUNDAY

Public Invited to Witness Observances—F. X. Gravel of Duluth to Speak.

Memorial services for departed Elks will be conducted by Thief River Falls lodge No. 1308 at the lodge room on Sunday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock. Frank X. Gravel of Duluth, one of the foremost Elks in the state and an orator of renown, will deliver the address of the day.

These annual memorial services of the Elks are impressive and beautiful, being instituted for the purpose of exemplifying that tenet of the order which proclaims that "Living or dead, an Elk is never forgotten, never forsaken," and the motto: "The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands; their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

The public is cordially invited to attend these memorial services, for which an appropriate program has been arranged, as follows:

Introductory March, Orchestra.

STATE'S FINEST POULTRY SHOW OPENS TUESDAY

Prize Stock of Hundreds of Noted Bird Fanciers to Be Put on Display Here.

Many Liberal Prizes Arranged For Exhibits Entered in General Farm Class.

Now Certain That Event Will Be Most Successful in History of Organization.

The farmer with his general utility flock is going to be the favored individual at the annual exhibit of the Pennington County Poultry association on Dec. 6, 7, 8 and 9. The board of managers realizes that while it is highly desirable when general results are sought that all fanciers, whether they are raising birds for show or profit, should aim toward securing thoroughbred stock, yet it is admitted this takes time and that in the meantime the farmer who earnestly strives toward better results should be encouraged in every possible way. For this reason the man who has not yet arrived at the point where he can show coops of thoroughbreds has been given a place in the premium list and his efforts will be properly rewarded.

Olaf Neset, whose Rhode Island Reds are consistent prize winners at all poultry shows in this section, will make a special award of one $10 cockerel to the farmer bringing in the largest display of birds of this breed to the show. This will prove to be a prize worth winning as Mr. Neset is perhaps the most particular expert where this breed is concerned to be found in this section. He recently purchased a high priced bird from the poultry division at the university farm. This cock was scored as being the best Rhode Island Red in this part of the state by H. E. Chapman, poultry specialist connected with the extension division of the university.

Leghorns as Prizes.

C. D. Gustafson and H. L. Schuster, breeders of Barred Rocks and White Leghorns respectively, make offers similar to that of Mr. Neset. The birds they offer for the best displays in their respective divisions will make valuable additions to the flock of any farmer.

Indications are that the farmer class will be far larger than was at first anticipated by the management. Secretary J. J. McCann is daily in receipt of requests for premium lists and entry blanks from persons who would like to become exhibitors under this head. It is the department of the show to which special attention will be paid.

Season's Big Show.

The Pennington county poultry show has for years been the premier exhibition of its kind in this section of the state and the 1921 display bids fair to eclipse all its predecessors. In the first place there is at the present time a larger number of fine flocks in the region than ever before and the interest is much greater for another thing. Not only are the people living in the immediate vicinity keenly alive to the importance of this show, but its fame has been spread far and wide. Other counties in this state will be more widely represented than at any former exhibit and a large number of entries from other states are now assured.

J. C. Brown of the Northwest Experiment station, Crookston, one of the most widely known poultry experts in the Northwest, will be the judge.

Will Hold Dairy School in County For Two Days

L. V. Wilson of the dairy extension division will hold dairy schools in Pennington county on Dec. 15 and 16. The afternoons will be devoted to the health department, when a film will be shown on the value of dairy products free from tuberculosis and other contagious diseases. This course should be largely attended by both rural and city folks, as the general health of the community depends much on the cleanliness of the dairy products consumed. Meetings will be held at St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, the exact days to be arranged for next week.

To Open New Grocery Store Here About January First

F. N. Shanahan, who a short time ago sold his interest in the Shanahan & Sheedy billiard parlor to his partner, will again engage in business in this city, having rented the Eide building on Third street, which is to be vacated by Scott Laird in the near future. Mr. Shanahan will put in a full line of staple and fancy groceries, specializing in goods of the highest quality obtainable. He is a business man of long experience and will make a strong bid for his share of the trade. The new store will be opened shortly after the first of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Stebbins were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lamberson at Warren on Thanksgiving.

RATE OF TAXES FOR YEAR SHOW UPWARD TREND

State Rate Reduced Slightly But is More Than Offset in Other Directions.

Levies For General County and Township Purposes Are But Little Changed.

School Cost Increase Responsible For Advance in Practically Every Case.

The inclination of tax rates are upward in every department except one. The state rate has been reduced a total of 1.19 mills, from 5.42, which was the levy in 1920, to 4.23 for the current year. The county rate is up a trifle, being at this time 12.17 against 11.58 a year ago. The increase for township, city and village purposes is in most instances very slight, which leaves the greater part of the advance chargeable against the schools. This condition holds good generally throughout the sate.

Very few disricts have escaped an increase in the cost of maintaining their educational department. The advance is in certain cases very marked and is responsible for the fact that in spite of the state's reduction taking up almost all of the county advance there is an increase to record for almost every district. Where a reduction is noted it is so slight as to make but little difference nhe general result. The school districts managing to force a reduction in the general result. The school dist-58, 94, 108 and 127.

Higher Than in City.

District No. 18, comprising the city of Thief River Falls, has a rate of 51.7. A year ago it was 40.6. This is not the highest assessment in the county, however, the villages of Goodridge and St. Hilaire both being hit considerably harder. The former has a rate for school purposes alone of 68.5, while that at St. Hilaire for the same purpose is 70.4. Last year the tax was 60.7 and 51.7 respecively.

In the following table the state and county rates have been added to the school rate for the two years. In order to arrive a the total for each district the levy for he township, city or village must be added. This will be found in another table forming a part of this article. For instance should it be desired to find the total tax rate for School district No. 1 the combined rate for state, county and school, given in the first table, should be added to the rate for the subdivision in which the district is located. Thus the school, county and state rate for District No. 1 is seen to total 38.7 mills while the rate for the township of Polk Center in which the district is located is 4.9 mills, making the total rate for all purposes in his particular school district 43.6 mills.

Following is a comparison for the two years of the taxes in each district for school, state and county purposes:

Slight Advance in Towns.

While the general tendency of taxes for purely township purposes is also upward, the advance is so small in most instances as to cause little comment. YEAR'S SENSATION IN MOTION PLAYS AT TWO THEATRES

Newest Rupert Hughes Production Will Be Shown at Both Lyceum and Princess.

"The Old Nest," the Rupert Hughes picture which will be shown at both the Lyceum and Princess theatres on Sunday night and at the Lyceum only on Monday night, is one of the big screen productions of the year. Its fame has been heralded far and wide and for this reason Manager Brumund fears that it will be impossible to accommodate in one theatre all who wish to see it. He has therefore decided to show it at both the Lyceum and Princess, beginning the show at the former house at 7:15 and at the Princess at 8 o'clock.

This great picture is different from any heretofore shown in this city. There is no plot connected with it, as the term is generally understood, the aim being to tell a simple story of an American home, striking a note of sincerity that has an unusual appeal. Rupert Hughes in this story has struck a responsive note of realism and earnestness which fills the eyes of the spectator with tears. It is a plea to thoughtful younsters to honor their mothers, beautiful in conception and incomparable in execution.

"The Old Nest" is one of the few pictures that will never grow old. It is different from any film, yet produced and will be popular for its human appeal long after its novelty has worn off. Manager Brumund is to be congratulated on being able to secure this great picture so soon after its release at a figure that permits him to show it to his patrons at no advance in prices.

Christmas Sale.

At the Presbyterian church, Friday, Dec. 9, afternoon and evening. Articles include hand made fancy aprons, work aprons, handkerchiefs, fancy gifts for Christmas, and candy. Cafeteria supper will be served.

REGIONAL MEETING OF CHILD WELFARE BOARD ON DEC. 15

Speakers Famed in State and District Will Attend Sessions in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. J. M. Bishop, chairman for this district for the regional meetings of child welfare boards, announces that the program for the session to be held in Thief River Falls on Thursday, Dec. 16, has been perfected and will be participated in by some of the best known welfare workers in the state and district. There will be three sessions, those during the day convening at the court house while the evening meetings will be held at the high school auditorium. The first meeting will begin at 9 o'clock a. m., with Rev. A. T. Tollevs of Warren, president of the Marshall County Child Welfare board, presiding. The following program will be presented, the arrangement being subject to slight changes:

"Aims of This Conference," William Hodgson, state director children's bureau.

"Investigation and Treatment of Child Problems," Mrs. Mildred D. Mudgett, department of sociology, University of Minnesota.

"Case Work From the Viewpoint of the Rural County," Miss Loretta Newman, social worker, Marshall county.

Quists Try Asbestos Mining.

John Oski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Oski of Mavie, recently returned from a trip through the West. While in the Grand Canyon of Arizona he ran across Herbert Quist, former editor of the extinct Thief River Falls News Press, and his brother, Ernest. These two former residents of Thief River Falls were then interested in asbestos mining in the southwestern state and Mr. Oski brought photographs showing them standing at the mouth of their mine and also transporting the mineral to the landing on Colorado river on their backs. The Quists are now in California, but whether or not the asbestos mine has been abandoned for good is not known.

Bonus Board Coming.

The state bonus board of review will be in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, Dec. 6, for the purpose of hearing bonus claims of former service men. The meeting will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning in the Commercial club rooms.

PREVENTING FAKES FROM PLYING TRADE AIM OF ORDINANCE

Merchants Association Requests Passage of Regulations For Protection of Public.

Transient merchants will find a hard row to hoe in Thief River Falls if an ordinance given its first reading on Tuesday night passes through the stages necessary to make it effective. The new law is sponsored by the Merchants association and aims at protecting the public from being defrauded by fly-by-night concerns without commercial standing of any kind and no interest in the city or its people.

The ordinance provides a license fee for vendors of all kinds, except such as handle agricultural products. Any person wishing to open a place of business in Thief River Falls for the disposal of "fire stocks," the holding of auction sales or the handling of so-called bankrupt stocks will be compelled to pay a license fee of $200 for each 30 days. They must state the length of time they intend remaining and give a complete inventory of the stock to be handled. In lieu of the $200 license fee they must pay two per cent of the inventory value of their stock for the privilege of doing business the same length of time. In case they intend conducting more than one place of business a separate license must be taken out for each such place at a cost of $200. They will also be required to give a bond for an amount covering at least 25 per cent of the total value of the stock to be sold, as a guarantee that the ordinance will in all details be lived up to, said bond in no case to be less than $200.

Previous to the presenting of the ordinance it was explained that there was no intention on the part of anyone to keep out legitimate business men who wished to come here, engage in trade and meet the obligations of citizenship exacted from other persons. It was maintained, however, that the competition of certain classes of itinerants and peddlers was detrimental to legitimate trade and injurious to the public at large.

PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING TO OPEN EDUCATIONAL WEEK

Interesting Program Monday Evening to Mark Association's First Session.

The first regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Parent-Teacher association will be held in the Lincoln building at 8 o'clock sharp Monday evening, Dec. 5. All parents and others interested in education are urged to be present. After the program lunch will be served by the home economics department.

The following program will be given:

Singing — Audience
Music — Girls' Glee Club
Talk, "Facts and Figures" — I. T. Simley
Solo — Mrs. Irma Mallory Fisher
Address, "The Home's Part in the Care of Young People Today" — Rev. M. J. Neesen
"America" — Audience

This meeting of the Parent-Teacher association will usher in American Education Week, to be observed throughout the country under the auspices of the American Educational association and the American Legion. Every school room in Thief River Falls will be "at home" to patrons and friends from Monday morning until Friday afternoon.

Education Week has been instituted for the purpose of getting the general public better acquainted with the schools, their work and porgress. About all the ordinary citizen now knows about the schools he is supporting is that they cost a lot of money. Concerning the program followed or the ultimate aim of modern education he very often has but a hazy idea, never perhaps having stopped to realize the vast strides made in this highly important department since the days when he went to school.

The teachers and students unite in inviting citizens generally to pay a visit to the schools during this particular week. They are asked to come and learn at first hand to what uses their money is being put and what is being done to give their children the proper start toward a useful and honorable career. An hour or two spent in visiting the different school rooms will prove of value to visitor, teacher and pupil.

Public Forum

To the Editor of The Times:

It has been the painful duty of the undersigned to scan some of the second class newspapers of the northern counties to find a man's statement expressed in an American manner regarding the controversy between the Rev. Mr P. G. Carlstedt of Strandquist and the members of the Stephen Gust post of the American Legion at Strathcona. Several "well-posted" editors have expressed their views on the matter, a fact their readers are painfully conscious of. These second-class editors of the second-class newspapers just referred to, have done their utmost to show that the reverend gentleman did wrong when he took a firm stand for American ideals. In this effort they have betrayed in a heart-rending manner their flagrant ignorance of American ideals and institutions. They have displayed their "zero Americanism" by offering their readers to feast on their own sick imagination rather than leading them to the fresh waters of information. Gentlemen, the American people are ever ready to learn, but they want to learn from folks who know facts.

What is a military funeral? Is it a funeral of an American soldier where former comrades come, attired in uniform and equipped with arms-of-war, to honor the memory of the dead? Is it a funeral where these comrades move about in a systematic and sympathetic manner according to well-defined commands and rules? Or, is a military funeral "military" just because some comrades come, attired in uniforms, equipped with shotguns, and move about without regard for system, sympathy, rules or regulations? The undersigned, for his humble part, prefers the first expressed ideal. He is bold to think that there are others that share his views.

Now, for the consolation of Gold Star mothers and relatives, for the edification of interested fellow-Americans, for the education of the above-mentioned ignorant editors, and for the enlightenment of inexperienced ex-service men, the undersigned has consulted Adj. Gen. W. F. Rhinow, who is an authority on the subject. I beg leave to submit the following letter:

"I have for acknowledgement your communication of the 21st, relative to a difficulty which has arisen between members of the Stephen Gust post of the American Legion and Rev. P. G. Carlstedt-of-Strandquist, Minn.

"In the particular case which you mention Rev. Carlstedt was certainly in the right when he forbade the carrying of guns into the church. A church is a sacred edifice and one place into which arms or men under arms should not enter. The authority for this statement is the Customs of the Service of the United States Army.

"In the event that there is an armed escort at the funeral, they remain outside during the services or stack their arms and enter unarmed, and should it so happen that a guard of honor is detailed where a body lies in state within a church, the guard of honor is unarmed.

"There has been no insult to the Gold Star mothers or to the American Legion by Rev. Carlstedt.

"Trusting that this communication will serve to clear up the unpleasant feeling which you state has prevailed, I am very truly yours, W. F. Rhinow, The Adjutant General."

Now, listen ye that are concerned: If your Americanism is genuine, prove it by coming forth like men and asking your readers' pardon for misusing their patience.

ALBIN A. LARSON.

Try This Simple Test

One Reason Why HILL'S CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE Acts On The Spot

HILL'S C. B. Q. Tablets are best by test. Try this simple experiment:
1. Drop a C. B. Q. Tablet in a glass of clear water.
2. Instantly the tablet begins disintegrating or "breaking up."
3. In 10 seconds the medical properties are thoroughly mixed with water.
Thus, Hill's C. B. Q. Tablets act immediately, give relief without delay and begin checking Colds and La Grippe long before ordinary tablets, by actual test, are absorbed by the stomach juices. To prove this, subject other than C. B. Q. Tablets to the test, and observe that in most instances an hour or more is required for complete disintegration.

BREAKING ALL RECORDS

Those who were fearful that an entire week of bargain days would not turn out satisfactorily have been proven mistaken in their surmise. The present week in Thief River Falls is one of the best ever experienced in a business way for this time of year.

This only goes to prove that there is business to be had if it is gone after in the right way. Had the merchants of Thief River Falls folded their arms and waited for better times to arrive, doing nothing in the meantime to help bring about a resumption of trading, they would still be standing in that position waiting for the tide to turn. They figured, however, that people would need their wares at this time the same as ever and decided to make it an object to buy now.

The most unusual advertising campaign ever seen in the state was inaugurated. Intelligent and persistent efforts were made to extend the city's trading territory. Prices were cut to the bone and stocks kept at a point where they would meet every demand. The convenience of the city as a trading center was pointed out. Everything, in fact, was done that would draw the attention of the public to the advantages of buying in Thief River Falls.

The end of the present week will see the campaign closed. It is the intention to make these remaining days the best of the entire series. Still greater price cuts have been resorted to in order to induce the public to make their purchases at this time. Unusual inducements of different kinds are held out to those who will do their trading now instead of waiting for the holiday rush. The same goods as will be offered later in the season are on display at this time and the prices are even lower. It is also certain that the range and variety is greater now than will be the case later on.

Every inducement has been made to convince the public that this is the time to buy. Nothing is to be gained by waiting, while a great deal may be lost through not taking advantage of present conditions.

SHOULD REDISTRICT CITY.

While there is perhaps no great rush about the matter, it might nevertheless be well for the city council to begin looking into the matter of redistricting the city in such manner as to provide more voting precincts. Nineteen twenty-two is general election year and there will be more balloting than ever. New laws make the counting of ballots slower work than formerly and things should be so arranged that the matter can be expedited as much as possible. During the past two years it has been noticeable that the work of election boards has steadily increased in volume, on numerous occasions extending far into the day following the balloting.

Even though it is considered inadvisable to add more wards at this time, there should be nothing to prevent the establishment of two voting precincts each for the First and Fourth wards. This would relieve the situation and serve the purpose.

At the present time there are two aldermen-at-large elected in the city and there is no very good reason apparent why these could not be transferred to wards. Such action would not add to the size of the board and it is probable that all sections of the city would get even better representation than at present. It is customary to retire the aldermen-at-large as soon as there are a sufficient number of voters to form a new ward and it would seem that the plan might be followed in this city with profit. Six wards, with an alderman from each ward, would in many respects be an improvement on the present method. But if this is not desirable or feasible there can surely be no objection to dividing the two largest wards into precincts if for no other reason than added convenience at election time.

GOOD WORDS FOR SELVIG.

As was to be expected, the article appearing last week in the Minneapolis Journal intimating that C. G. Selvig of Crookston might come out as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, has caused quite a lot of speculation among the newspapers of the district. No instance has as yet come to light in which the retirement of Congressman Steenerson in favor of Mr. Selvig is advocated, but the opinion is quite unanimous that if the former is to be replaced at the next election, no better man than the present head of the Northwestern Agricultural school could be found as his successor. Evidently no one has heard from Mr. Steenerson himself on the subject and until he has made some kind of a declaration it is not likely that any other man will be seriously considered.

The following article, taken from the Warren Sheaf, is a fair sample of the general comment on the subject among the newspapers of the district.

"The political editor of the Minneapolis Journal says that C. G. Selvig, principal of the state school of agriculture at Crookston, may be brought out as a candidate for congress in the Ninth district and that his name is likely to come up before the Republican district convention next March. Mr. Selvig's candidacy will probably depend upon whether or not the people of the district wish to retire Halvor Steenerson, who has served them well for twenty years and has become one of the most influential men in congress from the Northwestern states. Mr. Selvig would no doubt make a good congressman if chosen. He is well known from his connection with the Red River Valley Development association and the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy district. But the campaign is still young and there may be other counties heard from in due time."

GIVES UP THE FIGHT.

The Bagley Herald, for fifteen years one of the leading papers of Clearwater county, has given up the ghost and retires from the field. The subscription list and business generally has been merged with the Farmers Independent and Bagley will for the present at least have but one paper. According to the retiring editor, A. O. Peterson, one is all there should have been at any time.

Mr. Peterson does not waste time in vain regrets nor does he even pretend that he is pleased over the fact that he must give up the business. He quite frankly states that the Herald has found the going too heavy and must yield the place it has filled to some other paper. He says: "No one has rallied to our support to keep the ship afloat, and depending only upon the revenue received from rendering service and producing goods we have found that we would profit the most by throwing up the sponge and parking the office towel in its respective corner."

The Herald was a good newspaper and covered its field most acceptably. The support was not there, however, and the business me nof the place deliberately allowed the publication to die.

What Other Editors Think.

THE WORST IS OVER.

Shakopee Argus: Herbert C. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, in a resume on the business situation, in substance says that we have weathered the storm and that we have fundamentally turned the corner. Mr. Hoover by virtue of the position he occupies has his fingers on the pulse of commerce and he ought to know.

IT'S NOT SURPRISING.

Princeton Union: If you but take observation you will find that a locomotive engineer, when his engine is running, invariably has his hand on the throttle and his eyes on the track. You will also find that many an automobile driver has his eyes almost anywhere and, maybe, one hand on the steering wheel—the latter depending on who is riding beside him. Then is it any surprise that more accidents happen on the highways than on the railroads?

THE HOME TOWN.

Now and then, you hear some stripling say: "This town's too slow for me. I'm going to the city to live."

And so he leaves the home town for the bright lights of the metropolis. Often he makes good in the larger center of activity, but more often he becomes one of that vast multitude who eke out a mere existence.

The old home town may be slow, and it may lack glitter and tinsel, but it is a pretty good place after all. It is a friendly spot, and a neighborly one, rich in human association, and although it may not travel at the speed of the big city, it is a place where the glad hand is always out for those who wandered into far fields and failed to reach the goal of their aspirations.

MAKE ONE JOB OF IT.

Anoka Union: It is being suggested by a number of Anoka citizens that instead of so many drives as we are having, that all the drives be consolidated into one community fund, and thus have the agony all over with at one time. There are three drives this month, the Armenian, Salvation Army and Red Cross.

HELP HOME INSTITUTIONS.

Ely Miner: The free-will offerings to Billy Sunday in Sioux City after a six-weeks' revival campaign amounted to $13,594, or more than $2,000 a week. At the same time Sunday was getting this handsome little nest egg, the local preachers were drawing the munificent (?) salaries of $1,000 or perhaps $2,000 a year and will continue to do so for the good of the community while Billy goes to the next town for another drag, and if not guaranteed, salvation will be a missing commodity in that place. Moral: Trade with home institutions and help those who help you.

THE DOWLING MEMORIAL.

Worthington Globe: If you have a little money you desire to invest, put it in the Michael J. Dowling Memorial Fund, where it will give the biggest returns you can imagine. This fund is to go to erect a hospital for crippled children. Can you give to a more worthy cause? And will not the returns be immeasurably great? Think it over and then give to the extent of your ability.

DANGEROUS PLAYTHINGS.

Little Falls Transcript: A small boy found a three-pound explosive shell among some war souvenirs in his home. He put it on the floor, sat down by it and began pounding it with a roller skate. It is said at the hospital that he will recover. His arm and hand are badly lacerated and his face and arms burned. He happened to be sitting, and at a fortunate angle. Had he been standing over it he undoubtedly would have been killed. All guns are loaded, and no shell is a dud. It takes people a long time to learn that dangerous things are dangerous and that children are children.

TOO MANY INSPECTORS.

Dawson Sentinel: The state is cursed with eighty-eleven different kinds of inspectors, most of whom do nothing except lie awake nights devising ways and means to justify their jobs. The next legislature could do no service that would be more appreciated by the people than that of separating some of the parasites from their meal tickets. No good reason has ever been advanced why one live man in every senatorial district could not satisfactorily inspect everything from oil cans to old maids and still have enough idle time on his hands to help mother with the wash on Monday mornings.

Vapors reach deep colds
When the cold "goes down" get after it by the rubbing and vapor method.

Obstinate colds that go down into the chest can be reached by the combination rubbing and vapor-inhaling method with Vicks VapoRub.

Apply Vicks over throat and chest. Rub well in, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of flannel. At night arrange bedclothes loosely, like a funnel, so the arising vapors will be breathed all night, right into the lungs.

Quick relief should be had from the tightness, soreness and cough with rapid loosening of the phlegm, abating danger of pneumonia or influenza.

Vicks contains the antiseptic, healing vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Oil of Turpentine and is the standby in millions of homes for congestions of nose, throat, and chest; skin hurts and itchings, and various bodily pains.

Once tried, Vicks becomes a stand-by in the medicine cabinet.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

LAIRD'S

WHEN EVERY MOVE HURTS

Lame every morning, achy and stiff all day; worse when it's damp or chilly? Suspect your kidneys and try the remedy your neighbors use. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. C. E. Cruzan, 610 Knight Ave., W., Thief River Falls, says, "My kidneys weren't acting properly and caused me a great deal of annoyance. I was also in misery with my back. At times it was so sore and stiff that when I stooped it was about all I could do to straighten again. I easily tired and it seemed my housework was a burden. I became somewhat discouraged because of this condition and not until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills did I begin to feel like myself again. Three boxes of Doan's restored me to good health and strengthened my kidneys."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Cruzan had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Do Your Christmas Mailing Now

In order that the usual holiday congestion at the postoffice may as far as possible be avoided and the delivery of mail expedited, Postmaster John Morgan asks the patrons of the Thief River Falls office to read the following over carefully and make every effort to carry out the suggestions it contains:

The co-operation of the public in handling Christmas mail is requested.

Uncle Sam's mail service is the samest, quickest, cheapest and best way to send your Christmas parcels.

Shop early, mail early, and avoid disappointments.

Pack articles carefully, use a strong pasteboard box (corrugated preferred) wrap and tie securely, but do not seal. (Sealed parcels are subject to letter rate postage.)

Always inform the receiving clerk if the contents of your parcel are either fragile or perishable so that your parcel may be properly marked. (If the contents of your parcel are perishable a special delivery stamp will expedite delivery at office of destination.)

Always place sender's name and address in upper left hand corner of all parcels and letters.

Exercise care in writing addresses, use ink, write plainly, and always give street and number, or rural route number.

Always place your own name and address on a card inside the parcel.

Postage must be fully prepaid.

Insure parcels. The cost is slight.

Red Cross and Christmas seals may be used, but do not place them on the address side.

The words "Do not open before Christmas" or like inscription is permissible.

Written inscriptions such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With best wishes," and numbers or names for the purpose of description are permissible additions to fourth-class (parcel post) mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature, other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

Communications prepaid at first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at fourth-class rate, provided they are placed in sealed envelopes securely attache dto outside of parcels.

Please bear in mind that the postal service is your service, and that this office will put forth every effort to promptly dispatch and deliver your mail. With the intelligent co-operation of all patrons greater efficiency can be obtained.

Can You Solve This Puzzle?

Here is a puzzle that everybody should try. The other night at the "Movies" the operator wanted to try a new "stunt," so he rearranged the names of some of the famous actors and actresses and threw them on the screen like you see in the picture. Everybody had "loads" of fun figuring out the correct names. See if you can do it yourself. No. 1 is Dorothy Dalton. If you can solve them all you can win $1,000 or a Hupmobile.

Though you probably know the names of all the popular actors and actresses we'll name a few of them just to refresh your memory:

110 Points Will Win First Prize

For each name you can arrange correctly you will receive five points or fifty points if you solve them all. You can earn 25 more points by qualifying your answer. That is, by proving that you have shown a copy of The St. Paul Daily News to five people. The final 25 points will be awarded by the judges, who will be three well-known St. Paul business men.

The best correct answer will be awarded First Prize and the second best correct answer Second Prize, and so forth. In case of a tie both winners will be awarded full amount of the prize. Send in your answer TODAY and a sample of the paper will be sent you at once to help you qualify.

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING TO TRY

You do not have to subscribe to The St. Paul Daily News nor spend a cent of your own money to win a prize. We have given away a great many wonderful things and you can be the next winner if you send in your solution to this puzzle at once. Be sure your own name and address is on your solution to the puzzle and don't forget—YOU CAN WIN. Get the family together, solve the puzzle and mail your answer NOW.

Satre-Holkesvig.

A prettily appointed wedding was solemnized at high noon Thursday, Nov. 24, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Satre, residing near this city, when their daughter, Miss Mabel, became the bride of A. Holkesvig, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Holkesvig of Crookston. Yellow was the predominating color used in the house decorations and yellow chrysantemums were the flowers. Preceding and during the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was played by Miss Selma Sorum of Detroit, a cousin of the bride. The service was read by Rev. Schuett of Crookston before a company of close friends and relatives. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Myrtle Satre, who wore a brown chantilly lace dress. She carried a bouquet of roses. David Wigand of Minneapolis, a friend of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was attired in a charming gown of brown satin combined with Spanish lace. She carried a bride's bouquet of Killarney roses. Among the out-of-town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Holkesvig of Crookston, his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kiel, also of Crookston, David Wigand of Minneapolis, Leonard Wanous and R. B. Smith of Crookston, and Miss Selma Sorum of Detroit. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. The bride is a gradute of the local high school, a member of the class of 1016. Since that time she has taught school in this vicinity. Mr. Holkesvig is a gradunte of Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, and is at present engaged in farming near Crookston. After a brief honeymoon spent visiting with friends at Winnipeg the young couple will be at home on their farm near Crookston.

Woman's Club Meeting.

The Woman's club held its regular meeting Monday afternoon, at which an exceptionally fine program was given. J. J. McCann, a member of the committee chosen to judge the greatest number of improvements made on the various streets the past summer, was present to deliver the silver loving cup to LaBree avenue, which was the winning street. This is the second time the cup has been awarded to this avenue. Mr. McCann commended the club for the interest it displayed along these lines. Mrs. B. W. Briggs read the pledge of the retiring president of the State Federated clubs, Mrs. Emma V. Allen. Mrs. Daniel Shaw read a very interesting article on the Sheppard-Towner act. In behalf of the Parent-Teachers association, Mrs. H. W. Froehlich asked the co-operation of the Woman's club and extended a special invitation to the first meeting of the association to be held on Monday evening, Dec. 5. The club unanimously voted to co-operate with the regional conference of child welfare workers to be held here this month. Mrs. Oscar Mellby was leader of the current events, and was assisted by Mrs. J. H. Hegmanson and Mrs. O. W. Carlson. A ladies' trio composed of Mrs. G. W. Booren, Mrs. Geo. Johnson and Miss Meta Kiland sang "Good Night" from the Opera "Martha." Mrs. G. Halvorson was accompanist. The remainder of the program was in charge of Mrs. W. W. Prichard, Sr., who read a very interesting paper on "The First Thanksgiving." Mrs. B. W. Briggs gave a brief outline of the lives of three of the leaders of the Plymouth colony, closing her account by quoting from "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

Public Reception.

The reception given at the Presbyterian church parlors on Tuesday evening was in the nature of a farewell party for Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Barackman, who will leave the city Friday night to make their home at Lincoln, Kansas. A large delegation of local people was present to pay respects for the former pastor and his wife, who have lived here for the past six years. G. L. Sterns, F. F. Haynes, H. C. Johnson, Albert Johnson, H. O. Loken, E. O. Mogensen and Rev. Cook gave brief talks. Mrs. J. M. Bishop also gave a very interesting talk. An atmosphere of friendly informality marked the occasion as one which gave the guests of honor a pleasing remembrance of their Thief River Falls friends. During the years Rev. and Mrs. Barackman have resided in the city they have made many warm friends, the best wishes of whom go with them to their new home. As a token of the high esteem in which they are held by the congregation, F. F. Haynes, in behalf of the members, presented Mrs. Barackman with a wrist watch, while Rev. Barackman received a handsome sum of money with which to purchase a chair for his study.

For Rev. and Mrs. Barackman.

Social Welfare Meeting.

The Social Welfare section of the Woman's club will meet at the Commercial club rooms on Monday afternoon, Dec. 5. The big demand for old clothing by the poor people of the city makes it imperative that every woman who has the least interest in social welfare work come out Monday afternoon and assist in this work. Officers of this section urgently request a large attendance so that a great deal of work may be accomplished. Mrs. T. L. Melgaard and Mrs. H. W. Froehlich will serve lunch.

Girls' Community Club.

The Girls' Community club met at the Commercial club rooms Monday evening. After the usual business meeting, at which time plans for Christmas were made, the evening was given over to the entertainment committee, which provided games, music and dancing. Miss Emily Fossum was chairman of this committee. Miss Theone Walker favored the club with several piano numbers, and a delicious lunch concluded the activities. The next meeting will take the form of a Christmas party.

Surprise Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Knute Swanson was the scene of a surprise party on Sunday afternoon in honor of Arthur Boos, who left in the evening for St. Cloud to accept a position. Mr. Boos until his departure was employed as cigar maker at the Thief River Cigar factory. The afternoon was spent in a social manner and at five o'clock a delicious lunch was served. About fifteen guests were present. Mr. Boos was presented with a handsome gift as a token of friendship.

Paulson-Reitz.

Roman H. Paulson and Amelia C. Reitz were married on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23, at the Presbyterian manse in the presence of a few friends. Rev. R. L. Barackman officiated. The young people, after a few days on their wedding trip, will be at home on the corner of Eighth street and Horace avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Paulson are popular young people and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Eastern Star Meets.

A special meeting of the Eastern Star lodge was held at the Masonic hall last evening. An exceptionally large number of members were in attendance, and several from out of town also were present. At this meeting seven were initiated. The business hour was devoted to outlining the work for this year. The officers of the chapter, numbering eighteen, served an elaborate spread.

Dinner Party.

On Saturday evening at her home, 123 St. Paul avenue north, Mrs. F. H. Herrick entertained a group of friends at dinner. The hours following were devoted to cards. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Bratrud, Mr and Mrs. Daniel Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Chommie, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Larsen, and Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Penney.

Maccabees to Have Social Time.

Following the regular meeting of the Maccabees on Thursday evening, Dec. 8, a social time will be enjoyed. The committee in charge is making big preparations for a most entertaining evening. A good program of dance music has been procured. During the evening lunch will be served, for which the small sum of 15 cents will be charged.

Mrs. Geo. Johnson will be hostess at a theatre-bridge party this evening. This is the second of a series and invitations have been issued to twenty ladies.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church will be entertained by Mrs. J. M. Bishop at her home, 121 Duluth avenue north.

Birthday Club Meets.

The Birthday club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. G. W. Booren at her home on Saturday afternoon.

Picture Puzzle Game.

Elsewhere in today's issue will be found a large advertisement announcing a picture puzzle game arranged by the St. Paul Dispatch, which will, no doubt, prove very interesting for our readers, and especially for the little folks. The contest consists in ascertaining how many objects or articles in the picture start with the letter "C," and prizes are awarded to those finding the largest number. Our readers have already won liberal prizes as a result of competing in similar contests and there is no reason why some of the awards in this new picture puzzle game should not come to residents of this vicinity. Anyhow, there's nothing like trying.

Elks Meeting Friday.

The regular meeting of the Thief River Falls lodge of Elks to be held on Friday evening will be of unusual interest. Final arrangements for the memorial day program next Sunday will be made and there are a number of other matters of interest to the members to be taken up. The officers are particularly desirous that there be a good attendance at this meeting.

American Legion Corner

"EVERY BUDDY GET A BUDDY" URGES COMMANDER VAN DYKE

Buddy, you are a Minnesota Legionaire.

One of the 30,000 Minnesotans who not only served their country in war but are going to serve it in peace. One of the million former service men who in three short years have built up the American Legion, of which the whole nation is proud—which means so much in the life of America today.

Down through the years, the American Legion will go, carrying its message of loyalty to God, Country and Comrades. Will you, who have helped build up this great organization, continue to support it? Do you still believe in the American Legion, and will you do your part now by paying your dues for 1922, which your post officers must collect and forward by Dec. 31, 1921?

Place yourself in the position of your local post officers. Before the bells of the New Year ring out, they face the task of collecting and forwarding the national and state dues for 1922 to state and national headquarters. This is necessary in order that the Legion's work may go on—that the task which it has pledged itself to accomplish during the coming year may be carried out.

No great organization can achieve results without funds to finance its work. There is the American Legion Weekly to be published and sent to a million members; there is the work of the state and national service departments, the routine work of state and national headquarters, the functioning of the National Executive committee, the National Americanism commission, the National Legislative committee, and many other state and national committees, the expense of maintaining state and national Legion news bureaus, and the cost of all the routine work and innumerable special expenses which go with the functioning of any great national society.

One of the biggest tasks for the coming year will be that of securing the enactment of the Legion Federal adjusted compensation bill in congress. With the united moral and financial support of the entire membership this can be accomplished. Without the support of the entire membership the result is not so sure.

As State Commander, I am sending you this personal message because I feel that if you thoroughly understand the situation you will have no hesitation in doing your part. You have placed on my shoulders the responsibility of upholding the reputation of the American Legion of Minnesota during my term of office. I want to do that, and I want to increase the Legion membership in the Gopher state if possible. But I must have the help of each of our 30,000 Minnesota Legionaires and I am asking your help here and now. This is how you can help me most.

Instead of putting off paying your dues for 1922 from day to day, until they are past due, pay them today. Drop in on one of your post officers, or mail a check, and get squared away for another year. Your state and national leaders will then know where the organization stands and they can make their plans for 1922 without fear of financially embarassing our great organization. And by paying promptly you will be sure to receive every one of the 52 issues of the Aemrican Legion Weekly, commencing with the first issue of 1922.

Let's beat Iowa's record! Iowa has more Legion members in proportion to her former service men than any other state in the country. Minnesota can do better! Every buddy get a buddy. And be sure to pay his own dues too. Over the top for the Gopher state!

Your Department Commander,
ARTHUR A. VAN DYKE.

STICK TO DAIRY COW.

Lake City Graphic-Republican: Judging by the present market price, the dairy farmer is the one in luck. Just about the time the price of grain goes down the price of dairy products goes up. The good old dairy cow is a pretty good thing to stick to.

Prowler Issue.

Our readers will notice that most of the space in this issue of the Progress is devoted to the Prowler of 1922. The purpose is to boost and advertise this important enterprise. It has been found necessary. In order that an annual may be published we must have 350 subscribers before the contract for printing can be let. About 200 have been subscribed for to date, so about 150 must be sold within the next few days.

It will be a great disappointment to the class of 1922 as well as the rest of the high school and members of the alumni if the old custom of publishing an annual has to be discontinued. It would tend to show that there lacked interest, spirit and co-operation, and that our high school was going backward.

We are receiving support from the business men, and we certainly hope that more of the students and members of the alumni will help us make the Prowler of 1922 a certainty.—M. L. '22.

What Value Has an Annual?

When we Americans use the word "value," we have a tendency to think of value in terms of money. But in placing a value on a high school annual we can not use monetary measures. It has no market value, and it can not readily be exchanged for other desirable goods. What, then, gives it value—makes it desirable? It will of course be of value chiefly to those who have in any way been connected with the school that published it, and who want to remember that school and its associations. Here we have the true property, which gives a high school annual value—it serves as a remembrance.

Now, why do we want a remembrance? Why don't we want to pass out into the world and forget all about our Alma Mater and all that we held dear there? That is a question that each one of us will have to answer for himself. Each one will have particular reasons for wishing to remember his high school life. But there are certain phases of school life that we all live in common. There are our school-mates, whose association we prize and whose memory we will always hold dear. Some of our best friends will pass out of our lives when our ways part at the end of our high school career, but we do not wish entirely to forget them. Then there are our teachers. We certainly want something material to remember them by. High school teachers are as a rule the select characters of humanity, and their influence upon our lives will become more and more apparent as we begin to understand better the many-phased perplexities of life.

High school marks the passing of childhood and the transition into maturity. We will want to remember the sports and club activities of our youth and the jokes and humor which characterized our adolescence.

Just how does our annual fulfill this purpose? An annual is chiefly a picture book, and that is what it should be. Pictures of our schoolmates, teachers, and the various organizations, as well as the snapshots, will be the best possible reminders that we can take with us when we leave school.

The annual serves also as an effective advertisement for the school and the city. Prospective students will be favorably influenced by a good annual, which is the only catalogue a high school distributes. It acquaints the parents better than perhaps anything else with just what kind of a school their children are attending.—O. H. '23.

Have you bought your Prowler yet?

Twenty Years After.

I was tired—more tired than I could remember ever having been before—and my mind was so full of one thing, the Prowler, that I could not muster the necessary energy to concentrate on any lesson. The pages blurred, the letters formed into fantastic shapes, and the book felt like lead in my hands. Giving up in despair, I flung the book on the floor and turned out the light preparatory to going to sleep. Within five minutes I had been transported into the land of dreams, or, to be more exact, into a time when the calendar registered the year 1942, and into a house which seemed to be filled with school-mates from the days when I had attended high school.

School was the main topic of conversation, and we refreshed our memories at frequent intervals by looking through a number of old annuals which had in some miraculous way appeared on the scene; and it was the most natural thing in the world that these should be Prowlers from Lincoln High. Turning over the well thumbed leaves we gave vent to exclamations of delight at each new thing we found. "Gee," said someone, on seeing several of the snapshots, "Weren't we the monarchs of all we surveyed in those days though. Thought we knew it all—but it didn't take long after we left school to find out that we didn't."

"Oh, well," said another, "It was a 'grand and glorious feeling' while it lasted anyhow."

"Yes," agreed the first pensively; then turning over to the next page, "Here's the Junior class. Wonder where they are now. Suppose they have wandered just as far from their Alma Mater as we have. Oh, but wouldn't it be great to see al these people again and talk over old times with them! Believe me, if I ever get a chance I'm going to look some of them up, and I'll let you know about it, too. Maybe we could arrange some sort of a reunion."

"I'm with you on that," said one who had not till then spoken, "I think I'd give almost anything to see them once more. I never knew how much I missed them until I saw that old Prowler. I bought one, too, when they were published, but I wore it out long ago. It didn't seem to be worth much then, but right now I'd give almost anything to get one again. Think of it; the only real record of our high school days that there is in existence—and when that's gone we can never get another. One piece of advice I'd like to give all high school pupils is that if they ever get a chance to buy an annual, they ought to buy a dozen instead of one; then there wouldn't be any danger of not having one whenever they'd want to see it. And it costs so little—only a couple of dollars. That's an investment that will pay more in solid enjoyment than any other way that I know, not only for a day, or a week, or a year, but for an entire lifetime. And when you come to think of it, that's some investment."

At this point the alarm clock ungraciously went off, summoning me to another day's work and worries; but the memory of the dream stuck in my mind, and I wondered if our Prowler WOULD be as valuable as that some twenty years from now. I do not know, because the twenty years have not yet rolled round. One thing I do know is that those annuals I have could not be bought for money. Could yours?—A. S. '24.

What will you take for your Prowler twenty years from now?

What the Prowler Will Be.

The Prowler of 1922 is to be the very best in its line. It will be something different from what you have seen in the other publications of its kind. There is to be a variety of pictures. You won't see pictures of the same people on every page of the book. Since we have a number of good writers of both poetry and prose, we shall have a large collection of good literary work.

It would take pages to tell you just what you will find in the annual. I am therefore going to take you on a little trip through the book and point out some of the most interesting items. As we open the book we find the dedication. Then we see the pictures of the superintendent and members of the school board. These are followed by pictures of the schools and a list of the faculty of each. Then we come to our own faculty. After passing the faculty we come to the seniors. We linger a while here so as to give you plenty of time to look them over. Then we come to the classes and organization and their pictures. Finally we come to the most interesting section of the Literary and Social departments, the product of some of our literary artists. From now on we shall travel a little slower as we have come into the "comics," the jokes and snapshots. Here we shall find the wit of all the students in the high school as well as that of the teachers. Here is where we end our trip.

Now we have taken you through the Prowler and have given you an idea of what it is to be. You ought not rest a minute till you have a subscription receipt in your hands. This will guarantee you an annual at the time of publication. Don't wait any longer. Buy now before it is too late.—G. W., Edicor-in-Chief.

We report Progress with the Prowler.

The Cost of an Annual.

An annual represents the noblest work of the engraver, printer and staff. To edit and publish such a book as the Prowler of '22 takes a great deal of work on the side of the staff, engraver, and printer. It also takes money.

The staff works out of love for and interest in their class. The engraver and printer, on the other hand, must live and to live must receive pay for their work. A former Prowler cost $1,600. The Prowler of '22 will cost approximately $700. About half of this sum will go to the printer, $250 to the engraver and the rest will be used for other expenses. Willing though we might be, therefore, it is impossible to make you a present of an annual. We want you to have one, but we've got to sell it to you! —L. A., Business Manager.

A Well-Earned Annual.

When the Seniors announced that they were going to publish an annual, I began saving my money to get one.

To start with I had one dollar and ten cents which I had got by picking and shelling navy beans during the summer. I spent about two weeks at this, but it was my first job and I thought that I was getting good wages, so I worked faithfully at it.

I helped a lady beat her carpets one afternoon. For this she gave me fifty cents. She also paid me thirty-nine cents for helping her once before. This made me one dollar and ninety-nine cents. This was the last chance I had for earning any money for a few weeks.

One evening there was going to be a dance. A lady called me up and asked me if I would come and keep her baby so she could go. I promised to come. When I came to her home, I told her I was trying to save enough to get an annual. She said that she would give me enough to make two dollars for keeping her baby that night. I thought forty cents for one evening was very good pay so I did everything I could to amuse the baby and finally got it to bed. But its mother did not come home until three o'clock and when she did come, she did not have the change. She said she would pay me the next afternoon.

The next afternoon the lady came over to pay me. She asked how much I needed to make the two dollars. I got my money to count it and when I counted it I had one dollar and ninety-nine cents; I had forgotten the thirty-nine cents which the first lady had paid and that I only needed one cent to make the two dollars. The lady said she never broke any promises and that she had promised to give me enough to make two dollars. One cent was all she owed me and one cent was all she paid me. It was a disappointment, all right, but it filled my two dollars nevertheless and I got my annual.—Ethel B.

Your picture's in the Prowler. You are getting one, of course.

The fine for absence, excused or not excused, was changed to five cents. Articles on the duties of Roman consuls were read by Herbert Keene and Orrin Storholm. Part of an interesting story was read by Emmett Shanahan. It was announced that the club picture was to be taken Wednesday, November 23. Latin games were then played until eight o'clock, when the meeting adjourned. —A. S., Aedile.

Activities of the Superior Latin Club.

The Superior Latin club is divided into classes corresponding to the classes in Rome at the time of Cicero. The Cicero pupils are the nobles; the Caesar pupils the knights, and the Latin I pupils, the plebians. At the first meeting, Lorrayne Crandall and Florence Haney were elected consuls and Camille Warner, tribune.

The Girls' Superior Latin club held its weekly meeting Thursday, Nov. 10. It was decided that a fine of one cent a minute and not more than ten cents was to be paid by anyone coming late, also that anyone absent from a meeting should be fined five cents. After election of officers, Lorrayne Crandall, presiding consul, took charge of the meeting. There was a short program consisting of a talk on the duties of a consul by Ruth Knutson, a poem by Lydia Dahlen, and a reading entitled, "The Story of a Roman Boy," by Margaret Melgaard. After the program, Latin games were played.

The following officers were elected: Censors, Alice Gobler and Pearl Weeks; Quaestors, Lydia Dahlen and Ruth Knutson; Aediles, Hilda Peterson and Lucile Curtis.

On Thursday evening, Nov. 17, at 7:30, Miss Stebbins' room was the scene of the third meeting of the Superior Latin club. The meeting was called to order by Florence Haney, presiding consul. Roll call was taken by Pearl Weeks, Censor, and the minutes of the previous meeting read by Hilda Peterson, Aedile. Extracts on "The Life of the Roman Boy" and the "Formation of the Roman Government" were rendered by Lorrayne Crandall and Harriet Morgan, respectively. Three original stories written by Lorrayne Crandall, Lucile Curtis and Thomas Melgaard were translated. A semi-Latin poem by Margaret Melgaard completed the program, after which some played Latin games while others made plans for a Latin play to be given before the club at some future time.—H. P., L. C., Aediles.

Let's put the Prowler "over the top."

Physics as a High School Subject.

Physics is a science or study of the physical world in which we live. We meet with it constantly in everyday life. Therefore it is one of the most practical subjects taught in our high school.

In studying physics we learn a great many things, such as why a stone falls and a balloon rises. Physics, like the rest of the sciences, is based upon certain fundamental laws and theories. A law is a proven fact. A theory is merely an idea, which often leads to the discovery of a great many facts.

I think the most interesting theory we have studied so far in physics is that of molecular motion. According to the theory all substances are composed of very minute particles called molecules which are always in a very rapid motion. The more heat applied to a substance the wider these molecules travel, so causing expansion. Molecules are so small that they cannot be seen even with the most powerful microscopes. The number of them contained in a cubic centimeter of air is twenty-seven billion-billion.

All our machinery is based on the laws of physics. The clock is based on the laws of the pendulum. When the clock gains or loses time, it is because the pendulum is either too long or too short. Therefore if a clock is to give correct time, the pendulum must be adjusted to exactly the correct length.

Science is growing in importance each year as new and wonderful things are discovered and invented. A great many students try to avoid sciences in their courses. They should not do this, for they never realize what an opportunity they are missing.

In studying physics we learn to appreciate the work of the great men who have made many of the great discoveries that make our modern world possible.—M. M.

Spelling Prize.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich has offered five dollars in cash to be distributed as the teachers see fit for the best work in spelling in the Central building. A little later on in the year a contest will be held to select the best speller in each of the seventh and eighth grades and each will be given a prize of two and one-half dollars in cash.

Probably there are other business or professional men in the city who are willing to offer prizes of this kind. It becomes an incentive for the boys and girls and better work results. The teachers are grateful to Dr. Froehlich for the step he has taken in this direction.

A Duck Story.

One often hears of fish stories but hardly ever duck stories. As to the truth of this one, which I am about to narrate, ask any high school student who heard Mr. Rapacz's tale of Mr. Kline's adventure or who saw the duck—but this is getting ahead of my story.

About two hundred miles west of Thief River Falls there is a lake known as Cranberry lake located near Fillmore, North Dakota. This lake, which is approximately ten miles in circumference, is alkaline, the water containing borax and soda in solution. At certain times of the year this water becomes so dense as to make it unnecessary for a person to know how to swim as he can easily keep afloat with no effort. Under proper weather conditions, cold weather and high winds, the borax and soda form crystals which attach themselves to anything which may touch the water.

Sunday, Nov. 6, when thousands upon thousands of ducks and geese were flying over Cranberry Lake, many of them alighted on the lake to rest and feed. In the afternoon, hunters noticed the lake was filled with ducks which appeared unable to fly when shot at. Rowing out on the lake in boats the hunters knocked the ducks on the head and pulled them in. Soon town people came rushing out in cars, filling them with ducks and driving home again. For two days ducks and geese were killed by the thousands, many more freezing to death as there was no chance of escape once they alighted on the lake. Small crystals gathered on the birds' feathers, gluing their wings to their sides and making them useless. These crystals kept gathering continually to their feathers, making them heavy and helpless. A goose was killed which weighed sixty-two pounds, yet only dressed fourteen, the crystals weighing a total of almost fifty pounds. The reason the goose did not sink was because the water was so dense.

To prove the truth of this story, Mr. Kline, who works on the Soo line, brought back fifteen ducks given him by a citizen of Fillmore. He gave one of them to Mr. Rapacz, who showed it to the students of the high school, where it aroused considerable curiosity.

This is the second time in the memory of the citizens of Fillmore that ducks have been trapped in this manner. It is not likely to occur again for a long time.—H. M. E. '21.

Burning the Midnight Oil.

(By Edw. O. Ringstad.)

This is only too well known as a phrase, coined not only to indicate the practices of late hour work on the part of the searcher of knowledge but to condone, perhaps, such practices. If anybody, however, needs to put himself under the injunction of regular hours, it is the student. Presumptions are that he is fitting himself for a lifework of strenuous, insistent toil to which the most ardent efforts of undergraduate days do but compare as child's play. Whoever prepares wisely for such lifework, will show as much regard for the formation of regular habits as for closeness of application in study. Few items count as heavily in habit formation as seeking the proper amount of rest and at regular intervals. Much as one may think while enjoying plenty of youthful health and energy that the demands of regularity may be violated with impunity, results of such violations may come back to pester the offender later in life. Very often the medical practitioner will inquire of the patient as to the childhood diseases he may have had, since he knows that in the consequences of these are laid the foundations for ills of maturity. Similarly the ills of character, that often turn up to worst us in the critical moments of life, have their foundations laid in the neglected ailments of youth. Take it from one who has already reached the "watershed of life" and whose course henceforward will run downhill, that plenty of rest, and taken with regularity, will bring their returns in bodily health and mental resilience at a time when life's recuperative powers are running low.—Manitou Messenger.

EDUCATION WEEK.

Next week is American Education Week. It is observed under the auspices of the National Education Association and the American Legion. The slogan for the week throughout the nation should be "KNOW YOUR SCHOOLS." The schools of Thief River Falls will observe the week by being "at home" all week to all patrons and friends of the schools.

We are not going to show off. We are going to share with you what we are, what we have and what we do. We want you to see the work we are doing from day to day. We want you to know our accomplishments and our needs. We want your co-operation and support in meeting these needs. We want you to co-operate with us and help us teach and foster good Americanism.

"No service has suffered more from unintelligent criticism than the schools. The average citizen does not read educational literature or accounts of teachers' meetings or visit schools to learn what they are doing. He has a conception of school only as he knew it in his own school days. American Education Week should give the taxpayers who furnish the funds for the public schools first-hand knowledge of the service for which they pay. Education cannot afford to neglect this opportunity to advertise its aims and purposes."

In connection with Education Week do not overlook the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association Monday evening. There will be an excellent program and lunch will be served.

How Many Objects in this Picture Start With the Letter "C"

That's what you are to determine. Sounds easy, doesn't it? And it is easy. Without any trouble whatever you can readily see such objects as "Cow," "Calf," "Cigar," "Cup," etc., can't you? Well, the others are just as easy to see, but the idea is to see who can find the most. Fifteen cash prizes will be given for the fifteen best lists of words submitted in answer to this puzzle. The person sending in the largest and nearest correct list of objects shown in the picture, starting with the letter "C" will win first prize, second best, second-prize, etc.

Young and Old, Join In The Fun

The Farmers' Dispatch, The St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press announce today another interesting and amusing puzzle game—a puzzle that is different from the ordinary and a game in which all can participate. Get out a pencil or your pen and ink and start making up a list of words you can find in the picture above that start with the letter "C." It is not a trick puzzle and all objects are clearly shown. Nothing is hidden and you don't need to turn the picture upside-down, nor tilt it to one side or the other. It is interesting, educational and fascinating. Nothing hard; just different. Yes, all join in—old folks, middle-aged and young folks. See who can find the most "C-Words." As soon as you have your list made up, send it in and try for the big prizes.

You Can Win $1,000

If your list of "C-Words" is awarded FIRST, SECOND or THIRD prize by the judges you will win $35, but if you would like to win more than $35, we are making the following special offers whereby you can win bigger cash prizes by sending in one or two subscriptions with remittance to cover (to be delivered by mail or carrier (new or renewal).

HERE'S HOW: If your answer to the "C-Word" Picture Puzzle wins FIRST, SECOND or THIRD prize and you have sent in ONE subscription to the Daily St. Paul Dispatch or Daily Pioneer Press (by Mail or Carrier) or 5 one year subscriptions to the Farmers' Dispatch (semi-weekly) you will receive $350 instead of $35. FOURTH prize $150, FIFTH prize $100, etc. (See second column of figures in prize list).

OR, if your answer wins FIRST, SECOND or THIRD prize and you have sent in TWO subscriptions to the Daily St. Paul Dispatch or Daily Pioneer Press (by mail or carrier) or 10 one year subscriptions to The Farmers' Dispatch, you will receive $1,000 in place of $35. FOURTH prize $300; FIFTH prize $200, etc. (See third column of figures in prize list).

How is that for a liberal offer? But LOOK, there are three $1,000 prizes. Therefore, if you stand FIRST, SECOND, or THIRD and have qualified your answer by sending in the required number of subscriptions, you will win $1,000. It takes but two subscriptions (two new or one new and one renewal to either daily paper, or 10 one year subscriptions, either new or renewal, to The Farmers' Dispatch) to qualify for the big $1,000 Rewards. You can do this with very little effort. Your own subscription may count as one. We can also take subscriptions (by mail or carrier) to start at any future date.

OBSERVE THESE SIMPLE RULES

1. Any man, woman or child residing outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis, who is not an employe of The Dispatch Printing Co., or a member of an employe's family, may submit an answer.
2. All answers must be mailed on or before December 17th, 1921.
3. Answers should be written on one side of the paper only and words numbered consecutively—1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address on each page in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything else, use a separate sheet.
4. Only words found in the English Dictionary will be counted. Do not use hyphenated, compound or obsolete words. Use either the singular or plural, but if the plural is used, the singular cannot be counted and vice versa.
5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects. The object can be named only once, however, any part of the object may also be named.
6. The person sending in the largest and nearest correct list of words will win first prize; second best, second prize, etc. Papers will be judged on a merit system of points—10 points being allowed for each correct word sent in and 10 points deducted for each incorrect word or omission.
7. Candidates may co-operate in answering the puzzle, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household, nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside of the family where two or more have been working together.
8. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be paid to each tied participant.
9. Subscriptions (both new and renewal) by mail or carrier, outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis will be accepted. However, in qualifying for the $1,000 Bonus Rewards at least one NEW subscription must be sent in. A new subscriber is any one who has not been receiving the Daily St. Paul Dispatch or the Daily Pioneer Press by mail or carrier since December 1st, 1921. (Farmers' Dispatch subscriptions may be new or renewal).
10. Subscribers who at the present time are receiving the Daily St. Paul Dispatch or the Daily Pioneer Press by carrier, will not be allowed to change over to the mail delivery [illegible] credit thereon for the Maximum Bonus Reward. All subscriptions will be carefully verified by the Puzzle Manager. Candidates working old subscriptions as new will positively forfeit the credit of such subscriptions as qualifying for the Maximum Bonus Rewards.
11. Answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription is sent in.
12. There will be three independent judges having no connection with the St. Paul Dispatch, St. Paul Pioneer Press or Farmers' Dispatch, who will judge the answers submitted and award the prizes and participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.
13. The Judges will meet on December 24, 1921, and the announcement of the Prize Winners and the correct list of words will be published in the St. Paul Dispatch, St. Paul Pioneer Press and the Farmers' Dispatch, just as quickly thereafter as possible.

STEINER

The new gravel pit on the old Brann farm three miles northwest of this place is now well under way. A considerable area already is stripped, a large tractor having been used for the purpose. Some 25 or 30 teams are already hauling gravel from this pit and it is expected this number will soon be increased. The teams are hauling from two to three yards to the load. The haulers receive 35 cents for loading and 20 cents per mile for hauling.

First Requests From Minnesota Go to International Conference at Washington.

Petitions expressing the earnest hopes of farmers in 24 Minnesota counties that the International Disarmament conference will not break up until the nations have agreed on drastic reductions in armaments are on their way to President Harding.

The first petition bears the signatures of 5,689 farmers. More are arriving daily, and will be forwarded to Washington as they come in, farm bureau officials announced, to show the United States delegates that they have the heartfelt support of agricultural America in their program for reducing naval and military burdens.

The longest petition was sent by the Stearns county farm bureau, bearing 1,376 names. Pipestone county's petition carried 553 names, Murray's 322, Benton's 322, Olmsted's 233 and Mower's 225 names.

STEALING BUTTER IS NEW INDUSTRY

Central Association Warns Co-operatives to Be on Guard Against Thieves.

An organized gang of "butter bandits" is robbing Minnesota co-operative creameries, according to a warning sent out by the Minnesota Co-opeartive Creameries association.

Creameries throughout the state were urged to be on guard against the thieves.

The warning was issued following the theft of 1,100 pounds of butter from a Chisago county co-operative creamery, one of the first to join the state organization. The central association immediately notified sheriffs and police officers in adjoining counties, the twin cities and Duluth, and took up the case with a detective agency.

The thieves are believed to be conducting a systematic campaign to loot country creameries, load the stolen butter on trucks and escape with it to market, says A. J. McGuire, organization manager of the state association.

The central organization also notified creameries that it is investigating arrangements for burglar insurance for its members.

IS LOW TIME PAST IN SHEEP MARKET?

Lamb Values Have Advanced Sharply Under Influence of Very Light Receipts.

South St. Paul, Nov. 28—Sharp curtailment of sheep and lamb receipts the past two weeks and a fairly healthy dressed trade, especially in lamb, have combined to bring about a sharp advance in the lamb market. Several loads of choice lambs reached $9 late Monday or the highest price paid on this market since in September, and many traders feel that the low time has been passed for this year. Bulk of good fat lambs sold at $8.75, with bulk of fat ewes $3.25 to $3.50.

With moderate receipts of cattle here and elsewhere Monday, trade in that division opened on a strong to 25c higher basis, better grades of beef steers and butcher she stock showing most gain. A few good beef steers sold in small lots up to $7, with others at $6.50, and bulk of beef steers from $5 to $6. Bulk of the butcher cows and heifers sold from $3.25 to $4.50, with a fair showing of sales up to $5, and best heifers reaching $5.50 in several cases. Canners and cutters sold largely from $2.25 to $3, bologna bulls $2.50 to $3, an occasional choice heavy bologna up to $3.25. Bulk of the best light veal calves sold to packers at $7, a few extra choice vealers reaching $7.50. Strong prices were received for stockers and feeders at the week's opening. Best in load lots sold up around $6.50. Bulk from $4 to $5.

Choice 140 to 175 pound hogs sold strong at the week's opening, bulk of such kinds going Monday from $6.85 to $7, with most of the good mixed butcher hogs selling from $6.50 to $6.60, and heavy packers $6 to $6.25. Bulk of the good pigs here brought $7.25.

County Junior Red Cross Accomplishes Great Work

The Pennington County Junior Red Cross, acting through its chapter school committee and on the recommendation of the city and school nurses, have expended a total of $383.66 since June 1 in providing medical aid for needy pupils of the county.

Only cases where the parents were financially unable to give their children the necessary medical attendance were considered. The success of the Junior Red Cross in this work is in no small measure due to the local physicians who, in most cases, have given their service free of charge.

The chapter school committee for Pennington county consists of Supt. Geo. M. Gunderson John Nystul and T. L. Melgaard.

Following is a summary of the secretary's report for June, July, August and September:

Tonsils and adenoids removed, 20; eyes refracted and glasses procured, 8; dental work, 16; cases of ear treatment, 2; transportation to doctor, 12; transportation to state hospital, 1.

The dates for the annual Junior Junior Red Cross roll call is Dec. [illegible] an effort will be made to enroll all the school children of the county.

Successful Production.

"Fi-Fi of the Toy Shop," a home talent production put on under the auspices of the Ladies' Sodality of St. Bernard's church, on Friday evening at the auditorium, afforded a full measure of diversified fun. A number of humerous situations arise in the play when the dolls find themselves alive and in a world of action. All of the leading characters handled their parts with the grace of professionals. The group dances and choruses of the paper dolls, bridesmaids, china dolls, letter blocks, jumping jacks, animals, flower girls and fairies, all in elaborate costumes, were especially well received by the audience. The attendance, though fair, was somewhat smaller than had been anticipated. Those present were very well pleased with the entire production.

12 Minnesota Elevators Join U. S. Grain Growers

Twelve country elevators and more than 150 farmers have joined the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc., according to reports summarized the second week of the organizations' membership drive in Minnesota.

At the end of the second week of the organization campaign, eight Lyon county elevators had signed contracts to market through the national farmers' co-operative selling corporation, together with two Watonwan county elevators, and one each in Wright and Kittson counties.

"It's coming fine," J. S. Jones, organization director of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, and manager of the U. S. Grain Growers' membership drive in Minnesota, reported to officers of the national corporation.

More Auditors Are Needed For Income Tax Division

The United States Civil Service commission states that the Income Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue will appoint several hundred additional auditors and revenue agents or inspectors as soon as the commission can supply the eligibles, for auditing work in the central office in Washington and inspection work throughout the country. It is stated that the Bureau of Internal Revenue finds it necessary to greatly augment its present force in order to bring its inspection and auditing work up to date and keep it current. The bureau recognizes the importance to business interests of clearing away work in arrears.

The Civil Service commission has announced an examination to be held throughout the United States on Dec. 14 to fill these positions. The entrance salaries offered range from $1800 to $3000 a year. Advancement will depend upon the record of the employe.

Alcohol Solution is Best For Autmobile Radiators

With the advent of cold weather it is necessary to give some thought to the question of anti-freezing solutions for the radiator and cooling system of the tractor and automobile.

"The solvent action of kerosene on rubber and its higher boiling point make it objectionable for use in the cooling system," says J. L. Larson of the division of agricultural engineering, University Farm. "Calcium chloride compounds are equally objectionable because they exert a greater corrosive action than water on the engine jacket and solder in the radiatdr."

"The corrosive action of alcohol solution is not greater than that of water alone, thus making it the most desirable anti-freezing solution. The approximate point at which alcohol solutions freeze are: 20 per cent solution, 15 degrees above zero; 30 per cent solution, 8 degrees below zero; 50 per cent solution, 15 degrees below zero. Because of evaporation, this solution will become weak and ineffective unless more alcohol is added from time to time."

May Divide Cass County; Decide at Next Election

An election will be held in Cass county next November at the general state election, when the voters of the county will decide whether the county shall be divided into two counties. If the proposal carries, the southern part of the present Cass county will be known as Clover county and Pine River will be the county seat. Walker at present is the county seat of Cass county and would continue to be the county seat of the remaining Cass county.

This election was authorized last week by permission of Gov. Preus. A petition signed by 1,800 voters of the county asked for the election. The law requires that the governor order an election on petition of 25 per cent of the voters at the latest election, in this case requiring 1,260 signers.

The petition names the persons who would be the new county commissioners of the proposed county. The county board then would select the county officials to act until the next general election.

NORTHWEST ROADS ANNOUNCE PAY CUT

Mechanics and Car Men in This City Interested in Notice Issued Last Week.

Railroads of the northwest have given notice of a wage reduction to organizations of their employes, it is announced. If the reductions are accepted by the employes they will become effective automatically, but if they are rejected, appeal can be made to the railway labor board which, in that event, will fix a date for hearing. Meanwhile, no reductions can be put in force. Several of the railroads made no specific proposals for reductions, while two at least have stated definite proposed reductions.

R. H. Henning, chairman of the federated shopcrafts for all the northwest roads, said the letters from the Soo and Great Northern specify the amount of reductions. The amount is the same in both proposals.

The cut on mechanics is from 77 to 67½ cents an hour. Previous to the July 1, 1920, cut of the United States railway labor board the wages were 85 cents an hour. On helpers, the proposed reduction is to 40 cents an hour. It is now 54 cents and hour and before July 1, 1920, was 62 cents. The freight car workers, it is proposed, will get 50 cents, which is a 22 cent cut from the present scale. Previous to July 1, 1920, these men were paid 80 cents an hour.

Mr. Henning said this new cut would put wages back to where they were early in 1919. He said that at the same time the shop craftsmen will confer with the railroads on this proposal, the railroads must confer with them on their own proposal made Monday throughout the country to put wages back to a scale 5 cents higher than in effect early in 1920.

More than 100 men employed in the roundhouse and on the rip tracks in Thief River Falls will be affected by the decision.

Laird to Move.

Announcement is made this week of the removal the last part of this month of the Laird Specialty Shop from its present location on East Third street to the Giller building on LaBree avenue, on account of the leasing of the present quarters to Mr. Shanahan for a grocery store as mentioned elsewhere in this issue. This will give Mr. Laird one of the best locations in the city and permit of a much better arrangement and display of his rapidly increasing stock of merchandise.

Special sales are being offered by Mr. Laird in his ad. in this issue and bargain hunters will do well to patronize the Laird Specialty Shop between now and Christmas.

$15,000 Damage Caused by Fire at Warren Tuesday

A loss of about $15,000 was caused by a fire at Warren early Tuesday morning when a building owned by H. L. Golden was almost completely burned. Roy E. Hooper, jeweler, had his stock damaged to the extent of $9,000; E. L. Tornell, furniture, $2,500 loss, and Golden's loss on the building was $3,000, with only $400 insurance. The occupants of the building were fairly well insured, thus cutting their losses materially.

Helpful Hints to Patrons on Rural Mail Routes

(Written by Charles H. Bunnson, Rural Carrier, Mansfield, Ohio.)

In my 16 years' experience as a rural carrier, I have discovered many ways by which the farmers living on the various routes in this country can help their carriers and thereby make things easier for them as they make their daily rounds, so that I will pass them on to the rest of the boys and they, in turn, can put the farmers next, and both will be mutually benefited thereby.

Hint No. 1—When you have a letter already stamped, which you desire to mail, do not fail to put it in the extreme back end of the mail box as it not only looks more artistic but it is so convenient for the mail carrier to take his blankets off and put one foot on the buggy step to reach in and get the letter; it varies the monotony of the day for him and tends to give him that perfect disposition and love for his fellow-men that we are all striving for. Be sure to pick out the most stormy days as it is so much more effective at those times.

Hint No. 2—When you have several letters to mail and no stamps, get yourself six pennies; put one letter in the back of the box, the second one in the middle, and the third tight up against the side; now back up a few feet and throw the pennies in the box. This is not only good exercise, but is fast becoming one of the favorite sports in the rural districts.

Hint No. 3—This is just a variation of Hint No. 2. Put in one letter and on the top of it place two pennies, then another and two pennies, then the third letter and two pennies, arranging them in a straight pile. This is a great help to the carrier, as most carriers haven't brains enough to know how much it takes to mail a letter and he feels so relieved to have it all figured out for him.

Hint No. 4—When you are mailing two letters and have just one stamp and one of the letters is to forward on the route that day, be sure to put the stamp on the letter that does not go forward on the route that day. This gives the carrier a chance to take off his gloves, unbutton his overcoat and get out a stamp. It is wonderful what you can do for him in this respect if you only try.

Hint No. 5—When mailing a money order, for a dollar or so, be sure to have nothing less than a twenty-dollar bill to have changed, or better still, give it to him in pennies and nickels. It makes such good ballast for his buggy and increases his respect for your intelligence.

Hint No. 6—When purchasing stamps, never buy over a dime's worth at one time, as you may overbuy and they might not be good the next week, and there is no use getting reckless with your money and buying a whole dollar's worth at one time.

Hint No. 7—When you meet your carrier on the road, stop him and ask if there is any mail for you. After he gets it all out of the sack, just tell him to take it on to the box. Never omit this, especially on bad days, as it is one of his favorite pastimes, and it requires such a little effort on your part to please him.

Hint No. 8—On days when the roads are a glare of ice, and his horse is skating all over the surrounding territory, be sure to ask him if it is slippery, as you do not want to go home under any false impressions concerning this matter, for the poor fish may be teaching his nag a new stroke in fancy [illegible], and you must keep well informed on these matters.

Hint No. 9—On rough days when he comes down the road dodging jabs in the ribs and leads to the head from his buggy top, be sure to ask him if the roads are rough, for he may be just going over his last boxing lesson and you might get some good pointers.

Hint No. 10—When placing three or more boxes at a corner place them at least three feet apart and have one post lower than the next. This keeps him from having things too convenient and making them all at one stop.

Hint No. 11—Some day when it is not fit for a dog to be out, be sure to ask him the question that is sure to please: "Are you earning your money today?" Then get your mail, go to the house and call it a day, as the carrier's respect for you has increased a hundred-fold and you have gained a friend.

There are many interesting things you can do to help him as he makes his daily rounds, but I think that I have mentioned the most important of them.

Too Few Applicants.

The Civil Service commission invites special attention to the fact that in examinations held recently in Thief River Falls and other cities throughout the United States for do-[illegible] teachers, Indian service, for apprentice fish culturists, bureau of fisheries, and for telegraph [illegible], departmental and field services, applicants were not secured in the number desired, and that these examinations will again be held on Dec. 7.

Persons interested in these or other examinations should apply to the secretary of the Civil Service board at the local post office for detailed information and application blanks.

ROAD TO LAKES PROJECT GIVEN ADDED IMPETUS

Beltrami County Commissioners Agree to Have Highway Designated State Project.

Claimed That State Commission is Favorably Disposed Toward Early Building.

Committee Appointed to Lay Matter Before Chairman Babcock Soon.

Developments of the past week have made the outlook for a road from Thief River Falls to the Red lakes particularly bright. If plans now under way are carried out successfully the road will be made a federal project and actual work started in the spring.

One of the first steps to be taken in bringing about the desired result was securing the co-operation of Beltrami county, through which the greater part of the road will run, and to this end a committee composed of Mayor John Bratrud, Daniel Shaw, J. S. Arneson and L. R. Johnston went to Bemidji to lay the matter before the board of county commissioners on Monday. They met with a most cordial reception, members of the Civic and Commerce association doing everything in their power to see that their mission proved a success.

After having talked the matter over with a number of prominent Bemidji men, the subject was presented to the commissioners. The steps thus far taken in the matter were explained and the advantage accruing to Beltrami county through the construction of such road pointed out, as was particularly the value of such highway to the people residing in the entire Red River valley. The board without hesitation agreed to request that the road be made a state highway at once, thus bringing its construction under state and federal supervision.

Enthusiastic Support.

A meeting of business men was called yesterday afternoon in the Commercial club rooms for the purpose of discussing the matter and devising ways and means for meeting the expenses incident to the preliminary work. The attendance was unusually large and every man present was enthusiastic in support of the project. Mr. Arneson acted as chairman of the meeting and after the delegates sent to Bemidji had reported on the result of their mission, it was unanimously voted to send them to St. Paul as soon as possible to take the matter up with Chairman Babcock and officers of the state highway department. Assurances have been received that the project will meet with approval at the hands of the commissioner and that he is very favorably disposed toward beginning the work at once. Representatives from other cities in the valley, particularly Warren, Argyle, Stephen and Red Lake Falls, may be invited to accompany the Thief River Falls delegation for the purpose of urging an early decision on Mr. Babcock and also to prove that there is a widespread demand for the highway.

It is known that engineers of the state highway department are now working in this neighborhood and one of the aims of the committee will be an attempt to have the route surveyed during the winter in order that work may be begun in the spring.

Attends St. Louis Convention.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich left the first of the week for St. Louis, where he will attend the annual convention of the Western Association of Surgeons. On his return trip he will stop at Mankato, where the Southern Minnesota Medical association will be in session. He also intends to stop for a short time at Rochester.

REGIONAL WELFARE CONFERENCE OPENS SESSIONS THURSDAY

Men and Women Prominent in State and District Work Will Deliver Addresses.

The first regional conference of child welfare boards of northwestern Minnesota counties will open in this city Thursday morning, Dec. 15, with Rev. A. T. Tollevs of Warren presiding over the session. Other speakers at this time will be William Hodgson, state director of children's bureau; Mrs. Mildred D. Mudgett, department of sociology, University of Minnesota; and Miss Loretta Newman, social worker, Marshall county. At the conclusion of this speaking program there will be ten minute talks, Miss Lucile Quinlan, children's bureau, leading the discussions, followed by talks by Mrs. L. G. Larsen of Thief River Falls, and Mrs. G. M. Stebbins of Roseau county.

The delegates will have lunch with the Commercial club. Mr. Hodgson will deliver an address.

At the afternoon session, beginning at 2 o'clock, L. E. Healy of the child welfare board, Red Lake county, will preside. The following will speak: Theo. Quale, county attorney, Pennington county, and George Baker, judge of probate, Kittson county. Mrs. Stebbins will open the ten-minute talks to follow these adresses. Other speakers at the afternoon session include Oscar J. Peterson, chairman board of county commissioners, Pennington county; I. T. Simley, superintendent of schools, Thief River Falls; Miss Irba E. Poullot, superintendent of schools, Red Lake county; P. G. Wold, child welfare board, Pennington county; David Johnson, county superintendent, Marshall county. A discussion will follow, after which there will be a conference dinner served at the Hotel Evelyn.

The evening session will be presided over by Mrs. J. M. Bishop, chairman Pennington county child welfare board. Following community singing led by Miss Maude L. Johnson the address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor John Bratrud. Miss Caroline Crosby of the state board of control, Mr. Hodgson and Rev. Tollevs will be other speakers at this session.

BURGLARS CHOOSE CHRISTMAS GOODS IN ROBBING STORE

Small But Valuable Articles Are Stolen From Stebbins' Place Saturday Night.

The jewelery store of F. J. Stebbins was burglarized on Saturday night, the thieves getting away with a quantity of gold and silver goods, ivory sets and fountain pens. The exact value of the property stolen can not be given by Mr. Stebbins, who says he continues to miss something all the time. He states, however, that his loss is not less than $200.

The burglers entered the place by way of the back window after having unsuccessfully attempted to force the door open. Marks showed they had tried to break the lock with a heavy instrument of some kind and they must have made considerable noise while thus engaged. Frustrated at this point they next turned their attention to the window. Besides a storm sash, this was protected by iron bars. These were pried apart by the robbers after the glass in both windows had been broken. The opening thus gained could not have been more than ten inches wide, but it was sufficient to allow at least one of the robbers to enter. This leads the police to believe that it may have been the work of boys. Tracks in the snow, however, were of a size indicating men of considerable bulk. These tracks led for two blocks northward along the alley, where they were lost.

Besides the articles stolen from the counters and shelves, about five dollars in change and $2 worth of two-cent stampes were taken from the till.

The robery must have been committed at a time when there was no travel along the street as the night light was on and anything transpiring in the store could have been plainly seen from the outside.

Mrs. Payne Continues as Goodridge Postmistress

Mrs. Jay Payne has been appointed postmistress at Goodridge by President Harding upon the recommendation of Congressman Steenerson, thus continuing to serve in a capacity she has most acceptably filled since 1914. At the time of her appointment by President Roosevelt no one wanted the post, which was then a fourth-class office, the postmaster being paid by cancellations. No opposition developing, Mrs. Payne continued to handle the mail through both the Wilson administrations. Last year the office was promited to third class and now pays $1,200 a year. It is reported that Mrs. Payne's petition for reappointment to the place contained the names of 80 per cent of the patrons.

M. O. Sortedahl, real estate man, has been appointed postmaster at Red Lake Falls, succeeding E. L. Richert. Mr. Sortedahl was a member of the state legislature from this district during the 1918-19 term.

Masons Elect Officers.

At the last meeting of Northern Lodge No. 236, A. F. & A. M., the annual election of officers was held, the following being chosen: Ray Johnson, W. M.; F. F. Haynes, S. W.; Oscar Paulson, J. W.; Andrew Bottolson, secretary; C. L. Hansen, treasurer; trustees—O. L. Ihle, three years; Ed. Lee, two years, B. Dan Bjorkman, one year. The date of installation has not been definitely decided upon.

One-Seventh of Farms in County Tenant Operated

According to a special bulletin sent out by the Agricultural Extension division of the University of Minnesota, 25 per cent of the farms of the state are occupied by tenants. Pennington county has 14 per cent of its farms tilled by others than the owner, while the percentage in Red Lake county is 22. Tenant farmer percentages in other neighboring counties are as follows: Polk, 26; Marshall, 18; Clearwater, 7; Kittson, 18; Roseau, 9; Mahnomen, 19; Norman, 31. Rock county has the largest number of tenant farmers—59 per cent, followed by Nobles and Pipestone with 54 per cent each.

600 ENTRIES IN BEST POULTRY SHOW YET HELD

Facilities Taxed to Care For Large Number of Birds at Fifth Exhibition.

Attendance is Fair First Two Days But Display Merits Greater Interest.

"Farmer Class" Birds Get Much Attention and Receive Excellent Scores.

The fifth annual exhibit of the Pennington County Poultry association, which closes tomorrow evening, has been the most successful in the history of the organization. There are about 600 entries altogether, 500 of these being in the chicken division. The attendance during the first two days was not as great as it should have been and by no means measured up to the merits of the show. It is expected there will be a big improvement in this respect during the last two days as the last of the week is always favored by farmers for coming to town.

There is a larger number of entries than ever before and every available coop is occupied. If there were more exhibits, special provisions would have to be made for taking care of them. This means that more coops will have to be supplied for next year's show in spite of the fact that when the new wire coops were bought by the association it was figured that the demand for years to come had been met.

A Wonderful Showing.

Scoring was begun yesterday afternoon, W. E. Stanchfield being the judge. Oscar Anderson of St. Hilaire won the silver cup presented by H. L. Schuster for the best White Leghorn cockerol exhibited. Outside of this one entry the results are not available for publication at this time, the managers desiring to check up carefully on the figures before giving them out for publication.

The show is the best ever held in the county by long odds, the quality of the stock exhibited being such as to invite comparison with any shown in the state. Besides the entries of the Pennington county poultry fanciers, there are a fair number from Crookston, Red Lake Falls and Plummer. Outside birds are particularly noticeable in the White Leghorn class. Cocks and cockerels of this variety are scoring 93 and 94 points, which is an excellent showing.

Heavy Birds Favorites.

A particularly strong showing is made in the heavier birds, Plymouth Rocks of various strains being in the majority. Among the layers White Leghorns are strong favorites.

Anyone who has not attended this show should do so before the birds are taken away. Generally as soon as the scoring is completed exhibitors are in a hurry to get their stock back home, as prolonged retention amid strange surroundings is not considered as particularly beneficial.

One of the surprises of the show is the high scoring given what is known as the "farmer birds." This is general utility stock not specially bred for show purposes and laying no particular claim to pure breeding. Some really excellent specimens are on display and the division is receiving a great deal of attention.

Marshall Commissioners Turn Down Farm Bureau

J. W. Taylor, until recently one of the county agents for Marshall county with headquarters at Grygla, was in the city the first of the week on business. He has been appointed county agent for Roseau county, succeeding G. C. Edwards, and will assume his new office on Jan. 10. The Marshall county commissioners failed to make an appropriation for covering the cost of the county agent's office and it will be impossible for the farm bureau to meet the expense of two agents out of its own funds. Mr. Taylor was popular with the people he served and his office was proving of much benefit to the farmers in the northeastern part of the county.

Veteran Fire Fighter is Again Department Head

Paul Midderigh, chief of the Thief River Falls fire department for the past 11 years and a member of the organization since the first fire-fighting equipment arrived in the city more than a quarter century ago, has been re-elected to the same position for another year. Other officers elected were as follows: Assistant chief, William Warner; second assistant, Severt Egenes; third assistant, H. L. Schuster; secretary, Ed. Jaranson; treasurer, George Curran.

Reports submitted showed that the city has been very fortunate during the past year in the matter of fires, there having been comparatively few calls and but slight damage.

The new equipment for the firemen, consisting of boots, coats and socks, is expected to arrive this week. It was decided to give the annual dance this year in the shape of a hard-time party on the evening of Friday, Dec. 16.

Fire Department Giving Hard Time Dance Dec. 16

The Thief River Falls Fire department will give a hard time dance at the auditorium on Friday evening, Dec. 16. Arrangements are being made for the biggest time of the season. All dancers must be attired in hard time clothes.

The fire department will serve free mulligan to all present and there will be other novel features connected with the party. The admission fee has been placed at 75 cents per couple with a charge of 10 cents for spectators. Snyder's five-piece orchestra will furnish the music. The dancing will be mixed, plenty of the old-style steps being interspersed for those who prefer them.

The firemen's dances are always well attended and the outlook this year is for a record crowd because of the novel features decided upon as extra attractions. The general public is invited, the only requirement being that hard time clothes be worn.

COST OF JUDICIAL DITCH NO. 30 WILL BE ABOUT $100000

Pennington County's Share Is Placed at $67,055 and Involves Five Townships.

Division of costs for judicial ditch No. 30 was made by County Auditor T. P. Anderson of Pennington county, Auditor August Lundgren of Marshall county, and Engineer Irving Quist at Warren on Monday. The assessed benefits for Marshall county total $62,588, and those for Pennington $67,065. The total cost of the ditch was placed at $97,224.75, of which amount Pennington county pays 51.72 per cent, or $50,284.64, and Marshall county 48.28 per cent, or $46,940.11. The assessments by townships in Pennington county are as follows: North, $2,150; Silverton, $16,410; Cloverleaf, $14,775; Goodridge, $17,610; Reiner, $16,610; village of Goodridge, $500. Following is the assessment for the Marshall county townships: Agder, $11,938; Grand Plain, $19,145; Moylan, $16,670; Esplee, $14,840.

The contract for the construction of this ditch has been let to the Union Drainage Company of Crookston, and work will begin as early as possible in the spring.

The new judicial ditch is intended as an outlet for ditches No. 18 and 20 and has been in litigation during the past two years. It provides for the cintinuation of ditch No. 18 to the Thief River instead of emptying into No. 20 as is now the case. The later ditch is unable to take care of the water drained into it in the spring or after a heavy rain and it is expected that the proposed improvement will prevent costly overflows in the future. The matter has been before the courts for about three years, the project being bitterly opposed by some of the land owners against whom the cost will be assessed.

FREE CONCERT BY BAND, AUDITORIUM SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Song By Quartette and Novelty Numbers Will Add Interest to Fine Program.

The first winter concert by the Thief River Falls Municipal band will be given under the leadership of H. S. Snyder at the auditorium on Sunday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock. The program decided upon is one of the most interesting of its kind ever presented to an audience in this city. The band selections have been chosen with a view to pleasing every taste in music and have been rehearsed to such a point that excellent renditions can safely be promised. Features of particular interest will be the instrumental quartet by members of the Wengler family and singing by the quartet.

There is no charge for admission and a general invitation to the public is extended. This will be the first concert of its kind for a long time and its reception will to a large extent decide the bands future course. There is much hard work connected with getting an organization drilled to a point where it will make a showing of sufficient merit to warrant a concert and unless the public indicates its appreciation of the fact by turning out there is but little satisfaction in making the effort. Following is the program:

FITTING WINDUP OF SIX MONTHS' TRADING DRIVE

W. J. LaBree Presented With Ford Car as Last Act of Remarkable Campaign.

Success of Novel Venture in Advertising Greater Than Expected By Anyone.

Result Shows What Can Be Accomplished By Co-operation and Determined Effort.

Sheriff W. J. LaBree is the owner of a brand new Ford car, presented to him by the Merchants association as a windup to bargain week on Saturday afternoon. Fourteen names were taken from a box by two little girls, Ethel Carlson and Sina Johnson, before the one designating the owner of the automobile was extracted. Alex Welch, city, and A. S. Olson, Route 1, were both active contenders, their names appearing twice during the proceedings but failing in each case to bring forth anything but blanks as counterparts. The others whose names were called before disposition of the machine was finally made were: Mrs. O. Erickson, K. O. Loyland, Lillian Tryor, Denis Conely, Charles Ptacek, Rita Fiterman, Esther M. Peachey, Louis Aaseby, Mrs. A. H. Akre and Mrs. A. N. Lian.

Week a Great Success.

The purchase of a dollar's worth of goods at the store of one of the merchants donating the car made one a potential owner. The chances were even and there is no criticism heard of the manner in which the proceedings were conducted.

The week was a great success from a merchandising point of view and all participants are satisfied with the business transacted. It provided a fitting close to the most remarkable selling campaign ever launched by the merchants of any community in this state. The last Wednesday in each month for six months had been set aside as bargain day by the merchants and the fact widely advertised. The aim was to make Thief River Falls known as a trading center throughout the entire northwestern part of the state and no expense was spared to achieve this purpose. The results justified the rather extraordinary outlay in that it brought the city and its stores to the attention of many hundreds who otherwise might never have realized the advantages possessed by the city.

Not the Best Season.

The result of the last two market days particularly is remarkable in view of the lateness of the season. Had the plan been launched during the summer months when auto travel is more comfortable and convenient there is no doubt but that the success of the enterprise would have been much greater. The merchants are satisfied, however, and the public has even greater reason to be pleased. Buyers have been given an opportunity to supply their needs at lower prices than those prevailing at any other point in the state and the city has received a great deal of excellent advertising.

The result is a lesson in the value of co-operation and shows what can be done even under unfavorable circumstances when all merchants of a town pull together.

Explains Loan Plan of War Finance Corporation

A considerable number of northwestern Minnesota bankers were in session in this city on Friday to hear the plans of the war finance committee explained with reference to making loans to the banks in agricultural districts. G. H. Richards, president of the Minnesota Bankers association, was present, for the purpose of giving advice as to the methods to be employed in filling out blanks, etc., when making application for any part of the money allotted to Minnesota by the corporation.

Representing District at Meeting of Dairymen

The northern part of the valley will be well represented at the annual meeting of the Red Rive Valley Dairymen's association which is holding its sessions at Detroit this week. Harold Olson, buttermaker at the local creamery, left yesterday for the convention, as did N. E. Wold secretary, and W. H. Lindahl, buttermaker, Roseau; Charles Horien and S. Lovied, buttermakers at Strathcona and Middle River respectively, and C. B. Goodridch, secretary for the Greenbush creamery.

Dinner Party in Honor of Dr. Crandall Last Eevening

About 75 friends and neighbors gathered at the Evelyn hotel on Wednesday evening for the purpose of honoring Dr. C. R. Crandall, who expects to leave in a short time to make his future home in the West. Supper was served at 7:30. H. O. Chommie officiated as toastmaster, attending to the job in a manner [illegible]. Toasts were responded to by Mayor Bratrud, L. R. Johnston, W. B. Fuller, G. Howard Smith and E. O. Mogensen. The speakers were unanimously of the opinion that the doctor did not seriously intend leaving Thief River Falls, but in case he should make any such serious blunder, that he would soon be back among the people who know and appreciate him. Mr. Fuller, on behalf of the Masonic lodge, in which Dr. Crandall has been an active worker since its institution in this city, presented him with a ring carrying the emblem of the order. Mayor Bratrud, on behalf of the Elks, gave him as a memento of his long association with the members a beautiful cigarette holder. Both speakers referred to the guest of honor as a man of the highest worth and a citizen of the most valued kind. Dr. Crandall thanked the donors, those present and the citizens of Thief River Falls generally for the excellent treatment he had at all times received at their hands. He did not promise to come back to the city, but left it to be inferred that in case he did not find things as he expected, such proceeding on his part was easily within the possibilities.

FAIR ASSOCIATION IS REIMBURSED FOR PREMIUM OUTLAYS

Receives $1,564, Which is 92 Per Cent of Entire Amount Paid Out For Awards.

Minnesota's annual Christmas gift to the county agricultural societies of the state went forward this week when R. P. Chase, state auditor, officiating as Santa Claus, completed the mailing of checks to the amount of $140,832.97, state aid to the societies.

This aid to the agricultural associations of the state is directed by law and is based on the premiums paid by the various societies, the maximum basis of pro-rating reimbursement to any one society being $1700. The largest amount received by any society in the state is $1,564. The 1921 legislature appropriated $140,000 for this purpose and this, with the balance available, was divided pro-rata at the rate of 92 cents on the dollar.

The Pennington County Agricultural society is reimbursed to the extent of $1,564, having reported total premiums paid amounting to $1,927.

The appropriation for aid to the agricultural societies made by the last legislature is the largest since the law was enacted and its encouraging effect is found in the large amount of premiums paid to exhibitors this year. The cash outlay for [illegible]

SUBMIT REPORT OF CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON

Red Lake Conservancy Board Members Advised of Results By Chairman Selvig.

Value of Project to Agricultural Lands of District Particularly Emphasized.

Plan Found Feasible and Would Benefit Enterprise of All Kinds Along Stream.

The following memorandum of the recent conference held at Washington between representatives of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy board and department officials, submitted to members of the board by Chairman G. C. Selvig, Crookston, has been secured from Ed A. Aubol, Pennington county's representative on that body. The report is a comprehensive account of the proceedings at the conference and is published in full in The Times because of its great interest to the people of this section. The conference took place on Nov. 21 to 23:

"As the next meeting of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy Board will not be called until later in the month to consider the report of the viewers on the Clearwater river, I have prepared the following memorandum of the conference held in Washington with officials of the Interior department for the information of the board and staff.

"There were present at the conference, E. V. Willard, state commissioner of drainage and water; Geo. W. Walker, chief engineer, and Adolph F. Meyer, consulting engineer of the district, and the president of the board; Commissioner of Indian Affairs C. H. Burke; the assistant commissioner, Mr. Merritt; the chief of the drainage office, Mr. Reed and his assistant, representing the Interior Department. Mr. Henderson as attorney for the Red Lake Indians, Hon. Halvor Steenerson and Hon. Harold Knutson, in whose districts the land included in the Red Lake project lies, were present and gave valuable suggestions.

SAVING AMERICA OUR FIRST DUTY SAYS PRESIDENT

Getting Country Back on Sound Basis Best Plan For Helping Rest of World.

Disclaims Any Intention on Our Part to Attempt Saving of Other Nations.

Makes Recommendations as to Needed Legislation in Message to Congress.

President Harding on Tuesday proposed to congress a definite and comprehensive program for restoring the United States to normalcy.

"Speeding up the plans to bring America again on a sound basis is America's best contribution to world restoration," the president said. With representatives of all the world's powers here, Harding served notice that the United States has no intention of trying to save other nations. They must save themselves, he said.

America will help unflinchingly "when they turn to heroic remedies for the menacing conditons under which they are struggling." No American policies alone will cure the world's ills, Harding said. By saving ourselves we will help the rest of the world save itself, he declared.

Hope Centered Here.

The president let it be clearly understood that he believed a high tariff necessary for this country.

"It would be better to remain on firm ground, strive for ample employment and a high standard of wages at home and point the way to balanced budgets as the remedy to cure disaster."

Harding started speaking at 12:23 after receiving a tremendous ovation. The arms conference was referred to only briefly by the president.

"It is easy to believe a world hope is centered in the capital city," he said. "A most gratifying world accomplishment is not improbable."

Outstanding in the president's recommendations toward bringing this country back to normalcy were:

Creation of a virtual industrial court to have judicial power to deal with labor disputes affecting public interests.

Prompt enactment of the tariff bill and a provision for the fixing of various duties by presidential order.

Revision of the shipping act to be based on recommendations shortly to be made.

Encouragement of co-operative marketing to aid farmers.

A constitutional amendment to prevent the issuance of unnecessary securities.

Speeding up of reclamation projects to aid ex-soldiers and to provide more homes.

Some revision of the tax bill recently passed.

Asks Debt Refunding Bill.

The president was believed to have been taking a direct slap at the several blocks, such as the agricultural group recently formed in congress, when he discussed our system of government.

Asking for enactment of the allied debt refunding bill, President Harding promised that if the requested authority is granted he would follow no policy conflicting with the proposal congress had in granting the loans.

FINE TRIBUTE TO HONORED DEAD OF ELK BROTHERHOOD

Frank X. Gravel of Duluth Is Speaker at Lodge of Sorrow Sunday Afternoon.

The memorial services of Thief River Falls lodge of Elks on Sunday afternoon were attended by a fair sized audience which gathered in the lodge room to witness the most impressive observance of the occasion ever held in Thief River Falls. The program was appropriate and beautiful in every detail and the address of Frank X. Gravel of Duluth, one of the most eloquent and inspiring ever heard in this city.

The instrumental music was furnished by Snyder's orchestra and was a highly apprecited feature of the afternoon's proceedings. A quartette composed of Miss Maude L. Johnson, Mrs. Irma Mallory Fisher, Carl Sundahl and E. M. Bennes gave several selections in a manner that has brought forth much flattering comment. Solos by Mrs. Fisher and Mr. Sundahl added to the already enviable reputation of these artists, while the accompaniment of Miss Doris Halvorson on the piano was of a kind that aided materially in rounding out the excellent renditions.

Mr. Gravel began by saying that he could hardly be regarded as a stranger, having been a resident of this section for many years. It was just 36 years and nine months ago, he said, that he first visited Thief River Falls as a salesman. He recalled particularly that on that occasion he had called at the Langseth store. Little did he then imagine that on a Sunday afternoon in 1921 he would be asked to deliver a memorial address in a fine modern building on the identical spot occupied by the Langseth store on his first visit.

The speaker was in excellent voice and the fact of his speaking from manuscript did not detract from the impressiveness or beauty of his remarks. Taking as his theme the cardinal principles of the order—Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity—he devoted himself to their exemplification in turn, pointing out the aims of the organization and the duty of each member therof in a manner that made a deep impression on those present. His long service as a member, the high positions he has held within the order and the many opportunities he has had for observing the great work it is doing in the world lent authority to his remarks, while the fact that he was at one time a citizen of this section, having been the first exalted ruler of Crookston lodge, added an interest which might have been lacking in another speaker.

After being thanked for his presence and address by Exalted Ruler H. W. Protzeller, Mr. Gravel responded feelingly and expressed his appreciation of the honor of having been called upon to act as the principal speaker on such an important occasion.

At 6 o'clock a banquet was tendered Mr. Gravel at the Hotel Evelyn at which were present the officers of the lodge together with the past exalted rulers now in the city. Mr. Gravel, in the name of the lodge, was presented with a beautiful silver card case carrying the lodge embelms, Mr. Protzeller making the presentation address. After expressing his thanks, Mr. Gravel ended his visit by giving the brethren some timely advice as to their attitude toward humanity in general and toward one another in particular.

CREDIT LAW ASKED SALES TAX OPPOSED BY FARM BUREAUS

National Convention at Atlanta Makes Recommendations For Immediate Legislation.

Congress will be asked by 1,500,000 organized farmers to pass legislation revising the present credit laws of the United States, so as to guarantee adequate finanace for agriculture on 12 and 24 months' paper.

Together with this demand, the American Farm Bureau federation and its 47 state federations will present a demand that net income be recognized as the sole measure of ability to pay taxes, and that the bulk of all taxes be levied on that basis.

This is the report brought back by Minnesota's delegation which attended the national convention of the American Farm Bureau federation in Atlanta, Ga.

Another national farm bureau policy, defined by the convention, is summarized as follows in the report to the state federation:

"The measure of ability to pay taxes for the support of the national government is net income, and the bulk of the taxes should be levied and collected on that basis.

"The tax should be progressive; that is, the greater the income, the higher the rate should be.

"We are opposed to the issuing of all tax free securities, and request that congress submit a constitutional amendment to the several states to cure this defect in our tax system.

"We disapprove the repeal of the excess profits tax.

"We are opposed to the principle of a general sales tax, or any similar plan such as a general manufacturers tax."

Development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, restoration of pre-war powers to state railroad commissions, and a strong objection to permitting carriers to charge higher rates for short hauls than for long hauls were planks in a transportation platform submitted by the Minnesota delegates, and adopted.

The Minnesota platform demands the repeal or drastic modification of the Adamson law, and the repeal of parts of the Esch-Cummins act.

"We denounce the principle of guaranteeing income upon fixed valuations to the railroads of the United States," the platform says, "and ask the repeal of Section 15-A, Esch-Cummins act, which contains this feature.

"Since the Adamson law produces conditions in the conduct of the railroads which operate against the intertes of the public, we ask its repeal or modification as speedily as possible."

Predicts Potatoes Will Be Winner Next Season

J. G. Callahan, traveling freight agent for the Northern Pacific, expressed the opinion in Fargo last week that the Red River valley will raise more potatoes than wheat next year.

"There is going to be a tremendous acreage of potatoes in 1922," said Mr. Callahan. "I am convinced from what I have learned of the potato situation in extensive traveling over this section, and after coming into contact with the potato growers and shippers throughout this territory, that the potato acreage will be doubled in the Red River valley."

He said the Northern Pacific had shipped 6,200 carloads of potatoes from its territory, according to the last reports received, as compared with 3,800 carloads up to the same date last year.

NOT NECESSARILY SETTLED.

Two judges are to be elected in the Fourteenth judicial district next fall and already there is considerable speculation as to who at least one of the candidates will be. Judge Andrew Grindeland of Warren will without doubt seek re-election, but similar action on the part of Judge William Watts of Crookston is not so certain. At least this is the impression gained from press comments. Judge Watts is getting along in years and as his health is not the best he may decide that a rest is advisable. That he will do so seems to be taken for granted in some quarters, a successor having already been suggested.

Martin O'Brien, another Crookston man, is most often referred to in this connection, but there will doubtless be others. From the point of view of availability there is nothing to be said against Mr. O'Brien, but on the other hand there is no law stipulating that the next judge must hail from Crookston. There are other towns as well as other lawyers in the district and some of these are sure to be heard from.

A GREAT SHOW.

If you have not yet attended the exhibit of the Pennington County Poultry association, held this week at the auditorium, you have missed something really worth while. There are hundreds of chickens of different varieties, most of them aristocrats in their special divisions. There are turkeys of unbelievable size, while the ducks and geese would compare favorably with those of sections making a specialty of raising birds of this class.

The show is the greatest ever held in this city, which means that it will have no equal in the entire section. Not only are there more entries but the quality is noticeably finer than at any previous exhibit. Particularly is this true in the chicken division. Here nearly every practical variety, both native and foreign, may be found, and just how any judge is going to tell which is the best is a mystery to a person not an expert in such matters. There is coop after coop of the best egg-producing strains, but these by no means hold the center of the stage. The larger varieties which show to the best advantage after the cook has finished with them are there in abundance. It is doubtful if a finer display of Brahmas, Rocks, Orpingtons, Rhode Islands and Wyandottes can be found any place in the state, these breeds easily sharing the interest with the smaller birds whose claim to distinction consists principally of laying large quantities of eggs.

The exhibit is so astonishing in its completeness that it would be impossible for even a person not particularly interested in poultry raising to fail to become enthused.

And now someone is threatening to make a state senator out of Billy Noonan of the Baudette Region. The Sixty-second district will have to select a man to succeed Leonard Nord of International Falls, who died in St. Paul during the last session, and Noonan would fill the bill admirably. According to his own view of the matter he is disqualified because he does not live in Bemidji. Neither did Nord, for that matter, yet he made the grade without much trouble. Billy will probably be in St. Paul during the session anyway and he might as well have an official title. The north section would have an additional booster of the first magnitude.

OBSERVATIONS.

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

About time for you to think of doing a little Santa Clausing for some poor family this Christmas.

Financial experts say that business has turned the corner, but they don't say which corner.

When a lad's hand goes to his hip these days you don't know whether it's a sign of hostility or hospitality.

Cheer up. It's a hard winter that hasn't some soft spots in it.

Being mistaken for a deer is bad enough, but to be shot for a skunk, as a lad over in Ontario was recently, must be an awful thump to one's feelings.

You can't blame woodsmen, who are being paid from $16 to $22 a month, for doubting that there is a Santa Claus.

Objects to Ditch 30.

To the Editor of The Times:

I read the letter written by W. P. Jackson of Carmel, Minn. in regards to ditching matters in eastern Marshal and Beltrami counties and have seen nothing concerning these matters that so freely expresses my opinion, and, I believe, the opinion of the majority of the people of this section in these matters.

I have lived for eight years in Pennington county on a farm that adjoins the route of judicial ditch number 30 (extension of 18) and have not during that time seen any need of a drainage ditch here. Two years ago is the only time that we had any surplus water and then we were thankful that we had no drainage ditch. It was only the territories where they had ditches that were flooded.

It has come to the point where the annual ditch hearings have come to be regarded as a by-word or a joke from which no one is expected to derive any benefit except possibly the railroads and the hotel keepers not forgetting those who are being paid for their time there. And still people attend them. It may be very well to go but it would seem a useless spending of money and time for those who are not liberally supplied with either.

It is time that western Marshall county wake up to an understanding of the situation in its eastern part. Unless there is a halt made in the ditching operations there, that part of the country is facing financial ruin. The people will literally be forced from their homes thru an over burden of taxes.

It should also be remembered that a great deal of the land, supposed to be benefited by the ditches, is land where nobody could make a living, much less pay a heavy ditch tax. A great deal of it has been homesteaded and vacated and it can not be sold to anyone familiar with conditions there. It is possible that in time, when the forces of the elements have worn down the peat to a soil that it will be alright; but that will not be in this generation or the next.

I was born and raised on a farm in western Marshal county and I know that the eastern part of the county is working under great disadvantages unknown to the western part. Why burden the people there with unnecessary ditch taxes against their wishes? During the recent war some of us had to make big sacrifices. Many of us saw our sons and brothers march away, many of them never to return alive. They gave their lives, so we were told, in order to preserve the principles of democracy. It rests with us who are still here to see that those sacrifices were not made in vain. When the voice of the people has ceased to have any influence even in our courts, it is time that we begin to fight autocracy at home. When we go to the polls next fall it would be well for us all to remember the warning given by Washington when he refused the presidential office for a third term. Let us not only preach but practice the principles brought forth by a man whose honesty and statesmanship ability is unquestioned and who is in such large measure responsible for the existence of our country.

MRS. V. J. SWANSON.

Wants Government Guarantee.

Editor Times:

If congress has the power to act in defense of the people by passing and establishing laws, rules and regulations whereby justice may be attained through the establishment of right relationship between man and man, between state and state, and between nation and nation, on general principles, what is there to hinder them from exercising their power in behalf of the suffering people, in support of the food problem? Nothing whatsoever.

The bread question is no longer a sectional matter. It is today a national problem.

Bread is the staff of life and it is the one thing above all else that should receive first hand consideration by congress.

There is but one solution. Place the American producer in a position to produce, and then protect him in his efforts.

The farmer must know in the spring what his products should net him after harvest under normal conditions in order to successfully carry on farm operations. To think that farm activities will be able to restore themselves back to normal conditions is child reasoning, in view of the fact that thousands of farmers have already gone bankrupt and thousands more are ready to lay down. To continue under existing conditions will mean the death blow, not only to the producer, but to the entire country as well.

The question is, will congress permit this country to go entirely bankrupt by default, or will they awake to the fact that it is time for action? There are two ways open for them to come to the rescue of the people. The first way is to revive the wartime method by establishing set prices upon our products, namely, wheat, corn and cotton.

There could perhaps also be worked out a profit plan by establishing a set scale showing a justifiable profit to the producer over and above the cost of production, leaving each state to arrive at its actual cost of the finished product. The farmer could then add his profit to the cost in the same way and manner that the merchant adjusts the price upon his goods. In either event, no doubt the tariff wall would have to be adjusted accordingly.

This would be doing business upon business principles, and it would set our country back on a solid footing. Congress must act in this matter, and that at once, if we are to avoid the disastrous results that are bound to follow the present course of events.

W. A. SWANSON.

What Other Editors Think.

WHY?

Anoka Union: Now they say that Harry Lauder claims that short skirts and rolled-down stockings are a verification of his prophecy two years ago that the women would soon wear kilts. For goodness sake, we hope not.

NO TIME TO HOLD BACK.

Le Sueur Herald: This is no time to apply the brakes; let 'er go. There is road building to be done, and every man should have a job. And every man who wants to work should not wait for "higher wages" but grab what he can right now. If you have any building to do, do it now. It will help, keep things moving, and when things move there are no hard times.

DISREGARD THE ADVICE.

Waseca Herald: The amount of propaganda sent out weekly by government bureaus would indicate that the heads of the various departments have failed to read President Harding's statement regarding advertising. Here is what the president said: "Newspaper advertising is a commodity; when the general government requires it, as it often does, it should be paid for as other commodities are."

A LIBERAL EDUCATION.

Milan Standard: Gathering news items affords a liberal education in human nature. The reporter meets them all—the kind and the unkind, the courteous and the discourteous, the frank and the unaffected who are perfectly willing to tell what they know, and the snobbish and pretentious who do not want their names in the paper, but, if omitted, complain that the paper is no good. The reporter has learned his lesson when able to appreciate the former and smile indulgently at the weaknesses of the latter.

MERELY DRIFTING.

Winnebago City Enterprise: If we were to attempt to point out the one, outstanding error of the public school system as it is today, we should say that no effort is made to encourage the young men and women to take up some particular line of activity for their life's work.

As a usual thing, the man or woman who succeeds in life, early forms an aspiration to become a leader in some business or profession, and then bends every energy to attain that goal. Most of the young people today are wasting valuable time because they have no objective point in view.

Life, at the best, is short. The years are few. Competition is daily growing stronger and stronger. Those who would be crowned with success must be up and doing. You will never arrive anywhere by drifting. The sea of life is full of derelicts that have tried it. Young man, young woman, which way are you going?

PEPTOMIST VS. PESSIMIST.

Lake City Graphic-Republican: A city is made or broken by the kind of people that make up the population. If the people are peptomists and boosters, the city will surely prosper, while, on the other hand, if the people are pessimists and knockers, the city will get knocked in the head and will not amount to very much. Lake City is progressing because a majority of its citizens are peptomists and boosters for every good for the city. And we will continue to progress just so long as the peptomists and boosters predominate in number and spirit.

START SHOPPING NOW.

Bemidji Sentinel: Wise shoppers have already started looking after their Christmas purchases. This indicates a happier Christmas than generally. People who buy early, even though they only have the goods laid aside, do so in comfort, and they also get that which they want before it has been pawed over by those who wait until later on when stores are crowded, clerks are tired and the choicest of Christmas things already carried away or spoken for. Christmas stocks are not going to be any cheaper the day before Christmas than they are this week. So you can save nothing that way by waiting until the last minute. Clerks have more time to attend to your wants now than they will have later on. So you are sure of being suited. And then, when the tardy ones are sweating and fuming and working themselves into a nervous fit over what to give for Christmas you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you can sit back and comfortably escape all such worry. Sensible Christmas buyers are those who have already commenced to do their buying.

Don't dose children's colds
External, vaporizing treatment is better and saves upsetting their little stomachs.

There's a new way to treat spasmodic croup, sore throat, sore tonsils and other cold troubles. It's a salve that sends its healing vapors right into the nose, throat and lungs, and is absorbed thru the skin, too.

Not only does this treatment—Vicks VapoRub—save upsetting the children's stomachs with strong drugs, but you can let them have the needful fresh air day and night.

Mothers who have tried Vicks certainly seem to prefer this new method. Over 35 million jars have been used since January, 1919. Once tried, Vicks becomes a standby in the family medicine cabinet.

Vicks is used almost daily in homes where there are children—for colds, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, bites and itching skin troubles. Just as good for grown-ups, too.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

American Legion Corner

Lookie! Watch it! There it goes! Exclamations like these will soon be heard all over the U. S. A. For State Adjutant Baca of the American Legion of New Mexico has promised to send a genuine Mexican jumping bean to every American girl who will write him expressing willingness to correspond with one of the five thousand disabled veterans in New Mexico. Minnesota girls should address Adjutant Baca at Santa Fe, N. M. Every bean has been trained to jump through a loop or stand unhitched.

"Coming events cast their shadows before," is an old saying. Where is the pessimist who said the Gopher state wouldn't go over the top ahead of all other Legion departments in collecting and sending to National headquarters the dues of all its members for 1922? Cheer up, buddy, the coming year is going to see the enrollment of more Minnesota Legionaires than ever before. On Dec. 1, 1921, state and national headquarters were being swamped with the dues of thousands of Legionaires from all over the nation.

President Harding last week signed the following amendment to the law relative to taxation: "After January 1, 1922, no taxes shall be levied on admissions, all the proceeds of which inure exclusively to the benefit of any post of the American Legion or the Legion Auxiliary Unit thereof, if no part of the net earnings thereof inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual." This amendment was secured through efforts of the Legion National Legislative Committee at the request of thousands of Legion posts throughout the nation. It refers to the so-called "amusement admission tax."

Some of the Legion posts in Northern Minnesota cover a wide territory. Recently, when they learned that a Legion buddy lay sick and alone, members of Biwabik Post No. 160 made an 18-mile trip out into the country to visit him. Several hours were pleasantly spent discussing war serivce and Legion affairs with the sick comrade, who was pleased as punch to have his buddies around him again.

WE WELCOME COMPARISON

and are willing to demonstrate the vast difference in our MOHAWK and KAYSER GLOVE SILK HOSIERY with the ordinary kind that is being offered by merchants who well know that we have the best hosiery and which are not of an unknown make. In fact, they have built up a national reputation by their superior quality and service and extensive advertising through the leading magazines and trade journals of the country. They are being sold in the best high grade stores everywhere and we challenge these merchants by taking this means of extending an invitation to them to compare values. We will save them the discomfort of bringing over a pair, as we have those on our hosiery counter for the purpose of comparison, and those who have had the opportunity of comparing the two have purchased our hose—which is the best proof.

If you want a hose that fits the foot like a glove and with seams that are such that will give you comfort and service, COME HERE, but if you want a hose that fits like a sack and seams that are thick and uncomfortable, then buy the inferior nameless quality elsewhere.

RED CROSS HAS 62 NURSES IN MINNESOTA

Splendid Results Obtained Throughout State in Public Health Nursing.

WITH 63 Red Cross Public Health nurses promoting better living conditions in connection with the other activities of the 91 Chapters of the American Red Cross here in Minnesota, the importance of their work is of unusual interest.

The rural program has been found well adapted to this state, and many localities have been reached by this department of activity during the past year for the first time. Physical inspection of the children in the rural schools is one of the most important phases of this work. They are inspected for defective teeth, eyesight, and hearing. Weighing and measuring are a part of this health program, and frequently nutrition classes are organized to help undernourished children reach a normal development.

In nearly every county, clinics are held with the nurse co-operating with local physicians and dentists, or with specialists sent by the Minnesota Public Health association.

Classes in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick have an important place in the public health nursing program of the American Red Cross. Traveling instructors give these lessons, teaching the women the essentials of correctly coping with minor illnesses. They are also instructed how to assist physicians when a graduate nurse is not available. This work by no means takes the place of a physician's services. [illegible] Health nurses frequently conduct classes in Home Hygiene as well as classes in the schools, thereby extending their service beyond routine school inspection. During the past year, 3,010 women have passed the examinations and received certificates in Home Hygiene and care of the Sick.

Professional visits are made to many homes. This is an important factor in both rural and city nursing. In some sections there is but one physician to a county, and the services of the Red Cross nurse are a vital [illegible] in various emergencies which [illegible].

In both city and country communities the Red Cross has a clearly-defined program which may be adapted to local needs. The Progress Staff.

As The Progress staff continues its work of putting out our high school publication, we find it more and more difficult to successfully perform our duties. The success of last year's Progress was due, not to a more talented staff, but largely to the class in Journalism, which besides being instructed in newspaper work, actually did newspaper work, a large part of which was especially prepared for The Progress. This year we have no such course. The staff meets whenever the members can be gotten together, which is never more than once a week and often towards the end of the allotted time we have for preparing each issue rather than at the beginning as it should be in order that everything that should be taken by the school paper might be covered fully. As a result of the hasty gathering, much valuable news slips by, and we are never able to prepare properly the articles we should have.

Then, too, there is the lack of direct responsibility that features a class, where credit is given. All the work that has been done thus far this year has been done out of pure sense of pride and voluntary responsibilities. Each student's time and efforts can be profitably applied to his studies, where credit is given, and a good article for The Progress often represents material sacrifice in other pursuits. The members of the staff have the interest of The Progress at heart, and are eager to do all they can to further it; but it is asking almost too much that these spend a large part of their time on this, while other students are given credit for less work and no personal responsibility whatever. For the publication of the school paper throws a great deal of responsibility upon its editors. The paper represents the school to the public and to other schools with whom we exchange. We have a fine school, and to represent it as such, we must publish a paper of high quality.

The Progress should not be the work of the staff alone. Their work should be to organize and direct. As at present edited, The Progress has become the staff's paper to a large extent and not the high school's. If you, fellow students, wish The Progress to be a high school paper, why don't you get busy and make it so?

1922 In Name Only.

The Prowler! To the sweet girl graduate and her fellow classmates, a book, their masterpiece! The Prowler! To you, a treasure chest of golden memories of happy days spent in dear Alma Mater!

To whom do I speak? To you, dear Alumni. To you, former graduates of Lincoln High. Then it is to you that the Prowler of 1922 means the most—is a memory and all the sweeter for being so. Ah, yes!

"No," you say. "Those days mean nothing to me now." Then you have forgotten that graduation day when, with tears in your eyes through which the whole world looked dismal, you stood on the threshold of the future and vowed you'd never forget that Alma Mater, the scene of your carefree youth. Then, in the rush and turmoil of your busy hand-to-mouth existence you have forgotten to foster those tender memories.

"My memory has grown rusty. I cannot recall those days now." But the Prowler! The pictures, the jokes, the very atmosphere of it all will bring you back again to those school-days, and you will laugh and cry in turn. The Prowler! A youth restorer, without which your parlor table is incomplete!—L. C. '23.

Seniors Select Class Rings.

An important meeting of the Senior class was held on Friday, Dec. 2, at which the class ring was chosen. The committee presented five designs and the voters were not told the source of the ring. The ring was chosen with little difficulty. There was a close contest between two rings. The one chosen received only one vote more than the other.

The class ring is an appropriate as well as a very pretty design. It will cost between four and five dollars. The rings will be ordered as soon as possible and it is thought that each may have his or her ring before Christmas.—M. M. '22.

Junior Play.

The Junior Class play is to be given Dec. 20, the Tuesday before Christmas, at the auditorium. Is it to be a success? It must be a success, but it can be only with your support—so boost it.

The story of the play:

Ruth Moore, distracted by social demands and anxious to live a life of usefulness, contrives to obtain the position of secretary to Gilbert Lansing. Meanwhile an older sister invites Ruth and Juliet, her secretary, to visit her for the week-end and to meet a distinguished man and a millionaire—no names given. Ruth accepts.

At Sunshine Junction, a station where the local to Willowdene connects with the city train, Ruth and Juliet meet Gilbert Lansing and names the four enjoy an afternoon tea and are interrupted by Peggy Pat and Dwight, who are eloping and are pursued by an angry parent. Ruth and Lansing assume the role of bride and groom in an impulsive effort to help them out. The real culprits escape, leaving the rescuers forcibly detained in the station.

Identities are finally discovered, difficulties are straightened out, and Ruth becomes permanent secretary to the celebrity.

Friday Minus Music.

Were we not disappointed last Friday to come into the assembly room at the usual hour and not find Miss Johnson on the stage ready to lead us in singing? That chapel period means more to some than to others. It is a period when the students leave their studies in the classrooms and turn to music as uplifting as lessons, if not more so.

It is a period looked forward to, hence the disappointment Friday. The reason for this was that there are some who disregard the reasonable rules for Chapel and persist in whispering and causing disturbances between songs. It has thus rightly been deemed necessary to do without Chapel for a while. Let us hope that it will be resumed within a short while and that the disturbance will have disappeared.—L. D. '23.

To Lessen Accidents on Our Public Highways.

In building a public highway for safety and travel, the first thing to be considered is the right of way.

Right of ways should be laid out as straight as possible to avoid making dangerous curves and corners before the gravel or concrete is put on for the road bed. The right of way should not cross railroad tracks and should not run through parks or children's playgrounds, and should be 66 feet wide.

The four corners of a right of way or where two roads cross, should be cleared of all trees, shrubs or obstacles, so that drivers of cars can see an approaching car coming at least 40 rods away.

The road grade should be about 36 feet wide at the base, tapering gradually to the top for the road bed, which should not be less than 20 feet wide.

Where bridges are necessary, they should be at least 24 feet wide and should be able to support a weight of 20,000 pounds, and should have railings on the outside for safety.—Frances S. 8B

Season Tickets.

All branches of high school athletics need financial support in order to carry out a successful schedule. Next week will find a number of canvassers selling season tickets to all loyal high school students and to interested fans in town. Each and every member of the Thief River Falls high school is asked to purchase one of these tickets.

Let's all get back of the boys and show them we are with them.

The season's schedule is as follows:

Dec. 16—St. Hilaire at Thief River Falls.
Dec. 23—Alumni.
Jan. 13—Argyle at Argyle.
Jan. 20—Open.
Jan. 27—Warroad at Warroad.
Feb. 4—Argyle at Thief River Falls.
Feb. 10—Fosston at Fosston.
Feb. 17—Warroad at Thief River Falls.
Feb. 25—Open.
March 4—Crookston at Crookston.

Games are also being scheduled with Stephen, East Grand Forks, Roseau and Baudette.

High School Debate.

A week from tomorrow night Lincoln high school meets Roseau high to determine which of the two is the most fit to carry on the struggle for state debating honors. The victor will have to meet other schools in the same way for the same reason.

Debating is not a regular high school subject, which makes it all the harder to accomplish what must be accomplished if we are to win. For it requires work in the fullest sense of the word, not only in the actual preparation of the material but in delivery as well. The personnel of the team took up debating with a full knowledge of the efforts it would require and now, as the day on which the result is to be decided draws near, they are looking forward to that time with bulwarks of facts thrown up against any and every argument of the opposing team. The question is not one to arouse much interest, but those composing the team have delved into magazines and newspapers, books and pamphlets and reports of many kinds, in search of facts and figures to prove their contentions.

River Falls in a similar contest a year ago, and it is to be hoped the same verdict will be forthcoming next Friday. If we are destined to win, we will go on to further struggles with other teams.

Basketball Outlook Good.

Thirty men reported for the first basketball practice a week ago last Monday night. After a week's work in passing, catching, dribbling and basket shooting, Coach Stenhoff chose a squad of 20 men from which he will choose the 15 men who will compose the squad for the remainder of the season.

The prospects for a winning team are very gratifying and the fact that so many men are interested means that at no time during the coming season can any one individual feel sure that he has a position cinched.

Many of the aspirants toward basketball fame show a great deal of natural aptitude in the art of handling the ball, which is a valuable asset to a basketball man.

The veterans remaining from last year's squad are LaBree, center, Sorenson and Herron, guards, and Ralston, forward. The new material consists of Henry Mellum, Clifford Sorenson, A. Mellum, Doland, Shetler, Halvorson, M. Barzen, J. Sether, McGinn, H. Keene, H. Hanson, Bottelson, DeParcq, Vorlicky, Bischoff and Paulson. Many of these have had considerable experience as members of the various class teams in the past and keen competition is expected. Arnold, a new man at Thief River, shows much class and is being watched closely by all.

One Hundred Per Cent Highways.

Upon reading the daily or local newspaper one often finds in glaring headlines mention of accidents on our highways. As we search for the cause of the accident, invariably we may trace it to unsafe roads. Pioneers in days of long ago opened them to answer the frugal needs of their time. Though these were made long ago, we are in many cases using the same wagon roads for our main, heavily traveled thoroughfares. Can we wonder then that these roads, so hastily constructed by our forefathers, were not always without dangerous places and were not permanently built. No, but it should be the purpose of this generation to profit by the errors our predecessors made and to guard against even possible accident causing loss of life and property. This would necessitate mending the worn out tracks, changing the routes of the road to escape unsafe places, thereby removing the cause of the difficulties altogether.

Many times on roads which have long received a large amount of travel, the corners have become worn so that they slope directly toward the ditch. With a driver who is thoughtless or unacquainted with the road, such corners present trouble. The people should co-operate with local highway commissioners and ask them to gravel the sloping corners and other dangerous places, so that there will be no chance of anyone's injuring himself in traveling over that road. The graveling of the road should be five per cent.

Frequently we find a bridge where the approach is too narrow for safety. In such a case if two cars pass there is danger, especially if the drivers are not very cautious, for the car may slip and plunge down a steep embankment. This could be remedied by widening the approach by filling it in with sand and concrete. Very often a fence would help as it would warn unfamiliar motorists and also serve as a barrier in time of accident.

Again in a winding road through a woody or hilly country, when you cannot see the road ahead, signs should be placed to warn the driver that he must use his auto horn.

Railroad crossings often are not safe. Sometimes a building obstructs a clear view of the tracks on either side or it may obstruct some steep or uncared for approach. Here also signs should be installed though they are not usually adequate. If there is a great amount of traffic on the railroad, traffic guards should be stationed to signal when the way is open and safe.

The spirit of a community is measured largely by its efforts to safeguard the health, lives and property of its people. So if each one does all within his power he can soon accomplish much in awakening public interest for safer highways.

Let us have for our goal as a community, a one hundred per cent degree of safety in the highway system under our control.—Frances Conklin, 8B

An Unwelcome Fortune.

One morning in the early summer the messenger boy stopped in front of a small, vine-covered cottage on Gay street. Leaning his bicycle against the picket fence he strode up the path to the front door, whistling cheerily.

He knocked, and a small pink-and-white lady of about fifty years of age came to the door. She drew back in surprise when she saw who her visitor was. The lad handed her a telegram. With fingers that trembled a little, Mrs. Baker signed her name when he told her and then went back into the house. As she read the telegram she gave a little cry of surprise.

Soon another knock was heard. Mrs. Baker put the yellow slip into her apron pocket and again went to the door. This time it was one of her neighbors—good natured talkative Mrs. McCarty.

"Mrs. Baker, didn't I see the messenger boy stop here a while ago. And what news did he bring ye?"

"Come on in and I'll tell you about it," said Mrs. Baker.

In about fifteen or twenty minutes Mrs. McCarty went home. After dinner she put on her best bonnet and her best black shawl and started out for a round of visits. By nightfall all of the neighbors knew that a distant relative of Mrs. Baker's had died and left her quite a good-sized fortune.

During the next few days Mrs. Baker had a great many curious, kind hearted visitors. They overpowered her with suggestions as to how she should spend a part of her newly-acquired wealth. Mrs. Baker, who was very much disturbed by the sudden commotion the telegram had caused, held out for a time but finally weakly consented to buy several things that she really didn't want and that would look sadly out of place in the neat, cozy little home.

Inside of two weeks her parlor looked like a museum or a curiosity shop. A large player piano stood on one side of the room, several awkward, uncomfortable looking chairs were scattered about; and the remaining space was taken up with the various things which her friends had induced her to purchase.

Before long the neighbors heard that Mrs. Baker and Mrs. McCarty were going to make a visit to the city. They were gone a week. When they returned Mrs. Baker looked tired and pale, but Mrs. McCarty declared that she had had the time of her life and would like to have staid longer but for the fact that Mrs. Baker did not enjoy herself in the city.

One day not long after the return from the city Mrs. Baker went to her sister, who lived in a small neighboring town, for a visit. A few days after she left, a truck came to the house on Gay street and carried away all of her unwelcome purchases. Not knowing that this was done at Mrs. Bakers' command, the neighbors were astounded. But there was still another bigger surprise awaiting them, when Mrs. McCarty, who had received a letter from Mrs. Baker, announced that she had given her fortune to an old ladies' home and would be back in a short time to continue her peaceful life in her little vine covered cottage.—B. E. '22.

Attendance Shows Improvement.

During the second six weeks period there was an improvement of 3.1 per cent in attendance. For the first six weeks period the attendance was 92.4 per cent perfect, while during the second period it was 95.5 per cent perfect. However, the number of students having perfect attendance during the second period was less than during the first period, there being 183 students with perfect attendance the first period and 164 during the second period. This was due to the fact that there have been more cases of illness lately.—M. P. R.

The fact that a student is a senior does not guarantee graduation. Every candidate must earn a passing grade in enough work to have a total of sixteen credits. It is of vital importance that the parents of the candidates for graduation as well as the students themselves observe their work very closely.—M. P. R.

Jokes and Personals.

Sniff! Sniff! or Sob-stuff.

A Freshman was once seen sobbing bitter tears. Being questioned by a sympathetic schoolmate, he replied: "Last night our house burnt and all my playthings burnt up."

"Didn't anyone try to save them?"

"Oh, yes, I shut the door that was between my room and the fire, but the fire wouldn't stay out."

Bla, Bla.

Miss Stavig (in American History): "What was invented during this period? It was something every woman considers a necessity." (Referring to the sewing machine.)

Anna A.: "The telephone."

Mr. Rapacz (Last Tuesday morning): "There will be no physical training for the girls today as Miss Baumann is sick."

(Loud clapping from girls.)

Mr. Rapacz: "Just how do you mean that?"

Teacher: "When did the slave question arise?"

Student: "In 1619 when the first slave ship came in."

Mr. Harner: "What does R. D. stand for?"

Student: "Rural delivery, I suppose. They use that in the country."

Mr. Harner: "State that problem again, please. I want to hear how it sounds. Lots of times I go by the sounds."

Ella (Speaking of the Ghost in Hamlet): "Probably it doesn't want to tell what it wants to tell to Horatio."

Mr. Harner: "Talk louder, Anna."

Anna: "I can't talk any louder."

Mr. Harner: "She doesn't talk any louder than my chickens at home."

Miss Gormley: "Name the republic that had been made free, Cleon."

Cleon: "Oh, Helvetic Republic Kingdom of Naples—"

Other bright student: "And Sardinia."

Cleon: "I was going to say that but it sounded too fishy."

Only twenty-three Seniors attended the class meeting Friday evening. What's the matter, Seniors?

Administration's Corner

High School Scholarship.

The high school reports for the second period were given out to the students last Wednesday. Has every parent made it a point to study these reports? If not, you should, for the report card tells you just what your boy or girl is doing in school. Some boys and girls are timid about showing their reports, especially if they are not entirely satisfactory. Have you seen your son's and daughter's last report? Are you satisfied with it? If not, see us and we will try to explain to you where the trouble is.

Boys and girls have imaginative minds with a tendency to exaggerate. They may mean well, but sometimes they give the wrong impression. Every time reports are given out we hear about the large number of failures given out, even without cause. Reports of this kind should be investigated and verified before they are given too much credence and publicity. Just to illustrate: In a certain class several boys who were doing unsatisfactory work were questioned as to the reasons for their failure. They generally believed that the particular teacher was failing anywhere from twenty-five to seventy-five per cent of the class. Innocently such reports are often spread among the student body and among parents. Such reports are harmful. Upon investigation of this particular case it was found that only six out of fifty, or only twelve per cent of the grades issued in that particular class, were conditions or failures.

There is nothing more reliable than actual figures. The tables below show the relative number of failures for the first and second periods.

First period:
Total grades issued, 1605.
Number of conditions and failures, 107.
Percentage of conditions and failures, 6.6.
This means one out of every fifteen grades issued was a condition or failure.

Second period:
Total grades issued, 1633.
Number of conditions and failures, 172.
Percentage of conditions and failures, 10½.

In other words, approximately one out of every ten grades issued was a condition or failure.

Our percentage of failures is no larger than the average for the state. You want your school to be a place for work. We could not reduce the number of failures without giving credit where it is not earned and that would mean lowering our standards.—M. P. R.

DRAINAGE PROJECT COMING ALONG IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

C. G. Selvig Enthusiastic Over Outlook—Paying Little Attention to Politics.

C. G. Selvig of Crookston, chairman of the Red Lake drainage and conservancy board, returned Friday morning from Washington, where he and engineers for the drainage district conferred with government officials on plans for the Lake drainage project.

"I am very much pleased with the work accomplished by our trip to Washington," Mr. Selvig said. "Officials at Washington, however, have asked for more data on the project and our engineers will start at once to work out plans and data to be sent to Washington before Jan. 1. We confidently expect government approval and believe we will be able to put the project through next year."

Mr. Selvig was questioned regarding the mention of his name as a possible candidate for congress from this district.

"I am not giving those political rumors much consideration," he replied. "What with this drainage work, my school, and preparations for the coming Mid-Winter Shows, I am too busy to enter politics at this time.

"Since the publication of the newspaper articles mentioning me as a congressional possibility, I have received a number of letters from friends in different parts of the valley tendering me support, which I appreciate very much even though I may not feel called upon to avail myself of it."

HEALTHY TONE IN FAT SHEEP TRADE

Fed Sheep and Lambs Beginning to Arrive—Fat Lambs Up to $9.75.

Souht St. Paul, Minn.—While the strike situation caused some uncertainty in live stock circles at the week's opening, it had little or no apparent effect on the market today. Cattle opened steady to strong with a brisk demand for good handyweight she stock, some of these latter advancing 25c. Hogs sold steady to 10c lower and there was a healthy demand for lambs and sheep at strong prices. Some fed stock is beginning to arrive, best fed western lambs going today at $9.75. Similar kinds of ewes $4.50 and fed yearlings up to $8.00.

No real good or choice fed beef steers arrived at the week's opening, best here going up around $6.75 to $7, with bulk of the steers from $5 to $6. Good 950-pound Dakota heifers sould up to $6, others going at $5.50 to $5.75, and bulk o fthe fat cows and heifers selling from $3.50 to $5.25. Canners and cutters ranged from $2.25 to $3.25. Bologna bulls $2.50 to $3.50. Bulk of best light veal calves sold at $7.50, with a few up to $8. Stockers and feeders were in healthy demand and bulk of the sales were made from $4.50 to $5, with some up to $5.50.

The hog market opened steady to 10c lower. Range of prices Monday $5.75 to $6.75, bulk of 135-pound to 175-pound hogs $6.65 to $6.75, good butchers mostly $6.25 to $6.35, and heavy packers $5.75 to $6. About 2,500 pigs arrived and good pigs sold mostly at $7.

ROAD WORK STARTS TO HELP IDLE MEN

"More Work — Better Roads" Movement Brings First Actual Results in State.

Contracting for over 350 miles of gravel surfacing at $2,000 a mile or about half of last season's prices and 25 miles of paving one-fifth cheaper, Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, this week awarded the first lot of trunk highway improvement projects under the "more work —better roads" movement, as recently announced in The Times.

Prices are lower than the best estimates and the savings are attributed in part to wide competition, there being an average of 25 bidders for each of the more important projects, compared with 10 or 12 in ordinary competitions. Gravel surfacing was let at $2,000 a mile average and yard mile haul figures ranged from 16 to 30 cents at the recent letting, against 30 to 60 cents during the last season. The best paving bid was about 20 per cent or more than $6,000 a mile less than the best regular season price of $27,000.

"Each contract was awarded on the best bid," said John H. Mullen, deputy commissioner and chief highway engineer. "A call will be made soon for bids on additional winter work both to relieve unemployment and to protect against a possible raise in prices next spring when, it is reported, large railroad construction jobs will be let in the northwest. The department will try to take advantage of every opportunity to get the biggest possible value in exchange for road funds."

Successful bidders were announced promptly to allow job seekers to apply to them for work, the highway department having no jobs to fill. Operations on most jobs are to start at once, highway officials said, and the big part of the work completed by April 1 or earlier.

Changes Dinner Hour.

In response to a general demand, Julien Provencher has decided to change the Sunday dinner hour at the Hotel Evelyn from 12:30 to 6 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at the first-named hour but the big meal of the day will be featured at the later hour. The change goes into effect next Sunday.

Laird Begins Moving to New Quarters Saturday

Mention was made in these columns last week of the early removal of the Laird Specialty Shop from its present location on Third street to the store where the Giller stock has been for several years on LaBree avenue.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of the Laird Specialty Shop announcing a twenty per cent reduction on all goods, except school and office supplies, from Dec. 10 to 15 inclusive. The school and office goods and some of the regular stock will be moved to the new location on Saturday, leaving the old building filled with Christmas goods, which are now moving very rapidly.

The new location will give Mr. Laird a much better opportunty to display his various lines as he will have double his present floor space.

Educational Meeting and Shadow Social Saturday

An educational meeting followed by a shadow social will be held in the school of Dist. No. 11, one mile south and west of the Kratka bridge on Saturday evening, Dec. 10, at 8 o'clock.

Contests in spelling and arithmetic between the pupils of the schools will be on the program, and Senator Naplin will speak on "The New Primary Election Law."

This meeting is a climax to the work of the National Education Week and is in charge of a member of the American Legion.

Ladies should bring lunch for two and their shadows. A profitable and enjoyable evening is assured.

CUT RATE GRANTED FOR FARM BUREAU STATE CONVENTION

"Federation Day" Set Aside in Farmer-Home Maker Week For Opening Session.

Reduced fares have been granted by the railroads to the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation for its annual state convention, which opens at University Farm, St. Paul, on Jan. 3.

The reduced rates apply to all points in Minnestoa, according to an official announcement received by the Pennington countyl farm bureau. The cut in passenger fares is contingent only on the attendance of 350 members showing proper certificates that they came to the convention by rail. The state federation estimation esimates that 1,200 farmers will attend the meeting. When all regulations are complied with, members will be able to buy return tickets at one-half fare, the fedartion said in its report to the county bureau.

In order to enable farmers and their families to attend both the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation annual convention and the session of farmers' and home makers' week this winter, without extra expense, the convention has been set for Jan. 3, 4 and 5, during Farmers' week at University Farm.

Extension service and university officials have set aside opening day of the convention as "Farm Bureau Federation Day." The first session of the convention will be held at the auditorium at university farm and all other activities of Farmers' and Home Makers' Week will be suspended all day to enable everyone to attend the farm bureau meeting.

The second and third days' sessions of the convention will be in the chamber of the house of repreretatives in the state capitol.

James R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, Governor J. A. O. Preus, Sidney Anderson, chairman of the joint congressional committee investigatin agricultural conditions; Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson of Iowa, leader in farm women's activities, and L. E. Potter, president of the Minnesota Federation, will speak at the opening session.

AT THE THEATRES

Mary Miles Minter, one of the cleverest and most popular film stars in the country, will appear at the Lyceum on Saturday, matinee and evening, in "All Soul's Eve," a story based on a beautiful Irish legend. Miss Minter is supported in this play by an all-star cast including Jack Holt, Carmen Phillips, Micky Moore, Lottie Williams and Fanny Midgley.

The bill for Sunday and Monday at the Lyceum is Anita Stewart in "Playthings of Destiny." This is a great spectacular production with backgrounds of the frozen north and the tropical south, an arctic blizzard and a Jamaica tornado. There are some tremendous moments in this play and three months were required by the company in order to secure some of the wonderful northern scenes. It is one of the strong releases of the year and has drawn large crowds in all principal cities. A Clyde Cook comedy, "The Sailor," will also be shown. Matinee Sunday at 2:30.

I Am the School House.

I am of many-storied stone, soaring above busy city thoroughfares, or I am a mere cluster of weather-beaten boards in a wilderness that is trackless save for the path leading to my door.

I am the guardian of the hopes of every generation, and I am true to my trust.

In me all things are equal; in me are no distinctions among those who come to me except the paramount distinction between those who are proud to serve and those who seek only to be served.

It is my duty not alone to teach, but equally to learn; to keep perpetually a light upon my altars, kindling them forever afresh from that inextinguishable flame that burns in every young heart—love of knowledge, love of freedom, love of country.

For, as I succeed, America succeeds. I am the true democracy.

I am the school house.

RED LAKE ROAD GETS APPROVAL OF COMMISSION

Chairman Babcock Favorably Disposed Toward Project and Will Lend Aid.

Effort Will Be Made to Secure Backing of Indian Officials For Enterprise.

Committee of Commercial Club Considers Prospects For Success Very Good.

While it cannot be definitely stated at this time that the coming summer will see a road built from the east line of Pennington county to the Red Jakes, the prospects for such highway are much better than ever before. This is the report brought back from St. Paul by Daniel Shaw, J. S. Arneson, John Bratrud and L. R. Johnston, the committee appointed by the Commercial club to take the matter up with C. M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, and members of his staff.

A meeting of the committee and highway officials was held on Tuesday and the Thief River Falls men assured that the state road authorities were most favorably disposed toward the project They agreed to give the matter their immediate attention and promised to send an engineer over the proposed route at once.

Indians Must Approve.

There seems to be no doubt that the road can be constructed with state and national aid, the bill recently passed by congress making possible the building of roads through an Indian reservation under the same regulations as are applied to other federal aid highways. Chairman Babcock stated that he could see nothing in the state road laws to hinder such road building, providing the demand is sufficient and the need for it well established. Mr. Babcock himself is thoroughly convinced on both scores and has promised to give the subject his most favorable consideration.

Before further progress can be made in the matter it will be necessary to secure the consent and co-operation of those representing the Indians on the reservation. Agent W. L. Cross is believed to be favorable to the undertaking and his support will be enlisted if possible. He is in a position to be of great assistance in bringing the matter to a head, particularly before the Indian department. Mr. Cross stated to visitors from this city at the agency some time ago that if any plan could be devised for getting a road through the reserve and connecting with state road No. 2 at the Pennington county line he would be glad to give it his support, providing no call was made upon the Indians for funds with which to pay for its construction. One or more representatives of the Commercial club will lay the matter before Mr. Cross in person as soon as arrangements for a meeting can be made.

At the request of the Beltrami county commissioners the proposed road has been designated a state highway by the commission. Action was taken by the former immediately after the meeting at Bemidji between Thief River Falls men and a number of representative citizens of that city. The proposed road passes through Beltrami county for its entire distance and it was necessary that any request to have its status changed should come from that quarter.

Odd Fellows Elect.

At the annual election of officers of Young Pine lodge of Odd Fellows held last week, the following were chosen for the ensuing year: Ole Hedallen, noble grand; George Swanson, vice grand; Bernhard Knudsen, recording secretary; Adolf Eklund, financial secretary; B. F. Umland, treasurer. Installation of officers will take place on Jan. 3.

MANY PREPARE TO HELP SANTA CLAUS MAKE HIS ROUNDS

Organized Effort Being Made to See That None in This City Are Overlooked.

Not one person in Thief River Falls is to be overlooked in the general Christmas cheer if committees from different organizations now at work can locate them. The Elks, Odd Fellows, Salvation Army, County Welfare league and Girls' Community club are all seeking out those who may be overlooked by Santa Claus unless his attention is called to their particular case.

The Elks program is in the hands of the general committee headed by L. G. Larsen. There are no set rules laid down for the guidance of this committee and the members are trying to place their donations where they will do the most good. The local Salvation Army corps is co-operating in finding homes in which there may be want, the situation of children being particularly investigated.

The Odd Fellows have been collecting a fund of several hundred dollars for the same purpose and the Sons of Norway will carry out their usual Christmas charities. Other organizations are either giving their assistance to those above mentioned or doing something of a similar nature on their own hook. The Girls' Community club is very active along the same line Taken all together there never was such determination to see that every worthy person had something to be happy over as is the case this Christmas.

It is thought inadvisable to have a community Christmas tree. Past experience has proven that this does not provide the best method of getting to those who are most greatly in need of a little assistance. Very often the latter are people who do not parade their condition before the world and consequently all the more entitled to consideration because of that fact.

Everybody can help in this work and anything they may wish to do will be welcomed.

VIOLATED PAROLE LANDS AUTOMOBILE THIEF IN ST. CLOUD

Clyde Andrews, Sentenced Here and Released on Parole, Tries Stunt Augain.

Clyde Andrews, 19 years old, was on Monday taken to St. Cloud to begin the serving of an indeterminate term of from one to seven years in the reformatory. Andrews was found guilty of stealing an automobile from J. M. Bishop of this city last August and sentence imposed by Judge William Watts. In view of the youth of the offender Judge Watts permitted him to go on probation with instructions to report to Sheriff W. J. LaBree at stated intervals. Stanley Wilkenson, arrested and found guilty at the same time, was released on the same conditions.

With the consent of Sheriff LaBree the boys went to their former homes in Duluth, the chief of police of that city being substituted for Mr. LaBree as probation officer. This week officials here received word that Andrews and Wilkenson had stolen a car in Duluth and that the former had been caught. Wilkenson managed to get away and up to date has not been apprehended.

Sheriff LaBree was notified by the Duluth officers that his man had broken his parole. This automatically made the former sentence operative and Andrews was turned over to stand punishment for the offense.

Efforts are being made by both the Duluth department and Sheriff LaBree to locate Wilkenson and they have hopes of landing him in the reformatory with his partner.

RED CROSS DRIVE NETS LARGER SUM THAN LAST WINTER

More Money Collected in City Alone Than in Entire County in Former Campaign.

Chairman W. A. Barnard of the Pennington county annual Red Cross roll call campaign just closed, reports that to date a total of $705.70 has been turned into the chapter treasury. Of this amount residents in the city contributed $628.70 and the outlying districts $77.00. A number of auxiliaries are still to be heard from and it is likely that the final total will be somewhat in excess of the figures given.

In making this report Mr. Barnard wishes particularly to express his appreciation of the excellent work done by members of the Girls' Community club, in whose hands the city solicitation was placed. As an evidence of the thoroughness with which their campaign was conducted it may be stated that last year the total collections for the entire county only totalled about $500, or less than was contributed in the city alone in the recent campaign. The chairman regards the showing made as exceptionally good when general conditions are considered, and asks that his appreciation be expressed to all those who in any manner assisted in making the drive a success.

Little Girl Swallows Coin

Two weeks ago little Dorothy, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jansen of Viking, swallowed a five cent piece. An X-ray photograph taken at Warren showed the coin to be lodged in the child's esophagus without any possibility of its being dislodged except through an operation. She was taken to Minneapolis by her parents, accompanied by Orval Herrin of Viking, and operated on by Dr. K. O. Phelps at the Swedish hospital. The coin was removed and the patient is getting along fine.

Objections Filed Against Assessments For Sewers

Taxpayers affected by what is known as "stub sewer assessments" on Tuesday evening filed protests against such assessment with the city council. E. M. Stanton appeared for the Oen Mercantile company, the Zion Lutheran church congregation and Olaf Tessum, asking that the assessed cost of $210.77 for sewers in each case be substantially reduced or stricken out entirely. Theo. Quale presented similar petitions on behalf of Bernice Hamry and the Chas. M. Blain estate. It is maintained that the sewers referred to are of no benefit whatever to the property owned by the objectors and that the assessment is therefore unjust. The matter was referred to the city attorney and city engineer.

More Room For Handling Mail is Found Necessary

In order to better take care of the Christmas rush, Postmaster John Morgan is providing more space for the work room at the post office. The size of the lobby will be reduced correspondingly, but this will have to be put up with in the interest of efficiency. The west entrance to the room will be closed permanently to the public as the new arrangement makes this open directly into the work room. The partition heretofore running east and west has been turned around so as to cut off the west side of the lobby from the patrons, adding a space about 8x12 feet for the convenience of the force.

Mr. Morgan asks that those who have not yet complied with the department's request to have house numbers placed over their doors should do so at once. While the regular carriers are on the job it does not so much matter as these are acquainted with the addresses of office patrons, but when extra help or substitutes are used there is bound to be delay and confusion where the houses are not numbered. The matter is of far greater importance than most people seem to realize and should be attended to without delay.

DISTRICT MEETING OF CREAMERY MEN HELD HERE FRIDAY

Follows Dairy Feeding School Conducted at Two Different Points in County Today.

The creamery board and buttermakers from Clay, Norman, Mahnomen, Polk, Clearwater, Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties will meet in Thief River Falls on Friday to elect officers from among their number as an executive committee to act with the state director of the district. Every creamery in the section is invited to send a delegate to the first meeting. A large turnout is expected and a good program will be presented.

Two sessions of a dairy feeding school are scheduled for Pennington county this week. One is being held in the Lyceum theatre this forenoon and another will open at St. Hilaire Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The afternoon meeting in both instances will be featured by a moving picture entitled, "Food For Thought," illustrating the importance of sanitation and cleanliness in the handling of milch cattle as well as the value of dairy products as a food.

The Pennington County Public Health association is working in cooperation with the dairy interests of the county in carrying out this program. It is a recognized fact that the public health of a community is much dependent on a supply of good wholesome dairy products. This film will show in detail the value of having such for every day use.

Maintenance Men Get No Extra Pay For Overtime

Shop men and section hands on the two railroads entering this city and making their home here are particularly interested in an order of the railroad labor board issued on Tuesday. The board slashed the extra pay provisions for the first two hours of overtime after the regular eight hour day's work, setting up a schedule of a ten hour day at the regular hourly wage for common and shop laborers. This rule replaces the national agreement made while the roads were under government control.

Clever Comedy Presented By Goodridge Legion Post

"Goodfellow," a three-act comedy drama, was presented under the auspices of Henry Svare post, American Legion, at Goodridge on Friday evening. The play was given in the school auditorium and attended by a large and highly appreciative audience, Thief River Falls being quite well represented. It proved to be an excellent presentation, every member of the cast playing his or her part in an exceptionally clever manner. The audience greatly enjoyed the specialties between acts put on by E. J. Bithon. The cast was as follows:

John Dawson, a "Goodfellow" ——— Harvey Ferdinandson

SLIGHT DROP IN TAX VALUATION FOR NEXT YEAR

Falling Off of $335,635 Attributed to Removal of Automobiles From Tax Roll.

Total Nearly Seven Million Dollars When Moneys and Credits Are Included.

Real and Personal Property in City Listed at Over Million and a Half Dollars.

The taxable valuation of real and personal property in Pennington county has fallen off $355,635 in the past year, according to figures submitted to the state tax commission by County Auditor T. P. Anderson's office. The decrease is principally in the personal property list and is largely explainable by the fact that automobiles have been removed from that column and subjected to an entirely different system of taxation.

The total taxable valuation of the county at this time and the amount on which the tax levy for 1922 will be based is $6,819,452, as compared with $7,173,087 last year. There is very little change in the amount disclosed in the moneys and credits, this property representing $1,012,262 last year as compared with $999,167 at this time—a drop of $13,075.

Value of Acre $28.20.

There are 389,058 acres of land on the assessment rolls with an average taxable valuation of $9.40 per acre. This is one-third of the actual value, which would make lands in the county worth on an average $28.20 per acre. The total assessed value of all lands, exclusive of structures, is $3,669,669, and assessed value of the personal property $727,582. The total tax to be collected is $482,943.99, exclusive of the amount levied on moneys and credits.

The average rate of taxation in the county is 59.3 mills for all lands. Of this amount 51.3 mills is assessed against districts outside of incorporated cities and villages, and an average of 114.9 mills against property in these latter subdivisions.

City and Villages Pay Half.

The amount of taxes to be collected in Thief River Falls next year total $186,724.24 and when this sum is added to the amounts assessed against property in the villages of St. Hilaire and Goodridge the total is $208,742.51, leaving $274,201.93 for the remainder of the county. When moneys and credits are added it is found that taxpayers in the one city

PROMISE TO PASS COMPENSATION ACT

Commander MacNider Assured Pay Adjustments Will Be Made to Soldiers in July.

The adjusted compensation bill for veterans of the World war will be passed by congress within the next 90 days, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, has been informed by Senator P. J. McCumber, author of the bill in the senate, and Congressman Josepr Fordney, who introduced the measure in the house.

Leaders in the house and senate assured MacNider that congress believes in the justice of the adjusted compensation measure and realizes that immediate action is necessary on account of the present financial condition of many former service men and women.

Senator Arthur Capper and numerous other senators informed the new commander that they had received the copies of resolutions adopted at the Kansas City convention and that they were in hearty sympathy with and in favor of the entire program.

Will Ask Congress For Wheat Price Guarantee

Legislation to revive the United States Grain Corporation with a government guarantee of probably $2.50 a bushel for wheat will be asked of the present session of congress, it is announced by the Farmers' National The "standard 14-once loaf or bread bread," said the announcement, "can be profitably sold for five cents," if the farmers get $2.50 a bushel for wheat by preventing profiteering between the wheat farmer and the consumer of wheat products.

Stores to Close at 6 P. M. Christmas and New Years Eves and All Day Monday

Thief River Falls business men have decided to observe Christmas and New Years on the Mondays following the actual dates on which these holidays fall. They have also decided to close their stores at 6 o'clock on Christmas and New Years eves, notwithstanding the fact that these come on Saturday.

The buying public is notified that from 6 o'clock on Saturday evening, Dec. 24, and Saturday evening, Dec. 31, all stores will be closed and remain closed until the opening hour the following Tuesday morning.

Nearly $40,000 Received As State and Federal Aid

School District No. 18 last week received a total of $39,482.10 as its share of the tax aportionment, to which was added all the state and federal aid of different descriptions. The apportionment amounted to $12,464 and the state aid to $26,941. To this was added $853.13 as federal vocational training aid and $223.97 as state aid for the same purpose. School libraries throughout the country were also helped to the extent of $358.50, this coming entirely from the state.

In Business at Red Lake.

Karl Korstad, who recently sold out his general mercantile business at Highlanding and has opened a similar store at Red Lake on the reservation, was in the city on Saturday visiting his brothers and looking after business matters. Mr. Korstad says that he likes his new location and is finding business as good as expected at this time of year. The Indians will shortly receive $100 each from the tribal funds to help them over the winter and this will prove a great relief to many of them. Mr. Korstad is now a licensed dealer, authorized by the government to engaged in business on the reservation.

STATE WILL SPEND A MILLION DOLLARS ON ROADS AT ONCE

Work on 32 Jobs Started—165 Teams at Work on Thief River-Holt Highway.

First work on 32 important road building projects was started by contractors Tuesday morning. This will ultimately mean the expenditure of $922,000 in the state, nearly all of which will be paid out this winter for men and teams. The program calls for the surfacing and grading of more than 236 miles of Minnesota highways, to be completed by the first of April.

On trunk highway 32 between Thief River Falls and Holt the work has been going on for about three weeks, this job being let by day work and not subject to contract. The price paid is 25 cents per yard for loading and 20 cents per cubic yard mile for hauling. At the present time there are 75 teams working at the south end of the division and 90 at the north end. The teams, so far as possible, have been secured from neighboring farmers and all other work is being performed by men residing along the highway.

Road work is also going forward at a rapid rate in neighboring counties. In Clearwater the stretch between Bagley and Clearbrook is being improved under the same plan, as is also No. 6 between Crookston and Beltrami. On the last-named job 278 farmers' teams are employed at the present time.

Work on the contracts let by the state highway department about ten days ago will be under way before the end of the week. Bids have been rechecked and the responsibility of bidders investigated, resulting in the signing of contracts in the majority of cases.

BAD BREAK IN HOGS AT START OF WEEK

Prices Mostly 25c Lower on the Average—Heavy Packing Sows 75c Lower.

South St. Paul, Dec. 12—The week started with a break of fully 25c on hogs, with packing sows at the close about 75c under last week. Bulk of the good butcher hogs $6.50, choice light sorts averaging mostly 170 lbs. down $6.75 to $7. Heavy packing sows late $5.25 to $5.60. Bulk of Although cattle receipts at outside markets were somewhat heavier than last Monday, and prices at those points tended downward, the local market had less cattle than last Monday, receipts being estimated today at 3,700, and trading was on a mostly steady basis, with some of the better offerings of butcher she stock and beef steers selling strong to slightly higher. Best beef steers today was a small lot of eight head averaging 936 pounds and selling at $8 Load lots cashed at $6.25 to $6.50, with the bulk selling from $5 to $6. Best offerings of butcher she stock here sold from $5.25 to $5.50, with the bulk going from $3.25 to $5. Popular price for canners was $2, with some at $2.25 and cutters on up to $3. Bologna bulls sold mostly from $2.75 to $3.25, with a fair showing of choice heavies up to $3. Veal calves were steady, bulk of best veals selling at $7.50. A fairly healthy demand featured the stocker and feeder trade and these sold fully steady, bulk of sales $4.25 to $5, with best kinds at $5.50 and $5.75.

Sheep were about 25c lower, bulk of good and choice fat lambs $10.25; bulk desirable ewes $4.50 to $4.75; very good fat yearlings $8.50.

BASKETBALL GAME WITH BEMIDJI WILL OPEN SEASON HERE

Both Teams Rapidly Getting Into Form and Great Scrimmage is Anticipated.

The season's first basketball game will be played on the local floor on Friday evening, Dec. 23, with the Bemidji team opposing the Thief River Falls bunch. Practice work has been going forward regularly during the past month and the boys are rapidly whipping into shape. Tackling Bemidji for the season's first game is getting into fast company at one jump, but Coach G. W. Connell is confident that his proteges will give the visitors a beautiful fight. Bemidji was defeated by Thief River Falls last year in one of the most exciting games of the series, and as the line-up has not been greatly changed in either city there is no reason for anticipating that the result should not be the same. Plummer, Bemidji star forward last season, will this year be with the Thief River team and is prepared to put up the same kind of a game against the Beltrami county outfit as he did while a member of the aggregation.

In a practice tussle last evening with the Lincoln high school team the latter were clearly outclassed, the veterans making a highly satisfactory showing in every department of the game.

Mr. Connell is after the scalp of the party who stole a brand new basket ball from the auditorium last Sunday afternoon. If the property is not restored within two or three days steps will be taken to force its return.

Zion Congregation Elects Officers For Coming Year

The annual business meeting of the Zion Lutheran congregation was held Monday evening. Officers' reports submitted showed that the past year has been very successful from every point of view. Over $1400 was collected for missions.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: J. L. Bean, secretary; Ole Snustad and John Dahl, trustees; Ole Ostmoe and Tom Stageberg, deacons; Ingeborg Bjoland, deaconess; Mrs E. O. Erickson, superintendent of Sunday school; Miss Borghild Wollen, organist; Gust Wollen and Mrs. Hustedt, parochial school committee; Alfred Haugen, Olaf Neset, Erick Espelund and Ole Snustad, collectors and ushers.

No Auto Tax Dodgers in Entire County it Seems

Auto owners who have neglected to pay their 1921 license must do so before a new permit will be issued for 1922, according to instructions sent out from the office of Mike Holm, secretary of state. Clerks of court in the different counties have been supplied with a list of known delinquents with instructions to see that arrearages are paid before a new license is issued. Adolph Eklund, clerk for Pennington county, has received no such list and is therefore of the opinion that all auto taxes within his jurisdiction were paid last year. This, however, will excuse no one who knows himself to be in arrears and it will save trouble if he will call on Mr. Eklund and have the matter straightened out.

Legion Boys Admit Error and Apologize to Pastor

On behalf of the Strandquist Post, American Legion, J. C. Greenagle, commander, and Otto H. Paulson, adjutant, have publicly apologized to Rev. P. G. Carlstedt for the stand taken by post members at a funeral at Egelund church recently. The Legion boys insisted on entering the church under arms or not at all, the result being a heated controversy as to their rights under such conditions. The pastor appealed to Gen. W. F. Rhinow, who upheld him, quoting army regulations which forbid the carrying of arms into a church building. The post officers requested state headquarters of the Legion to set them right and the latter organization gave out an opinion identical with that of the adjutant general. It is to be hoped that this will close the incident.

EXPERT CALLS POULTRY SHOW BEST IN STATE

W. E. Stanchfield, Nationally-Known Judge, Pays Local Breeders Compliment.

No Better Showing Made at Any County Exhibit in Minnesota in His Opinion.

Prize Winners Scattered Over Considerable Section, But Majority Reside Here.

The recent poultry show held at Thief River Falls was a top-notcher in number of exhibits as well as the quality of birds displayed, according to W. E. Stanchfield of Minneapolis, who did the judging. Mr. Stanchfield, who is one of the foremost poultry experts in the country, is in a position to know as he has perhaps had a larger and more varied experience as a judge than any other man in this section. He has operated a large commercial and breeding farm in Michigan and has been actively engaged in this line for the past 18 years, during which time he has been called upon to officiate at some of the largest and most important shows in the United States. He has judged birds at Madison Square Garden, New York, and has been employed in this capacity for nine different years at the Coliseum, Chicago. Twice he has made trips to the Pacific coast to judge at the California and Oregon shows and has been the official arbiter at Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo and St. Louis.

Mr. Stanchfield's wide experience has given him an unusual opportunity of studying poultry conditions in all sections of the country. During the war he served as government state poultry expert and has remained in Minnesota ever since. He is at present editor of the poultry department of the Northwest Farmstead, one of the leading publications of its kind in the country.

When a man of Mr. Stanchfield's experience says that the show at Thief River Falls was one of the best in the state it means something. There are 91 shows held in the 86 counties of Minnesota every year and for Pennington county to be classed among the leaders by the man bet qualified to judge should have the effect of stimulating poultry raisers in the county to even greater efforts.

Rhode Island Sweepstakes Winner.

The winner of the grand sweepstakes prize at the show was a Rhode Island Red cockerel exhibited by Olaf Neset. The prize was a silver loving cup. The same exhibitor also carried away the grand championship prize on hen of the same breed.

Leonard Burgeson of Barnesville won the special cash prize for sending the largest number of birds the

Minnesota Second Only to New York in Potato Yield

According to a report of the federal department of commerce based on figures furnished by the bureau of the census, Minnesota ranks as second highest in the matter of potato production of all the states of the United States. New York state comes first with a total production in 1919 of 32,470,847 bushels, and Minnesota next with 26,690,056.

Present indications are that the total acreage put into potatoes next year will, under ordinary conditions, put the total production materially above the total of 1919, or the figures embraced in the census bureau report.

A very large part of the state's increase will be found to be in the Red River valley. The outstanding increase in the number of potato warehouses that have already been erected or that are being arranged for this winter may be taken as a good indication of what the outlook is in the potato industry.

One noteworthy feature of the report is, however, that while New York and Minnesota outranked all other states in the matter of production, Maine sold more. Maine sold 60 per cent of its entire production; New York sold 62.2 per cent, while Minnesota sold 63.6 per cent of the production. This means that Minnesota held approximately ten million bushels for seeding at home and for live stock feeding.

Local Women Join Sisters in Asking For Disarmament

The Thief River Falls branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was represented by about 500 signatures on the petition presented to Secretary of State Hughes at the opening of the disarmament conference at Washington, asking that an end be put to war preparations. The petition was over a mile long and contained the names of members of this organization from all over the world. The presentation was made by Miss Anna Gordon, world president of the union. Local members secured the signatures of 500 persons in Thief River Falls without any difficulty and the number could undoubtedly have been greatly increased had time permitted.

Society

Girls Community Club Meets

Among the pre-holiday events was the meeting of the Girls Community Club held on Monday evening at the Commercial Club Rooms, which was a success socially and from the standpoint of attendance. Approximately seventy-five young ladies were present. In view of the fact that this was the last meeting before Christmas the committee in charge had arranged a charming party in conformity with the spirit of the Yule-tide season. All the decorations which included a tree bedecked with the usual trimmings, which centered the long table at the front of the room, streamers of red and green, festooned from chandeliers, sprigs of fir and crystal candle sticks supporting red tapers with red shades, placed on the piano and table from which the guests were served gave an added charm to the occasion. During the brief business session the committee appointed at the previous meeting, presented blankets, which they purchased with the $25.00 which had been subscribed by the club for charitable purposes at Christmas. A short program followed during which the burning candles on the tree and in the holders, furnished effective illumination. Miss Doris Halvorson gave two piano numbers and Miss Meta Kiland sang two solos. Cards, dancing and a fish pond afforded amusement for the guests. Christmas candy and apples were served throughout the evening. The members had previously been requested to bring some toy to which all generously responded. Almost a hundred toys were collected which will be distributed among the poor children on Christmas day. The co-operation of club members is deserving of particular mention. This fact is emphasized by the success of every undertaking. During the recent membership drive of the Red Cross over $600.00, solicitations made in this city alone, was taken by community girls.

The success of the club is largely due to this fact. Miss Ida Tandberg, who is now acting president, has given unfailing support and has done a great deal toward creating a congenial spirit among the members. This fact is verified by the large attendance at all the meetings. Light refreshments were served at 10:30. Mrs. Theo. Tandberg of Goodridge, former president, was guest of the evening.

Burstad-Bottolfson.

Miss Alma O. Burstad and Mikael O. Bottolfson, both of Garske, N. D., were united in marriage on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 8, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna Burstad, near Plummer. About 20 guests witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. T. E. Sweger of this city. Following the service a wedding dinner was served. The couple was attended by Ben Mahla and Miss Thea Burstad, a sister of the bride. Among the out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Burstad of Thief River Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Bottolfson left Monday for Garske, near which place they will make their home on a farm.

Delightful Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bennes was the scene of a delightful party on Friday evening when their daughter, Miss Ruby, entertained about thirty of her friends at cards and dancing. Dainty refreshments were served at midnight. Among the guests were Misses Lillian Knight, Irma Marcoe, Sybil McGinn, Elsie Sundahl, Helen and Palma Langseth, Adlyn LaBree, Nora Lindquist, Doris Richter, Eileen Arneson, Ruth and Esther Hadrath, and Harry Brown, Paul Scanlan, Milton Lund, Harold and Stephen Arneson, Reuben Hadrath, William LeParcq, Harry Sullivan, Milton and Philip Larson, Leland Knight, Matt Barzen, John Hendry and William Alexander.

Eastern Star Election.

A social time followed the regular business session of the Eastern Star meeting held last evening at the Masonic hall. Miss Theone Walker and Mrs. A. Holmberg furnished music for dancing. Officers chosen for the coming year are: Worthy matron, Anna Quale; worthy patron, Ed. Brevig; associate matron, Mrs. E. O. Mogensen; secretary, Mrs. J. Q. Cronkhite; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Kinghorn; conductress, Mrs. John Robinson; associate conductress, Mrs. Lyle Manther. Other officers will be appointed by the worthy matron. Installation will take place some time after the Christmas holidays.

Pre-Holiday Party.

Colors suggestive of the Christmas season were effectively used at the home of Mrs. Theo. Quale on Tuesday afternoon when she entertained at a children's party for her little daughter, Virginia, who celebrated her eighth birthday anniversary. The hours were from four to six and were devoted to games and other amusements. The invited guests were Alice Larson, Veronica Shanahan, Jeanette Mogensen, Lois Oden, Esther Haynes, Eleanor Green, Helen Gesell, Georgia Marie Smith, Jessie Bickley, Adelaide Mulry, Grace Provencher and Miss Sandum. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Fred Quale.

Woman's Club Meets

The regular meeting of the Woman's club was held on Monday afternoon at the Commercial club rooms. A very small crowd was in attendance. A short program preceded the business session. Mrs. A. Holmberg and three of her pupils in violin gave a quartet which was well received. Besides Mrs. Holmberg, those taking part were Lorraine Will, Henry Arneson and Leigh Anderson. They responded to an encore. Mrs. H. C. Johnson and Mrs. E. O. Mogensen gave a very interesting lesson "The Holy Land."

Maccabees Elect Officers.

At the meeting of the Maccabees held Monday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Commander, O. F. Halldin; lt. commander, Mrs. Joe Holmes; sergeant, Mrs. John Rolland; chaplain, Mrs. C. M. Carlson; past commander, Mrs. I. G. Lane; lady at arms, Mrs. C. S. Simonson; record keeper, Mrs. E. L. Rolland; collector, Mrs. Olaf Storholm; sentinel, Mrs. F. Schmidt; picket, Mrs. L. C. Reidy. At the conclusion of the business session lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Faculty Entertained.

Mrs. I. T. Simley was hostess at a series of parties held at her home on Thursday and Saturday, when the teachers in the local schools were the guests. On Thursday afternoon the Washington and Central teachers were the guests. The Northrop and Knox teachers were entertained Saturday afternoon, while the teachers in the high schools were guests in the evening. A delicious lunch was served on each occasion.

Rebekahs Meet.

The election of officers of the Rebekah lodge took place on Tuesday evening, when the following were chosen: Noble grand, Mrs. Arthur Johnson; vice grand, Miss Myrtle Blair; corresponding secretary, Miss Clara Gullingsrud; financial secretary, Mrs. O. L. Cronstrom; treasurer, Mrs. T. P. Anderson. Lunch and a program of dancing took up the remainder of the evening.

Engagement Announced.

The following item taken from the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune, will be of interest here. Mr. Gamble is connected with the Gamble-Robinson company of this city: "Michael Schibsby, 2508 Third avenue south, announces the engagement of his daughter, Edith, to Donald Phelps Gamble, 2644 Nicollet avenue. No date has been set for the wedding."

U. C. T. Party.

The members of the U. C. T. lodge with their wives and friends, enjoyed a program of dancing at the Masonic hall Saturday night, following their regular meeting. Emil Trogardh of Minneapolis, past senior counsel, was a guest of the evening and gave a very interesting talk concerning the activities of the organization. Lunch was served at midnight.

Entertains For Mrs. Crandall.

Honoring Mrs. C. R. Crandall, who leaves soon for the West to make her home, Mrs. J. P. Curtis entertained a company of ladies Saturday afternoon at her home. The time was spent in needlework. Christmas decorations were used in the luncheon appointments.

Entertains at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Larsen entertained a few friends at dinner at their home Sunday in compliment to their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris of Ashland, Wis., who returned to their home Monday. Covers were laid for nine.

Public Reception.

Mrs. Josephine Sizer, state president of the W. C. T. U., was honor guest at an informal reception for the public held at the home of Mrs. M. V. Evenson on Saturday afternoon.

Obituary

August Brown.

August Brown, 211 Conely avenue south, passed away quietly at his home about 10 o'clock last Tuesday morning after an illness of about a year. Deceased had been troubled a great deal with rheumatism, which gradually deprived him of the use of his lower limbs and weakened his heart, which was the immediate cause of his death. Deceased was born in Germany on March 8, 1851, and came to America in 1870, locating at Stevens Point, Wis., where six years later he married Miss August Helmoldt. To this union were born eight children, seven of whom are living. Thirteen grandchildren also survive. For a number of years Mr. Brown was head sawyer in the local saw mill, working first with the Meehans and later for the Wintons, retiring from active work when the mill was abandoned a few years ago. He served as a member of the school board when the East side district was first organized. He was affiliated with St. John's Lutheran church. As one of its founders and active members the congregation will mourn the loss of a man whose willingness to serve will be a trait long to be remembered. As a resident of the city for 30 years he won a host of friends and the esteem and respect of all who knew him.

Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon from St. John's church, Rev. E. H. Kreidt officiating in both the German and English languages. A large number of friends of the deceased attended the last rites and a profusion of floral contributions were sent to the family residence. The following acted as pallbearers: Gustaf Geske, Albert Geske, August Krause, Gustaf Wilkens, Hans Anton and Henry Roembildt. Miss Cora Brown of Minneapolis, a daughter, was here for the funeral. Mrs. Louis Hanson of Minneapolis and Miss Clara Brown of Colorado Springs, daughters, were unable to be present. Deceased is also survived by his wife, a brother who resides in Wisconsin, and four daughters who reside in this city: Mrs. Herbert Fuller, Mrs. A. M. Langseth, Mrs. P. O. Myhrum and Miss Laura Brown.

Agnes Isabelle Remmen

Agnes Isabelle Remmen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Remmen, passed away on Thursday morning, December 8th, at the Physicians hospital at the age of sixteen years one month, after an illness which extended over two months. Death was caused by a ruptured appendix. The deceased was born in this city October 29, 1905. She was graduated from the public school and had just entered high school when she was taken ill. She was confirmed from the Zion Lutheran church June 19, 1921. The young lady was gifted with a sweet and lovely disposition which won for her many friends who regret her untimely demise. Besides her parents she is survived by five sisters, Bertha, Mildred, Gladys, Goldie and Ruth.

Funeral services were held from the Zion Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Geo. Larson conducting. The freshman class with their advisor, Miss Velma Webster, attended the services in a body. Among out of town relatives who were present were Mrs. C. B. Eggen and son, Mrs. I. O. Eggen from Kelliher, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gulseth, Mrs. B. Ranum, J. Remmen, G. J. Norhagen, Nils Nora, Oswald Nora all of Rosewood.

Pocket Billiard Tournament.

William Sheedy, proprietor of the Hub Billiard parlor, is conducting a pocket billiard tournament this week which is attracting a great deal of attention among the followers of that pastime. The tournament started out with about 30 players, matched in teams of two, one of whom is eliminated after each game. After the first series of games is over, the remaining players will again be paired off for a second series. In this manner the tournament will eventually dwindle down to one game with two opposing players. The winner of this game will be declared the champion of the city and will be given a cash prize of $10. The contestants have been rated according to their ability so that the "sharks" have no better chance of winning the prize than the average performer.

Card of Thanks.

We hereby wish to express our heartfelt thanks to those who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and after the death of our beloved husband and father. Also for the beautiful floral offerings.—Mrs. August Brown and Daughters.

THE FARMER'S POSITION.

The American people, as a general rule, object to subsidies and price guarantees. This has been demonstrated time and time again in the case of subsidies, particularly when questions affecting the shipping interests have come up. While this industry is perhaps as much in need of support of this character as any, it has never been possible to force its acceptance upon the country. The same is true of price guarantees, particularly where these affect the products of the farm.

In the last analysis there is not a great deal of difference between a price guarantee, a subsidy and a protective tariff—at least this is the conclusion reached by a large part of our agricultural population. The only trouble is that a protective tariff fails of its purpose where the farmer's products are concerned, at the same time adding to the cost of the products he must buy. He believes, and rightly, that he is entitled to some sort of consideration and has turned to a price guarantee as offering the only remedy.

His demand is unpopular and to many seems unreasonable, yet it is in no way different from that made by producers of manufactured products. The public eventually pays any advance in price forced by a tariff the same as would be the case with a guarantee. There is no way of getting around this fact—the only trouble is in getting the country to face it.

If agriculture is our basic industry it should receive our first consideration. No sane person would attempt to erect a strong, enduring superstructure on a crumbling foundation. If it is true that the rest of the country prospers only as the farmer prospers, his prosperity should be our fundamental concern. If a price guarantee is the only thing that will save him from going under at the present time, this is the remedy that will have to be applied, even though it may prove unpopular in many quarters. The last is true of any subsidies or guarantees given in the shape of protective tariffs and yet these are approved by the farmer as necessary to the general prosperity of the country. He has always been willing that others should be benefitted in this manner but has come to the conclusion that some other plan must be employed in his case.

When everything is taken into consideration, just in what respect is a price guarantee so very different from a protective tariff or a subsidy? We are sure to have the first-named system applied to a large variety of manufactures and natural products and there is an increasing demand that a subsidy be given others. Is not the farmer entitled to the only kind of protection that will be of any help to him? If the country is going into subsidizing and protecting as a part of its general economic program, why not include price guarantees for the products of the farmer? In the end there is no difference so far as the consumer is concerned and it is likely that he will consider the farmer as great a factor in the country's progress and as important in its economic development as are manufacturers and shippers.

No attempt is here made to present an argument against tariffs and subsidies. Both may be advisable and necessary. It would appear as if neither solves the farmer's problem, however—and he certainly has a problem to solve. It is merely maintained that he is as much or more entitled to have some remedy applied in his case. If the only remedy is a price guarantee, it should at least receive serious consideration.

BUY IT AT HOME

Times are not flush in the United States at the present time, but there will be more or less buying during the holiday season as usual. The volume of business transacted may not be quite as great as in some previous year and the amount of money spent will no doubt be somewhat smaller, but the spirit of Christmas will prevail very much in the same old way.

The fact that the holiday business will be lighter than usual will prove an advantage to the buying public. Prices are bound to come down in exact ration with the decreased demand. In fact the drop since a year ago will have a tendency to keep trade up to its former volume although it will undoubtedly fall short when it comes to comparisons of the amount of money actually expended.

This simply means that the buyer will get more for his money. Merchants prepared early for a busy season, being unable to forsee the present slump. Goods of this character are often pursbased nearly a year ahead of delivery dates and the merchant has no means of knowing thus far in advance what holiday conditions will be. If the situation is such that there is a falling off in the demand he must make an attempt to keep his volume up through price reductions. He dislikes to carry goods of this kind over from one year to another and aims to clean up as closely as possible, often taking a loss in order to do so.

During a season like the present he early arrives at the conclusion that it will be necessary for him to get down to rock bottom, and this is just what Thief River Falls merchants have done. It would be impossible for them to make deeper cuts without footing a loss greater than they are able to stand. The same is doubtless true of merchants in other communities. They are all anxious to stimulate holiday buying and to that end have reduced prices to the lowest possible point.

Stocks in Thief River Falls are perhaps larger and more varied than at any previous Christmas season. There is absolutely no excuse for anyone going out of town for anything they may need nor is there any possibility that they can save money by so doing. The merchants of this city are willing to have their prices compared with those prevailing in any city in the state, or outside of it for that matter, while so far as quality and variety are concerned they are admittedly in the lead. In fact there is no change from the usual order of things at this time of year except that prices are lower.

Do your Christmas in Thief River Falls and do it now. Nothing is to be gained by waiting until the last day and much may be lost. If the particular article you want is gone when you get ready to make a selection, there is no way in which it can be replaced in time. Shop early and shop at home.

A TIMELY CAMPAIGN.

The railroads of the country are asking people everywhere to help reduce the needless and oftimes inexcusable accidents caused by negligence on the part of auto drivers at grade crossings. There are 1,500 people killed and 4,000 injured in the United States every year through accidents of this kind and the number will increase with the number of autoes in use unless there is something done to make drivers "play safe." Occurances of this kind involving the loss of life and limb, have become so common that there is grave danger of their being taken as matters of course and simply regarded as unavoidable incidents attendant upon our progress.

There seems to be a certain fascination in racing a rapidly moving train to a crossing, the autoist evidently forgetting that all the odds are against him. The slightest miscalculation on his part means disaster as the man handling the locomotive can do nothing or very little to avert a colision. Besides, he has the absolute right of way and it is not up to him to see that no one gets in front of his train. Railroaders exercise all possible care, particularly in places where there is any considerable amount of trafic, and if the autoist would use as much judgement in approaching these crossings as is necessary in traversing a city street a great deal of suffering and money loss would be avoided.

It has been suggested that a heavy fine or jail sentence be impossed on any person driving an automobile who does not take reasonable precautions in approaching a railroad crossing, and it may be that such step will be found necessary. Something will surely have to be done, and the railroads seem willing to do their share.

Waiting a few minutes to give a train the right of way is not nearly so expensive as waiting for months to recover in a hospital. The loss of a few moments in playing safe is not as serious as the loss of arms, legs or life.

OBSERVATIONS

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

The English say that prohibition is unthinkable, but the kind we have in Baudette is undrinkable.

Hurry your shopping. It will soon be too late to do it early.

One bad feature of the Christmas spirit this year is that it will be mostly moonshine.

Admiral Kato of Japan, who is at the Washington conference, is shocked at the short skirts American girls wear. Someone ought to tell him that he was sent here to discuss arms, not legs.

Now that Congress is in session again, a conference for the limitation of argument might be a good thing.

It looks as if the New York Yankees will start a Ruthless fight for the pennant next spring.

It is said the kaiser is about to marry again. One war evidently wasn't enough for him.

If tractors and trucks continue to pour into Baudette, it may soon be a one-horse town.

It's a crime to buy liquor these days, especially the kind they dish up to you.

An adv. says that yeast should be eaten by everybody at breakfast. It ought to prove popular with early risers.

American Legion Notes.

National Legion dues, fixed by the national convention are $1. State dues, fixed by the Minnesota state convention, are $1. Each Legion post collects, in additon, an amount sufficient to defray local expenses, which vary according to the amount of welfare work necessary, club facilities, etc. Total dues are usually $8 per year, which includes 52 issues of the American Legion Weekly, which alone is worth the assessment collected. When a member fails to pay his annual dues by the first of each year, he ceases to be a bona fide member. He may still boost for the Legion, but his support, to be effective, must be backed up by prompt payment of yearly dues.

Down at Kansas City, Gopher delegates from Edward Cutter post No. 102 bore aloft a sign reading "We are the boys from Anoka, Minnesota, the dry town on the Rum river." Legionaires from Ralph Gracie post carried this sign: "We're From Bemidpi, Minnesota, First City on the Mississippi." Writes now L. A. Plant of Anoka: "The boys here have instructed me to secure prices on canoes. Fifteen buddies are already planning a canoe trip down the Mississippi to attend the Fourth National Legion convention at New Orleans in 1922. We'll be there strong, even if we have to swim."

Who says the sun ever sets on the American Legion? At the Kansas Ciay Legion National convention there were Legion delegates seated from Alaska, Africa, Chile, Great Britain, Canada, Panama, China, Cuba, France, Guatemala, Hawaii, Japan, Mexico, Peru, Porto Rico, Palestine, Turkey, as well as from every state in the Union, and the Phillipine Islands. The sun is always shining on buddies whose slogan is "Let's Stick Together."

WONDERFUL WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY THE LITTLE SEAL

Sold For One Cent, They Promote Health, Education, Advancement, Happiness.

The Christmas Seal is the accepted emblem of health, education and advancement. Each seal is sold for one cent. The proceeds of the sale are the means of bringing to the public and to the individual, health education in its various forms. The activities financed by the annual Seal Sale are such as aim to show the needs of individual and public health, to demonstrate how a better public health may be attained.

To these ends, in Minnesota, the seal sale returns have brought to the people of the state messages of health through exhibits, surveys, lectures, the distribution of health literature, the performances before the children of health clowns, and the displaying of moving pictures on health subjects. The seals have also made possible the publication of the Health Journal, which has kept informed the health workers and others on the progress of the health work in the state and county.

To over two hundred thousand children the seals have brought the "hows" of health through the Minnesota Health Crusade, by inculcating in them the habits of health. To the people of Minnesota, for their purchase of the seals, has been given the opportunity for early diagnosis of disease through the health clinics of five different types—baby clinics, nutritional clinics, tuberculosis clinics, eye and ear clinics, and dental clinics. These have been conducted in all parts of Minnesota from the highly organized cities to the remotest hamlet in the state. Six hundred and sixty-eight clinics have been held, with over forty-six thousand examinations. For these activities, and others, the Christmas Seals are sold.

County Agent J. J. McCann is in charge of the seal sales campaign in Pennington county. This neighbor-cord in the sale of these seals and it is hoped that this will be maintained.

What Other Editors Think

THE USUAL REWARD.

Winnebago City Enterprise: It is now nineteen years since the present editor of this paper took possession of the office shears, changed the office towel and began paying the office expenses.

At that time, we were rather a callow kid, with a great and burning ambition to set the world on fire. Now, if we can keep the home fires burning, we are satisfied.

Things looked differently nineteen years ago. The high cost of living had not yet put in its appearance, and room and board at a good hotel could be procured for five dollars a week. If we had thought that the price of board would ever have advanced, we would never have gone into the country newspaper business.

We have had a lot of fun out of the game—and also a lot of grief. We have made a few enemies and a few friends. We have tried to further the best interests of the community, and to publish as good as paper as we are capable of. We haven't grown rich at the business, and still we are several laps ahead of the poorhouse. We have only one wish for the future—and that is that we won't have to put in nineteen more years at the treadmill.

POLITICIANS WILL BE BUSY.

Morris Tribune: Next year will be a year of political marathons, both for office seekers and for voters. The warming up will begin shortly and as soon as the holidays are passed the race will be on in earnest. Candidates for state office this year will submit their claims to a preprimary convention, which will be held some time in the spring. Delegates to the county conventions will be elected on town meeting days, and of course these delegates will determine the attitude of the county conventions which send delegates to state and district conventions, so of course candidates will give due attention to the selection of such delegates. Then will come the primaries in June, where the candidates selected at conventions will have an advantage but where popular approval will still be necessary before the candidates become recognized as party nominees. Then through the summer and fall will run the campaign for final election in November. In order to be a candidate for public office, a man should have plenty of time, plenty of money, and a well-sustained ambition for political preferment.

CHILDREN MORE IMPORTANT.

Redwood Falls Gazette: We hope the farmer who is arranging ways and means whereby his hogs are having one or two meals of warm food each day during the winter months, is taking the same thought of his children and seeing that school lunches contain at least one warm dish each day. We wonder how some of the different fathers and mothers would enjoy eating a lunch of bread, meat and doughnuts, with possibly an apple for dessert, after it had been carried in a tin pail for a mile or two in below-freezing weather. Common humanity demands that the school lunch be made palatable, nutritious and to consist of real food. Real food, in cold weather, means warm food.

MORE BUILDINGS NEEDED.

Wells Mirror: The best and surest remedy for the present unemployment and stagnation of business lies in the revival of building, says a man well versed in the matter.

There seems to be little doubt by the man in the inner circle of the building material business, that building material has reached the lowest price that can be expected, and some items have already started to advance in price. There is little prospect of cheaper building in the future and the people that build now will be the fortunate ones.

With labor plentiful and material reasonable in price, this fall and winter are the logical times for building operations. The shortage of homes and other buildings can furnish ample work to keep every man employed for a long time to come, and will be an incentive for thrift that America is sorely in need of. A little building boom would be a great thing for this community.

LET'S HOPE IT'S COMING.

Ivanhoe Times: Prosperity seems a long time in returning. But don't let a little thing like that jar you. The longer the delay the more you will appreciate it when it does arrive.

In the meantime none of us are suffering very much. In fact, we are very well off, considering the chaotic condition of the rest of the world.

Just keep a grip on your optimism and don't let your energy lag behind. No quitter has ever yet succeeded in getting rich.

SETTING POOR EXAMPLE.

Wabasha Herald: Right down in Washington where the eighteenth amendment originated, and where the men are located who put it across, we hear that there is more booze, and drinking, and bootlegging than in any other like section of the United States. If charity should begin at home, then we should think that prohibition enforcement should likewise start in the nation's capital, that the remainder of the country might be benefitted by the example.

Dec. 20 is Red Letter Day.

The Junior Class play, "Ruth in a Rush," which is to be given at the [illegible]itorium next Tuesday evening, is [illegible]apidly and it is assured [illegible]g will be worked out [illegible]. The members of the [illegible]ception, are suited to [illegible] have been practicing [illegible] "Ruth in a Rush" is not es[illegible] a comedy, there is much [illegible]mor and the play as a whole is very flexible to likes and dislikes.

The expense of producing such an extraordinary play is light and if the student body will lend its support, it can be assured that at least a reasonable profit can be made. The profits are to be used to defray the expenses of the Junior-Senior banquet, so it is imperative that the Juniors and Seniors lend their support, and when they sit down at the Junior-Senior banquet they will sit down to a swell feed.

Remember the place—auditorium. Remember the date — Tuesday (next) December 20.—S. A. '23.

Mrs. Rapacz is Enjoyed.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the speaker who had been arranged for, Mrs. Rapacz was prevailed upon to supply the entertainment at the regular chapel period Wednesday. She gave a reading entitled, "Maggie and the Twins," which was so well received that she responded with a second short selection. From the start the pupils were kept in an uproar of merriment as Mrs. Rapacz gave "Maggie's" account of the "twins," her trials and tribulations in caring for them, and the final loss of her job on their account.

The least that can be said of Wednesday's chapel is that everyone thoroughly enjoyed it. The high school student body looks forward with pleasure to hearing her again.

Latin Clubs Have Party.

[illegible] Christmas party of the Boys' [illegible] Latin club was held in the [illegible]nasium of the high school on the evening of December 10. The chief features of the evening were the humorous contests which were staged to the intense amusement of the onlookers, and, later, the distribution by "Santa Claus" of "joke" gifts to everyone present. At ten o'clock a delicious lunch, which had been prepared by the girls of the clubs, was served. An abundance of good music was furnished by those of the pupils who are skilled in the art. When the evening was spent, each one went home with a satisfied feeling that the time had been well spent, and with an unspoken wish that there may be "more Latin club parties and lots of 'em."—M. J.

Candy Sale.

The dramatic club gave a candy sale on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The candy was disposed of in ten minutes, this being sufficient proof that the candy was of the best.

The proceeds amounted to $4.30. This was remitted to the treasury to pay for the pictures that were taken of the class.—V. K. '22.

Debate at Roseau Friday.

Will Lloyd and Ole and Albert bring home Roseau's scalp? Now all together, "Yea, Bo!" Well, maybe they won't, but they are going to put up a mighty good fight for it. [illegible]ave you noticed how thin and pale [illegible] look lately? That's because [illegible] have been burning the midnight [illegible] regularly for a month, preparing and delivering their weighty arguments. And how serious they are becoming! That is due to their heavy responsibilities. They must not only "tell the world," but they must prove to the world the terrible evils which [illegible] result from federal control of [illegible]. Just think what a disas[illegible] inspired youths may avert [illegible]eir fervid pleas! You'd look serious, too! Winning? Oh, that's a secondary matter. Of course they will win—that is, unless there is some little mistake in that matter of judging. Those things do happen, don't you know. But the question is—if they come back flushed with victory Are you all going to be at the station with the town band? And if they come back depressed with defeat are you going to bravely choke back the tears and greet them with a smile? Are you all behind them? Now, all together, "Yea, Bo!!"

Agnes Remmem.

The high school and especially the Freshmen Class were saddened last week when they heard of the death of Agnes Remmem.

Agnes had been a member of the present Freshmen Class from the first grade. She was a very conscientious and persevering student who always secured results; consequently she was numbered among our best students. To show their love and respect, the Freshmen Class attended her funeral in a body.

Mr. Coffin Addresses High School.

Mr. Coffin of the State Y. M. C. A. addressed the high school pupils on Tuesday morning, choosing as his topic, "Dying on Third." He showed that in the game of life, most of us at least reach "first," some reach "second," and some reach "third," but how few are those who finally "score." He illustrated his talk with many jokes and stories, which served to bring out his points more clearly. "Someone has stated," said Mr. Coffin, "that the only difference between a beggar and a rich man is the way in which each uses his time. It is our leisure moments," he continued, "that make or break us." As he showed, some people use their spare moments in preparing for the future, and so, by doing just a little more than others, attain positions of leadership. He closed his talk with the admonition, "Don't die on third."

Made First Appearance.

The High School Girls' Glee club of 1921 made its first successful appearance last Monday evening at the Parent-Teacher meeting. Two songs rendered by the club were "To a Wild Rose" and "Amaryllis." Both songs were sung with great ability due to Miss Johnson's careful teaching.—A. L. '23.

Stop! Look and Listen!

Attention, public! The number of accidents which happen daily upon our city streets is becoming more and more alarming. Are these accidents due entirely to the carelessness of motorists? No, they are due in a great part to the carelessness of road legislation and also to carelessness in providing playgrounds and parks.

Our highways must be better constructed so as to reduce accidents to a minimum. Especially is this true in regard to country roads. Corners are too sharp and sloping roads are often too precipitous.

Because of poor construction, washouts are imminent after heavy rains. These can be prevented by better construction. But in case of poor construction, for the sake of the much abused insurance company, repair those washouts in a hurry!

In the cities accidents of such a nature happen less often. But think of the number of children who are yearly killed, crippled, or maimed for life because of some street accident! Whose fault is it? Yours, my dear public. As long as children are children they must have some place to play, and they will certainly play upon the streets where their lives are at any moment in danger unless safe playgrounds and parks are provided. An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.—Altha Gabrielson. 8B

A Bigger and Better Thief River Falls.

We can justly be proud of the improvements our city is making. As a direct result of paving our streets will come a desire to keep them clean, not only because it will make your city look more beautiful but it will also make the pavement last longer and keep the streets safe for all kinds of traffic.

Another point that comes under the street cleaning activities of this city and needs a great deal of attention is the cleaning of the alleys in the outlying districts of our city. Alleys never receive the attention they should. Although property owners are required by health ordinances to keep their alleys in a clean and sanitary condition, there is room for a great deal of improvement. Proper police co-operation and the power of the street commissioner to act as a sanitary inspector would tend to improve these conditions. In the down town districts of this city alley cleaning is taken care of by men hired by the city. These men do work similar to that of the white wings of New York. Some of the alleys are well kept, others are in a fairly clean condition, but many are far from what they should be. Often large piles of litter and paper are deposited in the alleys. This makes them very unsightly. Such conditions could easily be bettered by making it some particular officer's business to look after and be responsible for it.

For a city of our size, we have good streets and avenues, and two beautiful parks. Our parks are visited every day during season by hundreds of people from all neighboring cities. Why not build a children's playground, especially equipped with suitable apparatus? Give a child a game to play and he is safe, safe from the temptations that surround youth, safe from evil companions and safe from himself. For it is on the playgrounds, lost in the joyous spirit of play, that the real life of the child is lived. It is there that he learns to subordinate himself to rules, to be loyal to others, to play fair, to win honest victories, to strive; to accomplish that which he sets before him to do. This is true training, training that, by making the child morally and socially safe, will mould him into a fun-loving, forward-looking, self-directing citizen. More than any other single factor, play can make the future safe.

Now is the time to start planning a sufficient number of playgrounds to make the summer months really a benefit to every child in our city. Playing in the house or in dirty streets is not conducive to the kind of health that means the higher type of man or woman in future years. Robust, healthy children are much better fitted to assimilate the education your city offers, than children who are anemic and weak through the lack of essential exercises. Play grounds have long since passed the period of probation. They have proved themselves a success. One or two of the blocks up town that are being used for nothing else might well be set aside permanently for playgrounds.

Now that there are so many other improvements to be paid for in the city the park question is in danger of being set aside until these others are paid for. However, if a suitable location would be donated for a children's playground, many plans would soon present themselves for raising the money to equip it. The people should be informed by letters, circulars, newspaper advertisements, motion pictures, stories and lectures as to what the new project was. After this teams in charge of captains could canvass the whole city and get subscriptions for the park and playground.

If the parks are improved they should have a supervisor, first, to see to it that the park is kept in perfect condition; second, to look out for the welfare of those who patronize it, the children in particular; and third, to visit the homes and give lectures which would arouse an interest among the parents to desire and enjoy the right kind of play in the proper place.

Let it be said of our city that it is never fully satisfied with its present conditions but is always promoting some worthy object that will add to the beauty, usefulness and safety of it and the surrounding country.—Mary Alexander, 8B

Milk, An Important Food Problem.

Milk is unquestionably one of the most important of human foods. It contains practically all the elements which man requires for his sustenance and constitutes his sole dependence throughout the first year of life. In later years milk and its products make up a large proportion of our diet and goes far toward furnishing the total energy expended in accomplishing man's daily tasks.

Yet in spite of these facts, milk is, at least potentially, one of the most dangerous foods which we consume. Instead of producing strength and nourishment, it may engender weakness and death and it is capable of transforming health and vigor into frailty and decay.

The basic ingredient of milk is water, the remaining components either being dissolved or held in suspension by this substance. Ordinary milk contains approximately 87 per cent of water and 13 per cent of solids.

From the food standpoint fat is the most valuable constituent of milk. The amount of fat varies considerably. Many cows produce a milk which contains as high as five per cent of fat, while with others it is lower. The legal standard of the different states varies from three to three and five-tenths per cent.

In addition to proteins and lactose, milk contains certain ferments which are supposed to assist in its digestion. These ferments are killed by temperatures approaching the boiling point, and this has led a number of scientists to believe that boiled milk is less nutritious than raw milk. Various salts of lime, soda, and potash are also present in milk.

Milk readily absorbs odors, and the flavor may be modified by various articles with which it comes in contact. Cattle which have been fed on fermented foods, ensilage which is too green, moldy grain, and distillery waste almost invariably secrete milk of a distinctive odor.

All milk contains bacteria in greater or less degree. Most of the bacteria are altogether harmless, while a few are exceptionally dangerous. The lactic acid bacilli are not dangerous but the disease-producing variety are very dangerous.

Outbreaks of diseases produced by milk usually present certain distinguishing characteristics which serve to determine their source. Diseases brought about by milk are typhoid fever, malta fever, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, diphtheria, septic sore throat, foot-and-mouth disease, and diarhhoea and enteritis

An important consideration in the production of milk is to avoid the entrance of dirt and bacteria. Any intelligent farmer can in a short time be taught how to produce a clean, sanitary milk. The principles involved require that certain rules of cleanliness be enforced. The following are the essentials: healthy stock, a careful milker, only covered or hooded milking pails should be used, sterile containers only should be used, and the milk should be properly refrigerated.

The care of milk in the home is not the least important of the measures for disease prevention. The container should be removed to the refrigerator as soon after it is received as possible. The milk should be retained in the bottle or kept constantly covered. Upon the occurence of any contagious disease in the house, the milk bottles should be returned to the dealer only with the knowledge and consent of the board of health.

In order that the measures previously outlined may be enforced, the majority of progressive communities have established what is known as dairy inspection, a procedure usually carried out by the health department. The sole object of dairy inspection is to make milk safe and thus to insure community protection against disease.

The purpose of pasteurization is to kill the harmful bacteria which milk contains. Milk which has been adequately pasteurized is therefore to be regarded as the safest milk which one can consume. The single remaining safeguard against the transmission of disease by milk to be considered is boiling.

In cities and larger towns no fundamental difficulties are now met with in furnishing bacteriologically clean milk. But the advances made in recent years in this field have not been extended to small towns.

There are two well-known methods of obtaining a safe milk supply: (1) sanitary control of the production and distribution of the milk, and (2) pasteurization.

Milk is the most important of human foods and care should be taken that the milk is clean and sanitary.—Elsie Vorseth, 8B.

Our Best Nourishment.

Milk is the best food we have. It has no substitute. Everybody needs it and should have at least one pint a day, and growing children need one quart. Although it looks like a simple fluid it is very complex. One can get the same nourishment from one quart of milk as from a mixed diet of meat, eggs, sugar, cereals, oils and fats, with salt and water.

Milk is good fuel because it contains fat and sugar for the body. The body needs fuel to keep it warm and make it work, move and play. It is a perfect food for father, mother and children, because it is an energy food and supplies essential elements which make bone, brawn and blood, in one word, muscles. Milk also contains a great deal of lime which children need especially for their teeth and bones.

Many people drink milk to quench their thirst. This is wrong because milk is not a beverage to quench thirst. It is a food that should be eaten and not swallowed quickly. Small sips should be taken and rolled about the mouth in enjoyment. This will prevent hard and indigestible curds forming in the stomach.

Babies should have breast milk because cow milk, even though it is good, is not the best milk for infants.

Cow's milk is often exposed to dust, flies and dirt, and frequently it is not used till three or four days old. A breast-fed baby does not need to fear stale and partly decomposed milk, containing dirt and germs.

The breast-fed baby is God's plan while the bottle-fed baby is the plan that was not intended for babies but for foster children.

Give the children plenty of milk and it will help them to grow up strong and well. Save on other things if you must, but do not save on milk.

Cows are many times sickly. There are a great many diseases that a cow may have that people may also have. Typhoid fever, malta fever, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, diphtheria, septic sore throat, enteritis, and foot-and-mouth disease are examples.

The most dangerous of these are fevers, tuberculosis and diptheria. Typhoid fever is one of the most fatal diseases conveyed by milk. It is due to a specific germ, the bacilli, which gains entrance to the system through the mouth. They grow so quickly, that within a few hours there is a great supply which distributes the infection far and wide. Every case of typhoid fever arises from a pre-existing case, and milk only serves as one of the means of transference of the bacilli germ from infected cows to those who are well.

Milk harbors bacteria of many varieties and favors their growth and development. If these organisms are of the disease-producing kind, serious and contagious epidemics may result.

Inspection of dairies is a proper and necessary measure, and for this to be recommended.

—Ruby Aaseby, 8B

Get Compliments on Health Stories.

E. J. Henryson of the Minnesota Health Journal, has written a letter complimenting the boys and girls of the seventh and eighth grades on the excellence of the stories on health written by them in a recent statewide contest. Mr. Henryson calls attention to the progress made in health conservation during the past few years and says he hopes the children of today will continue the good work. His letter follows:

"To the Boys and Girls of the Seventh and Eighth Grades: Your splendid stories on health were forwarded to me by your school nurse. It did the editor's old heart good to see how many had grasped clearly the general principles of personal hygiene and public health. Had the generations of yesterday, and those before, your advantages of knowing and learning of disease, and its prevention, there is no doubt that we of today would have a more healthy race.

"Already the education of the public on matters of disease has begun to bear fruit. Only a few years ago—let us take the year 1912—out of every one hundred thousand people in Minnesota, one hundred and eight died of tuberculosis; in 1920, the last figures show us that out of every one hundred thousand people, only ninety people died of tuberculosis. This is a great gain for so short a period, but the number of deaths is yet far too high. By continuing to learn how to live healthy lives we can reduce, not only the death rate of tuberculosis, but the death rate of all preventable diseases. The health of the state depends upon you future citizens. We are counting on you."

Prospects.

Were I a young man,
Pursuing a plan
To get me a wife
To live with me through life.
I'd make it a rule
In Thief River high school
'Mongst the maidens so fine
To cast out my line.

About my first task
Would be the teachers to ask
If the girl in her work
Was accustomed to shirk.
And then I'd inquire
If she did aspire
To have her report
Show "A" in deport.

And then I would look
Through her desk and her book
To discover if she
A neat housekeeper 'd be.
And then a swift glance
To see if by chance
Around on the floor
There was paper galore.

If this I should find—
There are girls of that kind—
I'd think of my home
And leave her alone.
For I'd hate like the dickens
To limit my "pickin's"
To girls that are slouchy!
Give me rather the grouchy!

And were I a girl
With a dimple and curl;
With talents and beauty
Ever mindful of duty,
In a similar way
The boys I'd array
And make my selection
After careful inspection.

In the very first place
In this marital race
I'd want to discover
Who's kind to his mother.
Then, next on the list,
I'd surely insist
He must be ambitious—
If he'd call ME his "missus."

Then, he must be clean
In mind, speech, and mien.
He, too, must be happy,
Industrious and "snappy,"
Respectful, dependable,
A student commendable
And of genuine "stuff"
Wihtout any bluff. —"Ex."

Will Open Beauty Parlor.

Miss Caspara J. Gran announces that she will open a beauty parlor in Thief River Falls on Wednesday of next week. It will be located in the Grundy block over the Minnesota Candy Kitchen. The very latest equipment has been installed for the convenience of the patrons. Miss Gran has just completed a course in beauty culture at the Mme. DeGuile Beauty College in Minneapolis. This city should be an admirable location for an establishment of this kind and Miss Gran will undoubtedly enjoy a splendid patronage.

Public Forum

Unjust Laws the Cause.

Editor Times: In speaking about our existing conditions many conflicting reasons have been given, but the direct cause has not been touched upon. Our wires have simply got crossed, that's all. Instead of speaking for the poor man, we have been speaking for the rich man. Our country is suffering today from unjust laws and for the want of just laws. We are simply living in a time of greed and selfishness, with the almighty dollar as the only goal of our ambition. No wonder that all channels of justice have become stagnant and cannot be made to function in matters of public welfare.

Unjust laws is the direct cause of our country's plight today—there is no other reason. This talk about our country going through the reconstruction stage is all hot air. We have had no reconstruction losses imposed upon us, as neither state nor national affairs have been adjusted upon any definite reconstruction basis thus far. We have been made to sacrifice and suffer—not for the good of the country, but simply to satisfy the craving of those who live and prosper through the present system of unjust laws.

When reconstruction in reality becomes a fact, then we as good American citizens will not object to shouldering our part of the burden in placing the old world back onto its right foundation. But we do object to further sacrifice and suffering in order to feed the vultures that feast upon our sufferings through their system of unjust laws.

Reconstruction in reality will not take place until those who suffer and sacrifice lay the foundation themselves for it. It is up to them to solve the problem, and they are going to do it.

We have no time to waste on either "gas" or "bullets"—we are going to get right into the front line trenches and plead and fight for human rights in the forum of public opinion.

We are going to build from the ground up. There will be no more patching or remodeling done. What we want is new ideas, new ideals, new plans, new methods. Let us have something shaped from a moral point of view—real reconstruction timber.

We would suggest that the editor of The Times assign to its readers a corner to be known as "The Reconstruction Corner," where vital questions can be discussed.

We have the power in our hands to accomplish, if we only apply a system in our undertakings. Let us lay all party labels aside and all unite for the final drive for justice. We have among the rank and file of the rural population and others, both men and women, who are fully capable of taking an active part in bringing the old world back to where our forefathers left it.

A little consideration and kindness on our part at this time would greatly help to smoothen out some of the rough places in this old world.

Speak up and let us know where you stand. Let our affection flow out for our fellowman. Let us make the American flag the flag for all mankind.

W. A. SWANSON.

Writes From Colorado

Editor Times: Boulder county, a section of northern Colorado, is an exceptionally good small grain and alfalfa country. The soil is a heavy clay, well supplied with potash and phosphorus, and the yields of such grains as wheat, barley and oats average above all other counties. The winters are dry and winter wheat is never killed. The sugar beet is coming more and more to the front as it has proved to be the best paying product that can be raised here. There are about 5,000 acres of beets in the county.

Dairying on both a large and small scale has proved very successful. The city of Denver alone consumes over $5,000,000 worth of dairy products a year.

Around Boulder there are a number of small farms—from one to ten acres—devoted to fruit and chicken raising. There seem to be a gold mine. One farmer, only a mile from town, is selling $10 worth of eggs every day and in addition disposes of a number of chickens every week. Eggs are now 70c to 80c per dozen, butter 45c per pound, cream 22c per pint, milk 10c per quart delivered and 8c at stores. Skim milk is 10c a gallon. Meat is cheap but other necessities are about the same price as at Thief River Falls.

Anyone having the means to obtain a few hundred chickens and either buy or rent a place would have a nice income and good interest on his investment.

It appears that Boulder needs a few hundred more houses as rent is very high. In most cases it is cheaper to buy property on monthly payments, and a real bargain may be had if one takes the time to look around.

As to the climate will state that for my part I think there is none better. I have talked with several parties who sold out here and went to California, but in most cases these are glad to get back. This is not the case with people who go to Cal*ifornia from Minnesota and the Da*kotas. They seem to find things better, largely because of the climate.

A person seeking health will find at Boulder a clear, bright atmosphere, the tonic of pine trees and mountain tops, pure, sparkling water and wholesome food at his disposal. The days are warm, not hot, while the nights are just what one wants them to be.

The Boulder sanatorium is the best in any state and conducted on the same principal as the famous Battle Creek sanatorium. It is located at the foot of Mount Sanitas at the entrance of Sunshine canyon. The spot is well chosen for securing quiet and for giving patients a sight of the great mountains to the west, north and south, and the farm lands on the east.

A lot could be written about the mining here, but will simply men- [illegible] silver, lead, copper and zink are produced. I have been told that seven other metals are found here, but what interests me most is the number of coal mines. The coal is delivered at the bins at from $5.50 to $9.00 per ton, light is cheap and water costs $22 per year regardless of the amount used. This is for a dwelling having one complete bath room, water for kitchen and basement and all needed for lawn and garden. In the summer there are all kinds of flowers and fruits. Potatoes can not be produced near here for some reason. The grass will come up and look fine but that is all. The potatoes will be like peas or small nuts.

The schools are known as the best in the state and I am told there are about 2,000 students at the university.

"Dr." S. R. Kirby is in trouble with the North Dakota Medical association and will have a hearing at Grand Forks today on a charge of practicing medicine without a license. The Grand Forks Herald of last Friday morning gives the following account of the arrest:

"Dr. S. R. Kirby, widely known for his treatment of various diseases through the use of blisters, was arrested last night at Northwood, where he has been practicing for the last two months, on charges of practicing medicine without a license, filed by Dr. C. M. Williamson of this city, acting in his official capacity as secretary of the North Dakota board of medical examiners.

"Kirby was arrested at 6 o'clock and immediately brought to Grand Forks, where he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Phil McLoughlin. The preliminary hearing was set for 2 o'clock next Thursday afternoon. Bonds were set at $500 and furnished by A. O. Ellingson, a Northwood banker, who accompanied the defendant here. Kirby returned to his place of business last night and, it is understood, will continue his practice pending his appearance before the local courts.

"It was while operating at a country place near Thief River Falls, Minn., that 'Dr.' Kirby became known to Grand Forks people. He used a home-made medicine in his treatment of diseases, mostly tuberculosis, the medicine being used to blister the throats of the patients. The treatments attracted wide attention and drew patients to Thief River Falls in large numbers.

At Thief River Falls.

"Residents of Northwood, it is said, believed the practitioner would be an asset to their town, and a petition was made for 'Dr.' Kirby to move to Northwood, which was done about two months ago. Since taking in the new attraction Northwood is said to have enjoyed a boom. An assistant claims the average number of patients treated daily to be about 75, and that the hospital, hotels and houses are filled with patients undergoing treatment.

"Offices, where most of the patients are received, are in the Farmers' store building. However, the specialist, it is said, also makes trips into the country and to nearby towns to treat special cases. Two assistants are employed. They are Oscar Korsmo and Sever Pladsen. An office assistant makes up the remainder of the force.

Complaints Made.

"In commenting on the reasons for the arrest it was said that many complaints have been made about results suffered from the treatments, especially as some deaths had occurred. Dr. Williamson said it was found advisable to cause the arrest because of the number of inquiries as to why a person was allowed to prescribe medicine for and treat diseases without a state license.

"Mr. Ellingson, the Northwood banker, said 'the whole country is strong fo rthe doctor and will back Falls He claimed to have become many patients would appear at the trial to testify in behalf of the defendant.

"'Dr.' Kirby, when asked about his practice, said he had followed it off and on for the last twelve years, first at Long Beach, Cal., and then for about five years at Thief River Falls. He claime dto have become interested in the treatment of diseases through the illness and death of his wife. Mrs. Kirby, he says, was in ill health for about eight years, during which time many different physicians treated her. It was this experience, he said, which caused him to investigate and have faith in the medicine he now uses in treating others."

Mrs. Paulson Dead.

Word has been received by friends in this city of the death of Mrs. Sophie M. Paulson, mother of Dr. A. J. Paulson, at Watertown, S. D., on Dec. 9. Interment was at Norwegian Grove cemetery, Pelican Rapids, on Dec. 14. Mrs. Paulson lived with her son in this city for three or four years and had many friends who will be grieved to learn of her death.

George Fowler of Fargo spent a few days last week visiting with his nephew, Wm. Smithers, Knight avenue north.

BE RID OF THAT ACHE

If you are a sufferer with lame back, backache, dizziness, nervousness and kidney disorders, why don't you try the remedy that your own neighbors recommend? Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. Peter Eberhardt, 211 Atlantic Ave., Thief River Falls, says: "I suffered with my back and kidneys. My back was weak and lame and ached badly. When I would wash or do any heavy work I suffered the worst. My kidneys were weak and annoyed me. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and it wasn't long before they rid me of all the trouble."

Mrs. Eberhardt gave the above statement Jan. 16, 1914, and on Aug. 6, 1921, she said: "I think Doan's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for kidney trouble. I recommend Doan's for the cure I received years ago and I gladly confirm that statement."

Winter Tour of St. Olaf Choir Starts January 1

The St. Olaf college choir starts out on its winter tour Jan. 1, on which date it appears in Rochester, this state. The next night the great singing organization will be at Decorah, Iowa, after which all the larger cities of the east will be visited. These include Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Akron, Cleveland, Erie, Rochester, N. Y.; Syracuse, Albany, New York city, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Allentown, Baltimore, Lancaster, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Columbus, Butler, Cincinnati, Dayton, Fort Wayne, Rock Island, returning to Minneapolis for a concert on Feb. 6. Whether there will be a Northwestern tour this year is not stated.

A Needed Improvement.

Among the graveling jobs let by the State Highway commission last week was one for the improvement of the 16-mile stretch on the Jefferson highway between Bagley and Clearbrook. The job was awarded for $119,469.01, under a tentative contract which makes it subject to a recheck of low bids. Surfacing contracts covering 350 miles have been awarded to date in carrying out the "more work, better roads" program launched by the State Highway commission.

Winter Seems Breaking Up Before Fairly Setting In

An electrical storm in mid-December is rather an unusual occurence in this latitude, but one such passed over Thief River Falls Sunday night. There was lightning and thunder but no rain here, although a considerable precipitation is reported at Crookston and the nearby country. Contrary to expectations the lightning display was not followed by a snowfall, this holding off until Tuesday, when a small amount fell. The winter thus far has been one of the mildest within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, but people generally will be found knocking on wood when mention is made of the fact. There is still plenty of time for things to become disagreeable, but every day of fine weather is just so much gained.

ASK FOR EMBARGO AGAINST OUR GRAIN

Swedish Farmers Want "Cheap American Wheat" Kept Out of Their Home Market.

Farmers in Sweden have appealed to their government for an embargo against "cheap American wheat," C. H. Gustafson, president of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., says in a letter to the Pennington County Farm bureau, urging the farmers to unite in a demand for a federal investigation of present "ruinous prices" of wheat

Mr. Gustafson's communication, sent out to farmers' organizations throughout the grain belt of the United States, charges that wheat prices are being "hammered down to the dollar mark and grain growers are being led to believe that a weakened foreign demand will not require a normal exportable surplus, in the face of a 1921 export trade 90,000,000 bushels larger than last year's."

County farm bureaus in Minnesota, together with farm organizations in other states, were urged to demand immediate passage by congress of the senate resolution authorizing the federal trade commission to investigate the grain export trade.

Druggists Warned Not to Load Up on War Stamps

The following statement is issued by L. M. Willcuts, collector of internal revenue for the district of Minnesota:

"Enactment of the new revenue legislation has brought to the office of the collector of internal revenues at St. Paul a flood of inquiries regarding the various provisions of the act.

"At this time the attention of druggists who sell perfume, cosmetics, proprietary medicines, etc., is particularly called to the fact that the stamp tax on these articles has been repealed, effective Jan. 1, 1922. Any dealer who has proprietary stamps on hand after that date may make a claim for refund for the face value of these stamps. Such a claim is first reviewed in the office of the collector of internal revenue and then forwarded to Washington for final settlement. This procedure, of a necessity, consumes several months.

"Therefore all dealers are urged at this time to limit their purchases of proprietary stamps to just such quantity as will take care of their actual needs between now and Jan. 1, so that they will not have a quantity of stamps on hand after the repeal of the tax, for the refund of which it will be necessary to file a claim."

STRENGTHEN RURAL SCHOOLS OF STATE AIM OF LAW ASKED

Three Mil Tax to Equalize Educational Cost Proposed at Association Conference.

Strengthening of rural school systems in Minnesota as a means of equalizing education in the state was made one of the 10 planks in the legislative platform of the Minnesota Educational association at its legislative conference in Minneapolis Saturday. A publicity committee with power to conduct a statewide campaign on behalf of the legislative program was authorized at the closing meeting of the two day session. The board of directors is to name the committee later.

Indorsement of a plan to establish courses of instruction on the workings of the postal system of the United States in the public schools was given following an address by Postmaster E. A. Purdy. The plan originated recently in Minneapolis. Teaching children the proper methods in mailing and addressing and stressing the "sanctity" of the mail box are aimed at in the project, Mr. Purdy said.

Town Education Boards Asked.

Reports of the 10 committees chosen to consider separate proposals for the legislative program were embodied in the plans. The conference went or record as favoring:

Creation of town boards of education with power to change the boundary lines of their school districts; employment of full time clerks for county superintendents of schools; employment of helpers for rural teachers; appointment of county superintendents of schools by county boards of education; empowering county boards of education to fix salaries of superintendents and to authorize employment of assistants to the superintendents.

Legislation designed to enforce compulsory attendance in schools and providing part time schools for those unable to attend regularly.

Favor Additional 3 Mill Tax.

Legislation favoring a 3 mill state tax to equalize the cost of education in Minnesota, the levy to produce $4,500,000 a year; this in addition to the 1 mill levy now used for similar purposes.

An actuarial investigation to determine extent of needs for improving teachers' insurance and retirement provisions and drawing a bill for the legislature.

Establishment of night classes for adults in all schools under state supervision and maintained in part by the state.

Compulsory physical training for all children.

Use of graduating scales in the homes, enabling parents to prepare children for beginning school, and continuation of the work of the kindergarten committee before preparing a legislative recommendation.

Courses to Train Librarians.

Establishment of courses in the state teachers' colleges for training librarians.

Delay of legislative recommendations for a teachers' tenure law.

Action at a general meeting to determine a stand on professional standards for teachers and means for teachers' training.

The legislative platform will be presented to the interim commission of the Minnesota legislature by a committee to be named by the association, Phillip E. Carlson, president, said at the close of the conference, which was attended by the presidents of the nine divisions of the association, cit yand county superintendents, principals and teachers.

SLUMP PREDICTED FOR POOR BUTTER

State Association Would Abolish Manufacture of Inferior Product to Prevent Loss.

The bottom threatens to drop out of the market for butter of inferior quality, the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association, Inc., says in a message to its 250 creameries.

"The bottom dropped out of the price of poor butter last winter," the warning says. "At one time there was a difference of 15 cents a pound between good and poor butter. It looks as though the same thing would happen again this winter, creating an even worse condition. The market is being flooded with poor butter. Any co-operative creamery that makes a poor product has to compete with this flood of inferior butter."

Asserting that no other work on the farm pays as well as the work of getting cream to the creamery while pure and sweet, to guarantee good butter, the new state dairy service agency issued a set of rules to be posted on the door of every co-operative creamery in its wembership.

These rules, drawn up to help prevent losses through the shipment of low-grade butter, suggest: Frequent delivery of cream by co-operation in hauling; care in milking to prevent dirt from dropping into the milk and leaving a flavor in the butter; thorough washing and scalding of pails, cans, strainers and separators; cooling cream in cold water immediately after separating, and never mixing warm and cold cream, or leaving the cream where air is impure; talking with the buttermaker and becoming an expert judge of cream.

HARDING APPROVES SEAL SALE IN FIGHT ON DREAED DISEASE

Minnesota Records Show State as Making Better Record Than Country as Whole.

success of the campaign against tuberculosis, as shown by the decline of the death rate in 1920, to the remarkably lo wlevel of 114 per 100,000," says President Harding.

"The enormous saving of life reflected by these figures clearly indicates the success of the work of the National Tuberculosis association and its affiliated organizations.

"As honorary vice president of the association, I will be glad to have you convey to all who are interested in the prevention of tuberculosis, my earnest hope that the coming fourteenth annual Christmas Seal sale may be completely successful, in order that your splendid work may be further developed. I trust that there may be a generous response to your appeal."

The Minnesota Public Health association and the Pennington County Public Health association are representatives in Minnesota of the National Tuberculosis association.

The death rate in Minnesota in 1920 from tuberculosis was 90 per 100,000 of population, much lower than the country as a whole.

Let us keep up the winning fight by buying Christmas Seals.

PRICE ADJUSTMENT AT STANDSTILL AS CONCERNS FARMER

Average Commodity Cost Higher, With Agricultural Products Still Falling.

Price readjustment is at a standstill, with the products of the farm left at a disastrous disadvantage in relative purchasing power, the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation says in a statement analyzing the trend of prices.

The statement was based on the wholesale price index prepared by the federal bureau of labor statistics, and data gathered by the research department of the national farm bureau organization.

"Reconstruction is failing to reconstruct the purchasing power of the farmer's produtes," the state farm bureau declared. "The record of commodity prices since April indicates that the decline in prices has almost spent itself, although a comparison of levels in September and October shows that the farm product and food groups, including many commodities just as they come from the farm, are still falling.

"The prices of the necessities of life appear to be marking time, with the great agricultural population still under a handicap so serious that its buying power is not recovering. It must recover before the real revival of industry and business can take place."

The farm bureau statement quotes figures of the bureau of labor statistics to show that since June, 1921, the average price level of all commodities has risen, instead of declining.

"Taking the 1913 price level as 100, the level in June, 1921, stood at 148, having declined from 177 since January. But in October, the level had risen again to 150. This development might be taken as an indication that the price level can be expected to remain considerably above the 1913 level.

"From the standpoint of the farmer, the fact remains that no definite improvement has been made during the last several months toward accomplishing a more equitable exchange relation between his products and those which he must purchase.

"The farm products group, as listed by the federal bureau of labor statistics, was three points lower in October than it was in September, and the food group had declined four points. In the same period, clothing had advanced three points, fuel and lighting had gone up four points, metals had advanced one point and chemicals had remained at their September price level.

"To offset the continued deflation of farm products, there was only a one per cent decline in building materials, which stand next to the highest in the list of commodity prices after many months of 'deflation,' and a decline of five per cent in house furnishings, whose price level is so high that this small drop is insignificant."

Farm products, food and metals were the only groups whose level was lower than the general price average for all price commodities in October, the statement continued, pointing out that farm products stood at the foot of the list, 31 points below the average price of all commodities.

"There can be but one conclusion from such data," the federation concluded. "No substantial improvement can be effected in industrial conditions until the prices of the commodities which the farmer must purchase have been sufficiently deflated."

Two Young Men Injured in Very Peculiar Accident

St. Hilaire Spectator: Arthur and Elmer Rux, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rux, had a lucky escape from death in a peculiar accident Wednesday afternoon. The boys were going for a load of hay and carried with them a loaded shot gun. Coming to the stack, they set the gun on the ground, leaning it against the rack. Elmer had just got on the stack and pitched a forkful of hay onto the rack when the gun, in some unaccountable manner, discharged. The charge passed through Arthur's hand, tearing away the tendons and crushing the bones under the little finger joint. Elmer, who was in direct line, was peppered in the shoulder and also got some shots in the head. Two or more pellets passed through his ear and lodged under the skin of the head.

Dr. Bjerken made a flying trip out to the Rux place in response to a phone call appraising him of the accident. He dressed the wounds and took precautions to prevent any complications setting in.

American Legion Corner

The National Council of the Boy Scouts of America declares: "The Boy Scouts of America are glad to know that their big brothers of the Legion indorse the Boy Scout movement and are anxious to co-operate in their various community undertakings. Boy Scouts respect the men who held the front-line trenches while the younger lads at home were gallantly raising war gardens and selling Liberty Bonds for the same cause and in the same high spirit."

Eveleth Legion Post, in co-operation with Boy Scout leaders, is organizing the fifth Boy Scout Troop in the community, to be known as "American Legion Boy Scout Troop No. 5," and, at the request of the Boy Scout officers, to be composed only of sons, brothers or nephews of Legionaires. Legionaire Sam Owens will be the Scoutmaster, and the Eveleth Legion post will give the Scouts the use of their club rooms for one night each week.

"We are not cranks on Flag observance but we insists that all due respect be shown Old Glory. Our example will have a lasting effect on our future citizens," declared Hibbing Legionaires in calling attention to incidents where the flag on the School buildings was allowed to touch the ground when taken down at sunset. "The flag should not touch the ground—it should be caught in the arms of the person who is taking it down."

Legion State Commander VanDyke is willing to wager that in all America there are no finer Legion post officers than those of Minnesota. As the State Commander says, he has no fear that the incoming post officers will fail to meet and surmount every obstacle the coming year may bring. "I am confident that no year in the Legion's history will see such great achievements as those of 1922," declares Commander Van Dyke.

Thanksgiving Day, Twin City Legion Auxiliary members feasted more than one thousand unemployed former service men. The feast was followed by free entertainment at various Twin City theatres. Similar arrangements have been made for Christmas day. In addition, St. Paul East Side Auxiliary Unit will give a Christmas party to all the school children of that community.

Parcel postmen of Minneapolis often wonder whether Minnesota Legion Auxiliary Headquarters, 900 Plymouth Building, is the headquarters of a patriotic society or a wholesale fruit, candy, knitted goods and merchandise center. Every day boxes of apples, oranges, candy, canned fruit, jelly, sweaters, bathrobes, night gowns, etc., arrive from the 250 Auxiliary units through Minnesota, for distribution to the sick soldiers in the Twin City government hospitals.

December will see the election of one hundred thousand Legion post officers. There are eleven thousand Legion posts, each of which elects ten officers, including commander, treasurer, two vice commanders, chaplain, historian, sergeant-at-arms, athletic director, entertainment director, and publicity officer. The appointment of the post adjutant is usually left to the commander. As a rule, the adjutant handles service and employment problems, in addition to his other duties.

AGENT APPROVES PROJECTED ROAD ON RESERVATION

George W. Cross, in Charge at Red Lake, Sanctions Construction of Highway.

Would Provide Only Outlet For Large Amount of Products Now Going to Waste.

People of Entire Red River Valley Interested in Success of Undertaking.

A most important boost was given the project to construct a modern highway from the eastern boundary of Pennington county to the Red lakes when approval of the enterprise was secured from George W. Cross, Indian agent at Red Lake. Daniel Shaw and L. R. Johnston of the Commercial club committee appointed to take up the matter with federal and state officials, made a trip to the agency on Friday for the purpose of placing the proposition before Mr. Cross. It was realized that his approval and that of the Indians would be necessary before the permission to lay out the road across the reservation could be secured from the department at Washington and that with the sanction of those locally in charge of affairs there would in all likelihood be but little difficulty encountered at Washington.

Reasons For Request.

While Mr. Cross had previously expressed himself as in favor of a road such as that proposed, no steps had been taken to formally lay the matter before him, at the same time pointing out some of tre more important reasons for asking the construction of the highway. Accordingly the following brief outline of the advantages certain to accrue to Indians and reservation generally was presented by the committee:

"That the construction of the proposed road would open up a portion of the reservation that is now practically inaccessible, and that being an extension of a good highway traversing well settled communities to the west, would enable the marketing of a large amount of hay each season. It would also open a market for wood products, great quantities of which are going to waste on the reservation each year. There is a growing demand for poles, posts, cordwood, ties and lumber, and this would open a way to market.

"By reason of lack of roads to the west, settlement has been confined very largely to the south side of the lake. At present the product of the fishery is shipped south into a region of lakes and fish, while the entire Red River valley, without a fishing industry of any kind, is the nearest and natural market.

"It will encourage the Indian to strike out for himself on that portion of the land that has been described as inaccessible by affording an easy route to market.

"It will also afford the residents of the Red River valley an opportunity to visit Red lake, a large and attractive body of water. This feature should not be lightly regarded. Tourists would reach the lake at a point some distance from present Indian settlement."

Takes Favorable Action.

Mr. Cross was convinced that the construction of this road would be of great benefit to the Indians, and as it required no outlay of funds belonging to them he assured the committee he would do anything he could to further the project. The highway will open up a section of the reservation now almost closed to the outside world and will thus give an added outlet for the varied products of the Indians. Commodities of great value, particularly in hay and timber, now going to absolute waste every year, will be saved through this new outlet to the Red River valley. The possibilities of the trade in forest products alone is sufficient to warrant the construction of the road in the opinion of those best and most thoroughly acquainted with the situation. This section is also the natural market for the vast amount of fresh fish secured every year by the Indians.

Large Section Interested.

Making the Red lakes accessible would provide an ideal summer resort for the people of the valley. Nothing of the kind is now within their reach except at long distances from their homes. Arrangements could be made with the Indian authorities for rights to construct cottages on plots secured by lease for a stipulated term of years, permission for which now is granted under the law. The establishment of a regular summer colony at this particular point would in no manner interfere with the Indians, these being settled for the most part on the south side of the lake, and would as a matter of fact lend value to a section of their reserve now absolutely of no use to them or anyone else.

A large section is interested in the successful carrying out of this project and every effort will be made to have action taken by the department at an early date.

Boy Scouts Have Gym.

Boy Scout troops in Thief River Falls have been extended the use of Lincoln school gymnasium for their winter activities and will meet regularly every Monday night hereafter. Scout Master E. A. Soltau desires that all boys over 12 years old who contemplate joining the scouts do so now and get the benefit of the winter instructions. They should appear at the gym on Monday night for registration.

Ask to Be Excused From Making Drive For Funds

A meeting of the Pennington County Russian Relief committee was held at the Commercial club rooms Tuesday night, at which it was decided not to put on a drive or launch a campaign for the gathering of funds at this time. A letter has been sent to Gov. Preus explaining that the section is in no shape to meet any extraordinary expenses just now and the money for this particular purpose will have to be raised where it is more plentiful. While regretting that this action is found upon them, the committee members cannot see their way clear to act differently. This is perhaps the first time Pennington county people have asked to be excused when a cry for help was sounded, but circumstances are such that attempting to make the collection would not be advisable even though there might be a possibility of its being successful. Continuous drives for funds are getting on the nerves of people, not only in this neighborhood, but all over the country.

NEXT GRAND JURY WILL HAVE THREE WOMEN MEMBERS

For First Time in County's History Gentler Sex Will Help Find Indictments.

Evil-doers in Pennington county will have added cause for being apprehensive at this time. As members of the grand jury which convenes on Tuesday, Feb. 7, three women will serve, this being the first time in history that such a thing has happened. The pioneers in this field are Mrs. Andrew Bottelson, Thief River Falls; Mrs. G. W. Hooper, St. Hilaire, and Mrs. J. W. Denhart, River Falls township. Other members of the grand jury are as follows: L. E. Miller and Jorgen Eide, North; Herman Ortloff, Sanders; N. A. Leimers, Roy Lambert and Ralph M. Sheldon, Thief River Falls; Charley Johnson and J. W. Bugge, Numedal; John Maakrud and T. J. Sumpter, River Falls; J. M. Schie, Cloverleaf; Theodore Berg, Reiner.

There are no women members of the petit jury, which will be made up of the following:

Tom Belland and Oleander Uglem, Reiner; Thor Sanders, Smiley; Arne Gunderson, S. J. Jervold and Gunder Olson, Kratka; Bernt Tanem, Goodridge; T. T. Kvale, Hickory; George Singer, Deer Park; C. M. NO TRANSFERS OF RED CROSS FUNDS FOR ANY PURPOSE

Cannot Even Be Used Locally By Branches Without Approval of Headquarters.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Pennington county chapter, American Red Cross, was held in the Commercial club rooms on Tuesday afternoon, there being a fair attendance. Chairman W. A. Barnard of the recent roll call campaign reported that more than $700 had been collected, most of it in the city. He also said he had been unable to get an accounting from a number of the auxiliaries although having repeatedly requested that all reports be turned in. Mr. Barnard was given a vote of thanks by the committee for his work and the secretary was instructed to extend the appreciation of the chapter to the Girls' Community club for the thorough manner in which the city had been canvassed.

Notice was received of the disbanding of the auxiliary at Plummer and the transferring of the funds held to a local charitable organization. As such action is clearly contrary to the laws of the American Red Cross the Plummer officials will be instructed to send any surplus there may be remaining in the treasury to chapter headquarters at Thief River Falls.

The question of securing a county nurse for the coming year was discussed but no definite action on the proposal was reached. The chapter has sufficient funds to make the hiring of such nurse easily possible and as this is one of the purposes for which the money may be used it is probable that favorable action will be taken.

Dr. M. Geo. Milan, chairman of the chapter, read a communication from Chicago headquarters setting forth some of the things for which the chapter is not allowed to spend money. The rules are very strict and permit of but little leeway General public health work, the relief of distress following a disaster of any kind or in emergency cases, practically covers the field of activities upon which the Red Cross may engage at the discretion of local officers. Transferring of funds to another organization, even though local chapters disband, is strictly forbidden.

ATHLETICS TACKLE BEMIDJI IN INITIAL GAME HERE FRIDAY

Basketball Fans Assured Great Exhibition When Season Opens Here Tomorrow.

The basketball team of the Thief River Falls Athletic association is not going to be permitted to take a lot of easy ones just to get the practice. The boys will be pitted against one of the fastest and most agressive organizations in the state as an opener for the season when they meet the Bemidji team on the local floor Friday evening. Coach Connell has been putting the invincibles of last season through their paces for three weeks and has added a couple of promising men to his list of terriers. Plummor, Bemidji star of last year, and Carlson, stellar performer for Thief River Falls, will be in the forward positions. Hadrath will start at center and Holzknecht and Brown as guards. This is a scrappy bunch and should give an exhibition of team work that will make the spectators' hair curl. In case any of these happen to be off their feed, however, there are others in the same class ready to take their places. Kiland, Penney, Hermanson and Larson will be all tuned up and ready for action in case any changes are found necessary.

While Thief River Falls is backed to win against the hereditary foe, no one is foolish enough to think there will be any walkaway. Bemidji has not played often enough this season to permit of any prediction as to how they will perform, but if they run true to form and live up to tradition there is bound to be something doing every minute.

The admission charge will be the same as last year—50 and 35 cents. The game will start at 9 o'clock.

BUREAU REPORT SHOWS COUNTY FARM PROGRESS

Large Amount of Constructive Work Accomplished By Association During Year.

Business Men of City Given Credit For Making Possible Continuation of Work.

More Attention Paid to Marketing Feature Than During Any Previous Season.

The annual report of J. J. McCann, county agent, submitted to members of the Pennington County Farm Bureau association, shows that in spite of being handicapped by the withdrawal of any appropriation by the county, a large amount of valuable work was accomplished. The demands made upon the bureau were greater in extent and more diversified in scope than for any previous year. No department was slighted, sufficient money for carrying on the work being provided through the contributions of Thief River Falls business men who, as the report says, "believe that what is good for the country is good for the town, although they benefited only indirectly."

Public Health Work.

While much the greater part of the bureau's activities revolved around problems with which the farmer alone is concerned, a great deal of attention was paid to other matters. Perhaps foremost among these was the promotion of public health. The county agent gave valuable assistance in the handling of the three children's clinics held in the county, was chairman of the Christmas seal campaign, was active in Red Cross work and helped in welfare crusades of all kinds. The health of children in rural districts has been a subject of particular concern during the year and much of the success attending efforts at improvements in this direction should be credited to bureau influence.

Increase In Crops.

The report showed that 65 farmers in the county treated their lands with phosphate, this resulting in an increase of from 250 to 300 per cent in the crop yield. One carload of super-phosphate and four cars of the 16 per cent product were shipped in.

The potato acreage in the county increased from 270 acres in 1919 to 950 acres in 1921. Growers received a total of $98,000 for their potatoes this year, shipping through the Minnesota Potato Growers exchange. The average net price to the farmer was $1.50 per hundredweight.

Eight farmers have 61 acres of certified seed potatoes of very high quality, which will be marketed in the spring.

The legume campaign has increased the acreage of these crops 20 per cent.

Farmers were prepared for grasshopper outbreaks by timely warnings sent out by the farm bureau and instructed in the preparation of bait for the eradication of the pest.

The Minnesota Sugar company granted 100 acres as the Pennington county allotment for planting beets, for which they agreed to provide labor. The cost of raising the beets during the past year was $23 per acre as compared with $90 in some instances in 1920. Seven carloads or 240 tons have been shipped to the factory at Chaska from the county and the industry established on a firm foundation.

Livestock Development.

Pennington county exhibited Guernsey cattle at every fair in northwestern Minnesota during the past year, as well as at the state and national dairy shows. The exhibits created a great deal of attention and received high awards wherever they were shown.

Great impetus has been given boys' and girls' club work. There was an enrollment of 125 in the various calf, sheep, pig, poultry potato and bread baking clubs. Miss Helen Satre of St. Hilaire, won fifth prize in the junior livestock show at South St. Paul.

Record of Helpfulness

The success of the annual community picnic was largely due to the work of the farm bureau.

Three hundred farmers were assisted in keeping their record books and 250 income blanks were computed by the bureau. The number of applications for registry of purebred animals numbered 265. Forty-two thousand pounds of wool were pooled through the bureau and sold to the National Wool warehouse at prices ranging from 12 to 29 cens per pound. Extension short courses were held at Thief River Falls and Goodridge.

Many noted speakers were secured to make addresses to the farmers of the county, among them being W. C. Coffey, dean of the agricultural college; N. J. Holmberg, commissioner, and J. H. Hay, assistant commissioner of agriculture; Dr. F. J. Alway, state division of soils; W. A. McKerrow, livestock expert; B. D. Scott, secretary Minnesota Holstein Breeders' association; W. M. Cavert, farm management, University of Minnesota.

Office Statistics.

Among the other activities of the bureau may be mentioned the securing of 284 laborers for 200 farmers; visiting 1304 farmers during the year; 4,773 office calls relating to county agent's work attended to; 57 meetings held under the auspices of the bureau with a total attendance of 5,075 persons; 1,876 letters mailed; 2,752 telephone calls answered.

MARKET DAYS FOR EVERY MONTH OF 1922 DECIDED ON

Merchants Association to Open New Series During Latter Part of January.

The Merchants association of Thief River Falls decided at a meeting held in the Commercial club rooms last Thursday to hold market days every month throughout 1922, beginning in January. Whether one or more days will be devoted to these bargain-giving events on each occasion has not yet been definitely settled but the probabilities are that more than a single day will be favored by the majority.

The plan for the coming year is somewhat different from that followed in the past, particularly as regards the advertising and general publicity campaign. Instead of contracting for a certain amount of space to be used throughout the series and paying the cost thereof to the association, each merchant will deal directly with the newspaper and control absolutely the amount of space to be utilized. In many respects this is the better plan as it permits every advertiser to adjust his expenditures to meet conditions previous to any established market day.

Secretary G. Howard Smith submitted his final report on the trading campaign just closed and was given a vote of thanks for the manner in which he carried out the program of the association and the good judgment used in working out features intended to add interest. It was freely admitted that a large share of the success attending the market day experiment was due to Mr. Smith's untiring efforts and the novel means often employed to secure the attention of the buying public.

County Creameries Join Statewide Association

A. J. McGuire, state manager of the Co-operative Creamery association, spent two days of last week organizing the creameries in Pennington county. A meeting was held in Thief River Falls on Dec. 16 and at St. Hilaire on Dec. 19. The creameries at both points joined the state association and plan to do all their business through that body in the near future. Mr. McGuire was very well pleased wit hthe outlook in Pennington county and prophesied a very bright future for the dairymen in this section.

State Bonus Claims

The attention of former service men is called to the fact that all state bonus claims must be filed before Dec. 31 in order to receive consideration at the hands of the board. Officers of the local post urge that all who have not yet filed such claims do so before that date. Failure to heed this notice will mean long delay or more likely loss of bonus entirely.

THIEF RIVER MADE HEADQUARTERS OF DAIRYING DISTRICT

Representatives of 30 Creameries Meet Here and Join State Organization.

Representatives of 30 co-operative creameries in the Red River valley district met in Thief River Falls last Friday for the purpose of forming a district organization to work in conjunction with the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association. The new unit is in District No. 14, which has a membership of 55 creameries and an output of over 5,000,000 pounds of butter annually.

Officers were elected as follows: E. O. Melness, Erskine, state director and chairman; Stuart McLeod, Goodridge, first vice chairman; H. N. Nygard, Halstad, second vice chairman; C. B. Goodrich, Greenbush, secretary; E. D. Rydeen, Clearbrook, treasurer. Thief River Falls was designated as headquarters for the district association.

The purpose of the state association is to help creameries improve the quality of butter, ship in carload lots and have representatives in eastern markets to see that the butter is sold to the best possible advantage.

The new association expects soon to include every co-operative creamery in the state in its membership. It is felt that a more uniform product as well as butter of a better grade will follow a better understanding among creamery officials. The fact that 30 creameries were represented at this first meeting is an indication of the interest taken in the movement.

Junior Class Play.

"Ruth in a Rush," a comedy, was presented by the junior class of the Thief River Falls high school at the auditorium Tuesday evening. The attendance was not as large as the presentation merited but just before the holidays is not the most favorable time for staging an attraction of this kind. The parts were all well taken, certain of the performers showing exceptional skill and a fine sense of stagecraft. The musical numbers by the high school orchestra were much appreciated.

Pennington County Man Wins at State Crop Show

L. A. Westphal of St. Hilaire, won the championship for the state on his exhibit of sweet corn at the Minnesota Crop show held in Minneapolis recently.

There were more than 1,200 grain exhibits and scores of entries of garden products and flowers, while ten counties took part in the fruit show. Boys' and girls' clubs showed the best junior potatoe exhibit ever seen at the state show, accordig to A. G. Tolaas, secretary of the Potatoe Growers association.

In the potato division Itasca county took first prize, Kittson second, Koochiching third, and Crow Wing fourth. The corn awards went to southern Minnesota counties, Redwood, Waseka and Lion counties carrying off the winning trophies.

In the northern division Henry Ophus of Erskine was the winner of the championship flint corn prize.

Berge, retiring master, officiated as installing officer. Lunch was served at the close of the ceremony by Joseph Strubeck of the Soo cafe.

KIRBY HELD ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IN N. D.

Treatment For Cold Alleged to Have Caused Death of Ed. Strum on Decemer 5.

Complaint Charging Practice of Medicine Without License is Not Pressed.

"Dostor" Furnished Bail in Sum of $2,500 For Appearance Next Thursday.

S. R. Kirby is having all kinds of trouble since leaving Thief River Falls and locating at Northwood, N. D. Last week he was arrested on a complaint sworn out by the secretary of the state medical association charging the practice of medicine without a license. A hearing was set for last Thursday and at its conclusion Kirby was re-arrested on a charge of first degree manslaughter in connection with the death of Ed. Strum of Mayville on Dec. 5. Peter Johnson and Mabel Larson, uncle and sister respectively of the deceased, filed the complaint against Kirby.

The Northwood healer was arraigned on the latter charge late Thursday before Justice McLoughlin and released on $2,500 bonds. His case was set for preliminary hearing at Grand Forks Dec. 29. No decision was made by the justice on the preliminary hearing Thursday, as the court desired to hold the case open several days while he looks up matters brought out by the attorneys in the case. State's Attorney T. B. Elton prosecuted the case and Attorney J. F. T. O'Connor appeared for the defense.

Hearing Thursday.

When the hearing was called the court room was crowded to capacity and the corridor of the court house was well filled with interested persons who could not gain entrance to the crowded court room.

Two witnesses were called before the court and testified concerning the activities of Kirby at Northwood. H. C. Hanson of Northwood was called and testified concerning the death of his wife while under the treatment of Kirby. C. W. Wyle, of Northwood, licensed embalmer and undertaker, was also called to the witness stand to testify concerning the signature of Kirby on the death certificate of Mrs. Hanson.

As soon as the court room was cleared following the hearing, Kirby was arrested on a manslaughter charge and shortly afterward was arraigned before Justice McLoughlin.

In the manslaughter charge it is alleged that Ed Strum, who was 30 years of age, went to Kirby on Nov. 18 for treatment for a cold. His throat was painted, it is declared, and the day after he returned to Mayville he became ill and grew worse until his death on Dec. 5.

Post-Mortem Examination.

As a result of the refusal of the undertaker at Mayville to bury the body on the death certificate furnished, a post-mortem examination was conducted by Dr. H. E. French, dean of the medical school of the University of North Dakota, and head of the public health laboratory, and Dr. Aldo C. Massaglia, professor of pathology and bacteriology, and several Mayville physicians.

According to the complaint, they found that there was a pus formation from infection caused by the painting of the throat. According to their statement, the pus seeped down into the lower neck and the pleural cavity, and caused septicemia, which caused the death of Mr. Strum. The examination also revealed, according to the charge, that the deceased had no tuberculosis and that all of his organs were functioning normally and that he had not been ill except for the slight cold.

CREAM SUPPLY IS HOLDING UP WELL

November Always the Poorest Month Shows Big Increase Over Last Year.

November is the poorest month in the year so far as creamery receipts are concerned. Mrs. G. Howard Smith, who has spent a few weeks visiting her parents at St. Paul, is expected to return Sunday morning.

Christmas Programs For Sunday School Children At All Churches in City

The Christmas season promises to be more generally observed in Thief River Falls this year than ever before. The steps taken to see that none are left without some reminder of the holiday are more thorough and extensive than in previous years and if any are overlooked it will not be the fault of those who have given time, study and cash to the end that none shall be missed. It is the intention that there shall be no home within the limits of the city on which Santa Claus does not make a call for some purpose and it is believed that the list of those whom he might miss unless assistance is given is very complete.

At all churches arrangements for the usual festivities have been going on for some time. Christmas trees and appropriate exercises will be the features in all Sunday schools, in many of which elaborate programs have been prepared.

WELFARE MEETING MOST SUCCESSFUL OF ENTIRE SERIES

Section Well Represented and Many Subjects of Importance Are Discussed.

The regional child welfare conference which closed in this city last Thursday night was the best and most successful thus far held in the state, according to William Hodgson, state director of child welfare bureaus. It was the fourth in a series of five scheduled to be conducted at different points at this time as a sort of experiment. After one more regional meeting the matter of continuing the work will be considered, there being considerable demand from other cities for similar meetings, Detroit and Crookston being among the places asking to be selected as headquarters.

Owing to a misunderstanding of the announcements and for the further reason that a number of other attractions divided attention with the conference, the attendance at the evening meeting was small. This, according to officials, was the only disappointment.

Very few changes in the published program were found necessary. Theo. Quale of this city presided at the first session, Rev. A. T. Tollevs of Warren finding it impossible to be present. All papers read were exceptionally good. The afternoon session was devoted entirely to a discussion of school problems and the danger of permitting the attendance of young people at dances where no supervision is exercised.

At the evening session Mrs. J. M. Bishop spoke of the progress being made in the district for child welfare. Miss Maude L. Johnson led the community singing, which was a feature. Mr. Quale delivered the address of welcome in place of Mayor Bratrud, who was out of the city. A solo by Carl Sundahl closed the meeting.

Those from outside the county who attended the conference were: Mrs. Mildred D. Mudgett, department of sociology, University of Minnesota; Miss Caroline Crosby, St. Paul; William Hadgson, director of children's bureau, St. Paul; Lucile Quinlan, district representative, St. Paul; Loretta C. Newman, social worker, David Johnson, superintendent of schools, Elizabeth M. Hanson, county nurse, Marshall county; Erba Poullot, county superintendent, Red Lake county; L. E. Healy, Red Lake Falls; Mrs. W. W. Lessler, Oklee, member Red Lake board; Hans Hanson, county superintendent, Hallock; Mrs. G. M. Stebbins, Roseau; O. F. Hawkins, superintendent, Stephen.

MINNESOTA COUNTY ONE OF FIRST FIFTY IN FARM PRODUCTS

Census Report, However, Fails to State Which One Holds This Distinction.

Citrus fruits and walnuts have placed Los Angles county, Calif., first in rank of all counties of the country in the value of agricultural products, according to the Bureau of Census, which has just made public a list of the fifty counties leading all others in 1919 in the worth of their agricultural products. Hay and forage are also important crops which helped swell the total of Los Angles county's farm products to $71,579,899 in value that year

Next to Los Angles county comes Fresno county, also in California, the value of whose grapes, peaches, hay and forage and dairy and dairy producers is placed at $55,110,101 for the year. Aroostook county, Me., a large producer of potatoes, ranks third, its products totaling $54,376,- Joaquin county, Calif., whose crops Joaquin county, Calif.,whose crops were worth $41,191,240 in the year. Potatoes, grapes, barley and hay and forage, in the order named, constituted the principal agricultural products of that county.

ROAD WORKERS TO PUSH WINTER JOBS

Crews Move Promptly After Contracts Are Signed. Jobs For 7,500.

Road building outfits are moving on locations in nearly every section of the state this week, Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, having made contracts under tentative awards previously published in the winter trunk highway program to reduce unemployment.

Contractors are pledged to push the work and the big part of 300 miles of gravel surfacing and 60 miles of grading just let in to be completed by April 1 under the contracts, says a bulletin from the state highway department. On a team work basis this work would furnish jobs for more than 7,500 men, according to an unofficial estimate.

Commissioner Babcock began closing contracts on lowest bids upon returning from the Omaha meeting of the American Association of State Highway officials, of which he was elected president. Rechecks of the many bids on each job completed in the meantime, all efforts were directed toward starting actual work in the field.

Twin city truck owners protested that contractors were taking work at less than cost. Commissioner Babcock announced that the work must be done by the contractors or their bondsmen at the rate specified in the successful bids, and that he has no interest in the controversy with the truck owners. Congratulating the commissioner upon his success, the The St. Paul Dispatch added: "All evidence points to the fact that Mr. Babcock has given a good bargain in these contracts for the people of the state, and that our roads are being built under the contract system at a minimum cost to the taxpayers."

A TALK WITH A THIEF RIVER FALLS MAN

Mr. R. J. Halvorsen, Printer, of 410 Riverside Ave., Tells His Experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give herewith an interview with a Thief River Falls man:

"My kidneys gave me quite a bit of trouble," says Mr. Halvorsen. "They didn't act normally and bothered me quite a bit by their irregularity. I was feeling pretty mean and easily tired. I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and it was only a short time before I noticed a change in my condition. My kidneys again acted normally and I was benefited a great deal."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Halvorsen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

The Times wishes its readers everywhere a Merry Christmas.

The season loses none of its characteristics or importance simply because things may not be as rosy as could be wished. Compared with people in other sections of the world, ours is an enviable state. There is little actual want even if less of surplus than in some previous years. The spirit of good will is as much in evidence as ever—in fact more so as there is greater need for its expression.

The people of Thief River Falls are going about celebrating the anniversary in the right way. On every hand there is a desire to see that those who may have but little to remind them that it is a time of good cheer shall first be looked after. This is vastly better for all concerned than lavish and foolish expenditure for things that are of no lasting value.

Our people seem this year to have unanimously decided that all their Christmas giving shall include two classes only: the children and the poor. This is as it should be and comes nearer meeting the injunctions laid upon us than any other form of observance. The program mapped out will prove more satisfactory to both donors and recipients than any other that could be devised. We are celebrating Christmas as usual but our way of doing it has assumed a more sensible form.

HAS THE WRONG IDEA.

Carl Berg, a resident of Erskine, in an open letter to the Minneapolis Journal, voices his objection to the Red Lake drainage project. Every sentence in his communication proves that he has an entirely wrong view of the proposition. This would not be a matter of much importance were it not for the fact that others, no better acquainted with the facts than Mr. Berg, might get the same impression.

In the first place the correspondent seems to be under the impression that the principal object of this drainage project is the reclamation of lands now unoccupied. He also states that the farmers of the section are opposed to the enterprise because of its cost and is of the opinion that a sufficient amount of ditching has been done for the present.

In the first place this work was undertaken for the relief of the farmers already residing in the Red Lake and Clearwater river basin. These have sustained heavy losses in the past by reason of the rivers overflowing their banks at certain seasons of the year and in many cases have been compelled to abandon their farms for this reason. The only way in which their condition can be helped is by providing more adequate outlets for the ditches already constructed, and for this reason the Red Lake Conservancy district project contemplates the straightening and dredging of these two rivers, thus increasing their capacity and speeding up the flow. More ditches without first providing adequate outlets for flood waters would only make matters worse, and this is fully realized by the commission, even if Mr. Berg has overlooked the point.

This enterprise was undertaken at the request of 300 farmers residing in the Red Lake and Clearwater river basins. Two hundred bona-fide farmers from the same section attended the two hearings on the project and in no case was opposition expressed. Bonds totaling $2,500 for each of these undertakings were signed by a large number of farmers and filed with the petitions. This would indicate that Mr. Berg is mistaken in the statement that the farmers do not want this improvement.

Mr. Berg is of the opinion, evidently, that inasmuch as nothing has been done to provide flood control in the past there is no need of any such action now. It is undoubtedly true that the matter should have received attention before this time, but the records show attempts to secure favorable action on some such project as that now proposed was begun in 1892 and has been before congress and the people of the district ever since. This is not a new idea—it is the result of a continuous campaign extending over a period of 20 years.

Money has in the past been wasted in attempts to provide adequate drainage for the lands in the Red Lake and Clearwater basins and it is with the intention of stopping this waste that the larger and more comprehensive program has been launched. Additional ditches without additional outlet facilities would be a grave mistake and prove more harmful than beneficial. It is for this reason that the conservancy commission will give its attention to the outlet streams first. Control of waters at the source of the Red Lake river will insure an even flow in that stream the year around. As matters now stand the farmer is flooded out at certain times of the year while the waterpower enterprises farther down are handicapped for lack of water during the remainder of the season. Any plan that will relieve the farmer in flood time and provide power for the manufacturer during the low water period is certainly worthy of consideration. That is the aim of the Red Lake drainage and conservancy project.

THE WINTER SHOWS.

Far and wide has the reputation of the Red River Valley's Winter Shows extended. From the International at Chicago; from Toronto, Ontario; from Sioux City, Iowa; from Portland, Oregon; from Brandon, Manitoba, and from many other points, have inquiries come about them. And well they may. Seldom can an agricultural affair be found, outside of state fairs, in which a larger number of organizations are interested, or in which a larger number of individuals, scattered over as large an area as the Red River Valley, take active part. When the Winter Shows first came into existence, the Northwest School of Agriculture alone had connection with them. Then the Minnesota Red River Valley Development association lent its aid in staging the exhibits and meetings, on account of the space available at the school becoming too small. Since then the number of organizations has increased each year until some 15 or 20 are now directly interested in conducting the big affair, each organization having its particular part in the promotion of valley agriculture or educational matters.

Notwithstanding the lessened activities in agricultural and live stock circles at the present time, the coming Winter Show looks as though it would far surpass any of previous years in both the matter of importance and point of attendance. There is reason for this. When all is said and done, the shows are first, last and foremost, for educational purposes. They are, in fact, but enlargements of the Northwest School of Agriculture's farmers' week and short course. Conditions are in themselves compelling a definite and decisive change, or changes, in farming in the Northwest, and the progressive farmers of the valley are getting all of the best information it is possible for them to procure.

In addition to the technical information to be obtained through the short course lectures and demonstrations, the opportunities afforded for the interchange of ideas during the week of the Winter Shows is a big attraction to many farmers.

Then, in addition to the valuable instruction that is to be obtained through the lectures and the demonstrations, exhibitions of stocks, grain, potatoes, etc., is the unrivaled entertainment of the very highest order, that is afforded through the evening programs. At these, speakers of national prominence have appeared. The singing each evening by the entire audience has added a zest that in itself has been worth a lot to each and every person. And the coming gatherings promise to prove no exception to the standing that has been established through the several successive years of Winter Shows of the Red River valley.

OBSERVATIONS

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

T. B. or not T. B. is the question. It will be the latter if you invest in Christmas seals.

The farmer who keeps dairy cows is not worrying these days. The cows are keeping him.

Make sure that there will be no wrinkle in the belly of any Baudette kiddie Christmas. Help the woman's club with its basket fund.

Eyestrain is increasing, according to specialists. It's difficult to walk along the streets and give the eyes a rest these days.

The acrobats who come to Baudette under the disguise of jazz orchestras are getting more comical every day. All they need to make a circus is the elephants and peanuts.

We saw five men drinking out of the same bottle the other night. Bad manners but good friends.

"Dr." Kirby has been arrested and a lot of former patients hope that he gets it where they got it—in the neck.

If Santa Claus fills all the stockings as full as some of those you see on Baudette streets, nobody will have any kick coming.

Baudetters are mystified as to the source of the moonshine that finds its way into the village. It's a secret still.

Little Known Facts of History.

Milton wrote "Paradise Regained" after his mother-in-law died.

The Farmer.

The farmer tills the stubborn soil
From dawn till chilly eve,
He breaks the clods for weary rods,
With many a heart-felt heave—
He milks the cows at break of day
And plows the corn and mows the hay.

He feeds the frisky pigs at dawn,
And spades the frozen field,
For garden sass and sassafras
And other country yield.
He cranks the Ford and hustles down
To sell the chuck to folks in town.

The farmer breaks his bending back
For sixteen hours each day,
With mighty sweats he pays his debts
And keeps the wolf away.
He toils away in cold and heat,
For stuff for city folks to eat.

And when his bending back gives way
And neighbors lay him out
In his Sunday best, he'll get a rest—
His first, beyond a doubt.
In some Elysian, shining field
Where town-folks do not eat the yeld.

A blotter absorbs everything and gives out nothing. Don't be a blotter.

Minnesota Historical Notes

Minnesota Newspapers Preserved For Posterity.

Over 600 newspapers and periodicals out of a total estimated at 1000 are regularly received, filed and bound for permanent preservation in the library of the Minnesota Historical Society at St. Paul, according to the biennial report just issued by the society.

Among the newspapers received are at least one from every county in the state with the single exception of Clearwater. The Thief River Falls Times is included in the list. The papers and magazines are all contributed regularly by the publishers, but the society bears the expense of binding.

Hennepin and Ramsey counties head the list with 117 and 100 publications respectively; the numbers from the other counties range from one to 23. The bulk of the papers received are weeklies, which number 402, but there are 29 dailies, 20 quarterlies, 10 biweeklies, 6 semi-weeklies, 3 which appear three times a year, and 2 semi-annuals.

The newspaper files are used a great deal by historical writers, by lawyers seeking evidence of the publication of legal notices, and even by the publishers themselves. The destruction of office files of newspapers in the fire zone in 1918 suddenly made more than one editor thankful for the existence of the state files.

Minnesota a Center for Scandinavian Records.

Concentrate all the historical records of the Scandinavians in the United States in the library of the Minnesota Historical society, is the plea of Theodore C. Blegen in an article in the last issue of the Minnesota History Bulletin, published by that society. Every writer on the history of the Scandinavians in the Northwest is handicapped by the scarcity and scattered condition of many of the most needed sources, says Mr. Blegen. The article, which is entitled, "The Early Norwegian Press in America," points out that files of the earlier newspaper, so necessary for research and study, are unavailable, not only because so few have been preserved, but also because many of the files now in existence are unknown or inaccessible.

The Norwegian element, says Mr. Blegen, has had a newspaper of its own since the "Nordlyset" (Northern Light) was first published on July 29, 1849. Since then over 400 different publications have been in existence. "Democraten," "De Norskes Ven," "Amerikaner," "Nordstjernen" and "Emigranten," are given as the titles of some of the earliest and more important of the newspapers.

Files of only a few of these papers have been preserved, however.

Since this article was written, the publisher of one of the leading Norwegian papers of the Northwest has deposited his files of early newspapers with the Minnesota Historical Society, and the Swedish Historical Society of America has followed by making the state society the depository of its important library of books, newspapers and pamphlets.

Were You Here in 1718- Genealogy Could Tell You.

Have you been bitten by the genealogical bug? Never mind. According to Cyril A. Herrick, in a recent article published by the Minnesota Historical Society, the effects are always beneficial. But of all the results perhaps the best, he says, is the fact that the person affected learns to know and to like history.

"Where were you in 1718?" Mr. Herrick proposes as the first broadside. Then before you have really recovered he informs you that, "In 1818 you were walking abroad, probably, in the guise of four grand parents. In 1718 you were looking out of, say, thirty-two pairs of eyes; whereas very likely in 1618 some ten hundred and twenty-four individuals, all unwitting, had the honor of being directly your ancestors."

A Mr. Green is cited as a type of progressive business men in Minnesota. Though he will never admit that he likes history, he will, in conversation, talk about the growth of his community as well as his own rise in life. His father was a pioneer in the state. Further conversation reveals information, vague at times but valuable nevertheless, that indicates an interest in his ancestors. Grandfather came from some place in the east. Where? He looks up his family record and finds that his ancestors were all pioneers in different stages of the westward movement. He has been bitten by the genealogical bug.

In tracing the progress of his ancestors Mr. Green finds he is tracing the history of the growth of the United States. How much more exciting is the Whiskey Rebellion when he discovers the story of how one of his ancestors was mixed up in that trouble and had to leave hastily for points further west!

The writer emphasizes the fact that the state historical society possesses one of the three or four best genealogical libraries in the country, and tells of the surprise of many when they discover its possibilities. "The Family Trail Through American History" is the title of the article, which appeared in the last issue of the Minnesota Historical Bulletin.

Indian Names For Minnesota Farms.

How would you like to have your country estate called "Wigwassiga?" Your friends might remark that they would like to spend the week-end with you at Wigwassika, but the Browns had invited them to Notamiset, and the owner of Kitchigami was urgent that they try the fishing on his place.

Such names are not improbable for Minnesota farms and country homes. In response to the suggestion of a local farm journal, the Minnesota Historical Society has received many requests for help in the selection of appropriate Indian names for property.

Such requests are promptly answered with a list from which a name fitting some particular point of interest about the place can be selected. For instance "Wigwassika" is Chippewa for "there are birch trees;" "Notamiset" is Algonkian for "at the oak tree," and Kitchigami" in Chippewa language means "large lake."

Signatures of Famous Men on Exhibition.

Did you ever wonder if the first signer of the Declaration of Independence always covered as much paper in writing his name as in the facsimile of that famous document in your American History? A letter display in an exhibit of autographs in the state historical building, St. Paul, shows the same huge signature that is familiar to everybody. John Hancock, by the way, is said to have remarked that John Bull would be able to read his signature without spectacles. On the other hand, the autograph of Lewis Cass, which is also on exhibition, would puzzle anybody. To those who wonder if Daniel Webster wrote in the same bold dashing fashion as that in which he spoke can find a characteristic letter to settle the problem in this exhibit.

Letters from Washington Irving, Oliver Wendell Holmes, William Prescott, George Bancroft, Walt Whiteman, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Philips Brooks are represented in the collection. John Marshall, Alexander Hamilton, Henry Clay, John C Calhoun and James G Blaine, are some of the famous statesmen; and Dwight L Moody, Maude Booth and Frances E. Willard some of the leaders of important movements whose autographs have places in the display.

Of special interest are a manuscript poem on Lafayette, written by Dolly Madison, and a confidential letter from that prominent journalist, Horace Greely, to Governor Stephen Miller of Minnesota, asking for a private opinion on the possibility of re-electing Abraham Lincoln to the presidency.

CO-OPERATION WINS.

Dassel Dispatch: The Hutchinson merchants have stuck to their sales day proposition for over a year and report it to be increasingly valuable to the city. With every merchant doing his share, pulling together and co-operating intelligently, there is no question of results. It is the timid, the weak and the egotistical business man that lacks the nerve and the foresight to play the game with the rest of his brethren for community and individual good. The fellow that says, "It can't be done in this town" lacks faith in himself and in his community. "Can't" and "do nothingism" never did anyone any good or accomplished a thing for the community.

MEETS WITH FAVOR.

Winnebago City Enterprise: The rumor that Judge Oscar Hallam of the State Supreme Court may possibly become a candidate for United States Senator is meeting with popular approval. Judge Hallam is in every way well qualified to capably fill this high office.

Bill Jones is a traveling man.

In making long distance calls to his home he says to the long distance operator: "I want to talk to Telephone No. 648 at Brownsville." By doing this he takes advantage of what is known as "Station-to-Station" service and thus obtains a lower rate.

If he had asked for Mrs. Jones or any other designated person, he would have used what is called "Person-to-Person" service, for which the rate is higher.

"Station-to-Station" service is provided at a considerably lower rate than "Person-to-Person" service because we do not have to locate a certain person in order to complete the call.

Nelson-Newcomb.

A wedding which will be of interest locally is that of Miss Gladys Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nelson of this city, and Robert H. Newcomb of Minneapolis, which took place on Sunday, Dec. 18. The ceremony was performed at 12:30 p. m. at the Central Lutheran church, Minneapolis, Rev. J. A. O. Stub officiating. The couple was attended by Miss Grace Loken, formerly of this city, who acted as bridesmaid, and P. W. King of Minneapolis, who acted as best man. The bride wore a beautiful gown of Harding pan blue velvet. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party was taken to the apartment of the newlyweds, where an elaborate five-course dinner was served by Misses Anna Oftelie and Bertha Catt, friends of the bride. The room was artistically decorated in yellow and white and a large bouquet of sweetheart roses adorned the table. The place cards were in keeping with the occasion. Miss Amy Nelson, sister of the bride, Mrs. S. Worth, matron of Berkely Club, and Miss Mildred Bunghard of Minneapolis completed the party. The bride is well known in this city, having lived here up to a year and a half ago, when she entered the McPhail school to study dramatic art. The groom will be graduated next spring from Dunwoody Institute, where he is specializing in civil engineering.

Mrs. Fisher Lauded.

The auditorium at Grand Forks was packed on Sunday afternoon to hear "The Messiah," given by the University Oratorio Society and the University Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Fred A. Beidleman. The entire score of "The Messiah" was not presented, but the principal parts had been chosen. Solo parts were taken by Mrs. Alberta Fisher Ruettell, soprano; Mrs. Irma Mallory Fisher, contralto; Howard DeLong, tenor, and Doyle Watt, bass. The Grand Forks Herald has the following to say of Mrs. Fisher's solos: "Irma Mallory Fisher, whom Grand Forks formerly claimed, but now of Thief River Falls, was in excellent voice and her full tones were adequate in the airs for the contralto. Perhaps the most striking of her numbers was the air 'He Shall Feed His Flock' and especially effective was her singing of 'Thou That Tellest Good Tidings,' which was followed by a ringing chorus."

Christmas Party.

The kindergarten pupils, with their teacher, Miss Lois Wold, enjoyed a party yesterday afternoon at the Central school, children from the above school and the Knox school participating. Festoons of red and green crepe paper decorated the room. A feature was a miniature Christmas tree, with candles, around which the children played various games. Apples, candy and nuts added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

In Honor of Miss Crandall.

Miss Lucille Curtis entertained a number of girls of girls at her home, 112 Markley avenue south, Saturday afternoon in compliment to Miss Lorrayne Crandall. The guests busied themselves with needlework and at six o'clock a dinner was served by the hostess' mother. The table appointments were in green and red and a miniature Christmas tree formed the attractive centerpiece. Covers were laid for eight.

AT THE THEATRES

"Is Life Worth Living?" starring Eugene O'Brien, will be presented at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday. Admirers of Mr. O'Brien—and there are many of them—will be pleased to know that "Is Life Worth Living?" is easily one of the most enjoyable offerings in which he has yet been presented.

The photoplay is founded upon George Weston's story, "The Open Door," which recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. The star appears as a young American employe who has been acquitted, but not vindicated, of a crime and, because of the rebuffs he encounters in his efforts to find employment, decides time after time that "life is not worth living." A little blue steel automatic in a pawn-broker's window seems to be trying to charm his life away. He buys it—and pawns it. Then buys it and pawns it again, repeatedly, never using it for the purpose intended because some little thing is always bobbing up to stay a hand bent upon self-destruction.

"Is Life Worth Living?" is an unusually well mixed decoction of tears and laughs. Winifred Westover and Arthur Houseman do the most creditable work in support of the star.

A minister helping to produce a motion picture!

Yes, it really happened, and it demonstrates that there are broad-minded clergymen as well as the other kind.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, a noted pastor of Los Angeles, was art director and general stage supervisor at the Louis B. Mayer studios one day when he served as advisory director in the filming of an elaborate wedding scene for "The Child Thou Gavest Me," produced by John M. Stahl for Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and which will be exhibited at the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday. Through the assistance of Dr. Brougher, Director Stahl was able to combine beauty and unusual effects with an impressive marriage ceremony that was correct in every detail. The settings and ensemble were among the largest ever used for a cinema wedding.

An all-star cast appears in "So Long Letty," the Robertson-Cole super-special photo-play which will be shown Wednesday and Thursday at the Lyceum. The picture is a comedy-drama adapted to the screen by Al Christie from the Oliver Morosco stage play of the same name. Mr. Christie also directed the production.

Included in the four principals are T. Roy Barnes, Grace Darmond, Colleen Moore and Walter Hiers. There are a number of water scenes wherein beautiful sea nymphs of the Pacific appear in the latest (and smallest) thing in bathing suits.

"So Long Letty" has a story that holds up to ridicule the chronic domestic grouch. Just how two disgruntled husbands are taught a lesson by their well-meaning wives, is the punch of the picture.

GOOD ROADS COMMENT

When enumerating the things that function admirably, just place the Babcock road plan at the head of the list.—Worthington Globe.

The people themselves can do much towards keeping highways clear of politics by tearing up political weeds along roads in their neighborhood.—American Highway Education Bureau.

As this newspaper sees it, the route of a trail through a town's main street is a detriment rather than a benefit. It claims that a large percentage of tourists, rather than leaving anything in the town, pass through it at a life-endangering speed without even knowing its name.—Appleton Press.

The increase in the amount of passenger traffic by motor bus brings to the front an argument that these transportation lines should be forced to pay a gross earnings tax to the state as well as the railroads. If the state is entitled to its bit of the fare charged by the railroad, which keeps up the road over which it travels by its own funds, it seems no more than just that the busses, which use the highways built with public funds, should pay a like tax. The argument may be advanced that the busses pay a sufficient fee in their motor tax but their tax is not comparable to the amount the railroads must pay for upkeep of their roads, for the busses pay for no such upkeep of the public roads, and to the private property taxes of the rail companies.—Owatonna Journal-Chronicle.

Trading Potatoes For Corn

(Bemidji Pioneer.)

A current dispatch from Southern Minnesota carries the report that farmers in Northern Minnesota, who have a surplus of potatoes on hand for which there is a limited market just now, have approached Southern Minnesota farmers, who have a surplus of corn on hand, with a proposition that the surplus potatoes be exchanged for the surplus corn. The potato growers have advanced a proposition that they will lay their potatoes down at Southern Minnesota points at a price of $1.25 per bushel, agreeing to accept therefor an equal value of corn. This proposition is both novel in its idea of marketing farm products on a barter basis and, at the same time, smacks of a practical solution of a very pressing problem of marketing crops for which there is little or no demand. In the early part of the marketing season, potato growers were in an enviable position because the demand for the crop apparently exceeded the supply. Hurried liquidation has made the potato crop a temporary drug on the market.

From a practical viewpoint there is no good reason why barter between potato growers and corn growers should not work out some satisfactory medium of exchange. In the potato sections of the north there is usually a large consumption of mill-feeds, including cracked corn. In the corn-raising sections this year the potato crop was almost a failure. This should furnish an opportunity for profitable marketing direct from farmer to farmer without the interference of any middlemen. There is an opportunity for local farm organizations to get together.

THEY WEREN'T THINKING.

THOSE OBJECTIONABLE DANCES.

Tracy Herald: Mayor Burchard of Marshall has ordered the police department of that city to enforce the state laws on dancing halls. The ban is placed upon the so-called twilight, toddling and cheek-to-cheek dances. If the laws are not respected the mayor threatens to close up all public dance halls. Would it not be well for our local authorities to see that the state law was enforced here, and while they are at it look into some of the rumors of the sale of moonshine at public dance places.

Head colds, too, yield to the double action of Vicks VapoRub

Apply Vicks up the nostrils. Snuff it well back. Also melt some Vicks in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the vapors. At night repeat and rub on neck. Vapors will be inhaled all night.

Sufferers from chronic catarrh will get welcome relief and better sleep thru this treatment, and persistency will be well rewarded.

Head colds are checked or completely warded off if thus treated at the onset.

Vicks combines in salve form the old, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Oil of Turpentine. It is the most universal treatment today for all cold troubles as well as cuts, bruises and itching skin troubles.

Christmas Spirit.

The spirit of Christmas is the spirit of peace and good will to man. It is a spirit of happiness, of good cheer, and of kindness towards our neighbors.

Why is it that the Christmas season is always a busy and a merry and a happy one? It is because we are eager to do something for our neighbors and our friends and because we glory in the joy of giving. It is a time when we all join in praising and giving glory to the little Babe born for us in the stable at Bethlehem.

Christmas is a time when everyone is happy, when men forget their troubles and grievances and are happy in making others happy. It is not so much the gift that counts as the spirit in which the gift is given, for as Lowell says: "The gift without the giver is bare."

Christmas spirit means the spirit of forgiving, the spirit of love, of charity. It is the intangible something that makes us want to look an enemy in the eye and smile and say cheerily, "Merry Christmas!" and perhaps wish him bright success, peace and prosperity. It makes us long to be better, to be even a wee bit like the Christ Child! It is that wonderful spirit that makes everyone seem a friend—and a good fellow. It is that same old, old spirit of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."—S. A. M. '22.

Juleklokkerne.

Langt borte i et fremmed land stod en kirke. I taarnet var en samling av juleklokker. Det var den gamle skik, at paa juleaften reiste alle folk i den store by til denne kirke for at bringe sit offer til Jesubarnet. Den som kunde lægge det beste offer paa kirkens alter vilde bringe frem de mest underfuldige toner ifra disse juleklokker høit oppe i taarnet. Det syntes tonerne bleknet langt borte and hørtes som englenes sang. Det var længe siden nogen hadde hørt dem.

Peder og hans lille bror bodde i en by langt derifra. De skulde ogsaa til denne gamle kirke for at bringe sit offer. Det var næsten nat idet de kom saa langt at de saa lys ifra den store by. De var næsten ved indgangen da de saa noget mørkt i deres vei. Peder og hans lille bror gik tilside for at se hvad det var og fandt en gammel kvinde som var falden ned træt og syg og var ikke istand til at gaa videre. Peder sa til sin bror:

"Du maa gaa alene. Jeg kan ikke reise ifra hende, ti hun behøver hjelp. Se, hun ligner madonna-billedet i kirken. Det er sikkert at hun fryser ihjel dersom ingen hjelper hende. Jeg er sikker paa at Jesubarnet vil vite hvorfor jeg ikke kan komme for at tilbede ham. Men, lillebror, prøv om du kan i stilhet komme til alteret for at lægge ned mit lille offer, et stykke sølv. Læg det ned hvor ingen kan se dig."

Den store kirke var et underligt sted den nat. Naar messen var avgjort, gik folket for at gi sit offer til Jesus. Alle kom med værdifulde stener og guld. Mange av disse var saa tunge at de kunde næsten ikke bære dem. Sidst av alle kom kongen med sin glintrende krone, haabende at han kunde vinde ære for sig selv og saaledes ogsaa høre kirkeklokkernes sang.

Alle ventet for at høre den vakre musik som de trodde var av englesang, men det var alt stilt. Naar den gamle prest stod med sin haand til stilhet opløftet, maatte folket lytte. Der kom til dem den sødeste musik. Det hørtes som taarnet var fuldt av engler. De reiste sig op for at se hvilket offer var lagt paa alteret som kunde bringe frem klokkernes sang. Til deres overraskelse fik de se et barn, Peder's bror, som hadde kommet stille frem og lagt Peder's sølvstykke paa alteret.

Christmas in the Lumber Camp.

The lumbering industry is still important in Canada. A hundred and fifty miles to the northwest of Quebec is the scene of some of the largest forests of today. These are fast disappearing before the axe and the saw of the woodsmen. In the center of one of these large tracts where the river McDermott makes an abrupt bend to the west, there has been built a settlement called Big Fork. The rude cabins are built of logs, roughly hewn, and they consist of a post office, general store, a doctor's and lawyer's office, and the homes of a few inhabitants who gain their livelihood through the visits of the lumbermen to the Big Fork.

One of the largest lumber camps in the neighborhood is about seven miles from the settlement. It is one of the route-camps of the International Lumber company, who have the contract to cut the entire McDermott region.

It was the day before Christmas, but there was no sign of a let-up for the men. They were continually cutting, sawing and hauling all day long, rushing the work to finish the task assigned them.

As the afternoon wore into the dusk of evening, the men began to drift one by one into the camp. They exchanged their work boots and socks for light shoes and washed up for the evening meal.

After the men had all come in from their labors they sat around the board table and the camp cook set before them plates heaped with wholesome food.

When the dishes were washed and cleared away, the camp was transformed into a scene of comfort. Some of the men sat lazily in chairs, smoking, and telling tales of other winters in the woods. Still others read and talked conversationally to each other. The lamplight cast dim shadows through the room. They were awaiting the arrival of the evening mail that they knew would bring words of cheer, besides remembrances from the ones they loved at home.

There was no frivolity, no merry-making. They were the grim but human workers of the forest who carry on one of the most important industries of today.—W. J. A. '22.

Rather Early Than Late.

"Where are you mailing all those packages to?" asked Jane of Mary, who was waiting to have six packages weighed and stamped.

"Why, they're Christmas presents," answered Mary.

"Christmas presents! Now! Why it's only December 12 today!" exclaimed Jane.

"Well, I put a stamp with 'Don't open before Xmas' on it.'

"Even if you do put that on, the person receiving the parcel will know who it's from by reading your return address. They most likely will take it as a hint to send you a present because it came early enough to give them time to send one," replied Jane.

"I never really thought of that."

"Besides if their curiosity forces them to open the package, even tho the stamp forbids, naturally when Christmas does come they will have forgotten all about your present, perhaps used it, too. After a thing is used it is thought of as something old, not as a Christmas present."

"Yes, but just think of the poor mail clerks, who nearly always have to work on Christmas day just on account of some slow people. They have to handle many tons of mail for about ten or more days. Most people think it's easy but as Dad is a mail clerk I know it is not, because when he's tired he's rather impatient, cross, and ready to go to sleep. He hardly ever feels like that after an ordinary trip. I'm going to mail my packages early; that will be just that much less for the clerks later, as every little counts," replied Mary.

"Well, Mary, I guess you're right. I'll try to have mine mailed tomorrow."—B. H. '21.

Christmas Parcels.

"Hello, Ruth, you look exactly like Santa Claus."

"Well, I certainly feel like one. I suppose you have already mailed all your Christmas presents?"

"No, I haven't," Gladys answered. "I have only finished a few of them. Why, it's only the 15th of December and Christmas is nearly two weeks off."

"Didn't you read that letter in the paper about mailing presents early?" Gladys asked, as she went to buy the stamps for her packages.

"Yes, I read it, but I don't think it will matter if I mail mine just before Christmas. I have only a few anyway and if everyone mails presents now, there surely will be a rush."

"Perhaps you're right," Ruth laughed, "here comes Margaret, we can ask her."

"Well, I'm mailing mine early," Margaret answered. "Here, catch that one before it falls. That is the second time it dropped—once out in the snow. But then it hasn't far to go, only to grandmother's out west."

"The string is untied now," Ruth replied as she picked the package up from the floor. "I'll try to fix it for you."

"Wait, I'm next to that window," Margaret said as she pushed from one side to the other, knocking a couple of parcels to the floor and pushing a lady's hat to one side of her head. "I've waited long enough now."

"There, young lady, I can't take that package. The paper is loose enough to fall off and no one could read that writing. Please move on as there are others waiting," the clerk said, glancing over the crowd gathering at the window.

"The clerk won't take them," Margaret answered, walking back to her two friends. "I suppose I shall have to wrap them all over again."

"Come on over to my place and I'll help you fix them. We can go up to my room, where I have both paper and ribbon. Can't you come with us, Gladys?"

"Thank you, Ruth, but I have to hurry home."

As Gladys walked home she thought to herself, "I believe those girls are right and I think I'll hurry and finish my presents.—H. A. K. '24.

The Christmas Rush.

The Christmas rush, as a rule, hits the post office harder than any other place. It seems as though people think that the longer they put off sending their packages, the more sure they are of having them delivered just at the right time.

If you do not care to have the parcels you send opened before Christmas, why not buy seals that will indicate it? If you wait till the last two or three days, you just help flood the post office, and the chances are that your packages will be smashed, addresses torn off, and the parcels probably lost.

Postmasters are always urging us to send our Christmas mail early. It won't cost us anything to comply with their request and it will save them a lot of work.—Adolph Gjerstad, '25.

Christmas With Santa Claus.

It was the night of December 24. I was all excited and hated to go to bed, but finally went and at last fell asleep.

Soon I heard the jingling of bells and who should come down the chimney but Santa Claus. He was big and jolly, dressed in a red suit with white fur for trimming. He offered to take me to toyland. It was no sooner said than done.

I went to roof with him and entered his sleigh. Soon we were rising high in the air. After hours of riding, we descended to toyland.

There was everything any boy could desire in the line of toys: Trains, building sets, games, cards, ten pins, and other wonderful toys. He told me to help myself. After I had taken all the things I desired, he added, "Your father and mother are probably worried about you, so I had better take you back home."

Reluctantly I went with him. After a long ride we arrived home and Santa Claus left, saying, "I hope you will have a Merry Christmas, Jim."

I was startled and nearly jumped out of bed, seeing dad standing at the end of the bed, giving me Christmas cheer.

I am glad I nearly did jump out of bed for I finished that task and made for the fireplace in shortest order. I saw what seemed to me to be just as good as toyland itself.—Robert Halvorson, '25.

The Joy of Giving.

Ruth was gloomy and unhappy. It was Christmas eve and everything was in preparation for the following day. In the drawing room could be seen a large Christmas tree, beautifully decorated, and heavily laden with costly gifts of which many, she knew, were for her, but still she was not content.

She put on her coat and hat and decided to take a walk before going to bed. Ruth walked a long way in the still, beautiful evening. Soon she came to the poorer section of the city, where she saw many sights which melted her heart and made her exclaim: "Oh, what a selfish girl I have been. I have plenty to eat, many pretty clothes and a beautiful home, while these poor people have hardly anything to eat, scarcely any clothes and no cozy, warm home to shelter them. How I wish I could help them."

It was growing darker and the snow was flying faster. She tried to find her home but did not know in which direction to go. After wandering about for awhile, she asked a policeman to direct her to her home. After she had reached home and gone to bed she lay awake a long time thinking of the poor, starving people she had seen, and making plans to help them.

The next morning at early dawn she awoke and immediately, with the help of her mother, began to carry out the plans she had made during the night.

After breakfast Ruth and her mother drove in their large car, which carried numerous packages, toward the slums. There they alighted and visited the poor families, leaving with each a Christmas package.

The little girl thought it was fun to play Santa Claus to these people and was happy to see their sad faces lighten up as they untied their packages and the children's faces beam as they received toys which Ruth had gathered from her own playroom.

As they were returning home, she said: "This is the best Christmas I have ever had. I am so happy." "Yes, child," replied her mother, "we always feel happy when we try to make other people so."—Mildred Remmem, '25.

Kate's Christmas Dream.

Kate was the daughter of wealthy parents. She had blue eyes, long golden curls, and a winning smile that won the affection of everyone.

It was nearing Christmas and Kate wanted to buy some presents for her friends, relatives and parents. In the evening after Kate's mother had kissed her good-night and left the room, Kate turned on the light, went over to her writing desk, took paper and pencil and wrote down a long list of things for them all. After she had gone to sleep she had a wonderful dream which helped her to find a way in which to make good use of her Christmas money.

In a dark part of the town where Kate lived, a girl and her mother were seen sitting on two grocery boxes around a table made of old boards. A candle, almost ready to go out, was lit on the table. They were having their evening meal, consisting of black bread and water. There were traces of tears on the good-natured face of the mother. While they were eating, a timid rap was heard on the door. The mother with staggering steps opened the door, and who should be there but Kate with a large basket on one arm and the other arm full of bundles. She handed them to the mother and hurried down the flight of stairs, not waiting even to accept the lady's thanks, the sad look on the mother's face being enough to make Kate wish she had money enough to buy presents for the whole town.

When running down the stairs, Kate missed a step and when she awakened she was not a bit surprised in finding herself on the floor. But from her dream she had learned that it was better to give than to receive.

Christmas night Kate went to bed very early, but she had made more than one family happy. Even Kate declared it was the best Christmas she ever had, and she learned that it gave more happiness to give than to receive.—Olive Aaland, '25.

Christmas Morning.

In a certain large white house a little boy, clad in white pajamas, crept down the stairs. In his hand he held a candle. It seemed as though he would never reach the bottom. At last he was in the lower hall. He tiptoed across it, and quietly opened the door to the library. The fire was burning brightly in the fireplace. He entered and placed his candle on the library table. He then sat down on the bear rug to wait for Santa Claus.

The hall clock struck two, then three; still Santa Claus did not appear. The fire began to die and the room became chilly. The candle had burned very low.

Then, what was that? In the distance he could hear sleigh bells. They were coming nearer. He heard a noise at the chimney. Yes, he was certain it was Santa. In a few minutes he would come down the chimney and through the fireplace. The little boy began to wonder if Santa would be angry at him for waiting. Sure enough, there was Santa coming down the chimney. Why, what a racket! But now the little boy suddenly found himself in his own room and bed with his mother bending over him. He had been dreaming.

"Has Santa Claus been here?" he asked bewildered. "Just come down in the library and see," replied his mother. With one bound he was out of bed and racing down the stairs. He gave a cry of joy when he ran into the library, for there hung his stocking full to the top.—Ruth McGilvery, '25.

A Poor Boy's Gift.

Ted settled snugly against the back of the pew and listened to the minister as he read the old Christmas story. He had heard this beautiful story many times. Ted thought it was like a wonderful fairy tale.

The minister was saying, "and, lo, the star went before them, and led them to where the child lay, and they brought him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. We, too, may bring him gifts; the poor, as well as the rich, little children as well as the aged." Ted held his breath. He was a little child, and he was poor, but he wanted to give the Christ Child a gift. He did not know what he could give.

Nobody noticed the shabby little boy as they went out of church. Ted walked very slowly thinking what he could give. Suddenly he remembered and an expression of joy swept over his face. Something wonderful had happened last night. Santa Claus had given him a present. It was the first time Santa had ever given him a gift and had come to his house although every year Ted had hung up his stocking. He thought it was very nice to receive a Christmas gift.

Ted thought of the sermon. It still rang through his ears, especially the line, "a little child may bring him gifts." He did not know a thing he could give. At last a bright idea popped into his head. He could give the Christmas present he had received, a top.

The next Sunday morning Ted slipped into a back pew in the church. He carried an odd-shaped package, which he fingered lovingly through the sermon. The organ played softly and he could hear the clink of money as he saw the collection plate close to him, so he dropped in his little package. Then he leaned back in his seat and was very happy, for the Christ child had accepted his gift.—Gladys Sandstrom, '25.

A Conversation Between Two Dolls.

It was the day before Christmas and everybody was doing his Christmas shopping. While Polly and her mother were also looking at Christmas presents, Polly heard a conversation between a large expensive rubber doll and a little rag doll.

"O, I wish some nice girl would purchase me so I could hang upon a nice Christmas tree tomorrow night. I just hate to stay here. Can't have any fun at all," said the large doll. "But I know someone will buy me, because I heard a little girl ask her dad if she could buy me," the rag doll answered. "Ah, you're only a cheap rag doll. I am sure nobody cares for you, but maybe some poor girl might get you. I wouldn't like to be a poor girl's doll, anyway, because then you could never have any fun," the large doll replied.

"O, I think you're mistaken about that," said Polly. "A rich girl's Christmas presents are so numerous that you would not have much fun anyway, so I think a poor girl's doll can enjoy a happier Christmas."—Borgliot Zakarison, '25.

The Christmas Seal.

One of the most difficult diseases to prevent or cure is the dreaded tuberculosis. And one of the tasks to which the Red Cross is assigned is the stamping out of this terrible enemy. The most successful method of getting the public interested has proved to be the use of the Christmas seal. Its use has become so general that our Christmas parcels or letters would look strange without the Red Cross seal.

Every cent you spend for a Red Cross seal goes toward helping to care for some boy, girl, man or woman suffering from tuberculosis, or in educating the public so that the disease will not spread.

Hospital camps and ~~other~~ places have been built for the benefit of the people who have tuberculosis. These places bring back health and happiness to many people.

Open air schools, educational exhibits, visiting nurses, and countless other means for combating the white plague owe their existence to the penny Red Cross seal with its emblem of the Red Cross.—Margaret Roark, 8B

The Message of the Christmas Seal.

It was the night after Christmas and the fire was burning dimly in the fire place in a richly furnished room. Tired children had left their toys scattered all over the room and many other indications of the day's festivities might be observed. All was silent and dark in the room except for the faint light thrown from the fireplace. The clock in striking twelve seemed to arouse the toys and they all began to talk at once. Such chattering and such boasting. Suddenly a voice unheard before piped in. This, however, was not a toy but a Christmas seal that was speaking. "I have been listening to all your stories and all you claim is true. You bring pleasure but many times it lasts only a day. I would like to tell you what I represent. I am not conspicuous looking and am not able to carry letters nor am I worth much to the one who buys me. But I represent a source of good that carries health and joy to the poor as well as to the rich. I belong to the National Tuberculosis Association. I carry a chance to live to tens of thousands upon whom death has put its first sign. That sign can be crossed out and is being crossed out yearly in 75,000 cases by the ministration made possible by the sale of such little stamps as I am. People know now that tuberculosis is not inherited, and renewed efforts are being made to prevent and cure it. They know now it is caught from germs transmitted from people suffering with the disease. There is no safety for anyone while the disease is among us. People who are in a position to know say that more than 50 per cent of all children are infected before they are ten years of age, from 60 to 90 per cent before they are 18. The strong survive; the weak succumb. That is why I try to tell the world how important it is to buy generously of our seals and thus help protect everyone and provide care for those who need it."

When the Christmas seal finished talking the toys had become rather drowsy again but one little voice was heard to say, "I think a great deal of money was spent for that broken top that could have been spent for Christmas seals."—Lois Nicholson, 8B.

Roseau Presented Decision.

Last Friday our debating team, consisting of Lloyd Alnes, Ole Helle and Albert Stengelson, accompanied by their coach, Miss Chamberlain, journeyed to Roseau and met their team in the first round of the state series.

Our boys had been working very hard and had a comprehensive grasp of the subject. They put up an excellent debate, excelling particularly in rebuttal, for our boys are ready speakers and know the subject. Certain it is that they acquitted themselves with credit. At the close of the debate but before the decision was announced, even the Roseau coach had made up her mind that Roseau had lost. But, behold, the judges had failed to be convinced. In spite of the general feeling, even among the Roseau people, the judges cast their vote for the affirmative and Thief River Falls with her excellent team was automatically put out of the race. Though this is so, we cannot yield to Roseau that we did not put up a better debate than they.

We are with our team and their coach and we want them to know that we shall back them in their future debates, for we are going to have more debates even though we have been eliminated from the state race. We've too good a team to allow it inactivity.

Athletes Here.

All high school students and more particularly those who are especially interested in athletics are very glad to welcome back to the city Messrs. Gordon LaBree and Denis McGinn, who were graduated from the high school a year ago. These boys are making wonderful records in athletics at St. Thomas. They bring honor and credit not only to themselves but to their Alma Mater. Denis earned for himself a great deal of honor as a football player on the varsity team last fall, while Gordon has won and earned a great deal of favorable comment on his basketball playing.

Thief River Falls High School Quint Wins.

The Thief River Falls high school basket ball quint chalked up its first victory of the season last Saturday night by defeating St. Hilaire in a one-sided contest. Coach Stenhoff used many of his substitutes, all of whom showed up well. The St. Hilaire five was composed of good-sized scrappy basketeers but could not pierce the local defense, and as a result lost the ball time and time again when forced to shoot from near the center of the floor. Thief River Falls showed a number of spurts of good fast team work but a great many rough edges were evident, which will be polished as the season progresses. "Speed" Ralston scored 12 of Thief River's 22 points by his accurate basket shooting. At guards, Herron and Sorenson were exceptionally strong, and Barzen and Arnold substituting were not far behind. LaBree as center showed good floor floor but seemed to be unable to connect with the basket for counters. C. Sorenson, Shetler, Keene and Doland at forward all showed qualities that go towards the making of good men at this position.

The line-up:

T. R. Falls		St. Hilaire
H. Doland	lf	S. Engh
F. Ralston	rf	H. Olson
M. LaBree	c	H. Wallin
S. Sorenson	lg	M. Sherva
C. Herron	rg	L. King

Goals: F. Ralston, 6; LaBree, 1; Herron, 1; Sorenson, 2; S. Engh, 1; M. Sherva, 1.

Free throws: LaBree two out of four attempts. S. Engh three out of four attempts.

Substitutes: C. Sorenson for Doland; H. Keene for Ralston; Shetler for Keene; Math Barzen for S. Sorenson; Arnold for Herron; Nelson for for H. Olson; Denhart for King; Meydahl for Denhart.

Thief River Plays Mahnomen Dec. 23.

The second game of the season and the first conference game will be played with Mahnomen at Mahnomen next Friday evening.

New Library Books.

The library has received 216 new books. There have been classified, accessioned and prepared for use in a comparatively short time, because the teachers who are in charge of the library have been assisted by eight pupils who have given one period a day. These pupils are Herbert Keene, Orrin Storholm, Esther Lunsetter, Margaret Melgaard, Alice Gobler, Ella Johnson, Gladys Russell and Evaline Thompson. No one was invited to do this extra work unless he stood high in his studies, and no one was allowed to do it unless he had his regular lessons prepared. By using these precautions no pupil was injured, and the school was greatly benefited.—M. S. L.

Jokes and Personals.

Old Students.

Miss Gormley: (In Modern History) "You ought to know that you all drew a map in 1810.'

Gregory W.: (Translating shorthand) "A piece of the moon lay on the floor."

Miss Gormley: "Where did Napoleon go from there?"

Bright Student: "Oh, he went to Turkey to fight the turkeys."

Teacher: "What else did Napoleon do?"

Normal Student: "Under Napoleon they raised sugar beets and made their own dyes."

Extra Bright Student: (In a whisper) "And they used 'chicken feed' for coffee."

Did you hear of the downfall of Stephen caused by Henry V the seventh period on Wednesday?

Senior Girl: "It's John Milton's birthday today. Who's John Milton?"
Second Girl: "Don't you know? He wrote Bunyan's Pilgrims' Progress."

In chemistry: "Hey, there! Don't erase my alcohol."
(Meaning C2H2Oh.)

Teacher: "How warm are you centigrade, Herbert?"
Herbert J: "About 98.6 degrees."
Teacher: "Oh, if you were that hot you'd soon be wearing a wooden kimona."

Teacher: "Arrange all your chairs in four even rows."
(Great shuffling of chairs ensued.)
One Student: "Now we are all crooked."

Clarence and Rudy Rice visited at their home in Plummer over Sunday.

Gladys Kolden has given a new definition for winking: "It is a misclosure of the eye."

Miss Chamberlain: "What was a pastoral romance?"
Edgar: "Shepherds."
Bill McGinnity: "Pasture scene."

Miss Soule: "What is the best way to preserve eggs?"
Elizabeth K.: "In the incubator."

Teacher: "Describe Grant."
First Student: "He was short and round shouldered."
Second Student: "He had a beard."
Third Student: "He was calm in the face of danger."
Teacher: "What more can you add, Inga?"
Inga: (Pensively) "He had blue eyes."
(And there followed a long pause.)

Gladys Maland spent Sunday at her home in St. Hilaire.

Miss Gormley: "What was the treaty between France and Prussia?"
Conrad: "The treaty of Tilsit."
Miss Gormley: "No, Conrad, you have Tilsit on the brain."
Miss Gormley: (Later) "What were the terms of the Treaty of Tilsit, Cleon?"
Cleon: "Ask Conrad. He has it on the brain."

Bright Student, in English IV "Do we have to read this story in class?"
Miss Chamberlain: "No, you have read that outside."
Paul H.: "Open the window."

This is a personal—it's too tragic to be a joke: Thursday morning during the fourth period the teachers were invited to partake of the fruits of the domestic science class, which unfortunately (for the rest of us) happened to be fresh doughnuts and ice cream.

Teacher: "If you don't understand them, say so, like this fellow here. I think a lot of him because he says 'I don't' once in a while."
Stephen A.: "I don't."
Teacher: "Ha, ha, don't put that in the Progress."

Allison Stitt: (In physics, the discussion of clocks and pendulums) "What are those weights on them for?"
Teacher: "So they don't run away, of course."

Teacher: "Genevieve, use the word 'soliloquy' in a sentence."
Student: (Hesitatingly) "The soliloquy sat in the parlor."

250 BANKS ASK FOR SIX MILLION CREDIT TO HELP FARMERS

Government Agricultural Loan Agency Means Real Help to Minnesota.

Country banks in Minnesota are awaking to the possibility of giving real credit relief to farmers through the agricultural loan agency of the War Finance corporation.

More than 250 Minnesota banks have applied for government loans on agricultural paper.

These 250 banks have asked the War Finance corporation for a total of $6,377,000 in less than two months.

Officials of the corporation estimate that there are 500 to 600 more country banks in Minnesota which are eligible to make use of the new agricultural credit facilities provided by the government, but which have not yet applied for loans. Although Minnesota has been much slower than North and South Dakota to take advantage of these credit facilities, officials say, applications from Minnesota banks are beginning to pour in to the northwest offices of the finance corporation of Minneapolis. The number of incoming applications has more than doubled during the last two weeks. Five subcommittees of the finance corporation working every day to rush applications through to Washington, D. C., without delay. In one day, working from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m., the committees approved 104 applications for a total of more than $2,900,000, according to M. O. Grangaard, secretary.

"While the agricultural loans of the War Finance corporation do not mean a flood of new easy credit," Mr. Grangaard said, "they do mean positive and practical benefits to the farmers of the northwest. It is impossible to make statements that will apply to every individual bank, but generally speaking, use of these new credit facilities should enable banks to carry farmers' present obligations without asking undue liquidation."

That extension of additional credit is also possible under the new credit act, to permit farmers to buy feeder stock to consume the cheap grain and feed now virtually unmarkable except at prices below the cost of production, is demonstrated by the policy of one country bank which has received a federal loan. This bank immediately used $4,000 for new loans, by purchasing 42 head of Holstein cattle and turning them over to farmers as the nucleus of pedigreed herds, taking notes as payment.

"There can be no doubt that the agricultural credit act, with proper understanding, can be of tremendous benefit to Minnesota farmers, relieving some of the burden of the country bank and averting any necessity of closing in on agricultural loans," the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation says in an official statement. "In general, creditors are not squeezing farmer borrowers because it would be disasterous to do so. Information comes to us, however, that in many cases farmers' obligations are not being renewed, but are merely being carried overdue, leaving the borrower uncertain and liable to pressure at any time. Properly used the War Finance corporation provide amply for the renewal of the farmers' present obligations.

"The evil effect of lack of confidence must be recognized. The farmer whose overdue note is held by a bank without provision for renewal, and with no assurance as to how long it will be carried, is not in a frame of mind conductive to a return of better conditions."

BEGINS ROUND-UP OF ALL AUTO TAX

Sheriffs Instructed to Enforce Payments, Confiscating Cars if Found Necessary.

Certifying tax-delinquent cars for confiscation and finishing a check of cars operating in Minnesota under licenses of other states, Mike Holm, secretary of state, said that a final state-wide campaign to collect motor vehicle taxes will be carried on during the next ten days.

Delinquent lists are being certified to district court clerks in the various counties under the same law that requires the sheriff to forthwith force payments, confiscating the machines if necessary.

Investigations of ownership of cars operated in Minnesota under foreign license tags is about completed, Secretary Holm said. In the larger cities and some localities the police helped the state inspectors with the work. Enforcement proceedings are to be started in cases where Minnesota ownership is established.

Sales of 1922 automobile tags will open Jan. 3 at Secretary Holm's office at the capitol. Application forms, however, may be procured at any bank or from the county register of deeds. Each application for a car now in use must be accompanied by the 1921 registration certificate, the secretary emphasized, and also a remittance covering all taxes, including any arrearages with penalties.

In spite of many protests following reductions in automobile prices, the tax rate is based on the factory list price on Nov. 1 of the model year. While this may make the tax higher on old than new cars of the same make, Secretary Holm explained that the legislature alone had power to change it.

New Grain and Hay Rates Go Into Effect Saturday

Reduced rates on grain, grain products and hay in trans-Mississippi territory, which the carriers recently months, were sustained by the interstate commerce commission last week and will go into effect Dec. 27. The reductions average about sixteen and one-half per cent of the 1920 grain rates and are further decreased by the commission's order which requires that corn and other coarse grains be carried for 10 per cent less than wheat and other bread-stuff grains.

The commission's original order for the reduction was issued Oct. 20 and was based on the petition of 15 western states and a number of agricultural organizations.

PRICE DROP ON "YORKER" HOGS

Light Sorts Discounted 25c to 50c at Week's Opening; Cattle Are Steady.

South St. Paul, Minn.—More or less severe declines in wholesale prices of fresh pork at large eastern consuming centers late last week were reflected in the market for sorted light-weight hogs, such kinds declining 25 to 50c, selling from $6.50 to $6.75. Butcher hogs sold steady to 10c higher, bulk $6.35 to $6.50, heavy packers $5.25 to $5.75, good pigs mostly $7.25.

A moderate run of around 4,200 cattle, a considerable percentage of which were stockers and feeders, sold on a mostly steady to strong market. However, packer buyers were bearish, and with news of a lower market at Chicago, undertone to the late market was weak, with some sales to packers showing losses of around a quarter. No good or choice beef steers were offered, best being a few individuals of medium beef grade which sold at $7, with part loads at $6.65 and $6.75, and bulk at $5 to $6.25. Best butcher heifers here sold in small lots up to $6.25, best load lot $6, and a fair showing from this price down to $5.25. Bulk of the butcher she stock sold from $3 to $5. A few of the poorest canners sold at $1.50, bulk $1.75 and $2, cutters $2.25 to $2.75, bologna bulls went from $2.75 to $3.50. Veal calves sold steady with last week's close, bulk of best lights $8, seconds mostly $5 to $5.50. Strictly choice stockers and feeders are quotable up to $6, best here Monday $5.50 to $5.75, bulk $4.50 to $5.25.

Most of the desirable fat lambs sold from $9 to $9.50, culls $5 to $8. Fat ewes were salable from $2.50 to $3.75. One string of choice quality 50-pound Montana feeding lambs sold at $8.50.

Wants County Represented At State Tax Conference

The sixth annual meeting of the Minnesota Tax Conference will be held in Minneapolis on Jan. 18 and 19, 1922. The conference was organized six years ago and meets annually for the purpose of discussing state and local taxation.

Each county is entitled to five delegates. The county auditor and the chairman of the county board of each county are ex-officio delegates. Any interested citizen, however, may attend the conference and participate in its discussions.

County Auditor T. P. Anderson is in receipt of a letter from Roy G. Blakely of the University of Minnesota, president of the conference, asking that the selection of delegates be brought to the attention of the county board at its January meeting. In order that the agricultural interests of the state may be fully represented at the conference, the president suggests that one or more of the delegates to be named by the board be selected from the farming community of the county.

The program this year will be very largely devoted to a consideration of the excessive tax burdens now being borne by business and property and the urgent necessity for some measure of relief before business conditions will be restored to normalcy. Governor Preus and other prominent speakers will address the conference.

Ten Years For Wifebeating.

John Hartman, who was found guilty by a jury in the district court on Saturday of assaulting his wife at their house in Barnesville last June, on Saturday was sentenced to ten years in the state prison at Stillwater by Judge C. A. Nye. Hartman was charged with having fractured his wife's skull with a hammer while in a jealous rage.

Envelope Will Show Why Your Mail Was Delayed

Would you want to know why your mail is sometimes delayed for an excessive period, varying from several weeks to a period of years?

In the future you will find it all written out for you on the envelope.

Instructions received at the postoffice from Washington order postmasters to make a brief endorsement as to the cause of delay, on the theory that such action will have a tendancy to minimize the volume of adverse criticism.

The principal cause for delay of this nature are failure to thoroughly empty pouches and sacks, the failure of hotel authorities, rooming house proprietors and other patrons promptly to return mail misdelivered ly residing at the [illegible] the occasional mistreatment of mail which accidentally falls behind desks and other postoffice equipment.

An annual loss of about $250,000 which the department is suffering through the acceptance of short-paid parcel post mail delivered without sufficient postage being collected will also have to stop, Mr. Hays has asserted.

Receiving clerks will be more closely checked in weighing and computation. Firms using precanceled stamps and mailing parcels will also be watched more closely.

Interpreting a previous order, Mr. Hays has issued instructions forbidding supervisory officials from the rank of foreman up to engage in any other business for gain. Other employes may do so, however.

A previous order forbidding smoking is modified so as to make it a matter of discression on the part of postmasters and supervisors.

The big gravel pit northwest of this place was closed the first of the week. The gravel was getting to be too fine to stand inspeciton. This threw about 60 men and teams out of a job, but we are told another pit is being opened on the Ole Berg farm one mile west of this place. Not so large a team force will be employed. Two miles of road still remain to be graveled.

American Legion Corner

A Farewell From Foch.

On Board the Liner "Paris," New York Harbor, Dec. 14, 1921.

Comrades of the American Legion: With deep regret I bid you good bye. For seven weeks the Legion has entertained me marvelously in your splendid country. My experience here leads me to two thoughts.

When first I met you and came to admire you as fighters, cheerful, subject to discipline under your splendid leader, General Pershing, the days were dark indeed. Yet you smiled then as you fought and your cheerfulness and bravery helped much to bring us victory and peace.

When next I met you, it was in your country. The alarms of war pursuits of peace [illegible] tial to happiness and prosperity—hard work. I have come to love all Americans for their spirit of diligence, for their generous-heartedness. France and the United States are indeed close together, as they always have been.

These two thoughts—of the American abroad at war, of the American at home and at peace—lead to only one conclusion, that the Americans are young, sturdy, honorable, God-fearing, full of faith and hope; that they are to be admired, respected and trusted by all peoples everywhere.

And of what type is the representative American of today? The type you find in the American Legion. He is the man who sacrificed his all to fight for his flag and world freedom. He is the man who will see to it that we have "peace on earth, good will toward men."

We, in France are doing our share to keep ourselves worthy of the victory we have won. We know you are doing yours.

Long live the American people!
Long live the American Legion!
FERDINAND FOCH.

MacNider—"A Regular Guy."

(By John F. Brady in Boston Post.)

I'll say "he's there forty ways from the middle."

In ten years of character analyzing I have not met a young man who impressed me more profoundly as the being the type that the times demand.

You're going to hear of this man MacNider playing a big part in the affairs of the nation one of these days if the Lord spares him, or I'm no prophet. But you don't have to take my word for it alone. There are others who met him at Milton and Harvard—plenty of them right here in Boston—who know him best, and they say the same thing more emphatically than I have.

They'll tell you he's a "go-getter," that he got everything he ever went after, except a wife. They'll tell you he's a "self-starter" as well as a "go-getter."

"Jack" MacNider is the most decorated man in America with the lone exception of General Pershing, but rarely wears the medals he owns.

And right here I must say that you have to be a "go-getter" to get him to talk about himself. About the only story his most intimate friends have been able to pry out of him is of the heroism of his aide—an 18 year old boy.

As the youngster lay alongside him in a shell hole, a shrapnel bomb burst close to them and they were blown some ten or fifteen feet apart. "Hurt, kid?" said MacNider when the picked himself up. "No, sir," said the kid, "I'm all right," and all day he followed his commanding officer.

That night when they had reached a place of safety the kid fainted, and on removing the youngster's coat, MacNider discovered a deep wound on his shoulder which had evidently been bleeding for hours as his shirt was saturated with blood. "Why didn't you tell me about this?" demanded MacNider when he had revived the boy. "I couldn't let you go on alone, sir," said the kid, and in "Jack" MacNider's eyes he became the biggest hero of the war.

MacNider is tall and erect in stature and in his large grey eyes you see his inheritance of canniness from his Scotch ancestry on his father's [illegible] cestral line. He is 32 years old, but still has a youthful, almost boyish, look about him despite the thinness of his wavy brown hair, parted on the right.

Close friends of Commander MacNider call him "Jack." He is unmarried. He says [illegible] election as Commander-in-Chief of the American Legion, he was keeping the [illegible] from Kansas City to Mason City, Iowa, "telling her all about it." Such is the man the one million members of the Legion have chosen as their leader.

POOR OF CITY LOOKED AFTER ON CHRISTMAS

Numerous Heavily Laden Sacks of Good Things Distributed Where Most Needed.

Charitable Organizations Work Together to Provide Christmas Cheer Everywhere.

Donations of Food Products Aid Greatly in Providing Necessities For Many.

Christmas was observed in Thief River Falls much in the usual manner. The weather was exceptionally fine and this helped out church attendance in the forenoon and the different Christmas tree celebrations in the evening. There being no community tree this year all observances were conducted indoors.

Charitable organizations combined to make the holiday one of good cheer for those whose circumstances would otherwise have prevented there being much in the way of a celebration. The lead in this movement was taken by the Elks lodge, materially assisted by other organizations, notably the firemen, Salvation Army and Woman's club. Thirty-five bags filled with substantial food, candy and nuts were distributed to needy families on Saturday by a committee after the supply had been made up Friday afternoon. The amount placed in each sack — a regular 98-pounder contributed by the Hanson-Barzen Milling company—varied somewhat with the size of the families for which it was intended. The liberality of the Minneapolis Bridge company in making donations of groceries enabled the committee to fill the sacks in a manner that would have been impossible otherwise. Manager Isak Helseth of the bridge company notified the committee that there was a considerable quantity of food stuffs returned from their various camps in the neighborhood and that such portions of it as could be used would be handed over free of charge. There was a sleighload of supplies, which included bacon, salt pork, tea, coffee, canned goods, spices, farinaceous goods, dried fruits and many other articles. The committee made the basis of their donation a five-pound beef roast and wound up with a liberal sack of candy and peanuts. Nearly every sack was filled to the top, the finishing touches being given by the addition of a quantity of individual corn flake packages supplied by the Thief River Grocery company. It was a wonderful layout.

On Monday afternoon the Odd Fellows lodge gave a party at the lodge rooms for about 100 children of the city. Everything needful in order to make out a typical Christmas dinner was provided, as well as nuts and candies in accordance with the tried and accepted custom. It proved to be a highly satisfactory event and the three-link tribe has come in for much merited approval.

All churches were filled to overflowing at the different Sunday school festivals as was the auditorium where the Trinity church children were hosts to their friends. The programs were all very much enjoyed, as were the many good things distributed.

Guernsey Bull Calf Sold to Remer Man For $200

O. N. Olson & Sons of Minnehahn farm a short distance east of Thief River Falls, last week sold to D. A. Hart of Remer, Cass county, the purebred Guernsey bull calf Clovercrest Captain (69851), for the record price of $200. This young bull won first prize at the Pennington county fair last summer and is one of the best ever shipped from the county.

HOLIDAY BUSINESS MEASURED UP WELL WITH OTHER YEARS

In Spite of Price Drop, Receipts Were Kept Up Through Increase in Volume.

In spite of all predictions to the contrary, Christmas business in Thief River Falls was very good, according to reports given out by the merchants. While it is doubtless true that the goods purchased did not run into money as rapidly as in former years, there was no let-down in the volume, which in fact was greatly increased in some instances.

It must be considered that in order to make as great a cash showing as a year ago it was necessary to handle a much larger quantity of goods. This came about through the constant drop in prices during the year, amounting on many articles to anywhere from a third to a half. The fact that under such circumstances the figures could even measurably keep up to a year ago speaks well for the purchasing power of the section.

Another thing that undoubtedly helped the Thief River Falls merchant this year is his steady advertising and reaching out after business over a wider territory. It has been particularly noticeable that the stores doing the most consistent and the largest amount of advertising are the ones getting the business. Perhaps never was the power of judicious advertising demonstrated so unmistakably in the history of the city.

There is a prediction in some quarters that a slump in business is due now the holiday rush is over. From other sources just as good comes the assurance that the worst part of the depression period has been passed and that the upturn will be steady. These optimists maintain that many have held off from buying believing that prices would drop still farther and now that an opposite tendency is evident they will take advantage of the present slump all along the line and buy more liberally than at any time during the past two years. That there will be a price increase in many lines is certain, the advance already being noted by buyers of spring goods.

SERIOUS SITUATION DISCLOSED BY 1921 MARRIAGE RECORD

Only 83 Licenses to Wed Were Issued, Smallest Number in History of County.

Chris Windeness and Miss Carrie Glende were this week granted a license to wed by Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund, being the second couple this month to make application for the privilege. The only month during 1921 with a poorer record was August, not one couple making the plunge during the 31 days of that mid-summer subdivision.

Unless something startling happens in the way of more weddings during the next two days, the year 1921 will go down as the poorest in this respect since the organization of the county. There were but 83 marriages contracted during the year, an average of less than seven a month. In a county having a population of more than 12,000 this is a discouraging record. It falls behind that of ten years ago by 11, while there were 43 fewer weddings than last year. Explain it in any way to suit your inclination—such are the facts.

September, October and November were the best months for getting married last year in the opinion of those most interested, in spite of the fact that the gentle springtime has always been considered the proper season for that sort of thing. June did pretty well but May made a shameful record, as will be seen by the following account of the number of licenses issued during the year: January, 6; February, 7; March, 4; April, 9; May, 4; June, 10; July, 7; August, 0; September, 11; October, 11; November, 13; December, 2.

A comparison with former years is interesting and will convince most anyone that something should be done to help the situation. The year 1920 shows up very well, as does 1916. It may be that there is something in this leap year proposition after all. The record since the organization of the county is as follows: Nineteen eleven, 94; 1912, 106; 1913, 96; 1914, 116; 1915, 123; 1916, 120; 1917, 110; 1918, 102; 1919, 107; 1920, 126; 1921, 83.

MEETS DEATH IN FIRE AT ARGYLE

Fred Piquette Dies of Suffocation in Burning Shack on Christmas Eve.

Moonshine very evidently played its part in the death of Fred Piquette, aged 63, at Argyle on Christmas eve, when he was suffocated and badly burned in a fire which destroyed the one-room shack of Joe Mondor. When the body was discovered after the fire had been put out by the Argyle fire department, Sheriff Hanson was notified and Joe Mondor, owner of the shack, who was under the influence of liquor, was brought to Warren and held until the coroner's investigation was made. Evidence that a still had been operated in the place was found.

At the inquest held Tuesday the verdict of the coroner's jury was that Piquette met his death by suffocation in the fire, the origin of which was unknown. Mondor was released as the result of absence of evidence to show cause for holding him further.

The body of Piquette was identified by his son as it was so badly burned that others could not recognize it.

According to Piquette's son, his father had been in the habit of going to the shack of Mondor, who is a bachelor, playing cards. Mondor maintained that he did not know the fire had started when he was taken into custody, although his head and eyebrows were singed.

Christmas Rush Heaviest in History of Postoffice

The local postoffice crew this year handled the largest amount of Christmas business in the history of the office. Not only were there a much larger number of packages mailed out, but the incoming mail was much heavier. The employes are of the opinion that packages generally bulked smaller than in some former years but that the number was 60 per cent larger.

There was no delay in handling the extraordinary business this year. Every mail train was supplied with its proper share of the outgoing mail as in ordinary times and the entire mass was cleared away regularly every night, leaving no overhangs for the following day. The addition of another clerk's window helped in getting things expedited and every available substitute and extra clerk or carrier was employed. The entire force worked overtime all through the week preceding Christmas and previous experience proved of great value in organizing for the best results.

The plea for the early mailing of Christmas parcels had its effect, the bulk of the business hitting the office about three days ahead of last year.

NEW KNOX SCHOOL

GRAND FORKS LEGION TO TRY CONCLUSIONS WITH LOCALS THIS EVENING

The second basketball game of the season will be played at the auditorium this evening, the Grand Forks Legion team opposing the locals. The game will be called at 8 o'clock.

The Grand Forks outfit is said to be one of the best in the Flickertail state and has already three hard-fought games to its credit. It is an altogether different team from that which appeared here last year and was defeated by practically the same lineup as that which will meet this far stronger aggregation tonight. Be on hand early if you want a seat.

AMBROSE ZEH DIES OF TUBERCULOSIS AT CAMP KEARNEY

Ex-Service Man, Native of This City, Will Be Buried Here Monday Morning.

The body of Ambrose Zeh, ex-service man, who died of tuberculosis at Camp Kearney, near San Diego, on Monday, is expected to arrive in the city for burial Saturday or Sunday.

The young man, who was only 22 years of age at the time of his death, was the son of Philip Zeh of this city and was born and reared here. Graduating from Lincoln high school in 1918, he enlisted in the service at once and served eight months overseas, being attached to Company A, 336th battalion, tank corps.

Returning home at the close of the war he secured a position with a bank at Minot, N. D., where he remained until about six weeks ago, when he decided to place himself in the hands of army doctors in the more hospitable climate of California. He seemed to improve at the beginning of his stay there but his condition became suddenly worse a few days ago and it was seen that there was no hope for his recovery. His father was notified and went at once to San Diego, being present at the deathbed of his son.

The funeral will be held from the Catholic church at 10 o'clock Monday morning, if present plans are followed, with Elmer J. Eklund post, American Legion, in charge.

Moonshine is Responsible For Young Men's Arrest

Four boys residing in Star township, three of them 16 and one 18 years of age, were arrested on a charge of having used abusive language calculated to provoke assault and were on Saturday brought before Judge Tarrant in police court. The complainant claimed the young men had procured a quantity of "moonshine" from some source and that the alleged assault took place while they were under its influence. The arrest was decided on in the hope that the source from which they derived their supply of the intoxicant might be disclosed. Upon recommendation of County Attorney Theo. Quale the hearing was postponed for 30 days.

Odd Fellows Entertain.

A delightful post Christmas party was given Tuesday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall when the Odd Fellows entertained the members of the Rebekah lodge at cards and dancing. A large crowd was in attendance and during the evening a fine lunch was served.

DEDICATION OF KNOX BUILDING FRIDAY, JAN. 13

Beautiful New School on East Side to Be Opened to Public on That Date.

Is Most Modern and Complete Structure of Its Kind in This Section of State.

J. H. Hay, Former Superintendent of City's Schools, Will Deliver Address.

The new Knox school, one of the finest grade buildings in this section of the state, will be formally dedicated on Friday evening, Jan. 13. The public is cordially invited to attend this opening, but children attending the grade rooms are asked not to come as space will not permit, and it is deemed of more importance that the parents and other school patrons should have an opportunity at this time to view the building.

This new and strictly modern structure occupies the site of the former building of the same name on the East side. It is two stories high, of brick construction with stiffled brick facing. The cost of the completed structure, exclusive of decorative work and equipment, is about $80,000.

Has Large Auditorium.

There are 14 class rooms and an auditorium, the latter being 42x66 feet. Besides these there are teachers' rooms and two store rooms and lavatories on the first floor. The latest and most approved heating system has been installed and the electrical equipment is of the best. The Prichard company of this city are the general contractors, the heating plant has been put in by the Moorhead Heating and Plumbing company of Moorhead, and the electrical equipment by the South Side Electrical company of Minneapolis. Sund & Dunham, arcitects, Minneapolis, have had general supervision over the work. The intention is to have everything in running order so the building will be ready for occupancy upon the reopening of school after the Christmas holidays.

Finished in Seven Months.

Not only will this building be arranged in accordance with generally approved plans on the inside, but the exterior is worthy of some notice. The structure is located in the center of a large plot of land, the exterior surroundings being such as to permit of spacious lawns and play grounds.

It was just seven months to a day from the time the contract was awarded until W. W. Prichard, Jr., of the contracting firm turned the building over to the architects. This is perhaps the first time in the history of the city that a structure of this size has been completed within the specified time limit. Mr. Prichard says that there have been very few delays of any kind and that plenty of labor has been available. He is very much pleased with the outcome as this is the concern's first large construction job in the city.

Program For Opening.

J. H. Hay, at present assistant commissioner of agriculture for Minnesota and for many years superintendent of schools in this city, will deliver the principal address at the opening. In view of Mr. Hay's long experience as head of the schools here and the continued interest evinced by him in the city's progress and welfare, no more fitting choice could have been made. Subject to certain changes, the program for the evening will be as follows:

Music, High School Orchestra.
Address of Welcome, Dr. H. W. Froehlich, president of school board.
Presentation of building by contractor to architect, W. W. Prichard, Jr.
Presentation of building by architect to school board, A. D. Dunham.
Short address, Supt. I. T. Simley.
Music, High School Glee club.
Address, J. H. Hay.
Music, High School orchestra.
"America," audience.

NORSE STORY BY LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT RECEIVES HIGH PRAISE

Supt. C. G. Selvig of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, is a reader of The Times. That he reads it all is evidenced by the fact that he has found something in the High School Progress department which meets with his approval. A short story in the Norwegian language appearing there last week entitled "Juleklokkerne," has brought forth the following words of commendation from Mr. Selvig:

"Dear Editor: If I should write you to say that I enjoyed thoroughly the story, 'Juleklokkerne,' (Christmas Bells) by Olive Aaland, '25, that I just read on the High School Progress page of The Times, I hope it will not be thought that I merely wish to flatter the writer.

"The story is beautiful. The language is exquisite. I believe unreservedly in our young people acquiring the use of good English, but shall we not also encourage them to see the beauty and feel the strength and grandeur of the language of the Norsemen?

"That simple little story moved me to write this to you, even at the risk of being late for lunch."

SUDDEN DEATH OF GRYGLA FARMER IN THIS CITY FRIDAY

Father of Eleven Passes Away While Sitting in Office of Northwestern Hotel.

George W. Calhoun of Grygla, 59 years of age, died suddenly while sitting in the office of the Northwestern hotel in this city about 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The immediate cause of death was the bursting of an artery leading to the heart.

Deceased came here to have an X-ray picture taken of a foot which had been troubling him for a number of years. He went to the hotel for dinner, sat down in the office for a short time before entering the dining room and was stricken while in that position. Drs. C. M. Adkins, O. F. Melby and H. W. Froehlich were at once summoned but death ensued before their arrival.

Mr. Calhoun was born at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, and the body was sent to that city for burial. Surviving him are a wife and 11 children, seven sons and four daughters, besides four brothers, most of whom reside in Iowa. Deceased had resided on a farm about a mile south of Grygla for the past five years.

Organization Meeting of New Council on Jan. 10

The present city council held its last business meeting on Tuesday evening. At the first meeting of the new year, to be held on the evening of Jan. 10, the present body will adjourn sine die and will at once reconvene for organization. At that time all appointments will be made for the ensuing year, a president of the council and city clerk chosen by the council and police officers named by the mayor.

AMERICAN LEGION AIDS SOLDIER'S KIN

Radschwit Family, Near Karlstad, Win Three-Year Fight For Insurance.

Through the efforts of G. Howard Smith and the American Legion post of this city, the Radschwit family, residing near Karlstad, find themselves in very much improved circumstances.

Robert Radschwit and his brother enlisted at Karlstad for service in the army. The former contracted ptomaine poisoning and was also gassed in one of the engagements. He was discharged from the army on March 6, 1919, and returned home. On May 12 he had a seizure of some kind and died the next spring.

The young man paid his insurance while in the army but at the time of his death his policy had lapsed seven days. In spite of this fact it was thought that the proper presentation and an explanation of the circumstances would result in something being done to help the beneficiaries. The application was turned down three times in as many years. At this point the American Legion took hold of the matter and Mr. Smith managed to get the case reopened. Finally the department agreed to pay claim in full, the theory of the officials being that the government owed the dead soldier more as compensation than the amount of the insurance premium. The policy was thus reinstated.

John A. Radschwit, the father, now gets $5,000, a sister $3,000, and a brother $2,000. This money will reach the beneficiaries in 30 equal installments.

IMMEDIATE STEPS TO HELP JOBLESS SHOULD BE TAKEN

Situation Not Yet Serious But More Work Should Be Provided Without Delay.

Mayor Bratrud and the city council are prepared to take steps to prevent anything serious in the nature of an unemployment situation arising to face the community. Thus far the citizens of Thief River Falls have been getting along in pretty good shape but there is no denying the fact that more men are out of work here than is good for a town.

The matter was brought up at the council meeting on Tuesday evening and the opinion unanimously expressed that something ought to be done to see if more employment cannot be provided.

The first movement in this direction will probably be a mass meeting of business men at which it will be urged that all who possibly can do so shall proceed at once with any work they may be contemplating for the near future. County and city officials will be asked to engage now upon the enterprises usually left until spring in order to increase the labor demand. Road and street work of such nature that it may be carried on during the winter months will be urged upon officials and it is thought they will be only too glad to lend any assistance in their power. If there are farmers who can use men for any purpose the importance of doing the work now will be pointed out.

It was agreed by councilmen and other officials of the city that it is vastly better to go to extremes in providing work than to have whole families on the charity roll. It is felt that unless there is a greater demand for men created at once there is going to be a steadily increasing demand upon the authorities for aid and this simply transfers the burden to the taxpayer without giving him anything in return. No date for a meeting of business men has as yet been named.

MORE DRUNKENNESS IN 1921 THAN FOR 2 PREVIOUS YEARS

Months of May and October Record Breakers For Number of Jags in Evidence.

There were more than twice as many arrests for drunkenness in 1921 as in 1920, and the year is not quite at an end when these figures are given out. Only six persons were brought before Judge N. W. Tarrant of the municipal court on this charge last year, while there have been 14 culprits to date in 1921. May and October misbehaved badly, there being five arrests for this offense in the former and four in the latter month. None were hauled in during January, March, April, June or July, and only one each in February, August, September, November and December.

Including the above, 48 cases were brought before the municipal court for hearing during the year as compared with 49 in 1920 and 41 in 1919. Infractions of the automobile law last year were responsible for 16 arrests, while there have been none this year. Charges against others arrested in 1921 were as follows: Assault and battery, 4; non-support and desertion, 4; assault, 3; petty larceny, 3; passing bogus checks, 4; carnal knowledge of minor, 1; manufacturing intoxicating liquors, 2; selling intoxicating liquors, 2; running gambling house, 2; wife beating, 1; grand larceny, 4; bastardy, 1; housebreaking, 7; violation of pure food law, 1; employment of child under lawful age, 1.

The housebreaking count represents two jobs, there being four arrests in one case and three in another.

The advances aggregate $5,089,000 and included: Iowa, $325,000; Minnesota, $239,000; Montana, $225,000; North Dakota, $730,000; South Dakota, $411,000, and Wisconsin, $10,000.

KIRBY IS HELD TO ANSWER FOR STRUM'S DEATH

Manslaughter in First Degree is Charge Against Former Thief River Falls Man.

Alleged That Treatment Administered For Simple Cold Caused Patient's Demise.

Bail Furnished and Case Will Probably Be Heard at January Term of Court.

Samuel Kirby, until recently a resident of Thief River Falls, now located at Northwood, N. D., was bound over to the district court by Justice Phil McLoughlin at Grand Forks late Tuesday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree.

The case arose from the death of Edward Strum, who is alleged to have been treated by Kirby for illness, and whose death is alleged to have resulted from this treatment.

Bail was fixed at $1,000, which was furnished. It is probable that the case will be tried during the January term of the district court.

The preliminary hearing, which lasted all Tuesday afternoon, was held in the district court room at the county court house. The room was packed with spectators, many of those who desired to hear the case being unable to gain entrance.

Six Witnesses Examined.

Six witnesses were examined by State's Attorney T. B. Elton. At the conclusion of their testimony, J. F. T. O'Connor, attorney for Kirby, moved the dismissal of the case on the ground that the evidence brought out had not shown that any crime had been committed within the jurisdiction of the court, nor that there was reasonable cause for holding Kirby in connection with such crime if one had been committed.

Justice McLoughlin denied this motion, and as Mr. O'Connor announced that the defense would call no witnesses at this time, proceeded to bind Kirby over to the district court.

Earlier in the day it was announced that Kirby had been held to the district court on the first charge which was preferred against him, which was practicing medicine without a license.

Disorder in Court.

Much disorder marked the earlier parts of the hearing Tuesday, many of those present applauding following remarks made by the attorneys. Finally State's Attorney Elton protested to Justice McLoughlin, and the justice announced that he would clear the court room in case of further disorder.

There was also some verbal sparring between the attorneys during the early part of the proceedings.

The first witness called by the state was Nelius Olson of Northwood, who testified that Kirby maintained offices in that town. The rent of these offices was paid by the Northwood Commercial club, he stated, when cross examined by Mr. O'Connor.

Story of Illness.

Peter Larson, a farmer living near Mayville, was the next witness called. He testified that he was the uncle by marriage of Ed. Strum, whose death resulted in Kirby's arrest, and that Strum had resided with him at his farm.

On Nov. 18, last, Larson testified, Strum went to Northwood and returned in the evening. He had "dope on his throat that looked like tar," Larson testified, and had a handkerchief tied around his neck.

The next day, Larson said, Strum's throat was badly blistered, and Strum remained at home all day. During the days which followed, his condition grew steadily worse, the witness said, the blister on the throat continuing to "run," while a lump appeared on the left side of his body which moved gradually toward the front.

Strum was exceedingly despondent, Larson said, and on at least two occasions said to him:

Spent Money and Killed.

"Wasn't it awful for me to spend $7 to go to Northwood and have Kirby kill me?"

On Nov. 26, Larson testified, a neighbor living near him had called Kirby to come to his farm. Larson thereupon asked this neighbor to have Kirby come to his farm and look at Strum. This Kirby did, according to the witness.

On looking at the patient, Kirby asked if he had a goiter. Larson said Strum's sister, who was present, replied that he had not been treated for a goiter.

"Didn't I tell you you had a bad T. B.?" Kirby then asked the patient, according to Larson.

"Yes, you told me so," was said to have been Strum's reply.

Larson said he called Kirby's attention to the swelling on Strum's body, and that Kirby said that he "didn't know what it was but that it didn't come from his treatment."

Kirby said he would send Strum some medicine, and the medicine arrived on the following day.

In Mayville Hospital.

Strum's condition grew worse, and he was finally taken to a hospital at Mayville, Larson said, and he saw him there on Dec. 4, the day before his death. On that occasion, Larson said, he promised to return the next day, and Strum replied, "If it isn't too late." Strum died early the next morning.

On the occasion of this visit Larson said Strum's face and throat were badly swelled.

On cross examination the witness admitted that he had originally advised Strum to see Kirby as he was suffering from a cold. He also admitted signing the complaint against Kirby although he did not understand some of the medical terms used therein.

Strum Despondent.

Peter Strum, a cousin of the deceased, was the next witness. He told of a visit paid to the sufferer in the hospital the night before his death.

The sick man was very despondent, he said, and declared his belief that he would never leave the hospital alive.

"Look here what Kirby done to me," he said to his cousin, according to the latter's story.

Dr. G. M. Williamson, called to the witness stand for a few minutes, testified as secretary of the state board of medical examiners that Kirby was not licensed to practice medicine in North Dakota.

Doctor's Testimony.

Dr. T. P. Martin of Mayville testified that he attended Strum beginning Nov. 27, the day following Kirby's visit to the Larson farm. He found Strum, he declared, in a very weak condition. His neck and chest were raw and blistered, and there was "dullness on the left side of his chest indicating the formation of pus."

Strum was taken to the Mayville hospital on Nov. 28, Dr. Martin testified, and he performed an operation which resulted in the drawing off of about two thirds of a pint of pus from the left side of the patient's chest.

The blisters on his neck and face were also treated, but in spite of this the infection continued to spread. Three incisions made in Strum's face in order to "let out the poison" also proved futile, and death came on Dec. 5.

"In your opinion, what was the cause of death?" the state's attorney asked.

"In my opinion death was due to cellulitis or infection of the deep tissues of the neck spreading down and causing infection of the left side of the pleural cavity," the witness replied.

On cross examination by Mr. O'Connor, he said that this opinion had been strengthened by results of a post-mortem examination subsequently held.

Dean French Called.

The last witness called by the state was Dr. H. E. French, dean of the medical department at the state university. Dr. French said that he had performed a post mortem examination at the request of the undertaker who had charge of Strum's body, and a number of Strum's relatives.

Dr. French gave full particulars as to the post-mortem, saying that infection had penetrated deep into the body, especially on the left side, even the upper part of the liver being slightly infected. The infection extended upwards as far as the scalp, he said.

Cause of Death.

"In your estimation, what was the cause of death?" asked Mr. Elton.

"I would say septicemia (blood poisoning) getting its start in a region weakened by injuries," replied the doctor.

"What region?" asked the attorney.

"The neck," replied the witness.

"And what was the cause of the injury to the neck?" inquired the state's attorney.

"Most of the injury I saw was due to an inflammatory process. There had evidently been burning by some corrosive substance," Dr. French replied.

Prejudice Charged.

On cross examination by Attorney O'Connor, Dr. French denied that he had any prejudice against Kirby. This question was repeated several times in various forms.

This concluded the examination of witnesses and Mr. O'Connor made his motion for the dismissal of the case. He declared in his remarks to the court that "there was a feeling in the community that the case was not brought in good faith, but in order to get rid of Mr. Kirby, and would never have been brought if Kirby had been a duly licensed doctor."

Latest Music to Feature Legion's New Year Dance

The boys of Elmer J. Eklund Post, American Legion, have made it a point to provide for the best in music for their New Year's dance on the evening of Friday, Dec. 30. Snyder's orchestra, with special engagement of Ted Anderson of Warren, saxophone artist, will play the very latest there is in dance tunes. Miss Theone Walker will preside at the piano, while Alfred Dybvik will officiate at the drums. Besides these there is, of course, Old Man Snyder with his little mail order fiddle. This outfit will be prepared to hand out something real spiffy. If you don't believe it, look over the following program:

"Yoo! Hoo!, "Sunny Tennessee," "Just Like a Rainbow," "June Moon," "Bimini Bay," "I Ain't Nobody's Baby," "Remember the Rose," "Tenderly," "Dream of Me," "Ten Little Fingers," "All by Myself," "Cry Baby Blues," "I Wonder If You Still Care," "Ma!" "Peaches," "Tuck Me to Sleep," "Birds of a Feather," "You're Just the Type for a Bungalow," "In Maytime," "When Shall We Meet Again?"

The numbers listed above will not be played in the order given, but all will appear on the program some place. Mr. Snyder will be glad to send for numbers suggested by persons who may have some favorite not listed.

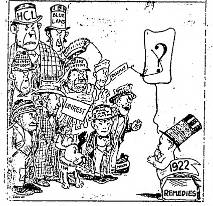
WHAT HE IS UP AGAINST.



BEMIDJI DEFEATED IN FIRST BASKET SKIRMISH, 29 TO 10

Boys Not Yet Quite in Trim But Able to Give Good Account of Themselves.

While the outcome of the season's first basketball game was highly satisfactory, Bemidji being beaten by a score of 29 to 10, the fact remains that the Thief River Falls team has not yet hit its stride and comes a long ways from being the aggregation which defeated all comers last year. Bemidji's downfall simply indicates that the team from that town has gone farther back than have the former champions.

Flashes of the old-time form were occasionally in evidence but the whirlwind speed and sensational basket shooting which characterized last year's work were decidedly lacking. It was the first game and it is only proper that allowances should be made. No good purpose can be served, however, by pretending that Friday night's showing was such as will carry the team to the head of the column unless there is considerable improvement.

Plummer, the new forward, made the best showing, both on the offensive and defensive. Carlson has not yet rounded into form but gave evidence that he will play his strong, consistent game as soon as he gets his bearings. The same is true of the remainder of the team, particularly Holzknecht. The willingness is there, so is the science and knowledge of the game. Only practice is needed.

During the first half Plummer had four field baskets to his credit while Carlson had two and one free throw. Hermanson, who went in for Hadrath toward the end of the half, also connected with the hoop once, as did Holzknecht.

Fibbs, Bemidji forward, missed four attempts to make goals in the first half. Ashenbach and Simons were the only ones to make a basket in this round, which closed with the score standing 17 to 4 in favor of Thief River Falls.

Hermanson replaced Hadrath when the second opened, the latter seeming unable to get his usual speed. All he needed, evidently, was a rest as he was put back into the game within a few minutes and acquitted himself with credit. Kiland took Brown's place in the lineup and showed to good advantage. Towards the close of the half Carlson sprained a tendon in his foot and Penney was put in his place. This was a fast and clean half, there being but two technical fouls called, one on Carlson and one on Hadrath. Holzknecht made two baskets and Plummer, Hadrath, Penney and Kiland each one, making twelve goals garnered in this session.

Bemidji used the same lineup throughout, except that Bailey went in for McGee towards the end. Fibbs made two field baskets and missed two free throws. The only other goal made for the visitors was by Ackenbach, making the total 10 and that of Thief River 29.

Bemidji throughout was forced to take long chances. Far shots were tried from every angle but outside of one rather sensational connection by Simon this far-reaching only resulted in their losing the ball.

At no time was the game in danger. Thief River Falls had the lead from the start and gained steadily throughout. The playing was clean on both sides, there being few personal fouls. Perry Johnson officiated as referee in his usual impartial and efficient manner; Guy Johnson was timekeeper and George Mostue scorekeeper.

Tonight the Grand Forks Legion team comes here for a game. It is said that this aggregation already has two victories over strong opponents to its credit and it is expected that there will be a lively tussle.

The lineup was as follows:

T. R. F.		Bemidji
Carlson	rf	Fibbs
Plummer	lf	Achenbach
Hadrath	c	Simons
Holzknecht	rg	Lane
Brown	lg	McGee

Too Much Christmas Cheer Lands Visitor in Lockup

Only one man in Thief River Falls celebrated Christmas to such an extent that it was found advisable to put him away where folks could not see him. On Saturday night Patrolman Chris Porter came across a party asleep in an automobile. The officer took charge of the patient and put him where his nap could be continued without his freezing to death. Judge N. W. Tarrant was notified and made a special trip down town on Christmas morning to see what could be done about the matter. He ordered the prisoner released and told him to go home and spend Christmas with his family, saying that any man who had managed to keep out of jail during the rest of the year ought not to be kept there on Christmas day. The man—who is not a resident of Thief River Falls, by the way—left for home and promised to pay the fine that would have been imposed under ordinary circumstances. Judge Tarrant believes he will keep his word, too.

Inasmuch as the court was willing to let the offender off so easy because of the softening influence of the season, The Times will be similarly charitable and withhold his name.

Minnesota Ranks Second in Federal Road Projects

Minnesota ranks second among the states in miles of roads built, under construction or under agreement for construction in conjunction with federal aid funds distributed by the bureau of public roads, department of agriculture, since July 1, 1916, according to figures made public by that department. Minnesota is credited with 1,713.4 miles of such roads, at an estimated cost of $17,509,911.01, with federal aid of $6,947,373.63.

MUCH INTEREST IN BOYS' CONFERENCE HELD AT VIRGINIA

Suggested That Thief River Falls Be Represented By One or More Delegates.

A citizen prominent in church and educational work in the city calls the attention of The Times to an older boys' conference to be held Jan. 13, 14 and 15 at Virginia. All boys who are 16 years of age, or Sophomores in high school, or are employed, are eligible to attend providing they come in the spirit of the conference and believe in its purpose. Boys from high schools, Y. M. C. A.s, Sunday schools and churches, or boys who are working, are cordially invited. The purpose of the conference is to challenge the older boys to strong Christian living, and to help them in Christian service through offering plans and methods of work in different organizations.

Entertainment consisting of lodging and breakfast will be furnished to all delegates who register by Jan. 9. Dinner and supper on Saturday and supper on Sunday will be at the expense of the delegates. There is a registration fee of $1.75 to cover the expense of program and banquet. This fee should accompany the registration card, which should reach the office of the state Y. M. C. A. at Minneapolis by Jan. 9.

It would be a fine thing if someone from Thief River Falls might attend this conference. Since the high school has no way of financing the expenses of representatives, the school authorities would be very glad to have any parent or organization who can afford it notify them in case they are willing to send either their own son or someone else's son, or both, as representatives to the conference. This would be a fine outing for some boy and it would as well be of benefit to the rest of the boys to whom reports would be brought back by the delegates.

Annual Clearance Sale at Mogensen's Announced

Following the closing up of the holiday business, E. O. Mogensen has a clearance sale of clothing and men's furnishings every year. This sale is put on at this time primarily for the purpose of cleaning up on all winter stocks and making room for spring goods which will soon be arriving. Merchants everywhere are anxious to turn as much as possible of their present stock into cash, and if reducing the price will do it, Mr. Mogensen should have no trouble in cleaning up. He carries one of the finest and most varied lines to be found in this section and has acquired a reputation for reliability and fair treatment that is one of his greatest assets. Everyone knows that when Mr. Mogensen advertises a reduction in prices it means that prices are not only shaved down, but are cut to the lowest possible point. This sale starts on Saturday morning and a glance over the offerings will convince anyone of the wisdom of being on hand early.

TOOK WEEK FOR TRIP AND THEN SOLD EGGS AT 6 CENTS PER DOZ.

Experience of Early Farmers in This Section Makes Present Conditions Look Like Boom Times in Comparison.

While it is doubtless true that the farmer of the present day has good reason for feeling anything but enthusiastic over the outlook, yet compared with 25 or 30 years ago he is a fortunate individual. Such at least is the impression gained from a conversation with August Wortenberg of near Holt, who was in the city Friday on business. Mr. Wortenberg took up a homestead near what is now Middle River in the early eighties and was in Thief River Falls when there were less than half a dozen houses here. Some years ago he moved into the Holt section. During his long residence he has seen some hard times and recalls that on one occasion he could not get rid of his butter and eggs here and was forced to go to St. Hilaire. The trip was made by ox team and took three days going and three more returning. He sold butter for 6 cents a pound and the eggs for 6 cents a dozen. Provisions were certainly not worth much in those days but time must have been worth even less.

Government Docks Former Soldier; City Makes Good

This government of ours is a stickler for detail—in some things. H. E. Perkins, a returned service man, was docked a total of $50 because the authorities learned that he was employed as a helper by the city electricians. He worked as an apprentice, receiving nothing except the experience for his labor, during the time that the White Way cables were being laid, but the government charged the above sum up to him just the same. Perkins has a family and is unable to perform much labor of any kind, his eyesight being seriously affected. He sent a bill for the $50 to the city council on Tuesday night and as it was agreed that his services had been worth at least that much it was allowed without question.

Northwest School Closed For Holidays; Open Jan. 3

The first term of the Northwest School of Agriculture closed for the holidays Thursday, Dec. 22, which enables the students from this vicinity to spend their vacations at home. In spite of the financial situation in many parts of the Northwest the attendance at the farm school has been very large. There were 175 students enrolled.

The second term will open Wednesday, Jan. 4, and will close March 31. There were a number of students from this locality who were unable to attend the first term but who are planning on attending the three months after Christmas. There will be classes arranged for those who are entering as new students. Some of the courses open to students are dressmaking, music, farm engineering, farm mechanics, shop work, live stock judging, grain judging, business English and accounting. All new students should arrive sometime on Tuesday, Jan. 3, in order to be ready for classes the following morning.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS.

While it is undoubtedly true that the unemployment situation in Thief River Falls has not reached an acute stage, yet it cannot be denied that too many men who are willing to work can find nothing to do. The same condition prevails to an even greater extent in other sections of the country.

If anything can be done to promote employment of labor it should be undertaken without delay. The condition may continue indefinitely and grow steadily worse, unless some plan is found to bring about a change.

The suggestion made at the city council meeting the other evening is therefore worthy of serious consideration. It is proposed to hold a public meeting of business men for the purpose of urging upon them the necessity for undertaking at once any job they may have in mind for the near future. The city and county authorities will be asked to join in the movement with the suggestion that they move ahead any program now in hand so as to get it started at once. Building and other improvements intended to be begun with the opening of spring will be moved ahead a couple of months in order that men may be put to work, if the plan of those now considering the matter is accepted.

In a city the size of Thief River Falls the removal of ten or twenty men from the ranks of the unemployed by putting them to work makes quite a showing. The trouble is that none of us have stopped to realize how important such small matters are. We have allowed ourselves to get into the habit of looking for an indication of returning normalcy to the packing houses, steel mills and railroads, neglecting at the same time to do our own bit toward helping the movement along.

It must be remembered that it is very much better to put men to work at something that will be of benefit to the individual or the community than it is to support the families of these same men out of the public funds. Very few men will ask for help if given an opportunity to help themselves. It is only as a last resort that they apply for aid, and when such course is found necessary it represents a double loss. The taxpayer must stand the cost in the first place while the person thus helped is removed from the ranks of the producers and no longer contributes his share toward maintaining the general stability of things.

If you can find work around your place for a man for a day or two you have helped by just that much. It is possible that you are able to use two or more men for a longer time. If such is the case, and the work is done now, the unemployment problem in Thief River Falls will have been solved. It is not serious as yet and we can nearly all do something to prevent its becoming so.

LOOK FORWARD.

There is neither profit nor satisfaction in looking back over the year just closing for the purpose of pointing out its shortcomings. It has not been the most encouraging twelve-month period in our history, but on the other hand it might have been a great deal worse. Looking back over it for any other purpose than to discover where our mistakes lay and with the intention of correcting them in the future is a useless proceeding. The year is gone and now chiefly valuable for the lessons it has taught.

The Minneapolis Journal contains a very sensible New Year's editorial along this line. Instead of looking backward and shaking his head over what has passed, the editor of that paper looks toward the future with a good deal of hopefulness. His views constitute what will perhaps prove the best New Years editorial that could be printed:

"The year is drawing to a close and with its finish will come a change of viewpoint. We are looking backward upon a year of poor crops in sectional regions, low exchange and frozen credits. We are still under the influence of these conditions, but when we go to work next week we shall have a new viewpoint, because we will be looking forward and everything will be changed. The turning of a leaf on the calendar will do all this for the people.

"Just as we have been looking back to the last crop with its unfavorable results, so will we, next week, look forward to the new seeding with hopefulness. We will pause long enough to find that the foreign exchange situation has improved. We will be reminded that the South is in better financial condition due to the price changes of cotton. We will be out from under much of readjustment; credits will have been revived and extended, and the business mind [illegible] settled to all that has happened. Even the farmer will decide that the bad year, out of many good ones, is not to be final with him, and he will take on new courage. As he has thought the matter over, he is coming to see that after all he is only a part of the reconstruction problem that is going on all over the world.

"The step ahead taken at Washington will have far reaching sentimental value, because it will be the turning point against large expenditures for wars that do not exist, and, as a result of the withdrawal of taxation for that purpose, will not exist for many decades to come.

"There is much to be thankful for out of the depression that has overtaken many of our industries and our farmers. This depression might have been worse for everybody. We all have enough to eat, so there are no large relief measures to undertake as has fallen to countries in other parts of the world. The Lord has kept us from famine and pestilence and we should be thankful.

"We will in a week stop looking backward and will turn our faces to the front, and will do it with more confidence than we entered the year just closing. At least, no harm will result in taking a more optimistic viewpoint."

HOW ABOUT THE FARMER?

Newspapers in the Northwest have taken to asking the same question voiced by The Times two weeks ago. They want to know where the farmer is going to figure in all the calculations that are being made at Washington. That something will have to be done to help his particular case is admitted by all who are in the least conversant with the situation, but what form such help is to take is a question not so easily settled. Staunch Republican newspapers go so far as to predict disaster to the party in the congressional elections unless some constructive policy of agricultural relief is formulated. The Crookston Times, for example, has the following to offer on the subject:

"Representative Mondell, Republican House leader, after leaving a conference with President Harding is reported to have announced the legislative program for Congress for the remainder of its term.

"The program includes encouragement of the merchant marine, a bonus bill for former service men, a permanent tariff law and the regular government appropriations.

"Where do the farmers get in on this program?

"It will be a sorry looking congress from the Republican viewpoint that emerges from the November elections if no attention is paid to the crying agricultural needs.

"Neither merchant marine aid nor protection for manufacturing industries should be touched until the cause of our depression, the sad plight of the farmer, is remedied, constructively and permanently. Not even the most ardent supporter of the Soldiers' bonus but what will agree to that.

"You can't pull the country up by its own boot-straps by heavily subsidizing the merchant marine or protecting industry. It can't be done!

YOUR PAPER.
(Dassel Dispatch.)

This newspaper—and every other newspaper, for that matter—has its shortcomings. It isn't perfect, never was and never expects to be. It has made mistakes and it wouldn't think of disappointing anyone by not making any more.

But we are a home town newspaper, and that means something.

It means that on these pages are spread week after week names and items that are near and dear to you. Admit it or not, that's a truth. When the baby comes, your friends read about it in "the paper." When the baby has endured a sufficient number of school days to discover that Italy is on the other side of the Alps, you read her name in the high school graduating class. By and by there comes a wedding at your house and we rather guess you are interested in what the home paper has to say about it. In the same issue another reader turning to a different column will read through mist the sympathetic lines which record the last solemn ceremony in honor of one who once scanned these pages with the gripping interest that you now do.

We submit that the printing press, no matter how ponderous it may be, gives out no more appealing literature than the home town paper, sometimes guilty of grotesque items, Main street grammar and original orthography. That is the picture so long held up that it would be needless to here call attention to the general excellence of the modern Minnesota weekly. Forget that they have made progress. Accuse them, if you like, of using "was" for "were" and of splitting their infinitives until the infinitives stagger like a one-legged man full of moonshine, and yet you know that when you look upon its pages you will find the names of persons you know are doing things that you want to hear about; a champion for your people, for your town and for your county.

It is a neighbor and your eyes brighten with anticipation each week when you find it in the mail. You take it home and it is a welcome guest. Every member of the family reads every page, and then again, fearful that some item may have been missed.

Then you wrap it up and send it to John in the city and when John gets it, be he clerk or capitalist, judge or janitor, everything else waits until John finds out what "the folks back home are doing."

No printed page is quite so close to the heart of the home as your own newspaper — and advertisers might do well to tuck that little worth-while fact into their craniums.

Support of Farm Bureaus Urged on Commissioners to Meet Farmer Demands

Supt. C. G. Selvig of the Northwest School of Agriculture, has written an open letter to the commissioners of Polk county urging that they make an appropriation for the support of the Polk county farm bureau.

While the letter is addressed to commissioners of a neighboring county, the arguments favoring the farmers' organization applies with equal force to every county in which public support of the bureau has been withdrawn, Pennington being one of these. No man in the section is better qualified to discuss this subject and Mr. Selvig's communication is therefore herewith reprinted in full:

"To Directors and Members of Polk County Farm Bureau:

"A recent communication from Mr. Carl Berg, Erskine, president of the Polk County Farm Bureau, came to my desk recently.

"Something must be done in Polk county to place the farm bureau before the farmers in the proper light. It can't be done by doing nothing. An aggressive membership campaign is necessary. A plan should be organized to build up the farm bureau, and then all should work for and support it.

"I am greatly impressed with the achievements of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the national organization, and with the records made in some of the states. The national organization is a tremendous force today. Its arm can only be strengthened by having a strong state organization co-operating with a representative and active county group. Why is Polk county not interested in this matter? This is a vital question. Surely our needs should be reflected in both the state and national program.

"Any weakening now in the ranks of the agricultural interests will cause the progressive forward movement to sag and eventually to break.

"Shall we remain mute in the face of the present railway rates?

"Shall the farmers' viewpoint be pressed in taxation matters?

"Shall we continue with farm credit facilities so badly out of joint that they are unable to meet needs?

"Shall we sit idly by and do nothing to curb the issuance of tax-exempt securities, leaving the entire tax-sack to be held by the farmers and small owners?

"Shall we forever be forced to sell our farm products in competition with cheaply transported products raised by coolie labor, without reference to cost of production under American rural standards?

"Shall the enforcement of the grain trading and packer control acts be made a matter of public information? If so, through what organization can the farmers, generally, learn of the benefits accruing from this legislation?

"Shall national co-operative marketing associations be outlawed or shall they be given the sanction of congress? These and many other questions bring up real issues.

"Every group of farmers and business men should be heard regarding them. The merits of the various proposals should be looked into, discussion solely because I believe in this great national organization. My visits to the Washington and Chicago offices of the American Farm Bureau convinced me that Polk county should have a strong, active organization in every township or the agricultural interests of this great country will not be fully cared for.

"I bring this matter to your attention, and action for or against them registered. The farmer's interest is too large and too important to be nobody's business.

"I have no suggestion to make except that a meeting should be held in the near future, at which time these important questions could be discussed and action taken. I have met many farmers who are very desirous of seeing an active farm bureau organization perfected in Polk county.

"What is your opinion regarding the matter?"

The Modern Girl.

The modern girl's morals are not what her mother's were. I was talking the other morning to a modern girl in an ultra-modern bathing suit.

"My hired chaperon," she said, as she brushed a bit of sand from her bare, round knee, "my hired chaperon caught me kissing a married man last night."

"Good heavens," said I, "what did you do?"

"I discharged her," said the modern girl.

The Limit.

I've stood for Volstead prohibition,
But one thing I will never stand;
When I am called unto my fathers,
I'll go without a monkey gland.

When labor loafs, that is malingering; when capital loafs, that is business depression, says Oolai.

Roll stockings are like reputations—hard to keep up.

The Only Lack.

Mother: "Well, Nellie, is your doll kitchen completely furnished now?"

Nellie: "No, mama, I still need a policeman for the cook."

Pome.

The crime was mayhem, but
They freed John Drayer,
When he bit off the ear
Of a saxophone player.

What happened to a man who married his mother-in-law is shown in an article taken from the Madison County Democrat. The marriage of George E. Bidder, 44, at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last Friday, makes him the grandfather of six of his children and stepfather of his former wife. He married his mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Davis, 48. He was divorced a few weeks ago from Mrs. Eva Bidder, daughter of his new wife and mother of the six little Bidders.

There are, of course, a great many ignorant people in the country, but if we are looking for a darned fool who thinks he is smart, we would go to a city to find him.

A Lady Greaser.

"We must treat our new cook with respect. She belongs to the Revolutionary Dames where she came from."

"Where'd she come from?"

"Mexico."

In a Small Town Hotel.

I settled me down one evening,
It wasn't so long ago,
For the air was cold and chilly—
The ground all covered with snow.

To sleep the sleep of the weary,
On a bed at the end of the hall,
Where the snow and the wind so dreary
Blew in through a hole in the wall.

And I drew the covers around me,
With my knees up under my chin;
From somewhere in the darkness, I couldn't see,
Two enemies swiftly stole in.

One approached from the west in silence,
While the other had taken a line
From the pillow, on which I was lying,
To the nose that I always called mine.

Before the first snore I could utter,
They began their awful attack.
The one on my nose made me sputter,
While the other he bit at my back.

I countered, I fenced and I parried,
I scratched and I hammered in vain,
I turned, but never I tarried,
For they were back biting again.

As we waged our furious battle,
The covers became disarrayed,
My teeth they began to rattle,
While I became greatly dismayed.

In vain I called for assistance,
No light could I find anywhere;
So the noise of my earnest resistance
And chatter, well, quite filled the air.

At last the pillow was taken,
I jumped far out on the floor,
My enemies both were shaken,
So I curled myself up by the door.

There I shivered away, 'most demented,
With the pillow thrown over my head,
To awake in the morning contented,
When I found both bugs frozen in bed.

One Ranger Enough.

Some decades ago there was a riot down in Texas and a hurry call for help was sent to the Texas Rangers, an organization that in those days was something different from the collection of mail-order cowboys of today.

The governor wired back: "Rangers enroute." The sheriff met the train. One lonely Ranger—little old Bill Macaulay—got off. The sheriff said: "Oh, my Lord," where's the rest of the outfit?" "Rest, hell," said Billy, "you ain't got but one riot here, have you?"

A determined effort is being made to ban the Ku Klux Klan. The day is past when night hood was in flower.

Of course there are others, but one difference is that the chickens on the farm go to bed earlier, suggests Judge Tarrant.

A New York newspaper says that a house that was once occupied by Captain Kidd is still standing in that city. That's nothing. There's a house next to us on Main that is occupied by a profiteer.

Even So, Yea Verily.

Today you kick up the dust at 35 per hour. Tomorrow the judge gets your "dust"—$25 worth or so.

Not Much Difference.

"Just back from the South Seas?"

"I spent ten years there," said the Copra king.

"Do the styles in women's clothes shock you since you have some home?"

"On the contrary, the seem familiar."

And while ordinary beauty may be only skin deep, a dimple's depth depends upon how far you fall for it, opines Holzknecht.

What Other Editors Think

THEY READ IT ALL.

Lake County Chronicle: The editor of a weekly paper sent out a questionnaire not long ago to his readers to find out what part of the paper they liked best. He learned that 100 per cent of those who answered always read the personals, the editorials, the correspondence and the front page articles, 94 per cent of them read the farm articles, 47 per cent the continued story, and 90 per cent the advertisements. We expect that this is about the per cent in the case of most papers, although we have an idea that women readers generally are more interested in the continued story than in the editorial page. But what should be the most interesting fact is the large per cent who read the advertisements. It is mighty hard to convince the average merchant that people read ads, yet he is quite certain they spend a lot of time reading Sears Roebuck catalogues. All he has to do to get the public's attention is to tell them something as interesting in his ads as the mail order house does in its catalogue.

HAD PLENTY OF PRACTICE.

Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch: We read the statement of a former actress that walking on tiptoes will make one graceful. Maybe that's the reason so many married men are graceful.

TREND OF THE TIMES.

Jackson County Pilot: A decade and a half ago the largest store in the county seat was a feed store; the second largest was another feed store. There were five livery stables, two mills and an elevator in the town. Then more than half the families living there kept a horse, probably a cow, and some chickens. When a farmer took a load of corn, oats or hay to town, the feed stores, livery stables, mills and elevators competed with each other to buy it. If the farmer was not satisfied with their offer, he could look up some acquaintance who kept a horse or cow and sell him the feed, dividing the dealer's profit as a special inducement. Now the largest institution in the town is a garage; the second largest is another garage. There is not a feed store or livery stable in the county. There is scarcely a horse or cow left in the town, and the people are too busy riding in automobiles to bother even with chickens. There are more garages, filling stations, tire and other automobile accessory stores there than stores that deal in human foods and clothing.

WE LIKE THEM.

Winnebago City Enterprise: We confess that we like the "movies."

We don't mind telling the whole world that we enjoy seeing hero Peerless Pete foil the attempts of Alkali Al to make way with the cow-eyed heroine.

We yearn to see the fearless hero dive off the cliff, and come up from the depths with a pocketful of gold with which to ransom Kittie, the Careless Kid, from the clutches of the pirates.

And we also crave to see the comedian plaster the innocent Old Party in the whiskers with an over-ripe custard pie, and to see the fussy cop stop a dilapidated tomato with the end of his nose in the very acme of delight.

And thus we confess to an eager and expectant populace that we are a low-brow, and a crude, coarse, and even crass, person. We like to see these things in the movies because they drive dull care away, and relieve the tension of the every-day grind. And if this be against your cultured class, make the most of it!

A HIGH COMPLIMENT.

Dawson Sentinel: Ernest Lundeen has sued the editor of the Ortonville Journal for libel, to the tune of $50,000. We did not suppose Ernest's reputation was ever worth $50,000—that's a lot of money. The suit is an implied compliment to the Ortonville editor. To be suspected of having $50,000 is an honor that would amply repay any newspaper man for fighting a libel suit.

SEEMS PROBABLE.

Winnebago City Enterprise: Probably the inventor of jazz music got the idea by following the bell cow through a boiler factory.

WHOSE FOOT ARE YOU STANDING ON?
(Exchange.)

When someone stops advertising,
Someone stops buying,
When someone stops buying,
Someone stops selling,
When someone stops selling,
Someone stops making,
When someone stops making,
Someone stops earning,
When someone stops earning,
Everybody stops buying—
Then the bread line—and no bread.
Don't block the traffic—keep going.

IT GETS THE RESULTS.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: If you want to do business, advertise and get it. This is a rule that will work out good results for the merchants, the farmer, the stock dealer, and every man and woman who depends upon merchandising for a livelihood. A well-written advertisement is the key that unlocks the vault and loosens the purse-strings. Advertising in the newspapers brings results. The next time you have anything to sell advertise it in the Herald-Dispatch and you will be satisfied that "advertising pays."

HAS THEM WORRIED.

Winnebago City Enterprise: Judge Oscar Hallam has the professional politicians worried.

They do not know what the Judge is going to do, and they are putting in sleepless nights as a consequence.

From all parts of the state, pledges of support have come unsolicited to Judge Hallam, and should he make up his mind to enter the race for the Republican nomination for the United States Senatorship he will be a very powerful candidate.

WHEN MEN ARE NO GOOD.

Redwood Falls Gazette: Why have they always been called Ladies' Aids? Has anyone ever heard of a group of gentlemen banding themselves together and going forth to aid in the Lord's service by making bed quilts, and chicken dinners, and flannel "undies" for the poor, etc? We have wondered on various occasions when groups of ladies have been taking care of big crowds in such a very competent way. Just how a Gentlemen's Aid would have acted under similar circumstances.

POOR TIME TO COLLECT.

Warroad Pioneer: The next legislature should change the date for the payment of automobile licenses to May 1st. It hurts a man's feelings to pay at a time when the car is in winter quarters. In the spring, just as the roads are getting in shape, we would all feel much better about it. And the money for road improvements isn't much needed the first months of the year.

Mothers! Rub Children's Chests
Vicks vapors banish colds and do away with dosing little stomachs.

Treatment of cold troubles with Vicks VapoRub is the method now most favored by doctors, nurses and millions of modern mothers.

There's nothing to swallow. For spasmodic croup, whooping cough, common colds, sore throat and tonsilitis you just apply Vicks over throat and chest, rub it in well and cover with a flannel cloth. At night leave the bedclothes loose around the child's neck, and all night long Vicks antiseptic, healing vapors are breathed right into the affected air passages.

Vicks is just as good for grown-ups, too—just as effective for catarrh, head colds, asthma, skin itchings, cuts, burns, bruises or sprains.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

American Legion Corner

Gopher Legionaires Must Get Busy.

Buddies of the Gopher State, Nebraska is after our scalps. State Adjutant O'Connell of Nebraska Legion Headquarters has appointed Corned Willy as leader of the campaign. Willy is a veteran of many battles, and the Cornhuskers of Nebraska think he can lead them to victory in Legion membership just as he did in France. O'Connell considers Willy the find of the year and is certain he is just the man to beat Minnesota.

No sooner did Corned Willy assume command of Nebraska's Cornhuskers than he fired the opening gun of the big membership battle by issuing an official communique reading: "The following message has been sent out to Legionaires of Minnesota: 'Iowa, during 1921, increased her paid-up membership by 7,000. Iowa has more members in proportion to ex-service men than any other state in the union. Let's beat Iowa's great record! Every buddy get a buddy! Over the top for the Gopher state! Arthur A. VanDyke, Department Commander.'"

The Minnesota commander's war-cry seems to have made Corned Willy fighting mad, for he has put on the feathers and war paint and sent this rallying cry to Nebraska Legionaires: "What do you think of that, you Cornhuskers? The Gophers think they are going to beat us to the grapes this year. They will, like !!!!?????"

"Now I'll tell you just how we can slip it over on Van and his ground squirrels. As you probably know, the Gopher always turns in for the winter and hibernates for three or four months. Well, while they are hibernating this winter, we will go out and pick corn. Everybody get two buddies! That will give us twice as many new Legionaires as Minnesota, since they are only asking each buddy to get another buddy.

"Line up the old gang, Mr. Post Commander. Nebraska is going to win this year. The Gophers aren't going to show us up, nor are the 'boys where the tall-corn grows' going to win. Iowa's tall corn is all right, but it's hard to husk. Everybody out for the Nebraska nubbins! Yours for the battle. Corned Willy, Supreme Commander, United Nebraska Nubbin Pickers."

Back comes VanDyke of Minnesota: "Pride goeth before a fall. The Gophers started it and when the old bell rings for the last round, we'll be sittin' pretty. Here's how we'll take Corned Willy and his nubbin-pickers by surprise. They think we Gopher Legionaires are all asleep for the winter and will forget to pay our 1922 dues. Gophers may hibernate but not until they've husked all the corn and stored it away in their winter granary. Many an I-o-way and Nebraska cornhusker has found that out. So hibernate we will, but on a full stomach and a 100 per cent membership. A Gopher can shin up the tallest cornstalk and swipe the nubbins as they fall. Get out the Gopher gang! Over the top for 1922! Let's go! Arthur A. VanDyke, Department Commander."

Minnesota Now Has 488 Posts.

Three new posts were formed in December: No. 486 at Delavan, No. 487 at Lismore, and No. 488 at Glyndon. No sooner was Post No. 486 at Delavan organized than it formed a Legion Auxiliary Unit. Our Minnesota Legion Auxiliary is increasing rapidly both in units and membership. A Legion Auxiliary state speakers bureau has been formed. Ask Auxiliary State Hq., 900 Plymouth Bldg., Minneapolis, for application blanks and instructions and request the presence of a Legion Auxiliary speaker to help you make Minnesota a 100 per cent Legion Auxiliary state.

Congress Cheers MacNider.

After Commander MacNider had frankly discussed the Legion's national legislative program with President Harding, he went to the national capitol to attend a reception given him by Iowa legislators. Upon entering the gallery of the house of representatives, the entire membership rose to their feet and cheered the Legion's national commander. Both the house and senate assured him that the Legion's adjusted compensation bill will be in effect by July 1, 1922. During the week many bills in which the Legion is interested became law. They will be described in the Legion Weekly. One of them carries a deficiency appropriation of $65,000,000 for rehabilitation and medical and hospital care of our disabled comrades.

Exempt From Income Tax

Amounts received as government compensation, allotments, or pensions as a result of service in the great war, are now exempt from income tax returns, because of an amendment sponsored and enacted thru the efforts of the Legion's National Legislative Committee.

Legion Amusement Admission Tax Discontinued

President Harding has signed an amendment stating that after January 1st, 1922, no Legion post or Legion Auxiliary unit need pay tax on admission price collected for entertainments put on by these organizations. Our National Legislative Committee is "on the job" down at Washington!

Gopher Posts Asked to Render Rifle Return Promptly

During the past two years, Uncle Sam has courteously been loaning hundreds of his rifles and equiptment to Minnesota Legion posts for use on patriotic occasions. His only stipulation is that each post answer roll call once a year, by filling out and returning, as of Dec. 31, Form No. 110, sent each post direct from 7th Corps Hq., Fort Crook, Nebr., or to be had from there on request. Let's show Uncle Sam that we Gopher boys appreciate his courtesy. Mail form 100 on Dec. 31.

Appleton and Jackson Bonus Board of Review Hearings.

Inform buddies in the vicinity of Appleton and Jackson that on Feb. 7 the bonus board of review will consider disapproved claims at Appleton, and at Jackson on Feb. 28. To have claim reviewed, notice of that intention must reach bonus board of review, state capitol, by Feb. 1 for the Appleton hearing, and by Feb. 22 for the Jackson hearing, so that the papers relating to claim may be on hand at the hearing. (Dec. 31, 1921, is last day on which original claim for the Minnesota state bonus may be filed with the state soldier bonus board, old capitol.)

Can Department Headquarters Be of Service?

Most Minnesota posts are able to do their own printing or mimeographing or have it done conveniently. But if any post is not so situated, Dept. Hq. will gladly use its mimeograph to run off copies of circulars, etc., to be mailed to members. To avail itself of this your post must cut (type) the stencil and mail it, together with the mimeograph paper on which the copies are to be made, to Dept. Hq., including postage equal to that required to forward the package to Dept. Hq. Use either No. 860 (8½x13) or No. 861 (8½x11) Dermatype Mimeograph Typewriter Stencil for Edison's rotary mimeograph. This offer applies also to county and district organizations. It is an experiment and will be continued as long as found practicable.

Get out the Gopher Gang! Over the top for 1922! Let's go!

Sheriff LaBree Laid Up.

Sheriff W. J. LaBree has been laid up at home during the past week with an attack of lumbago and those who have visited him say he is not in very good humor about it. According to his own statement, this is the first time in 25 years he has been in bed for any other purpose than to sleep and the experience is somewhat trying. When about 350 pounds of decidedly active sheriff gets to aching it is no small matter.

REMOVAL JAN. 1 OF EXPRESS WAR TAX; FREIGHT CUT ALSO

Will Mean Big Saving to Public at Large and to Farmers in Particular.

Oscar Paulson, local express agent explains what the removel of war tax from express means to the public. The new rates go into effect on Jan.1. Mr. Paulson says: "The public will save approximately $1,500,000 a month as a result of the elimination of the war tax on express shipments according to George C. Taylor, president of the American Railway Express Co. The Revenue act of 1921 eliminates the war tax of one cent on every twenty cents and fractions thereof in transportation charges on all express shipments. This tax during the year 1920 netted the government $17,502,918. The elimination of the tax, therefore, will virtually amount to a decrease in rates of a little over five per cent. The American Railway Express Co. handles approximately 1,000,000 shipments a day, and the elimination of the tax will relieve the express company of an immense amount of labor which has been involved in calculating, entering on way bills and collecting of tax, not to mention the expense of checking and accounting entailed. The treasury department has requested express carriers to advise all claimanst who have claims pending for overcharges, or who file such claims after Dec. 31, 1921, that claims for refund of tax should be filed separately on treasury department form number 46, with the commissioner of internal revenue within four years from the time the tax was paid.

The railroads will put into effect on Jan. 1, or as soon thereafter as possible, their proposed voluntary 10 per cent freight reduction on cotton, butter and other commodities, as well as the reductions ordered by the interstate commerce commision for western territory on grain and grain products and hay.

The voluntary 10 per cent cut is to be effective for six months as an experiment and will apply to the entire country.

It is also announced that roads may continue until June 30, 1922, reduced rates on live stock and that a 10 per cent cut for livestock on which no cut has been made would be put into effect.

A great reduction will be made on grain and grain products and hay, in compliance with the opinion of the interstate commerce commission in the case recently decided.

800 MINNESOTANS IN GRAIN GROWERS

Work Suspended Over Holidays, Over 34,000 Farmers Join During Past Year.

In the seven weeks period ending with the holiday season, U. S. Grain Grower solicitors obtained 810 members, despite the fact that in some counties, the work had been in progress only a fortnight. Thus far, 20 elevators in the state have become affiliated with the movement. Solicitors now are on a 10-day vacation but will return to work Jan.3.

Nationally, the movement entered the holiday season with 34,229 members and 849 elevator and local grower association contracts. Illinois is first with 8,500 members, Nebraska second with 6,700 and North Dakota third with 4,800. This aggregate membership has been obtained during a period ranging from seven months in some states and seven weeks in others. Minnesota and Iowa were last to start.

In Minnesota, grower contracts have been circulated with marked success in Lyon, Kittson, Watonwon and Redwood counties. Some work has been done in Wright county. In Lyon county, where the first soliciting was done, more than 400 contracts have been obtained and in townships where the work has been completed, 85 per cent of the grain acreage has been signed up, solicitors report. In Kittson county, many of the leading wheat growers of the section have become members. In Redwood and Watonwan counties, the work was well started when the holiday vacation interupted.

FARMER SATISFIED WITH STATE PLAN OF STOCK CONTROL

Livestock Men Will Appear in Washington to Protest Against Change.

Hearings will be held early in July by the department of agriculture at which representatives of the Minnesota farmers and livestock producers and the Minnesota state railroad and warehouse commission will be given an opportunity to express their views on the present syste mof state livestock supervision in Minnesota.

Representative Steenerson, in announcing that he had arranged with Secretary Wallace for the hearing, said the farmers and livestock producers in this state were satisfied with the present system and were opposed to any attempt to abolish it.

Following his consultation with Secretary Wallace, Mr. Steenerson said:

"On Dec. 21, the department sent a supervisor to South St. Paul, to hold hearings in the matter of livestock weighing in Minnesota. We do not know who appeared or what happened there, but will be prepared to show the secretary that the farmers and livestock producers of Minnesota are satisfied with the present system of state weighing. Up until two years ago the weighing was done by the commission houses, and there was constant complaint and dissatisfaction. Since then there have been no complains. The farmers want state weighing. They pay for this service, and it costs the commission house nothing."

Injunction Refused in Christian Science Case

The supreme court of Massachusetts on Tuesday denied the motion of the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society, for an injunction to restrain the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scient'st, from removing the trustees. The court recently held that the directors had power to remove trustees, but the trustees in their petition for an injunction asked the court to prevent the directors from taking removal action pending determination of certain issues. The trustees said they did not desire to continue to hold office, but wished to "lay down their trust in an orderly manner, under the court's jurisdiction and direction."

WHY SUFFER SO?
Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Thief River Falls people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Could you ask for stronger proof of merit?
Mrs. Chas. Alexander, 216 Conley Ave., Thief River Falls, says: "I was suddenly taken with a bad attack of kidney complaint. Severe pains across my back kept me from doing my work. My head swam with dizziness, so that I was afraid to walk across the room. My kidneys didn't act as they should and I felt miserable all over. A neighbor suggested that I try Doan's Kidney Pills and I bought a supply at Bottleson's Drug Store. They entirely rid me of the trouble and I have felt well ever since."
The above statement was given Dec. 1, 1917, and on Aug. 8, 1921, Mrs. Alexander added: "I gladly confirm the statement I gave, praising Doan's. I use them occasionally as a preventive and they always give good results."

"Give Us This Day"

"Give us this day our daily bread." This is the plea of the day—it is a nation-wide plea. To some it means wheat, to some it means corn and to others it means cotton. To our Uncle Sam it means all of these.

In the good book we are told to "Ask and you shall receive." Will congress heed the voice of the people?

We have been told that we have nothing to expect from congress in the line of agricultural adjustment for at least two years. Can this be possible? Is the old north and south boundry line method of adjustment going to be applied in time of distress?

There is a better way. The question of providing for Uncle Sam's household must be accomplished from a humane point of view. Nothing short of a harmonious national adjustment embracing all producing activities will or can restore contentment and prosperity to the people. Boundary line ideas must be abolished; sectionalism must cease; right and justice must prevail if bread shall be provided for the hungry.

There is but one solution. Place the American producer in a position to accomplish his tasks and there will be neither stagnation nor want.

Bread is not only the staff of life but it is the dynamo which furnishes the power that runs the wheels of commerce and progress in motion. Again we say, "Give us this day our daily bread."

Two-Day Farm Institute Will Be Held in County

A two-day farm institute will be held in Pennington county during the next month. The first session will be at the Commercial club rooms, Thief River Falls, on Friday, Jan. 13, and the other at Goodridge the day following. The program has not yet been received at the farm bureau office here but an attempt will be made to secure the services of J. H. Hay as one of the speakers. Mr. Hay will be here at that time to deliver an address at the dedication of the new Knox school on the East side and it is hoped that he can be prevailed upon to speak at both farm meetings.

W. M. Cavert of St. Paul, specialist in farm management, and O. M. Olson of Moorhead, a speaker of note employed by the extension division of the university, will be leaders in the discussions at the institutes.

The congregation extends a cordial invitation to all to come and hear him.

GET READY FOR QUESTIONS ON INCOME REPORT

Taxpayer Advised to Lose No Time in Making Compilations For Collector.

All Persons With Income of More Than $5,000 Must File Report This Year.

Study of Questions at This Time Will Save Delay and Error at Later Date.

With the approach of the period for filing income tax returns—Jan. 1 to March 15, 1922—taxpayers are advised to lose no time in the compilation of their accounts for the year 1921. A new and improtant provision of the Revenue Act of 1921 is that every person whose gross income for 1921 was $5,000 or over shall file a return, regardless of the amount of net income upon which the tax is assessed. Returns are required of every single person whose net income was $1,000 or over and every married person living with husband or wife whose net income was $2,000 or over. Widows and widowers and persons separated or divorced from husband or wife, are regarded as single persons.

Net income is gross income, less certain deductions for business expenses, losses, taxes, etc. Gross income includes practically all income received by the taxpayer during the year; in the case of the wage earner, salaries, wages bonuses and commissions; in the case of professional men all amounts received for professional services; in the cases of farmers all profits from the sale of farm products, and rental or sale of land.

In making an income tax return for the year 1921, every taxpayer should present to himself the following questions:

What were your profits from your business, trade, profession or vocation?

Did you receive any interest on bank deposits?

Have you any property from which you receive rent?

Did you receive any income in the form of dividend or interest from stocks or bonds?

Did you receive any bonuses during the year?

Did you make any profit on the sale of stocks, bonds or other property, real or personal?

Did you act as a broker in any transaction from which you received commissions?

Are you interested in any partnership or other firm from which you received any income?

Have you any income from royalties or patents?

Have you any minor children who are working?

Do you appropriate, or have the right to appropriate, the earnings of such children? If so, the amount must be included in the return of income.

Has your wife any income from any source whatever? If so, it must be included in your return of income.

Did you receive any directors' fees or trustees' fees in the course of the year?

Did you hold any office in a benefit society from which you receive income?

Answers to all of these questions are necessary to determine whether a person has an income sufficiently large to require that a return be filed and may be the means of avoiding the heavy penalties imposed for failure to do so within the time prescribed.

Loken Applies Unique Feature to 9 Cent Sale

Loken Brothers are this week springing something new in the way of bargain offerings. They propose to sell every third yard, package or other article at a uniform price of nine cents. It does not matter what the price happens to be or the nature of the goods bought—the third piece or cut will cost nine cents. For instance if you bought three 25 cent articles in the store, the first two would cost the regular price but the third would cost 9 cents, making the total for the three 59 cents instead of 75 cents. The same system of figuring applies on goods of a higher price. The third article goes for 9 cents, which means that three $3 articles of any one kind will cost $6.09. The higher you go the greater the reduction.

This unique sale open Friday, Dec. 30, and continues for seven days only.

FARMERS WIN ON RATE REDUCTIONS

Roads Defeated in Their Attempt to Block Reductions on Hay and Grain.

Organized farmers won another victory in their fight for lower freight rates on agricultural products, when the Interstate Commerce commission refused to reopen hearings on grain and hay tariffs, according to farm bureau officials.

The railroads, after offering to reduce rates on all farm products ten per cent for six months, objected to the commission's previous order, directing the roads to cut rates on wheat, hay and coarse grain by Dec. 27.

The commission has reaffirmed its order, and only an appeal to the courts, it is said, can prevent enforcement of the rate reductions. The order directs that rates on wheat and hay be cut to half as much as they were increased in August, 1921, and that rates on coarse grains be set ten per cent lower than the new rates on wheat. In the northwest it is estimated that this reduction amounts to approximately 17½ per cent.

Rate experts predict that this reduction will mean an actual saving of $50,000,000 to American farmers in the next 12 months. The Minnesota Farm Bureau federation presented evidence in the hearings before the commission and vigorously demanded the reductions which have just been ordered.

FOLWELL'S HISTORY OF EARLY DAYS IN STATE IS MOST INTERESTING

Issued By Minnesota Historical Society and Obtainable Through Membership in That Organization Only—Other Volumes to Follow.

The first volume of "A History of Minnesota," by William Watts Folwell, is being sent out by the Minnesota Historical society. The book is obtainable only through membership in that organization and only as long as the supply lasts. Such membership costs $2 per year and the book an additional $2. Future volumes of the work will be sent to members without extra charge.

The history is without question the most interesting and thorough work dealing with early times of the state ever produced. The writer was for seventy years closely identified with the progress of the North Star state and no man has had better access to the many sources of information necessary in compiling an authentic history. The section devoted to the early French explorations, activities of the fur traders and Indian outbreaks are alone worth many times the price of the book.

According to Dr. Folwell's history, Beltrami was not the first white man to visit the spot now occupied by Thief River Falls, in spite of the generally accepted belief that such was the case. The honor, says the author, should go to David Thompson, a surveyor and astronomer in the employ of the Northwest company. In the year 1797 this intrepid pioneer explored the valleys of the Assiniboine and Saskatchewan rives and visited the villages of the Mandan on the Missouri river. He returned by way of the Assiniboine and reached the junction of the Red river on March 7, 1798, whence he made his way to Red lake and Turtle lake, which he assumed to be the northern source of the Mississippi.

It was in 1823, twenty-six years after Thompson's visit, that Beltrami traversed the same section. The latter was a member of Major Long's party of explorers, but left his companions at Pembina and struck out alone in a southeasterly direction, where he believed the Mississippi had its source. His Indian guides deserted him somewhere on the Red Lake river. He could not paddle the canoe containing his belongings and was obliged to tow it upstream by the painter until he met with a Chippewa whom he induced to navigate it for him to Red lake. After resting up for awhile he continued his explorations and found a stream emptying into the lake on the south shore which he believed to be the source of the Red or Bloody river and which is now marked Mud creek on the maps.

Anyone desiring to secure this and future volumes of the work can get full particulars by addressing the Minnesota Historical society at St. Paul.

HOGS AND SHEEP HIGHER FOR WEEK

Uneven Advances Scored During Past Week—Lambs Up to $10.35, Hogs $7.25.

South St. Paul: Hogs and sheep have scored uneven advances during the past week under the influence of light receipts and a fairly healthy shipping demand. Bulk of good butcher hogs today, $7.00, choice light sorts $7.25, heavy packers $5.75 to $6.00, being 25 to 50c higher than a week ago. Lambs and yearling wethers are closing 50c to 75c higher, sheep strong to 50c up. Good and choice fat lambs $9.75 to $10.35, fat ewes $3.50 to $4.50, yearling wethers $7.50 to $9.50.

Although cattle receipts have been light, demand has been even lighter due largely to an increased consumption of poultry which is usual during the winter holiday season and this has sharply lessened the demand for dressed beef, which has been reflected in the live markets, most beef steers and butcher she stock showing losses of 25c to 50c during the past week. A few yearlings sold at the close from $6.50 to $8.00, with bulk of beef steers going at $4.75 to $6.00, very few higher.

Butcher cows and heifers sold at the finish largely from $3.00 to $4.75, with a very few of the better offerings going at $5.00 to $5.50 or somewhat higher. Canners and cutters have shown some strength due largely to demand from the country for some thin cows for feeding purposes and these are mostly 25c higher than last week, bulk selling at $2.00 to $2.75, a few cutters at $3.00. Bologna bulls closed at $2.50 to $3.25. Veal calf prices established a new low mark for the year on Thursday when bulk of best lights sold at $6.00. The market rallied 50c on Friday but is still $1.50 below a week ago. Better grades of stockers and feeders have held up well this week, closing steady to 25c lower, with common and medium grades 25c to 50c lower. Bulk of sales at the close ranged from $4.00 to $5.00, with some few good to choice grades $5.25 to $5.50, strictly choice being up to around $6.00.

Notice.

Bids for putting up ice for the Thief River Falls creamery will be received on or before Jan. 6. For specifications apply to secretary of creamery.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume 11 $2.00 a Year Thief River Falls, Minnesota, Thursday, January 5, 1922 Number 48

TIMES IS NAMED OFFICIAL PAPER FOR NEXT YEAR

Designated By Board as Publication in Which All County Notices Shall Appear.

Oscar J. Peterson, Fifth District, Elected Chairman For Fifth Time.

Standing Committees and Appointees Remain Same as During Past Year.

The Thief River Falls Times was on Tuesday unanimously selected by the commissioners of Pennington county as the newspaper in which are to appear all notices required by law to be published during the coming year. This means that The Times will publish the delinquent tax list, annual financial statement of the county, proceedings of all commissioners' meetings, personal property tax list, and all other notices of whatsoever nature. Supplements of the tax lists and statement will be furnished the other papers in the county thus providing for the most thorough circulation possible among the taxpayers.

Salaries Are Fixed.

Oscar J. Peterson, commissioner from the Fift district, was re-elected chairman of the board, thus beginning his fifth term in that position. Commissioner J. S. Roy was re-elected vice chairman and all standing committees were re-appointed. Dr. A. W. Swedenburg retains his post as chairman of the county board of health. Paul Midderigh was again named court house custodian.

Salaries of county officials remain as in the past, with one exception. The superintendent of schools will receive $1440 per year, sheriff $1320, county attorney $1200, highway engineer $2100, and custodian $720.

Small Amount of Routine.

Outside of the work regularly attended to at the first meeting in the year not many matters of importance came before the board. It was decided to levy $6,000 for a sinking fund with which to retire county bonds as these come due. All banks in the county were named depositories for public funds. Three school districts applied for permission to make boundary changes. The bond of the Pennington County Abstract company was approved.

Augustana Church Eelects Officers For the New Year

The annual meeting of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana church congregation was held on Monday evening and the following officers elected: O. A. Naplin and E. Swanson, trustees; Rev. Albin A. Larson, superintendent of Sunday school; Miss Tillie Sundahl, assistant superintendent. By a large majority the congregation endorsed the conference decision on accepting the Northwestern and North Star colleges as conference schools. A resolution was passed changing the name from the First Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church to the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana church.

The reports of officers showed that steady progress has been made during the past year and that the financial condition of the congregation is very good.

Nearly $5,000 Received as Federal Highway Aid

A check for $4,893.89 was on Saturday received by County Treasurer John Gullingsrud as partial payment of federal aid due on project No. 88, which is the official title of the St. Hilaire-Hazel highway. This is the amount due for the construction work only, there being a balance of about $3,000 still coming for graveling.

HELP FOR RUSSIA'S SUFFERING HORDES URGENTLY NEEDED

No Drive to Be Made in County But Voluntary Contributions Are Requested.

Volunteer contributions toward the fund for relief of the starving in Russia will be asked of the people in Pennington county. The committee appointed by Gov. Preus to have charge of a campaign in the county informed the governor that it would be a hard matter to raise any considerable sum here at this time through a general drive and he has asked Mrs. J. M. Bishop, chairman, to give publicity to the movement and assist in getting the subject before the people in order that those who feel able may assist in such manner as they see fit. Other members of the committee are G. Howard Smith, H. S. Dahlen, John Bratrud, Ben Rosendahl, Mrs. Ernest Richards, Mrs. H. W. Froehlich, all of Thief River Falls, and Hans Anton of St. Hilaire.

There is no escaping the fact that this is one of the most urgent calls ever made upon the American people. Fifteen millions of people reside in the area affected in Russia and their plight is desperate. Unless relief reaches them at once starvation must be their lot and but little aid can be expected from other countries. The distribution of relief supplies is in the hands of the American Friends service committee and much good work is being accomplished. The great trouble is a lack of funds. Flour, milk, vegetables, oils, clothing and medicines are greatly needed. Every dollar and every article donated for relief goes directly to the committee for distribution, the expenses of transportation and administration being raised separately.

Every community in the state has been asked to contribute toward this fund and the response thus far has been most gratifying. No specific figure has been set as the amount to be raised in Pennington county but it is hoped that everyone will do the best they can. The contributions may be turned in to Mrs. Bishop, given to any member of the committee or sent to state headquarters, 307 Lincoln Bank building, Minneapolis.

CITY AUTHORITIES GETTING READY TO CURB SPEED FIEND

Motorcycle Police, 15-Mile Limit and Stiff Fines Provided By Ordinance.

When the sunshine of the gentle spring time shall have removed the present covering of snow from the paved streets of Thief River Falls, the speed fiend will be in his glory. He will also be in considerable trouble unless he manages to curb his inclination to see how fast his machine is capable of running. There will be about two miles of streets forming a most inviting speedway and the temptation to step on 'er will be well nigh overpowering. To do so, however, will not only be unpopular and dangerous, but may prove a rather expensive proceeding.

At the next meeting of the council, which will be held on Jan. 10, there will be introduced an ordinance intended to discourage those who disregard their own safety and that of others by driving through the city streets with the speed of a fire truck answering a general alarm. Fifteen miles per hour is the limit under state law at the present time and this will be the maximum allowed by the new ordinance. Anyone who finds it impossible to hold his speed down to this point will be subject to a fine of $12 for the first offense, $26 for the second and $50 for the third. Should this treatment fail to check the culprit's enthusiasm he will probably be hanged as a confirmed criminal.

A motorcycle cop whose duty it will be to run down all offenders is to be authorized by the council. Municipal Judge N. W. Tarrant promises to be either frozen or hard boiled as the facts in the case seem to warrant and says that anyone who violates this ordinance need not look to him for sympathy.

A MILLION SERVED BY FARM BUREAUS DURING PAST YEAR

Minnesota Membership Grows From 26,000 in 1918 to 49,000 at This Time.

A total of 1,001,090 persons were served in various ways during 1921 by county agents and other farm bureau and agricultural extension service workers of the University of Minnesota, according to the annual report of Frank E. Balmer, University farm, state county agent leader, and assistant leaders F. J. Brown, S. B. Cleland, W. J. Corwin and W. E. Morris, each of the leaders having charge of about 20 counties. Of this number771,690 attended 17,764 meetings during the year. In addition 33,163 farm visits were made, 116,442 office calls were taken care of, 15,560 field interviews took place and 64,295 telephone calls were answered. Many of these, Mr. Balmer explains, were duplicated, but assuming that some of the items, meetings for example, were duplicated ten times, it would still represent a high degree of contact with the county agents and their people.

Membership in county farm bureaus has grown from 26,136 in 1918 to 30,516 in 1919, 46,299 in 1920 and 48,909 in 1921, the report discloses. Of 78 counties, 56 have adopted the continuous $5 a year family membership plan.

Important service was rendered in supplying improved seed to farmers. Improved seed corn was secured by 729 co-operating farmers in 44 counties amounting to 12,701 bushels; improved seed oats by 219 farmers involving 5,498 bushels in 25 counties and improved seed potatoes by 1,315 farmers involving 33,875 bushels in 40 counties.

Although the cost of the county agricultural agent service as jointly maintained by the United States department of agricultural, state extension service, county commissioners and farm bureaus for the year ending June 30, 1921, was $362,619.47, the profits which resulted from the demonstration work only of the county agents for the year ending Nov. 30, 1921, amounted to $581,231.33, a little more than one and one-half times the annual cost of the agents' work, Mr. Balmer asserts.

PREDICTS PANIC IF FARM PRICES ARE NOT RAISED

President Howard of Farm Bureau Federation Demands Immediate Adjustment.

Products of Agriculture Must Come Up or Others Come Down Proportionately.

Denies Senator LaFollette's Charges of Collusion With Other Interests.

Farm prices must come up to meet the level of other commodities or other commodities must come down to the level of farm prices in a relatively short time or America will be in the throes of such a panic as has never been dreamed of, J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said last week before the annual convention of the state federation in session at Fargo. Mr. Howard declared that the hope of American agriculture lay in perfecting farmer-owned and controlled co-operative marketing machinery and insisted that agricultural organizations must drop petty jealousies and work together for the common good of the farmer and the consuming public.

Denies Charges.

Answering charges by Senator LaFollette that he and other leaders of farm organizations had been in secret conference with representatives of the railroads and steel, lumber and coal interests and that an agreement had been reached at the conference, Mr. Howard said:

"There was no secret conference. We did have a conference but there was nothing that could in any way be construed as collusion. Statements were given out absolutely covering everything that was done at the conference."

Mr. Howard announced that he had prepared an open letter to Senator LaFollette covering every detail of the conference and said the letter would be made public at the office of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Letter Made Public.

Flat denial of charges that the American Farm Bureau federation, in secret conference with railroad officials, had entered into an agreement not to fight for the repeal of the guarantee clauses of the Esch-Cummins act is made by Mr. Howard in a letter to Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, who made the charges early last week.

Senator LaFollette, in a public statement, claimed that at a "secret meeting" on Dec. 9 representatives of the Farm Bureau, the Grange and the railroads, and certain business interests, entered into an agreement for a "truce" in the Farm Bureau's fight in the drastic freight rates reduction and for the immediate repeal of all legislation guaranteeing railroads a fixed return on their valuation.

Crookston Defeats Fargo

In a sensational basketball game last Thursday evening the Crookston team defeated Fargo Y. M. C. A., on the floor of the latter by a score of 20 to 18. Crookston came out from behind a 14 to 6 score in Fargo's favor in the first half and played the opposition off its feet in the second session. A record-breaking crowd witnessed the contest.

The Legion Dance

One of the most enjoyable dancing parties of the year provided a fitting close for American Legion social activities on Friday night. There was an unusually large attendance and the affair was one of the most enjoyable ever given by the former service men's organization. Snyder's Orchestra furnished the music, which was of a very high order.

UNCLE SAM PLACES MINNESOTA SECOND

Bulletin Places State in Honor Rank For Long Mileage of Federal Aid Roads.

Minnesota's mileage of good roads built or contracted for improvement under federal aid regulations is rated second only to that of Texas in a bulletin issued this week by the government bureau of public roads. The report covers the last five years but a big part of Minnesota's favorable showing was accomplished under the Babcock plan inaugurated last May.

The total for this state was 1,713.4 miles at an average cost of $10,219.33 per mile. Roads listed, however, include all the paved highways and others on which costly betterments were made, so the average will not apply to Minnesota road costs in general.

Texas tops the list with 2,485.7 miles of federal aid roads built in the five-year period covered by this report. Iowa is listed with 1,509.2 miles; North Dakota 999.5; Wisconsin 980.1; Montana 680.3, and South Dakota 676.7 miles.

The government gave $6,947,373.63 toward the total cost of $17,509,911 of the Minnesota roads enumerated. Engineers added that under the Babcock plan by which automobile owners of the three large cities contribute more than 40 per cent of the tax funds, Minnesota farmers are paying less than half the cost of improving and maintaining the primary road system in the state.

The bulletin adds that since July 1, 1916, a total of 28,315 miles of roads have been built at a cost of $496,161,683.43. Cost averages are $8,115 a mile for graded and drained highways; $8,250 for sand-clay; $10,400 for gravel, $30,350 for concrete, and $49,570 for brick. Minnesota costs were lower on the average, even during the war period.

Gummer to Be Tried at Valley City, N. D., Jan. 17

The trial of William Gummer, under indictment in Cass county, N. D., for the murder of Miss Mary Wick of Grygla on June 6, will open at Valley City on Jan. 17, a change of venue having been granted.

Miss Wick was murdered at the Prescott hotel, Fargo, the crime being one of the most brutal in the annals of North Dakota. Suspicion pointed to Gummer, who was night clerk at the hotel at the time, and he was indicted by the grand jury after a preliminary hearing lasting three days.

TWO-GAME SERIES WITH EXCELSIOR IS NEXT ON PROGRAM

Favorites Among Last Year's Opponents Play Here Friday and Saturday Nights.

Naturally no one wishes to see the Thief River Falls basketball team defeated, but if the bunch which all through last season and thus far this year has proven itself invincible must go down before some other outfit, the probabilities are that the fans here would rather have the Excelsior team turn the trick than any other aggregation. The Hennepin county players last season gave the Thief River team the stiffest fight in its history, and while defeated, became strong favorites with our people because of the clean, consistent and at times brilliant game they put up.

Excelsior comes again for a series of two games, to be played on Friday and Saturday nights. Reports are to the effect that the visitors will be stronger than ever, one or two of the players who were members of the team two seasons ago, when they carried off the state championship, being again in the lineup.

Coach G. W. Connell is giving his proteges a particularly stiff course of preparation for this battle. Plummer and Carlson will be in the forward positions, Brown and Holzknecht at guard and Hadrath center. Kiland and Penney will be in reserve in case they are needed—and it is probable they will be as the Excelsiors are both big and fast. The games will be called at 8:15 and those wishing a seat had better be on hand early.

Ambrose Zeh, Ex-Soldier, Buried Here on Monday

The funeral of Ambrose Zeh, the former service man who died at the government hospital at San Diego, Cal., last week of tuberculosis, was held from the Catholic church in this city on Monday, Rev. M. J. Noesen officiating. Interment was made at the Catholic cemetery.

The church was filled with friends of the family and former associates of the dead soldier, who was born and raised in this city. About 30 members of Elmer J. Eklund post formed a military escort for the body, which was placed on an improvised artillery caisson drawn by four horses. The casket was covered by the American flag. Commander Oscar Paulson of Eklund post was in charge of the infantry division of the escort while the artillery section was commanded by J. J. McCann. A large concourse of friends and neighbors accompanied the body to its last resting place, where the last rites of the church were performed and taps sounded by the post bugler.

Holiday Arrivals.

Following are the births reported in Thief River Falls and vicinity during the past week: Mr. and Mrs. Axel Aander, girl, Jan. 3; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Bakke, girl, Dec. 27; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Liden, boy, Dec. 26; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Holland, girl, Dec. 29; Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey, girl, Dec. 25; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Elofson, girl, Dec. 29.

Automobile Registration Must Be Made By Feb. 1

The 1922 motor vehicle registration began Jan. 2. The registration must be made and the tax paid before Jan. 31 and the registrar is given three months in which to issue the number plates.

A motor vehicle owner whose application for registration has been approved by the registrar, and to whom the registrar has issued a receipt for the payment of the 1922 tax, may operate his motor vehicle bearing the 1921 registration plate until such time as the registrar can issue the 1922 plates, but not after March 31. After March 31 no motor vehicle may be operated on the public streets and highways without displaying a regular 1922 number plate issued for that particular vehicle.

TO HOLD 2-DAY FARM INSTITUTE IN THIS COUNTY

Principal Topic For Discussion at Both Meetings Will Be Farm Management.

More Economical Feeding of Livestock to Engage Attention of Instructors.

J. H. Hay, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture, Will Be Principal Speaker.

A farm management school for Pennington county will be held in Thief River Falls on Friday, Jan. 13, in the Commercial club rooms. The morning session will start at 10:30 and the afternoon meeting at 1:30.

The program for this institute deals with the business side of farming, placing special emphasis on the keeping of farm records, milk testing associations, more economical feeding of dairy cattle and other live stock raised in this part of the state. J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner of agriculture, will be present for the purpose of giving a talk on general agricultural conditions. Wm. L. Cavert, who is farm management demonstrator for the University of Minnesota, will conduct the school and will be ready to give assistance or advice on the farming problems of today.

G. Halvorson of Thief River Falls will present his resolution which offers a solution for better marketing for farm produce in helping to stabilize the price throughout the country as a whole.

This school will also be conducted at Goodridge on Saturday, Jan. 14, with the same program presented during a morning and afternoon session, which will be held at the school house.

Formal Opening of Knox School on Friday the 13th

School board members are particularly desirous of having a good turnout at the public opening of the new Knox building on the East side Friday evening, Jan. 13. This is the "hoodoo date" but the fact is not expected to prove any drawback. Everyone who can possibly do so will wish to view this fine school building and for this reason minor children are asked not to come on this particular evening.

J. H. Hay, former superintendent of the city schools and now assistant commissioner of agriculture, will deliver the principal address, the program for the evening being as follows:

Music, High School orchestra.
Address of Welcome, Dr. H. W. Froehlich, president of school board.
Presentation of building by contractor to architect, W. W. Prichard, Jr.
Presentation of building by architect to school board, A. D. Dunham.
Short address, Supt. I. T. Simley.
Music, High School Glee club.
Address, J. H. Hay.
Music, High School orchestra.

GRAND FORKS GOES DOWN BEFORE FAST THIEF RIVER TEAM

Improvement Over First Showing is Marked—Good Games in Sight For Future.

In a fast, snappy game on Thursday evening the Thief River Falls Athletics defeated the Grand Forks basketball team by a score of 44 to 28. The improvement in the local team since the first game a week previous was very marked and there is no longer any doubt but that the boys will get back into last season's form in a very short time. Not only was their success in connecting with the basket such as to raise high hopes in the breasts of enthusiasts, but their defensive work showed to much better advantage than in the first game.

Grand Forks started off in whirlwind style, securing two baskets during the first few minutes of play. It was demonstrated that every man on the team was to be feared and the locals buckled down to put in their best licks in opposition. Brodie, right forward for the visitors, was the premier basket shooter for the enemy, securing seven during the session, while on the Thief River Falls side Plummer, left forward, carried off the honors, garnering ten. In the first half Carlson and Brown for the locals secured two each and the former landed one free throw and missed another—something unusual for him. Hadrath and Holzknecht made a basket apiece.

On the visitors' side Patton, next to Brodie, was most successful in garnering goals, making two in the first half and one in the second, to which he added two free baskets. Harris, guard, was the only other Flickertail player to score during the half. Hadrath for the home team landed twice during the second session and Kiland, who was sent in for him during the last ten minutes of play, made another.

Patton for Grand Forks made a field basket and one free throw in the second round, missing one free throw. Harris connected with two.

The game was one of the cleanest ever seen on a Thief River Falls floor, there being but four personal fouls called—two against each side—and but two technicals, the teams being charged with one apiece. Perry Johnson officiated as referee to the satisfaction of all concerned. Guy Johnson was timekeeper and George Mostue scorer. The attendance was much better than at the first game and indicates that there will be no fault to find on the score of support if the right kind of basketball is forthcoming.

Coach G. W. Connell has a number of games scheduled for the near future, among the teams expected here during January and February being Two Harbors and Crookston. Definite dates for these games have not yet been announced.

NURSES' QUARTERS AT OAKLAND PARK INSPECTED TODAY

Finest Building of Its Kind in This Region Awaits Commission's Approval.

Members of the Oakland Park Sanatorium commission will meet today for the purpose of formally accepting the new nurses' home and administration building.

The structure is of brick, 30x70 feet, built in the colonial style. Including the basement, the floor of which is only four or five feet below the surface, the building is three stories high. The lower story will contain the maids' quarters while the second and third will be devoted to nurses' accommodations and living quarters for the resident staff. There are ten bed rooms and a large living room for the exclusive use of nurses and maids. Private suites are provided for the medical director and superintendent.

Heating will be provided through a connection with the plant in the main building, this part of the equipment having been installed by Ed. Lee of this city. Sund & Dunham of Minneapolis are the architects in charge, and A. E. Rydlum of Minneapolis the general contractor. The Arntsen Electrical company, also of Minneapolis, furnished the electrical fixtures, and the installation was made by E. W. Wheeler of Red Lake Falls.

The new building is one of the finest of its kind in the entire state. Its erection was made necessary by the demands upon the room in the main hospital by tubercular patients from the four counties comprising the district—Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake and Roseau. Providing accommodations for the nurses and other employes, as well as removing the administrative offices to the new addition, will increase the capacity of the sanatorium building by at least one-third. The institution has made a wonderful record since it was opened to the public and the new arrangement will permit of its becoming of even greater value. The affairs of the district are in the hands of a commission composed of Dr. O. F. Mellby, chairman, Thief River Falls; O. Gigstad, St. Hilaire; P. O. Myhrum, Thief River Falls; Louis Edstrom, Roseau; V. A. Branda, Greenbush; Don Robertson, Argyle; Eric Modine, Middle River; Dr. N. M. Watson and Ole Lee, Red Lake Falls.

Accidentally Shot

David Evenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Evenson, is at the Physicians hospital suffering from the effects of a gun shot wound. He went out on a skiing trip yesterday and carried a small rifle with him. In some manner the gun was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering his arm above the elbow and lodging in the bone. The fingers of his hand seem to be partially paralyzed and it is feared that he may have sustained a permanent injury.

Athletic Club Organized With Dr. Penney as Head

The Thief River Falls Athletic club was formally organized on Friday evening by the election of officers and adoption of a policy for the guidance of the basketball team and such other organizations as may hereafter be included in the list to be sponsored. Dr. C. A. Penney was elected president; W. J. LaBree, vice president; and F. H. Herrick, secretary-treasurer. G. W. Connell was made manager of the basketball team and will also continue to serve as coach. Irvin Carlson has been chosen captain by the team members.

The officers elected at this meeting will serve in an advisory capacity and have general supervision over the activities of the club. This step was deemed advisable inasmuch as the citizens are footing a considerable share of the expenses through voluntary donations.

Crookston Meets Defeat.

In the basketball game played at Crookston on Monday night between the Legion team of that city and the Stephen quintet, the latter was victorious by a score of 27 to 21. Crookston had the best of it during the first half, but the visitors from the north came back strong in the last session and more than wiped out the lead. Two college players, home for the holidays, are said to have been in the Stephen lineup.

COUNTY BEGINS NEW YEAR WITH GOOD BALANCE

Twenty Thousand Dollars More in the Treasury Than on January 1, 1921.

Total Paid Out For All Purposes During Past 12 Months Was Over $600,000.

Schools Head List in Costs, Followed By Municipalities and Highways.

Pennington county last year received from all sources a total of $628,112.06 and starts out the new year with a balance in the treasury of $61,795.23. This is about $20,000 more than the sum on hand on Jan. 1, 1921, when the amount was $41,412.16.

According to these figures the total paid out for all purposes in the county during the year was $607,728.99. Of this amount $39,326.56 came out of the revenue fund which provides for the general running expenses of the county. All salaries, court expenses, sheriff's office costs, mothers' pensions, bounties of all kinds, and all items connected with the operation of the county's business are charged against this fund.

Roads and bridges during the year were responsible for an expenditure of $76,660.31. The school districts were paid a total of $184,440.93, and the towns and villages came in for $94,839.12. The ditch fund was drawn on to the amount of $163,865.30 while the amount of the warrants issued against the state revenue and school fund was $30,388.43. Miscellaneous expenses, in which are included the maintaining of the sanitorium, footed up $10,936.37.

Detailed Expenses.

Salaries of county officers totaled $15,846.65 for the year. Fees paid in municipal court cases accounted for an expenditure of $217.46 and there was $516 paid out in wolf bounties. The trial and transportation of insanity cases cost the taxpayers $408.39. The agricultural agent cost the county $820.28 and expenses of the superintendent of schools footed up $677.80. Wood inspectors' salaries totaled $670.17.

County commissioners received $78.90 as mileage for traveling to and from meetings of the board, while the mileage and fees for witnesses in state cases before the district court totaled $103.08. Jury costs were very light, the grand jurors receiving $392.52 and the petit jurors $162.29.

Mothers' pensions amounted to $2,550, and expenses of the child welfare board to $145.31. Crow and gopher bounties aggregating $245.23 were paid.

HEALTH OF CHILD FORMS SUBJECT AT NEXT P-T MEETING

Fine Program Arranged For Parent-Teachers' Session on Monday Evening.

The next meeting of the Parent-Teacher association will be held Tuesday evening, Jan. 10, in the high school auditorium. The program will start promptly at 8 o'clock. At the close a lunch will be served.

More attention is and ought to be given today throughout the country to the physical development and the health of the child than has been common practice heretofore. One of the very first requisites for a useful and successful life is good health. It is fitting, therefore, that this question be given attention by the parents and teachers of Thief River Falls. Consequently the general theme of this program will be the child's health. Master Henry Arneson, accompanied by his sister, Eileen, will play a violin solo, while a male quartette consisting of Dr. Nesse, Dr. Vistaunet, Supt. I. T. Simley and E. M. [illegible] will appear in one number. Supt. Simley will present some facts and figures in regard to the city schools which ought to prove of interest to every patron. Dr. Milan has kindly consented to speak on "The Child's Health." The school nurse, Miss Ruth Johnson, and Mr. Stenhoff and Miss Baumann, physical directors, will speak briefly of the work done in their departments.

Elks Meeting Friday Night.

A regular meeting of the Elks lodge will be held on Friday evening and as there is a considerable amount of important business coming up for discussion it is desired that there be a large attendance. Final reports of the committees in charge of Christmas activities will be submitted and there are a number of communications from grand lodge officers to be considered, according to Exalted Ruler Protzeller. Arrangements for the initiation of a class in the near future will be discussed. The meeting will convene immediately after the Thief River-Excelsior basketball game.

Where the Churn Brings a Flow of Gold

(Earl Christmas in Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent.)

For a good many years Minnesota has called itself the "bread and butter state." With an extensive grain industry, the state has produced for a considerable period more butter than any other state in the union.

Every year Minnesota makes more butter than all of Canada. It contributes approximately a seventh of the nation's output of creamery butter. Each year a golden stream of money flows into the pockets of Minnesota farmers, who are engaged in buttering a very extensive portion of the country's bread. In 1920, creameries of the state turned out 139,000,000 pounds of butter, yielding a revenue of approximately $80,000,000, most of which went into the pockets of the men who milked the cows.

Butter making is almost a traditional enterprise in Minnesota. For years it has been a highly developed art. Minnesota has won so many prizes for butter making that the winning of a prize has become a matter of course. Out of 18 national competitions between the states, 16 have gone to the creameries of Minnesota.

But Minnesota soon must revise that title of the "bread and butter state." There will be more butter than bread on its map. Even now, the dairy cow represents the biggest industry of the state, and yearly she is extending her conquest more and more into the grain-farming sections and into the cut-over lands of the north. The value of dairy products in Minnesota in 1920 was more than $200,000,000, according to a recent compilation made by the State Dairy and Food Commission. That exceeds in value by a wide margin the output of the iron mines in this greatest of iron-producing states. It equals the value of all the products of the great Minneapolis flour mills, manufactured from wheat gathered over most of the Northwest and Canada. It exceeds by $33,500,000 the combined value of the wheat, oats, corn, barley and rye in Minnesota, according to the state dairy statisticians.

Truly the humble churn of the Minnesota farm has grown into a tremendous industry.

In these days when farmers along with men in a good many other lines are worrying about reduced profits, certainly here is a subject for consideration. How has it been possible to develop this vast industry? Why is Minnesota the greatest butter-producing state? Beneath the surface of these pretentious figures there must be some reason, just as another and different set of circumstances made Wisconsin the great cheese-producing center.

So, with these questions in my mind, I went over to see Chris Heen, State Dairy and Food Commissioner. I wanted to know why Minnesota makes so much butter. Surely in the development of this tremendous industry there would be a lesson for farmers in other states. And then I had another question to ask. I wanted to know how the butter farmer is faring in these days of reduced prices.

Mr. Heen motioned me to a chair, and I asked the last question first.

"Take the dairy section of the state," he said, indicating by a sweep of his hand the great central portion running diagonally across the state from the southeast to the northwest. "See how thick the dots are on this portion of the map. These dots represent creameries. There are 830 creameries in the state.

"Now, those dots measure the prosperity of Minnesota. The dairy section is the richest part of the state. In other sections that have depended chiefly on grain periods of depression are bound to occur. But this great central portion of the state finds a golden stream of money coming in for its cream the year around, regardless of financial depression or crop failures. The cow keeps on giving milk despite hard times.

"Right now, farmers in sections that have depended wholly on grain farming are almost bankrupt. This is shown by a study of bank deposits. Farmers actually can't borrow money in most of the grain sections, while the dairy farmers are as prosperous as ever.

"In another state not far from Minnesota, where weather conditions throughout the season were the same, there were 304 mortgage delinquencies listed as compared with 32 in Minnesota. Of the 304 listed in the other state, but one was a dairy farmer."

A. J. McGuire, dairy specialist of the Minnesota College of Agriculture, offered this bit of testimony:

"The farmers in the grain-farming sections are in a serious condition, while the dairy sections do not show hard times. In both town and country, in those sections where farmers are engaged in the dairy industry, the people are prosperous."

But to return to Mr. Heen:

"The advantage of the dairy industry is shown in the increasing number of men who are giving up grain farming for the cow. You know, a good many farmers have been disposed to scorn the cow because they didn't like to milk. But the attitude is changing. The farmers are finding that it is better to milk cows for real money than spend all their time on grain for smaller returns.

"Dairying got its big start in Minnesota back in the early nineties. Wheat farming had decreased the fertility of the soil, and the farmers had to adopt diversified farming. The dairy cow came to the rescue. She could eat the roughness and convert it into money. Minnesota had but 556,000 cows then. The average return was only 110 pounds of butter fat per cow. Now Minnesota has 1,395,000 cows, according to our figures, and each cow produces an average of 166 pounds of butter fat a year.

"The gross returns to the state from its cows in 1890 was but $8,700,000. Now dairy products exceed $200,000,000 in value every year. Since 1910 the production of butter in Minnesota had increased from 95,000,000 pounds to 139,000,000 pounds in 1920. The average creamery paid out to its patrons $28,000 in 1910. In 1920 the amount had jumped to more than $108,000.

"That's how fast the cow has been coming into her own in Minnesota. More and more the farmers are going into dairying. Patrons of the Minnesota creameries in 1920 totaled more than 125,000. Dairying is sweeping the state, and undoubtedly the output of creamery butter will be doubled in a few years. With the industry firmly established in Southern and Central Minnesota, the butter line is pushing rapidly northward. Even up in the Red River Valley, where the farmers have always been devoted to wheat raising, dairying is gaining a foothold.

"Settlers in the cut-over counties in the north, who have fought hard to gain a foothold by other means, are turning to the cow. Possibilities for dairying in Northern Minnesota are almost limitless. There are millions of acres of land bearing good summer range for stock. Tame grasses are bountiful, and clover grows almost like a weed. As the clearing and settlement proceeds northward, the dairy cow is following. Eventually, this will be one of the great dairy strongholds."

Mr. Heen then stopped for a moment, and that gave me an opportunity to ask him another question—why Minnesota makes so much butter?

"The state has great natural resources such as grass and clover," he said. "The climate, too, is favorable. But the chief factor in this unusual development, I should say, is the co-operative creamery. The co-operative creamery has made dairying profitable in Minnesota. In Wisconsin it was the cheese factory. But Minnesota pinned its hope on butter, and the co-operative creamery has made possible its great progress.

"Of the 830 creameries in the state 642 are co-operative. That shows how extensively the co-operative movement has grown among the dairy farmers. These co-operative creameries in 1920 made 91,000,000 pounds of butter, or approximately two-thirds of all the butter made in Minnesota. No other state can compare with this record. Only half of Wisconsin's creameries are co-operative. Iowa has but 218.

"But here is the significant thing about these Minnesota co-operative creameries. The co-operative creamery returns to the producing farmer 91.3 per cent of all the money received for butter. The independent creamery returns but 89.3 per cent, and the centralizers but 86.4 per cent.

"In addition, co-operative creameries keep up the general price level, saving the farmers thousands of dollars. The dairy commissioner of Montana told me the other day that farmers in that state received as low as 12 cents a pound for butter fat last summer. Montana has but one co-operative creamery. While farmers were getting but 12 cents for butterfat in Montana, Minnesota farmers, backed up by the bulwark of the 640 co-operative creameries, were getting 40 cents a pound or more. The average price paid the farmer for butter fat by the Minnesota creameries in 1920 was 63.3 cents a pound. The average price received for butter by the creameries was 57.1 cents a pound, the apparent discrepancy being due, of course, to the fact that not a pound of butter fat is required for a pound of butter.

"The co-operative creameries make the best butter. They take every precaution to improve their product, and have a high reputation on the markets. In fact, on the eastern markets, butter made by the Minnesota co-operative creameries commands from one-fourth to one and one-half cents a pound premium above that made by other creameries."

Mr. McGuire likewise had eloquent testimony of the results obtained through the co-operative creamery.

"During the last four years, the co-operative creamery paid on an average of seven cents a pound more for butter fat than the cream station of the centralizers," he said. "That means that every year these farmers have saved enough through their creamery to more than build and equip their plants anew. It means a saving of $15 a cow, which amounts to an enormous sum for the state as a whole.

"The co-operative creamery has made the dairy industry profitable in Minnesota. It has created an incentive for the industry. More than that, it has developed a community spirit. Business men and storekeepers, everybody in the dairy community, is back of the creamery operated by the farmers. Many towns are built and maintained largely by the dairy industry."

To see the wealth accruing to the farmers in the butter-making business, one needs but take a trip through the co-operative creameries. Expensive buildings house plants with the most modern equipment. In many Minnesota towns the co-operative creamery is the most pretentious building to be seen.

Pelican Rapids, not long ago, completed the erection of a creamery costing $125,000. Fergus Falls farmers put up another creamery, costing $100,000, with marble floors and the most modern equipment that science can provide. Creameries costing $30,000 and $40,000 are common.

Just now, the co-operative creameries are uniting in the formation of a state-wide central agency that will help the farmers improve and market their butter more effectively. Mr. McGuire, on leave of absence from the university, is aiding in the formation of this organization. Already 200 creameries have enlisted in the organization. Consignments are to be pooled to give the creameries the advantage of car lot shipments, agencies are to be established on the eastern market and steps are to be taken to advertise Minnesota co-operative butter.

The dairy industry is decidedly a growing business in Minnesota and its neighboring states. According to the 1920 census, Minnesota gained 447,070 cows, an increase of 41.1 per cent, in 10 years. This would give Minnesota 1,532,458 dairy cows. Of the 3,103,989 gain in dairy cows in the United States in the last 10 years Minnesota and Wisconsin absorbed a gain of 1,153,382 cows, or 37 per cent of the gain for the whole United States. No other section of the country can match the growth of the dairy industry in these and a few adjoining states.

Minnesota's nearest rivals in butter production are Wisconsin and Iowa. Compared to Minnesota's total of about 140,000,000 pounds, Wisconsin produces about 96,000,000 pounds and Iowa about 85,000,000 pounds. Both New York and Wisconsin exceed Minnesota in total volume of dairy products. With a great city at their doors, New York farmers sell most of their dairy product as milk. Wisconsin already had developed a great cheese industry when the Minnesota dairy industry began to expand beyond local demands. So early Minnesota pioneers pinned their hopes on butter. And butter has done well by Minnesota.

American Legion Corner

Compensation Bill Benefits.

The provisions of the Adjusted Compensation bill which the American Legion is asking congress to pass at this session are given below. If this bill is made a law, each World war veteran will have the right to avail himself of any one, but only one, of the following options:

1. Adjusted service pay, at the rate of $1 a day for home service and $1.25 for foreign service. Maximum of $500 for man without overseas service; $625 for man with overseas service.

2. Adjusted service certificate (so called insurance feature), a paid-up 20-year endowment policy. The face value of this policy will be 3.38 times the amount that would be received in cash. The face value of this policy would be payable to the veteran at the end of 20 years, or if he dies before the expiration of 20 years the face value will be paid to the beneficiary of the policy. Loan values also are provided for.

3. Vocational training aid of $1.25 a day while taking a course in vocational training. The amount thus paid in no case would exceed 140 per cent of what would have been paid in cash.

4. Farm or home aid, 140 per cent of what would be paid under option No. 1 if the money is used to purchase, improve, or make payments on approved farm or city or suburban homes.

5. Land settlement. (a) Provides for the establishment of reclamation projects for the development and improvement of vacant land. This may be government land or may be land purchased by the government. If possible, projects will be located in each state, the state paying part of the purchase price of private land bought for this purpose. Ex-service men to be employed on the project as far as possible.

(b) Provides for the sale of farm units on these projects when they are ready for settlement. Sale price is to include purchase price of land plus cost of improvements. Terms, part down, rest in 40 years at 5 per cent interest.

(c) Veterans may have their adjusted service pay applied as first payment on this land.

Is the American Legion a fly-by-night organization? Will it gradually weaken and die out? Not if Minnesota Legion posts are any index. For instead of weakening, Gopher Legionaires are increasing and multiplying. For instance, Stewartville had 16 members in 1921—already it has 29 paid up for 1922. Winsted had 41 in 1921—today it has 57 for 1922. Last year Abner Rude Post of South St. Paul had difficulty in mustering 25 members—now it has 56 in good standing. Sleepy Eye belies its name by being one of the most wide-awake Legion posts in the Gopher state—in the middle of December it had 58 Legionaires all squared away for the new year. Gaylord post already has 37 more members this year than last. And so it goes, according to reports arriving in Minnesota Legion Hq. from all over the North Star state.

Minnesota's first Legion post, Theodore Peterson Post No. 1 of Minneapolis, is first also in many Legion endeavors. A half-page picture in the American Legion Weekly shows a billboard advertisement used by the Peterson post in announcing its vaudeville shows and dances at Kenwood Armory, and the Legion Weekly editor says: "Try this on your billboard." Again, on New Year's Eve, the largest gathering in Minneapolis was under the auspices of Peterson post. A spotlight thrown on Father Time at the stroke of midnight was the signal for the Legion jubilee to let loose its big demonstration.

Endless were the efforts and countless the deeds of members of the American Legion and its Auxiliary to bring Christmas cheer to their sick and unemployed comrades. To tell the whole story would be impossible. The Bearcat post of Minneapolis distributed 165 baskets of fruit for the poor and needy. East St. Paul Legion post and its Auxiliary feasted and entertained 225 needy school children of the community, and Legionaire Chick Olson, impersonating Santa Claus, came down a real chimney and loaded the little tots' arms with gifts, while their eyes almost popped out of their heads with wonder and delight. Ramsey county Legionaire fed and entertained more than 500 hungry and unemployed buddies, and with the Legion Auxiliary, visited disabled comrades in hospitals and distributed hundreds of presents from the Legion Auxiliary units of the state, in addition to supplying Christmas baskets of good things to 360 needy families. Disabled veterans in Minneapolis hospitals were remembered by Hennepin county Legionaires and Auxiliary members. If in all Minnesota there was one lonely or hungry buddy on Christmas Day, 1921, it was only because his Legion comrades were without knowledge of his plight. They were eager and anxious to help.

Legionaires of Minnesota's First District met at Rochester Jan. 3 to honor National Commander Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Ia., the principal speaker, who said in part: "The strength of the Legion is in your posts and the strength of your posts is in your members. Your national officers are but your employes, your servants. Send us your bricks or bouquets, but most of all your suggestions for real constructive progress. Pay your New Year dues right now and get that other lad into the Legion. The inspiration of having you behind us will help your national officers to deliver the goods. May the New Year hold much happiness for all of us and for our country."

"Get out the Gopher gang! Over the top for 1922! Let's go!" That's the slogan of 35,000 Minnesota Legionnaires who not only believe in the American Legion and its ideals, but are ready to tell the world that there is no state like Minnesota, either in a business or patriotic sense. To say that Gopher Legionnaires are proud of the Gopher state is putting it mildly—and they're out to prove that in Legion membership, Minnesota leads also. "Over the top for the Gopher state! Let's go!"

During 1921 there has grown up between the Legion posts of Hennepin and Ramsey counties and their members a bond of friendship and comradeship which only unselfish service brings. A year ago each Twin City post was for itself alone but now the motto is "One for all and all for one." By unitedly following this ideal the American Legion posts of Ramsey and Hennepin counties have been able to leave a record of cooperation and kindly deeds and noble actions which neither time nor tide can ever efface.

The Legion to the Disabled: To you men who are fighting the brave fight against the effects of your service to our country The American Legion of your comrades sends Christmas greetings with every sincere wish for your speedy recovery and future happiness. Every American shall be indebted to you as long as the nation endures and your cause shall always be first on the program of the American Legion. We intend to see that you get a square deal from the country you fought for. We would expect you to fight our battles were our positions reversed. We assume that responsibility as a privilege and an honor. The American Legion reports for a new year's duty. Give us your commands.—Hanford MacNider, National Commander.

Who Cares?

(By Stanford King, State Adjutant)

Do you know that in 1921 the American Legion of Minnesota fed over 5,000 former service men, lodged over 1,200, cared for over 590 families and gave employment to more than 1400? This was in Minnesota, by Minnesota Legionaires, for Minnesota men and women.

On Jan. 1, 1922, there are over 3,500 former service men out of work in the Gopher state, many of them hungry, many families in need of help and assistance.

Who will do the work in 1922?

WHO CARES?

The American Legion's creed is: "Be thy brother's keeper."

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Thief River Falls People Know How to Save It.

Many Thief River Falls people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Thief River Falls citizen's recommendation.

Ed. Stokke, prop. of shoe repair shop, First St., E., Thief River Falls, says: "My kidneys weren't acting just right, due to sitting for such long spells at my work. There was a dull, steady pain across my back and I tired easily. My kidneys were disordered and I was troubled by their weakness. The timely use of Doan's Kidney Pills checked the trouble and made me feel fine again, so I gladly recommend Doan's."

Possibilities of Valley to Be Subject of Essays

The red river valley winter shows, which will be held at Crookston, Feb. 6-10, will cary out the essay contest again this year. This contest is open to all school students up to and including the eighth grade.

The subject should be of special interest: "The Future of the Red River Valley." This portion of our country is known world-wide. It is as yet only in the beginning of its development but has possibilities that one can ealize only after some study.

Participation on the part of school children will serve a double purpose, to enlighten them on some of the facts of this wonderful valley, and to offer material for language work. A committee was appointed by the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association to have this matter in charge, consisting of Supt. S. A. Aas, Fertile; Supt. Jos. Hamre, Erskine, and Supt. David Johnson, Warren. They have sent the rules and regulations to all schools in this district. Teachers would do well to get their pupils to work on the subject. Write to the Northwestern Experiment Station at Crookston for material.

Average Salary For Men Teachers $89, Women $74

A report submitted to the joint legislative commission of Minnesota on education meeting at St. Paul by Philip Carlson of Minneapolis, places the average monthly salaries paid to men teachers in Minnesota at $89.60 a month and the average to women at $74.62. Mr. Carlson is president of the Minnesota Educational association.

Representative Theodore Christianson of Dawson and other members of the commission questioned the correctness of the report. Mr. Carlson and other educators were submitting figures which, it is probable, will lead to a recommendation that a minimum wage for teachers be established in Minnesota. Representative Christianson asserted that higher salaries than the average reported were paid in his vicinity and reports from Itasca county show the average for women at $89; from Rock county, $105; from Roseau, $72, and Beltrami $60.

The sessions will continue until Thursday or Friday and general educational topics will be considered.

Break colds with vapors
The favored treatment now is a salve rubbed on, that gives off penetrating, healing fumes.

Try the vaporizing treatment for colds—Vicks VapoRub.

At the first sign of a cold, apply Vicks over throat and chest. Rub well in. Lay on a flannel cloth. Apply again at night and arrange the bedclothes like a funnel, so that the vapors, released by the body heat, will be freely inhaled.

This is the treatment favored today by doctors and nurses for colds, bronchitis, tonsilitis, spasmodic croup, sore throat and, in modified form, for catarrh and asthma.

Vicks contains the old, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, etc.—combined by special process, so that while they penetrate and stimulate the skin, the ingredients are also released as vapors by the body heat and are breathed right into the lungs.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

CUTTING THE WHEAT ACREAGE

The farmers of North Dakota are advised by economic experts of their state university to cut their wheat acreage from 10 to 12 per cent next year and devote the land to other crops. It is stated that there is at present a 12 per cent surplus of wheat in the world and that until such time as this oversupply can be absorbed prices are bound to be below the cost of production.

A curtailment of production on the part of farmers for the purpose of maintaining prices is such an unheard of proceeding that a great many people will regard it as little short of criminal. A farmer, according to the standard of certain folks, is not entitled to the same consideration as other men when it comes to handling his own affairs. It is perfectly all right for others to manipulate and control their products in such a manner as to insure a proper and adequate return, but for the farmer to do so seems outrageous.

When a manufacturer finds himself no longer able to dispose of his product at a profit he quits producing that particular article and either shuts down his plant or sets it to turning out something for which there is a demand. He is not expected to keep on piling up a surplus in order that others may profit by the resultant low price. To do so would soon put him out of business.

Why has not the farmer the same right? It may be claimed that such action on his part will force the public to pay a higher price for necessities which only he can supply, but if such is the case more atention should have been given to his position in the first place. He cannot be blamed for following the course that would be pursued by every other sane man under similar circumstances.

The growing of wheat in Minnesota and the Dakotas is no longer a paying proposition under the most favorable circumstances and the sooner the farmer discovers what to almost everyone else has long been evident, the better it will be for him. If he can be prevailed upon to cut his wheat acreage 10 to 12 per cent next year it is doubtful if he will ever go back to making the cereal his principal crop. He will discover that his land can be put to other uses with a much greater probability of profit and the tendancy will be toward further decreases rather than a return to wheat raising.

Minnesota and Dakota farmers cannot successfully compete in the world's markets against wheat grown on the cheaper lands of Western Canada, Southern Russia and the Argentine. No tariff bolstering is going to change the fact that his grain will have to come into competition with the product of these countries. The simple truth is that wheat is no longer a profitable crop for him and he might as well realize it now as later.

It is to be hoped that the recommendation of the North Dakota Agricultural college will be heeded. It will mean better and more prosperous farmers eventually and a better price for wheat immediately.

THAT FARM BLOC.

A heart-rending wail ascends from those in high places over the activities of what is known as the "farm bloc" in the United States senate. That senators should so far forget their own dignity and what is due the vested interests of the country as to raise their voices in favor of the farmer is something that causes acute hysterics in certain quarters.

Just why a farm bloc should be regarded in a different light from any other bloc may not be very clear to the ordinary observer. It simply means that a number of senators representing identical interests—and these interests the most important in the country—have joined hands in an effort to have the needs of agriculture given some consideration when it comes to law-making. Their action does not necessarily mean neglect of or opposition to any other proposal or program, but does indicate that there are a number of things on which they will insist. Were it not that their efforts promise to be successful there would be no such outcry against their methods.

Everyone knows that there are senators whose chief duty it is to see that certain interests are properly safeguarded by legislation. There are railroad blocs, army and navy blocs shipping blocs, and half a hundred other kinds of blocs, whether the alliance formed by senators for offense or defense are known by that name or not. Just why the most important of our industries and the most numerous class among our citizens should be barred from availing themselves of similar representation is not very clear. There are half a million Main streets and only one Wall street, yet when it comes to legislation, and particularly national legislation, the former gets but scant attention while the energies of numerous and various blocs are constantly devoted to seeing that nothing of value gets by the latter or that anything intended to curb activities there is permitted to pass congress.

It has taken the farmer a long time to discover that mere promises do not get him anything or anywhere. It has apparently taken just as long for lawmakers to find out that the farmer has rather sizable interests in this country and that he is very much affected by what goes on in Washington. The result is consternation among those who always believed that the farmer should be satisfied providing everything else was looked after and he left to get what he could incidentally. It has finally dawned upon a few lawmakers that things have been gone at wrong end to. The plan has been to make everybody else prosperous first, if possible, after which the farmer would automatically get his share. Farm bloc senators look at the matter from a different viewpoint. They are inclined to proceed on the theory that by so shaping legislation that the farmer will first get a fair return for his labor and products other industries of every kind and nature will be best served, and the distribution of any prosperity that may be in store be more rapidly and equitably accomplished.

CHURNING OUT GOLD

In another part of The Times today is reprinted an article written by Earl Christman and taken from Henry Ford's Dearborne Independent, entitled "Where the Churn Brings a Flow of Gold." The article deals with the creamery industry of Minnesota and contains facts and figures not generally known or, if known, not fully appreciated.

Mr. Christman states the value of dairy products was greater than that of the state's iron mines by a wide margin, equals that of all the Minneapolis flour mills and exceeds by $33,500,000 the combined value of the wheat, oats, corn, barley and rye produced in the state. The writer tells of how the business has grown from a total of $8,700,000 in 1890 to the enormous sum of $200,000,000 at the present time. In 1910 the average paid by creameries to their patrons was $28,000. Ten years later the amount had grown to an average of $108,000.

In spite of the strides made in the past the dairy industry in Minnesota may yet be said to be in its infancy. Every year adds to its importance and it will be but a short time until Minnesota stands preeminently at the head of the procession in this respect. In the as yet largely undeveloped northern half of the state the demand is constantly for more and better cows. The progress of communities and counties is measured by their increase in milch cows. Every agency for the advancement of farming interests is bent toward securing a greater amount of livestock for the farms, particularly dairy stock. It is clearly realized that in no way can the future of agriculture be so certainly assured and the position of the farmer so rapidly improved.

President Budd of the Great Northern announces that his road will build a lot of steel cars in its own shops, beginning the work at once. This is done for the purpose of providing employment at points where the Great Northern's car shops are located. President Budd makes the welcome announcement that a large number of the 1,000 clerks laid off recently will be reemployed early in January. While the officials of the road happen to be in this mood, would it not be a good idea to remind them of the fact that a new station in Thief River Falls is badly needed?

THE FARMERS' LOSS.

(St. Paul Dispatch.)

The extent of the loss which the farmers of America have sustained because of recent price declines strikingly is shown by crop estimates for 1921 issued by the department of agriculture at Washington. The value of the important crops of this year based on December 1 prices aggregated $5,675,877,000, or $3,400,000,000 less than the receipts from the 1920 crop and $8,000,000,000 less than that of 1919 when the high price era had reached its climax.

It is quite obvious that no industry can prosper which is subject to an income decline of eight billion dollars within two years. If the period of readjustment had been longthened the situation would not be so serious, but under present conditions crops which were planted when costs were high have been harvested when prices were low, thus wiping out all profit margins and in only too many cases leading to a deficit.

The 1921 value record cannot be compared to any recent years but if we go back to pre-war days we will find that it strikes an average between the $5,098,000,000 crop of 1908 and the $6,111,000,000 crop of 1914.

The prospects for 1922, however, are much brighter. There is little danger of further price reductions and planting can be done with cheap seed and cheap labor. This means a great reduction in agricultural costs and a chance for just as substantial a profit as was to be had in the halcyon days of high prices and equally high costs. The coming year will be ushered in under nearly normal conditions and that state should continue until the crops are bought and paid for. This year was peculiar in that the big decline came after planting. Merchants experienced the same loss. Stock laid in at high prices in the spring had to be disposed of at low prices in the fall. That is just what happened to the farmers, but 1922 promises stability and much better things all around.

TAX EVERYTHING.

(Faribault News.)

Charles M. Schwab says that he could retire from business and invest his money in tax exempt securities and triple his income. If his figuring is correct it forms evidence to show that there should be no such animal as a tax exempt security. The government offers safety and can afford to pay a little higher rate of interest, if necessary, in order to float its bonds. There is no good reason why municipal, state and county bonds should be privileged, and as for industrials, certain classes of which are exempted in some states, the whole theory is preposterous.

Taxes would be lowered if the holders of all securities were made to pay taxes upon them. If government bonds remained in the hands of the people generally there might be more argument for exempting them, but they have a way of getting into the hands of the moneyed few. Probably that is because they are not taxable, and that is another reason why they should bear their share of the burden.

Financial interests have been moving heaven and earth to have the surtaxes on large incomes repealed. The excuse for the demand has been that rich people won't invest their money in industrial enterprises, but instead buy non-taxable securities. Even today there comes to the desk the bulletin of a New York banking house which says that this unfortunate habit of the capitalis is "a serious drawback to business revival."

If there were no non-taxable securities slacker wealth might be induced to employ itself profitably, and it would be possible to maintain at least some pretense to equality in taxation.

To allow wealth to escape payment of its just proportion of the income tax is a crime against the common run of people, and the government is aiding and abetting the offense by not taxing the holders of government bonds and other non-taxable securities.

The kiddies have settled the question as to who is the world's greatest man. They know it's Santa Claus.

No wonder they call them highballs, figuring on the price they pay for them.

The Christmas trees weren't the only things that were beautifully trimmed. Ask dad about his purse.

About time for State Forester Cox to spring his annual yarn about the snow snake that makes a trail like a corkscrew. Anything with a corkscrew attached to it is popular these days.

A homesteader south of Baudette has had a very successful year. A year ago he owed our merchants less than $50. Now he owes them $700.

The best wish the Region can hatch up for you is that you will get as many laughs and smiles as possible out of 1922. It will be a sad old universe for you if your sense of humor goes on a strike.

The latest song may sound a little crazy, but there's some truth in it. It's entitled "Of All My Wife's Relations I Like Her Husband the Best."

It looks as if there might be a few soprano voices on Baudette's council next year.

The lads who inhaled wood alcohol Christmas Eve didn't have to worry about their Christmas dinner. Their goose was already cooked.

Smoothing the Ways.

Funds for a $250,000 street paving program in Willmar this year have been virtually assured, according to the Republican-Gazette.

Breckenridge awarded a contract for about nine blocks of bitulithic paving this year at $84,601.60, to the E. W. Coons Co., Hibbing, the Gazette-Telegram announces.

Babcock crews in many sections of the state already are demonstrating that winter highway work is both practical and economical, but C. H. Zealand of the Crookston Times furnishes the first photographic proof of how the winter gangs can "hit the ball."

A new record price was obtained by Rice county last week on $295,000 of highway and refunding bonds, the Faribault News reports. An issue of $90,000 of 4½ per cent highway bonds brought $1,850 premium and $205,000 of 5¼ refunding bonds were bid at $7,100 premium. Highway Commissioner Babcock insisted that the highway bond rate be reduced to 4¾ per cent in justice to other localities.

Thirty-five teams finishing winter graveling on the Cordova road, the LeSueur Center Leader Democrat recalled that not many years ago ten sacks of cement weighing only 1,000 pounds made a big load for a good team on the same road.

Minnesota's banner road-building year just ended, the state highway department already is advancing plans to make bigger records in the New Year. Commissioner Babcock explains that the chief concern is about funds. A good working organization has been perfected in the department, he added, and with labor plentiful and prices at low levels, 1922 promises to be a year for speeding highway improvements on the gest scale possible.

Minnesota Historical Notes

Historical Society to Hold Annual Meeting.

The oldest organization in the state will hold its 73rd annual meeting on Monday, Jan. 9. This is the Minnesota Historical society, which was established by the first territorial legislature in 1849 and held its first annual meeting on Jan. 1, 1850.

The meeting will open at 10 a. m. with a conference on local history work in Minnesota. Solon J. Buck, superintendent of the Minnesota Historical society, will speak on "The Organization and Functions of Local Historical Societies and Their Relation to the State Society," and the subject will be discussed by Samuel Lord of the state tax commission, who is investigating the history of Dodge county; Paul J. Thompson of the Hennepin County War Records committee; Frank M. Kalsersatt, chairman of the Rice County War Records commission, and others.

Another session will be held at 2 p. m., at which papers will be read by Calvin L. Brown, chief justice of the Supreme court, on "The Creation of Certain Counties of Minnesota and the Naming of the Towns in Stevens County," and by Clarence W. Alvord, professor of history in the University of Minnesota, on "Mississippi Valley Problems and the American Revolution." A selection of pictures illustrating Minnesota's World War activities will then be exhibited through the reflectoscope and explained by Franklin F. Holbrook, secretary of the state war records commission. This will be followed by the business meeting of the society at 4 p. m.

The annual address will be given this year by Dr. Orin G. Libby, secretary of the North Dakota Historical society, on the subject, "Some Aspects of Mid-West America." This will begin at 8:30 p. m. and will be followed by an informal reception for members of the society and their friends.

All the sessions will be held in the Historical building, St. Paul, and will be open to the public. People interested in local history are especially urged to attend and take part in the conference in the forenoon. The society's museum will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., and the extensive Charles P. Noyes collection of coins, recently presented by Mrs. Noyes, will be on exhibition for the first time. This collection contains over three thousand coins from all ages and all parts of the world. Special exhibits will also be on display in the manuscript room, which will be open throughout the day.

Spanish War History Ready for the Press.

The contract for the publication of the history of Minnesota in the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection is to be awarded soon, it was announced this week by Franklin F. Holbrook, secretary of the Minnesota War Records commission. The final specifications for the book have been decided upon and the bids are to be requested at once.

A single volume, containing brief histories of Minnesota units, a survey of conditions and activities in the state, and a complete roster of all Minnesotans who served in the armed forces, is to be published. Mr. Holbrook estimates that the roster will contain the records of about six thousand men who enlisted in the three state units of volunteers, the navy, and the third infantry of the regular army.

"The records of men in the navy have already been secured from Washington," Mr. Holbrook reports, "and work is progressing on the compilation of records of men in the regular army. Complete information on all Minnesota units has been supplied by Adjutant General W. F. Rhinow, who is assisting in the preparation of the history."

By action of the legislature the Minnesota War Records commission is directed to edit and publish a history of the activities of the state in the Spanish-American war and the Philippine Insurrection prior to the publication of any material relating to the World war.

Early Land Speculators Foiled.

The efforts of speculators to take advantage of the rise in the value of property when the Northern Pacific railroad was extending its road through western Minnesota about 1870 are revealed in papers of Governor Horace Austin, recently given to the Minnesota Historical society. Certain operators in land received what they considered sure "tips" that the Northern Pacific railroad was to cross the Red river at a certain point. Accordingly they sent their squatters ahead of the agents of the railroad to establish claims on this property, which at that time was unsurveyed. Their chagrin and loss were great when the Northern Pacific actually ran the railroad line nearly 30 miles from the property they had so hastily acquired.

In the Austin collection are also letters written by local politicians during the reconstruction period following the Civil war, in which they request the governor to use his influence to secure for them "carpetbag" positions in the south. The collection is said by officers of the Historical society to be a very valuable addition to its files of the papers of Minnesota governors.

Origin and Meaning of the Great Seal of Minnesota.

Few people today realize the significance of the design on the great seal used on all official documents of the state of Minnesota or know how and when it originated. The "Legislative Manual" or "Blue Book" contains a statement on the subject but it is incomplete and inaccurate. In the new "History of Minnesota" by Dr. William A. Folwell, volume I of which has just been published by the Minnesota Historical society, the story of the seal is told and the first officers of the territory are absolved from the implied charge of disregarding an act of the legislature.

According to the Blue Book, the first territorial legislature in 1849 adopted a design for the seal which depicted an Indian family welcoming a visiting white man and extending to him the pipe of peace. From an examination of the legislative journals Dr. Folwell finds that this design was approved by the council but was rejected by the house of representatives and another act was passed authorizing the governor and the delegate in congress to select a design and motto for the seal. Apparently some of the pioneer legislators thought that the design submitted, which was to symbolize "the eternal friendship of the two races," did not indicate the true state of affairs.

From letters and sketches in the Sibley papers on file in the manuscript division of the Minnesota Historical society, it appears that Delegate Sibley put the matter up to Col. J. J. Abert, an officer of engineers in Washington, and one of the designs submitted by him, as redrawn and added to by Captain Seth Eastman, an artist who had been commandant at Ft. Snelling, was accepted by the commissioners. This design depicted a white man engaged in plowing and looking back at a mounted Indian riding away toward what was supposed to be the setting sun. The falls of St. Anthony were introduced in the background in such a way as to put the figures on the east side of the Mississippi and make it appear that the Indian was riding toward the east arther than the west.

The significance of the design was expressed by the wife of Captain Eastman in a poem of eight stanzas, the first of which reads as follows:

"Give way, give way, young warrior,
Thou and thy steed give way—
Rest not, though lingers on the hills
The red sun's parting ray.
The rock bluff and prairie land
The white man claims them now,
The symbols of his course are here,
The rifle, axe and plough."

Governor Ramsey wanted for the motto "something characteristic in an eminent degree of American goaheadativeness." The one selected was that of the Scottish Earl of Dunraven, "Quae sursum volo videre," generally translated, "I wish to see what is beyond." Two mistakes were made in the Latin, however: "quae" was changed to "quo" and "volo" to "velo," with the result that the motto as used was meaningless.

The seal and the press were made in the east under Sibley's direction and cost $160. This seal, which was used throughout the territorial period, now reposes in the museum of the Historical society. When Minnesota became a state in 1858, a new seal was prepared embodying the same ideas, but with the figures on the west side of the river and with the motto changed to "L' Etoile du Nord," which translated is "The Star of the North."

Just what is the difference between advertising, publicity and notoriety? We have often pondered the question. In looking up definitions we find that Mr. Webster draws a mighty fine line between advertising and publicity; a sort of distinction without a difference. Our conclusion is that we pay for advertising and when we get it for nothing it is dubbed publicity. Notoriety means very much the same but this term is used in an unfavorable sense. Now how shall we characterize the custom of introducing a motion picture by flashing the names of the staff employed in its making? Sometimes there are a dozen or more participants from the director to the stable boys, all unknown and likely to remain obscure individuals in spite of the publicity thus forced upon impatient audiences.

What Other Editors Think

SEE WHAT YOU ARE BUYING.

Waseca Journal: Every business man in Waseca who has something to sell probably objects to every dollar or more purchase made outside of Waseca city and county. Many, many dollars are so spent, there is no doubt of that. Often such money is spent without cause, often there is every reason why it should be spent here.

What most of the local merchants undoubtedly object to is the buying from mail order houses which are often patronized by local buyers who through either indifference or ignorance are sending money out of our community that could and should be helping to build this territory into a larger and better place to live in. Sometimes a mail order catalogue looks wonderfully attractive, but how are people to know what they are buying so far as quality is concerned, unless they see the article or goods and judge for themselves? These mail order houses have some very good bargains undoubtedly and yet it is certain that these large plants like the ones recently built in St. Paul were built on profits.

If the local merchants did not have the stocks to compete against Twin City houses and against mail order houses then we could say that it was the local dealer's own funeral, let him take his medicine. Local stores are larger, by far, and their lines are more complete, also.

So that is what we meant when we had "Buy Right by Sight" days here a week ago. See the goods for yourselves—then buy, is the essence of the slogan of last week. Believe in your home town merchant. He believes in you, otherwise he wouldn't have the fine stocks of merchandise and high standard of quality that he now has. Waseca has some pretty fine stores and some pretty fine men running them. Why not look their lines over thoroughly before you buy from a pretty picture catalogue?

A STATEMENT OF POLICY.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: The Herald-Review has been asked at several times to make known its policy in regard to the publishing of names of those who have been arrested or convicted of crimes of one sort or another. We are not bothered very much with people who come to us to have things of this kind kept out of the columns of this paper. However, occasions do arise in which a proper newspaper policy is not always clear.

The Herald-Review follows a policy, almost without exception, of publishing the names of those who have been arrested for some crime and whose guilt has been established or seems likely to be established.

If you are arrested and convicted of crime it is not so serious to have your name in the paper as it is to have been arrested.

Appeals are made to the editors and publishers to leave out facts of arrest and conviction on account of the wife, the mother or the families of those involved. For a son who has committed a crime to appeal to a newspaper to keep it quiet for the sake of his mother or his family is simply an admission on the part of that son that the newspaper publisher has more respect and more consideration for the mother or family than the offender himself. Sometimes it is hard and sometimes it does seem unjust or harsh to have such things published, but the best way to keep your name out of the newspaper as an offender against law is to keep out of jail. The two things are very closely related.

ADVERTISING IS NECESSITY.

Cottonwood County Citizen: Skinner, Chamberlain & Co., a merchandise firm of Albert Lea, during the month of November spent $440 for advertising in one paper alone. This firm would not be giving that amount to the paper just for the pleasure of it, and payments would soon stop if results were not being obtained. There are firms of considerable size who would faint at the thought of paying $440 a month for advertising in several papers. Yet among up-to-date merchants advertising is considered as much a necessity as is heat and light. The time has long since gone by when advertising was in the luxury class, and the sooner any merchandise firm gets busy and studies the proposition with a view of getting the best there is in advertising, the sooner will they get out of the store-keeper class and into the class of the up-to-date merchant.

MINNESOTA AGAIN LEADS.

Wadena Pioneer-Journal: Minnesota has built more miles of federal aid roads in the last five years than any state in the Union except Texas, according to a statement issued in Washington by the department of agriculture. Seven other states have spent more money on federal aid roads, but Minnesota has made the money go farther in road construction than almost any of the states. The statement shows 1,713.4 miles of road built or contracted for since July 1, 1916, in Minnesota, at an estimated cost of $17,000,911.01, of which $6,047,373.63 is federal aid. This is an average cost of $10,210 a mile, and an average of $4,004 in federal aid.

Levan's Weekly: Every man and woman likes to see his or her name in the paper, and the editor likes to print it. Some say they object to publicity. But do they? Highway Work in County Totaled $63,841 in 1921

The total cost of new road construction, maintenance of old roads and engineering expenses in Pennington county during the past year was $63,841.81, according to the report submitted by Highway Engineer B. F. Umland to the state highway department. Of this amount $53,390.41 was for construction and includes new work on federal aid projects, county projects and state roads. The maintenance charge was $7,248.65, and the engineering cost amounted to $3,202.75 or 5 per cent of the total—exactly one-half of the maximum allowed under federal road aid regulations.

On April 1, 1921, there were 133.35 miles of state roads in the county and an additional 31.15 miles were taken over by the state during the year. Total number of miles graded was 10.7 and the total miles surfaced 7.7. The maintenance work extended over 175.3 miles. Fourteen miles have been surveyed for new construction during 1922.

New Peace Dollar Issued From the Mints Thursday

The new silver dollar of the 1921 design—the peace dollar—was issued for distribution Tuesday by the treasury. The first dollar of the new series struck off has been presented to President Harding.

The new dollar has the head of Liberty on one side and on the other a dove upon a mountain top clutching an olive branch struck by the rays of the sun, with the word "Peace" beneath it. This is the first change in the design of the dollar since 1878, officials said.

About 500,000 of the new dollars probably will be coined with the date 1921 and after that the dollar will carry the date of the year in which it is struck off. There will be in all about 180,000,000 dollars of the new design coined, officials said, unless further authority is given the mint to purchase the coin silver.

Checking Over Road Maps.

Truman Pierson, vice president and general manager of the Mississippi Scenic Highway association, has asked boosters for the road in this city to send him a map of the route through Pennington and surrounding counties in order that he may check the matter up before giving his final approval to the new route maps now being made. He also states that the road signs will be on hand in time to be placed early in the spring. This matter has not been rushed through as it was realized that nothing much could be done in the way of placing these signs during the winter months.

National Banks Must Pay Tax as Based on Shares

Minnesota will not lose $1,253,000 annually in national bank taxes by the recent ruling of the United States supreme court.

In a Virginia case the court ruled that national banks should be taxed on the basis of money and credits instead of shares of stock. If the ruling were applied to Minnesota where taxes are based on shares of stock, the state would lose more than $1,000,000 annually. Egbert Oakley, deputy attorney general, has ruled that the Minnesota method of taxation is presumed to be valid until a contrary ruling by the supreme court.

A bill is now before congress for enactment of a uniform tax law for all banks.

Bank Teller Accused.

Directors of the defunct Scandinavian-American bank at Fargo, witnesses in the trial of Frank C. Heaton, a teller of the bank, who is being tried on a charge of embezzlement, said Heaton admitted the shortages. The amount named is approximately $78,000, and it is said Heaton made his admission when before the board of directors several days after discovery of the alleged shortages. E. J. Headlund, H. L. Bolley, Lars Christianson and J. F. Holmes, the directors, each testified Heaton assumed responsibility for the entire shortage.

$43,000 SAVED IN 5 MONTHS THRU CO-OPERATIVES

This is Report Submitted at Third Annual Convention of State Farm Bureau.

W. A. McKerrow, in Address to Delegates, Says Success of Venture is Assured.

Surplus of $26,000 Has Been Accumulated Since Agency Was Opened in August.

One co-operative marketing enterprise sponsored by the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation has saved farmers $43,000 in less than five months, W. A. McKerrow, manager of the Central Co-operative Commission, told the third annual state convention of the farm bureau in session at the state capitol yesterday.

The Commission association opened for business on the South St. Paul livestock market on August 8, and since that time has done a gross business of $5,000,000, Mr. McKerrow said.

A quarter of a million animals were handled by the organization, he asserted, at commission charges approximately 25 per cent lower than those fixed by the private firms.

In less than five months, the convention delegates were told, the farmers' central sales agency has accumulated a surplus of $26,000, to be returned to the farmers as patronage dividends, and has saved the producers at least $17,000 in cash by handling stock at lower commission rates.

Driving Out the Farmers

"Within a few months, the farmers will place their own farmer-controlled and farmer-managed firms on the leading livestock markets of the United States," Mr. McKerrow said. "Their success already is absolutely assured."

"The farmers of the country at this moment are carrying the heaviest burden laid upon any class of people in America. They have been gradually driven from the country to the city, until 34 per cent of the population in producing the food for the other 66 per cent.

"The time has come when the organization of centralized agricultural marketing agencies is a necessity in order that the farmers' interests may be assured of protection and their industry saved from complete demoralization. The state and national farm bureau federations are making rapid strides, and livestock marketing is one of the major projects to which they are devoting their atention.

Farmer's Investment 40 Cents

"A comprehensive study of livestock marketing and production has been made by the Committee of Fifteen, appointed by the American Farm Bureau Federation; their work has resulted in a plan for a co-operative marketing structure on a national scale. Interwoven with this plan is a scheme for the development of orderly marketing that goes back even to the pasture and the feed lot, and for the development in railroad transportation and the establishment of farmer-controlled co-operative agencies to centralize the marketing of livestock on the great terminals of the country.

"The most successful livestock enterprise ever launched by farmers, in all probability, is the central selling agency at South St. Paul. It is made up of 300 local shipping associations, with a total membership of nearly 60,000 farmers. The whole investment of the individual farmer in his central selling company does not exceed 40 cents.

"Since Aug. 8, this agency has handled approximately 19 per cent of the cars of livestock arriving at South St. Paul. It handled 442 cars in the last three weeks of August, 781 in September, 1,100 in October, 1,292 in November, and 534 in the first half of December.

Protects Weak Market

"The stocker and feeder department of the association takes the place of the speculator. On a bad market, this department may buy the stockers and feeders if there is no other satisfactory outlet for them, paying the highest price it feels justified in paying. This department is used only when necessary; in most cases, such cattle are sold direct from the farmer producer to the farmer feeder. The association has shipped out 11,410 head of cattle in four months.

"On some days the association has handled 7,000 hogs, 33 to 35 per cent of all the hogs on the market; 19,408 hogs have been shipped to other markets, stimulating the local competition among buyers and giving the farmers of the northwest the benefit of the rivalry.

"Farmers of Minnesota must realize that when they start to do business for themselves, [illegible] doing similar business will try to destroy their organization. They will try to convince the farmer that he doesn't know enough to run his own business. They will oppose in every possible way the farmer's efforts to better his condition.

"There is just one thing the individual farmer should remember. That is, to investigate things for himself, to examine complaints about co-operative marketing and base his opinions on facts and not upon hearsay. Co-operative marketing will be a success beyond the hopes of its staunchest supporters if the farmers themselves give it the loyal support its past record deserves."

Great Northern to Start Million Dollar Car Work

President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern railway has announced plans for rebuilding the road's wooden passenger coaches into all steel cars in the company's own shops, involving an expenditure of about $1,000,000. The company also is buying 30 new steel coaches at a cost of about $750,000.

Ordinarily the rebuilding of passenger cars is done in outside shops. President Budd said; "We probably could have it done for less money elsewhere, but it was thought desirable under present conditions to keep our own men busy and spend the money in our own communities."

The Great Northern program will prove an important factor in relieving the unemployment situation this winter. President Budd also announced a large number of the 1,000 clerks laid off recently will be reemployed early in January.

PRESIDENT HARDING CALLS CONFERENCE TO ASSIST FARMERS

Urges Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to Expert Efforts Along This Line.

President Harding in a letter to Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, asks that the secretary call a national conference at Washington "to suggest practical ways of improvement for the severest agricultural depression which exists thruout the land."

Prompt action was taken at the Department of Agricultural in response to the request, telegraphic invitations being dispatched immediately to a number of organizations and individuals whose attendance is desired at the gathering.

Secretary Wallace said that the date for the conference had not been fixed nor a complete invitation list made up. It is expected, however, that the conference will be held within a month and that in addition to farmers and their organizations, industries asociated directly and indirectly with agriculture will be called in to assist in the efforts to improve conditions.

"No one will pretend that the present conditions could have been avoided," President Harding said in his letter to the secretary, "but none of us is willing to agree that there ought not to be some correct and constructive steps taken to remedy the severest hardships under which so important portion of our productive citizenship is struggling. I am convinced that a conference may be made a very helpful agency in suggesting practical ways of improvement, particularly if brought into coordination with the helpful investigation which has been begun by a to a related work."

FREIGHT RATE CUT SAVES ROAD FUNDS

Commissioner Babcock Places 1922 Savings By New Tariff at Large Figure.

Saving of approximately $250,000 on the 1922 construction program of the Minnesota Highway department is virtually assured by a 20 per cent reduction in freight rates on road building materials ordered last week by the state railroad and warehouse commission and made public by Commissioner Ivan Bowen.

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, upon whose petition the lower rates are ordered, made the estimate and said it is conservative. It will mean a saving of about $1,000 a mile on paving, $400 a mile on gravel surfacing for which materials are shipped by rail, and other corresponding savings, he said. Anticipating a freight rate decrease, Mr. Babcock directed that all highway contracts be so drawn that any savings would revert to the state.

"Commissioner Bowen's announcement of the reduced tariffs means that there will be available this year an additional quarter of a million dollars to enable the highway department to further spread and speed the benefits under Good Roads Amendment No. 1," said Mr. Babcock.

Proceedings before the railroad and warehouse commission followed rejection by Commissioner Babcock of a proposal from some railroad officials of a plan to grant special rates in individual cases. The commissioner insisted upon a uniform cut applying to all rail lines in Minnesota and was successful.

Give Your Cows a Chance and See Income Increase

E. A. Hanson, dairy extension specialist at University Farm, renews the inquiry, "Are you keeping cows or are they keeping you?" in a collection of feeding suggestions issued by him.

"Put the cow to work," he says, "and she is the most efficient money maker on the farm today. A cow producing 25 pounds of 4 per cent milk daily makes one pound of butter fat a day worth about 50 cents. This cow needs rations and hay and silage which should not cost more than 15 cents daily, leaving 35 cents daily above the cost of her feed. Where can you invest your time and efforts to better advantage? Give your cows a chance. They are all capable of doing better when properly fed."

LIVE STOCK RUNS MODERATELY LIGHT

Cattle Market Opens on Steady to Strong Basis—25c to 35c Higher Prices Quoted.

South St. Paul, Jan. 2—Livestock receipts were moderately light at the week's opening, cattle supplies being especially light for a Monday, only around 1,300 being estimated. While trading was somewhat slow and the market quiet, prices were on a generally steady to strong basis with last week's close. No good or choice beef steers were included in the receipts, a few small lots of a medium grade sold up around $7, and best load lot reached $6.75, but relatively few sold over the $6 mark, bulk being of the common grade selling from this price down to $5 or slightly below.

A few of the best offerings of butcher heifers sold at $6 or higher, best load lot $5.85, and bulk of the butcher cows and heifers at $3 to $4.75. Some thin canners sold at $2 and bulk of canners and cutters from $2.25 to $3. Most sales of bologna bulls were made at $2.75 to $3.50, only the poorest light weights as low as $2.50. Veal calves opened steady but the undertone was weak, prices at Chicago being 50 to 75c lower. Practical packer top here on best lights was $7.50, seconds mostly $5. Stockers and feeders sold on a steady to strong basis, price range from $4 to $5 including most sales.

Choice, light sorted hogs sold at $7.25 to $7.50, with bulk of good light and butcher hogs averaging from about 190 pounds and up at $6.75 to $7, and packing sows $5.50 to $6.25. Good pigs sold from $8.25 to $8.60. Bulk of the good to choice native and fed western lambs sold at $10.25 to $10.85 or steady to strong; bulk of good ewes $4 to $4.50.

SENATE AGREES TO INVESTIGATION OF GRAIN SITUATION

Speedy Action Follows National Demand Suggested By President of Grain Growers.

Passage by the United States senate of a resolution authorizing a federal investigation of the export grain trade is the direct result of thousands of letters and telegrams sent to the capital by grain producers, at the suggestion of C. H. Gustafson, according to northwest headquarters of the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc. Mr. Gustafson, Grain Growers' president, three weeks ago launched a national campaign to obtain early action on this resolution, charging that present "ruinous prices" were due to a "smashing" process, despite an export demand that in 1921 absorbed 90,000,000 bushels of wheat more than in 1920.

In Minnesota, presidents of county farm bureaus responded vigorously to to Mr. Gustafson's appeal.

The resolutio nauthorizes the Federal Trade commission to inquire into the margin between farm and export prices, of market manipulation, profits and losses of grain export firms, and methods used by foreign buyers.

The resolution was introduced last summer by Senator E. F. Ladd, and was "pigeon-holed" in committee until the U. S. Grain Growers launched a nationwide campaign for its passage.

Akre Remains as Clerk and Chommie as City Attorney For Two Years More.

Mayor in Message Makes Pertinent Suggestions With Regard to Future Needs.

H. A. Brumund, councilman from the Third ward, was on Tuesday evening elected to succeed himself as president of that body, the vote being unanimous. Carl Froseth was reelected vice chairman and all committees and left standing as constituted during the past two years.

This organization session was without exception the most harmonious gathering of its kind ever seen in the city. There was but one candidate for each office or position, with two exceptions. Two applications were received for the position of street commissioner, one from the present incumbent, H. O. Hoff, and the other from T. A. Fossum, while P. J. Keating and G. H. Sandum applied for the appointment of city assessor. No action was taken in either case, the matter being laid over until the adjourned meeting called for next Tuesday evening.

President Expresses Thanks.

Mr. Brumund, in expressing his thanks for the honor conferred by his being again chosen to head the council, said that while the members had in the past had their differences, these had never been of a serious nature and he hoped that even these minor misunderstandings would be avoided in the future. He felt sure that every man on the board was endeavoring to give the people of the city the best service of which he was capable and that their efforts were being appreciated, at least by a large majority of those interests they were trying to serve.

All Are Re-appointed.

The re-appointment of A. H. Akre as city clerk was moved by Councilman O. L. Ihle and unanimously carried. The same course was followed in the selection of P. G. Peterson as assistant clerk; H. O. Chommie, city attorney; O. L. Legvold, superintendent of the water and light department; R. G. Cook, custodian of the auditorium; Martin H. Owen, incinerator superintendent, and Henry Froseth, manager of auditorium. Dr. O. F. Mellby was named city physician.

Mayor's Message Read.

Mayor John Bratrud made a number of recommendations in his biennial message. Chief among these were a suggestion that a city scales be installed and weighmaster appointed, better supervision over the auditorium, makig arrangements looking toward the changing of the electric light plant to an alternating system; planning for the providing of power when the present contract with the dam owners shall have expired; the cutting of expenses at every possible point in order that taxes may be reduced, and a halt in the paving program until a demand for greater extension of the paved area shall come from the taxpayers themselves. The mayor thanked the councilmen for the cheerful co-operation at all times extended and the consideration given any subject he has found it advisable to bring before the board. He hoped these pleasant relations would continue, pledging his own endeavors toward this end.

Approves Scale Proposition.

When the citizens present were asked if they had anything they wished to bring before the council, C. L. Hansen spoke briefly in support of the mayor's suggestion that a city scales be installed. He did not wish to be understood as questioning the honesty or good intentions of the fuel dealers and others who use scales, believing it would be to the advantage of these also to have a city weighmaster check up their loads, but thought it would be a source of much satisfaction to the public at large to have such convenience installed, even though it did not prove entirely self-supporting. Th ematter will be given due consideration at a future time, according to the councilmen.

Salaries for the year were not fixed and this matter will be taken up at the adjourned meeting next Tuesday evening.

More Poultry Prizes.

Thief River Falls poultry fanciers fared pretty well at the Red Lake county exhibition last week. Olaf Neset carried off 15 awards on his Rhode Island Reds; C. M. Buoen secured 11 awards on his display of Buff Orpingtons, and H. L. Schuster of Sunnyside Poultry Yards landed nine for White Leghorns. Olaf Neset also won the sweepstakes for pullets while Mr. Buoen won first prize for display.

ATHLETICS MEET STATE CHAMPIONS IN TWO CONTESTS

Opening Game With Two Harbors All Stars to be Played Here This Evening.

The basketball games played thus far this year will prove to have been mere practice sessions when compared with what the Athletics will go against when they meet the Two Harbors All Stars tonight and Friday. The Lake county outfit is not only the best in Minnesota, but Walter Camp, the famous sports writer, says it is one of the five best teams in the entire country. Out of 28 games played last year 27 were won, the only break in the record being the loss of one contest to the famous Battery A team of Minneapolis. It is claimed that the Minneapolis quint refused to play a third game after each team had won one.

While it is admitted that Two Harbors is by all odds the heaviest opposition the locals have gone against, they are not entering the contest with the notion that they are going to be defeated. Visitors who saw both aggregations in action last year said that Thief River Falls would stand an even show with Battery A, and as Two Harbors won a game and lost another against that celebrated bunch there is a good chance of their being trimmed on the floor here. At least that is the way boosters for the Athletics have doped the matter out.

This has been a strenuous week for Connell's proteges. He has put them through a grueling course of preparation and when they get out on the floor tonight they will be on edge to a degree never before reached. One or two of the boys who have showed some difficulty in hitting their last year's stride are now believed to be in the best shape of their careers and ready to give an account of themselves that will startle the remarkably smooth machine hailing from the north shore of Lake Superior.

Remember that unless you get there early you will have to stad up and may not even have a chance to do that.

Prohibition Anniversary.

January 17 will mark the second anniversary of the national constitutional prohibition victory in the United States and arrangements are being made by temperance societies, young people's societies and patriotic organizations to celebrate the event with appropriate exercises.

THIEF RIVER FALLS BANKS RETAIN ALL PRESENT OFFICERS

Stockholders in Three of City's Banks Hold Annual Meetings During Past Week.

Stockholders in Thief River Falls banks are evidently satisfied with the manner in which business has been conducted during the past year. Three of the four financial institutions of the city held their annual meetings during the week and in each case all directors and officers were re-elected.

Statements recently published show that all city and county banks are in good condition and apparently meeting all calls upon their resources without the slightest difficulty. While it is true that deposits are slightly below what they were at this time a year ago the amount of loans outstanding shows that liquidation has kept the standings on an even keel and it is doubtful if there is a city in the state where a better or more absolutely sound showing is presented.

Meetings of the directors in each of the Citizens group of banks in the neighborhood were held during the week. Olaf Ramstad remains as president of all these, the other officers for the Citizens State bank here being: A. M. Langseth and Louis Hanson, vice presidents; T. L. Melgaard, cashier; C. W. Vorachek and E. P. Brevig, assistant cashiers; Carl Gulrud, teller. For the Citizens State bank of Grygla, the following were elected: A. J. Anderson, vice president; J. H. Peterson, cashier. The Hazel bank officers remain Paul Borgie and Ole Odegaard, vice presidents; E. C. Karwand, cashier.

The meeting of stockholders of the First National bank was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the following were re-elected as the board of directors: C. L. Hansen, Rasmus Oen, E. M. Bennes, O. D. Ostby and W. H. Akre. All present officers were named for another year, Mr. Hansen remaining president; Mr. Oen and Mr. Bennes vice presidents, and Mr. Akre cashier. The bank personnel also includes T. M. Thronson, auditor; L. C. Nielsen, teller; G. W. Werstlein, manager insurance department; Reuben Hadrath, stenographer and bookkeeper; Philip Larson, bookkeeper.

At the annual meeting of the First and Peoples stockholders yesterday the old officers and employes were in each case re-elected, as follows: A. M. Sheldon, president; H. S. Dahlen and Math Barzen, vice presidents; R. M. Sheldon, cashier; L. A. Hermanson and Alvin Holzknecht, assistant cashiers; Stanton Dahlen, teller; Inez Johnson, stenographer; Laura Lund, bookkeeper.

First Wedding of Year.

They are slow in getting started this year only one marriage license having been issued thus far by Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund. The contracting parties are Albert Johnson of Cass county, and Miss Hannah Wiken of Pennington. The marriage ceremony was performed by Judge N. W. Tarrant on Saturday, and was witnessed by Wesley and Mildred Pierson of this city.

Do You Want a Buick Six or New Ford Touring Car Without a Cent of Cost?

The Times is Going to Present These Cars Free to the Persons Who Will Work to Earn Them—Cash and Other Gift Distributions Will Also Be Made.

The Thief River Falls Times wants to give you a new 1922 model Buick touring car. Or, in case you fall just short of securing the Buick, you will still be in line for a new Ford touring car.

The Times is going to give these cars away to some person who will earn them by doing a little work. Not one red cent need you spend in order to secure one or the other.

The automobiles will be given away on March 18, 1922, and every person who enters the contest will have the same opportunity to win. None will be favored and none will start under a handicap. It will make absolutely no difference to the publishers who wins these machines. Success depends entirely upon the hustling abilities of the contestant. Those who get into the game early and work consistently will have the best chance and for this reason it is important that those who wish to own one of these cars read the instructions on the big double page advertisement in this issue.

$25 In Gold For You.

A purse of $25 has been set aside by The Times, to be given to the person who nominates the winner of the Buick. You can nominate yourself and when you have made the Buick "your Buick" receive the $25 nomination prize.

You will find a coupon at the bottom of the double page announcement for your convenience. Only one nomination credited, but you can nominate as many different persons as you have nomination blanks.

The Buick car is the latest model six-cylinder machine turned out by these famous factories. It is a car that any person might well be proud to own. This is the capital prize in The Times' big subscription contest about to open. This car has been secured from the People Auto company of this city.

Next in importance among the prizes comes the Ford touring car. This has been purchased from the McFarland Auto company of Thief River Falls and is the standard Ford with all the latest additions, including self-starter. This car will go to the person who aims at getting the Buick but does not quite reach it. There are other valuable prizes and cash awards for the workers. No one will be permitted to put in their time without being paid for it. Right at the outset an opportunity is presented for earning $25 in gold without in any manner jeopardizing your chances of getting one of these cars.

There will be no other such opportunity for securing a car like one of these. A little work in your own neighborhood and among your own friends will turn the trick.

Read the announcement and act at once. Do not let someone else get ahead of you. The contestant with the early start will have the best chance of winning.

FARM MANAGEMENT MAIN SUBJECT OF INSTITUTE TALKS

Meetings to be Held in This City Tomorrow and at Goodridge on Saturday.

W. I. Cavert, farm management demonstrator of the University of Minnesota, announces a very interesting program for the farm management schools to be held in Thief River Falls on Friday and in Goodridge on Saturday. Mr. Cavert will discuss the cost of producing butter fat as well as more economical feeding rations that should be used to secure the best returns.

J. H. Hay will have some very useful information along the line of organizing co-operative associations. The question of fixing farm prices and co-operative marketing will be fully discussed by G. Halvorsen and W. J. Brown of Thief River Falls.

The above are subjects of vital interest to farmers of this locality and as each one is handled by an expert in his particular line the information imparted should prove of the highest value. All persons interested are urged to be present, prepared to take notes for future reference.

The morning session will be devoted to the organizing of a Pennington County Milk Testing association and the securing of additional names of those interested in having their herds placed on official test. Eighteen local dairymen have already signified their intention of carrying on the work and starting operations immediately after Friday's meeting.

BUREAU ELECTS LAC QUI PARLE MAN PRESIDENT

J. F. Reed Unanimously Chosen on First Ballot to Succeed L. E. Potter.

Warren Man Named as Member Three Years of Executive Board For

New Head of Organization Says Co-operation Must Be Watchword of the Farmer.

J. F. Reed, Lac qui Parle county farmer, is the new president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

He was elected on the first ballot in the third annual convention of the federation in the state capitol. F. E. Lammers of Lakeville, Dakota county, was elected vice president. V. E. Anderson, Wheaton, treasurer of the state federation, was re-elected without opposition.

New members of the executive board of the federation are M. L. Warner of Warren, elected for a term of three years, and Mrs. E. V. Ripley of Park Rapids, for one year. Thomas E. Cashman of Owatonna was reelected to the board for a three-year term, and J. D. Pyle of Madison, J. J. Jacobson of Bowlus, and George Freeman of Zumbrota also were reelected. Mr. Jacobson and Mr. Freeman are to serve two-year terms, and Mr. Pyle a one-year term. The terms of these three directors were decided by lot.

The new president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation is 58 year sold; he was born in Marshall county, Iowa, and came to Minnesota in 1893. He owns and actually runs two farms in Lac qui Parle county, one of 368 acres and the other a half section. The western line of the farm on which he lives forms the western boundary of the statt. Because the post office at Gary, just over the line in South Dakota, serves two Minnesota townships, Mr. Reed's mailing address is Gary, S. D.

Solid Organization Needed.

"Any farmer would be unresponsive indeed if he did not appreciate the honor you have conferred on me," Mr. Reed said in his speech to the delegates, accepting the presidency.

"I believe we are entering a period of great importance for the farm bureau of this state. I am willing to devote what poor ability I may have to further the organization.

"I beg of you your earnest co-operation and help. I expect every director and farm bureau member present to go home with the idea of a more solid organization.

"Agriculture is passing through its greatest crisis. If we are going to lift the pall of gloom that is over the farmers now, we must bring to this work stout hearts, clear heads and willing hands. It is a peculiar condition of affairs that the farmer always has been subject to conditions over which he has had no control. He has had to haul his crops to market and humbly ask how much they were worth; he has had to go to the store and respectfully ask how much he must pay for the goods he had to buy.

"That condition is unthinkable. It is a challenge to the American spirit of fair play.

Is Not Pessimistic.

"Our state stands out in bold relief in co-operative marketing. But much is still to be done. If we perfect our co-operative marketing organizations, the farmer will be in the same position as the manufacturer. The manufacturer would look upon an attempt by anyone else to set the price of his products as audacious. During the last few years, non-productive agencies have governed the price of the farmers' products.

"I am not a pessimist. I am a farmer. I see these things from my own barn door.

"I must have the co-operation of every farm bureau member. We must work in harmony. There are some powerful and insidious forces at work to break down co-operation among farmers. There are influences at work today throughout the country to tear down an agency that is the foundation of the farm bureau. I refer to the county agents. It is a fine time to go to the farmer and tell him his taxes are too high. I know mine are high, awfully high. But I believe the farmers will demand the office of county agent be maintained.

Has United Support.

"I want you to go home and serve notice on your county commissioners that when they try to move the county agent out of your county, they might as well try to move out the court house.

"Looking from my own barn door I can see where the county agent has been helpful to me. Looking across my line fences, I can see where he has been helpful to my neighbor, to my county and to the state. I pledge to the utmost my poor ability to carry on the work of the farm bureau."

At the close of Mr. Reed's talk, the delegates rose spontaneously and pledged their united support to the new president of the Minnesota federation.

FROZEN TO DEATH WITHIN 200 FEET OF HIS OWN DOOR

Mannie Hamer, Former Resident of Thief River Falls, Dead Near Williams.

Another Pennington county man has lost his life in the north woods, the victim this time being Mannie Hamer, a pioneer resident of St. Hilaire and also at different times employed in this city. He last worked here at the Rolland meat market about a year ago but left to continue his residence on a homestead he had taken up near Williams. The Baudette Region gives the following account of the occurrance:

"To be lost in the woods and to be frozen to death within two hundred feet of his home was the tragic fate that overtook M. Hamer, a homesteader who lived 17 miles south of Williams, on Friday night or Saturday morning. Hamer was seen about his yard Friday morning, but when he did not show up again by noon on Saturday his neighbors became alarmed, and a party consisting of Thos. Moe, John Brunner, Carl Engrom and Emil Olson started out to look for him. They had gone only a short distance into the woods when they came upon his dead body in the snow, and everything pointed to the fact that he had become lost in the woods and had frozen to death. His tracks showed that he had walked in a circle, perhaps for hours, and that his gun, with which he evidently had been hunting rabbits, had been thrown to one side when he became too weak to carry it.

"Deputy Coroner Frank Johnson of Baudette was notified, but the circumstances all pointed to death from freezing, and it was decided not to hold an inquest. The body was brought to Baudette, where it is being held until word from deceased's former home at Red Lake Falls is received.

"Deceased was about 45 years of age and was not married. He had lived alone on his homestead for several years."

Sheldrew Re-elected As Manager of Co-operative

The annual meeting of the Peoples Co-operative Store company was held in the municipal court room on Tuesday night. The annual report of officers and manager showed that the concern had enjoyed a very good business during the past year under the management of George Sheldrew, who was reappointed to that position. Other officers were elected as follows: H. W. Kinghorn, president; O. A. Naplin, vice president; C. E. Helquist, secretary-treasurer. Added to these as a board of directors were O. F. Halldin, P. A. Harris, A. J. Borry, Waldie Christensen, Harry Frye and Christ Engen. About 60 stockholders were present at the meeting.

Automobile Club Annual Meeting Tuesday Evening

The annual meeting of the Pennington County Automobile association will be held at the Commercial club rooms on Tuesday evening, Jan. 17. Officers for the ensuing year are to be elected at this time and plans for the season discussed. The business meeting will be followed by a smoker.

GOOD MEETING OF PARENT-TEACHERS

Fine Addresses and Musical Numbers Please Fair Sized Crowd Tuesday Evening.

A fair sized audience attended the second regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association on Tuesday evening at the Lincoln auditorium. The musical features consisted of a selection by a quartet composed of Dr. J. N. Nesse, Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, Supt. I. T. Simley and E. M. Bennes, and a greatly enjoyed violin selection by Master Harry Arneson, accompanied on the piano by his sister, Eileen.

The principal talk of the evening was given by Supt. Simley, who pointed out certain facts in connection with the school work which were of interest to all. He described the boundary lines of the district and showed in detail the system followed in providing funds for educational purposes through taxation. The various forms of state aid were explained and the method by which they are derived. Mr. Simley stated that the enrollment in the district at the present time is about 1,500 and that in comparison with last year the attendance is very good.

Dr. M. Geo. Milan of Oakland Park sanitorium, spoke on "The Health of the Child," bringing out many points of great value. His talk was both interesting and instructive, being valuable for the guidance of parents and teachers alike. Miss Ruth Johnson, school nurse, and Miss Clara Baumann, girls' physical director, gave an outline of what the schools are doing for the promotion of health among the pupils.

These Parent-Teachers' meetings are growing in interest and would be more generally attended did the people understand their value. At the meeting previously held the principal address was delivered by Rev. M. J. Noesen, whose remarks proved of exceptional interest.

A feature of these meetings is the lunch served at their close.

Captain Petrie Leaves.

A special meeting will be held at the Salvation Army hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, at which time Capt. Florence Petrie will bid farewell to her friends in Thief River Falls. She goes to her home at Jamestown, N. D., for a short furlough and will later take another appointment. The captain has rendered good and faithful service here and her work has been appreciated by many. As many as possible of her friends are urged to be present at the meeting Sunday evening.

TO MAKE NO FIGHT FOR ENDORSEMENT AT DISTRICT MEET

Congressman Steenerson Will Center Efforts on Primaries Later in the Year.

It begins to look as if there would be an interesting scrap on for the Republican nomination for congress in the Ninth district this year. Halvor Steenerson will be a candidate to succeed himself and as he has been on the job for 20 years he naturally has a strong and well-organized following. C. G. Selvig, superintendent of the Northwest Agricultural school at Crookston, seems to have definitely decided to enter the contest and is receiving much encouragement. Senator Ole Sageng of Otter Tail county, who once before made the run against Steenerson, will also be in the race, it is asserted.

Martin Widsten of Warroad, Congressman Steenerson's campaign manager, was in Thief River Falls for a short time on Tuesday, enroute home from the cities. He stated that the present representative would not be an active candidate before the district convention at Moorehead on Mar. 30, and would make no particular effort to secure endorsement by that body. Should such endorsement be given he would naturally be much pleased, but apparently he does not consider it of any great importance. Mr. Steenerson will try conclusions in the June primaries with wroever is selected to oppose him at the Moorehead meeting, feeling confident that histroy will repeat itself and that he will become the standard bearer of the Ninth district Republicans.

Both Selvig and Sageng are strong men and many Republicans are of the opinion that the present incumbent faces the fight of his life, particularly if one of the opponents should give way in order to strengthen the chances of the other.

Knox Building Formally Opened to Public Friday

The new Knox school building on the East side will be formally opened to the public on Friday evening. J. H. Hay, for 13 years superintendent of schools in this city, will be the principal speaker and an appropriate musical program has been arranged. The public is cordially invited to attend this opening but grade school children are asked not to come as space will not permit of their being accomodated with seats.

Short addresses will be made by A. B. Dunham on behalf of the architects, and W. W. Prichard, Jr. for the contractors. President H. W. Froehlich of the school board will accept the building on behalf of the public and an opportunity for inspection will be given at the close of the program.

Perry Johnson Becomes Extension Staff Member

Perry Johnson left Monday evening for Grand Rapids, this state, where he will join Prof. A. D. Wilson as a member of the university extension staff. Mr. Johnson is a dairy expert with considerable experience, having paid particular attention to the breeding of Guernsey cattle. He is a practical man with actual farm training and will prove a valuable addition to the staff of Prof. Wilson.

Mr. Johnson is the official referee for the basketball games payed in this city and has gained a reputation for both fairness and fearlessness along this line. His place on the floor will probably be taken by his brother, Guy, who is just as well qualified.

FINAL CALL TO I. C. RICHARDSON, STATE PIONEER

Former Postmaster and Judge of Probate Died in This City Saturday Afternoon.

Resident of Minnesota 56 Years, 30 of Which Were Spent in Thief River Falls.

Remains Are Taken to Former Home in Olmstead County For Burial Monday.

Ira Cutler Richardson, for 30 years a resident of Thief River Falls, died at his home on Saturday afternoon at the age of 66 years, the immediate cause of his death being a blood clot on the brain. About three weeks ago Judge Richardson suffered a stroke of partial paralysis, this being the second in a period of two years. The first left him in a greatly enfeebled condition and practically compelled his retirement from public life after having been an active participant in the affairs of the Northwest for over 36 years.

After a short funeral sermon at the family residence, 502 LaBree avenue north, conducted by Rev. J. B. Smith of the Methodist church, on Monday afternoon, the remains were taken to the former home of the family near Elgin, Minn., for burial, accompanied by Mrs. Richardson and two sons. Members of the local bar association officiated at pall bearers.

Native of New Hampshire

Judge Richardson was a pioneer resident of Minnesota, having resided in the state for 57 years. Born at Lebanon, N. H., Sept. 21, 1855, he moved West with his parents ten years later, the family settling at Viola, Olmstead county. He attended the public school in his home town and at Elgin, later graduating from the high school at Rochester. Deciding to embrace the law as a profession, Mr. Richardson entered Iowa college at Iowa City, where he was a classmate and roommate of Senator F. B. Kellogg, the friendship there formed continuing unbroken throughout the years that have followed.

Postmaster Ten Years.

On March 25, 1885, Mr. Richardson was united in marriage to Miss Orra M. Evans of Elgin, soon thereafter moving with his wife to northern Minnesota. They first settled in Argyle, where deceased engaged in the practice of his profession and served two terms as county attorney of Marshall county. In 1893 the family moved to Thief River Falls, this city continuing their home since that time. Mr. Richardson was appointed postmaster by President McKinley in 1897 and held the office for 10 years. He served as judge of probate for Red Lake county before the formation of Pennington, and was elected to the same position in the latter county in 1918, declining to become a candidate for re-election at the end of his term.

Mr. Rihardson was a member of the first school board in Thief River Falls and also of the fire department, being an honorary member of the latter organization at the time of his death. He was active in the work of the Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors lodges and up to the time his health failed was prominent in all undertakings entered upon for the advancement of his home city and section.

Besides the widow two sons survive: Wayne Evans Richardson, secretary of the commercial club at Yakima, Wash., and Glenn Ira Richardson, station agent for the Great Northern railway at Bronson, Minn.

Hauge's Property Bought By Christian Scientists

A deal whereby the Christian Science society of Thief River Falls becomes owner of the former Hauge's church property on the corner of LaBree avenue and First street was closed this week. This church building has not been used since the consolidation of the three Lutheran bodies about three years ago, when it came into the ownership of the Trinity congregation.

The property is in a fine state of repair and will require practically no outlay on the part of the new owners. The latter have been holding services in the basement of the public library and in the auditorium for some years but the society has now grown to a point that makes permanent quarters a necessity. The building secured will meet all requirements and furnish ample library and reading room quarters besides.

Poultry Association to Elect Officers Monday

The annual meeting of the Pennington County Poultry association will be held in the farm bureau office at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 16. Officers and directors for the coming year will be elected and the financial statement of the organization will be read. The county association has made wonderful progress the past year and plans for establishing a co-operative marketing system for the poultrymen of Pennington county and adjacent territory will be discussed at the meeting. Every poultry fancier in the county is invited to be present.

Visit the creamery when the farmers come in. Better yet, find out when the farmers draw their "pay checks" and be "on the job" at that time. Visit the grain elevators and the corner stores. Ask your postmaster or rural route carrier to advertise your campaign by mentioning it to persons they meet. If you will let people know that you are in dead earnest you will be surprised at the help you will receive from unexpected places.

LOOKING FORWARD

Mayor Bratrud, in his bi-ennial message to the city council, does not waste much time in reviewing the past, contenting himself with the statement that approval of the record is indicated by the fact that the people returned every member of administration at the last election by decisive majorities. He well says that it is toward the future we now must look and it is by future needs that the council's course from now on must be guided.

The past record of the mayor and council is very good. That is all needs be said concerning it. That it will be just as satisfactory during the next two years there is every reason for hoping. No change has been made in the elective or appointive offices as yet, and it is probable that none will be made. Councilman H. A Brumund remains president and it is not likely he will find any changes in committee designations necessary. He has made good as presiding officer and that he has worked in harmony with his colleagues is proven by the fact that his re-election was unanimous.

The mayor makes a number of recommendations in his message and these will no doubt receive attention at the proper time. Perhaps the most important is that concerning the electric light situation. He does not urge immediate action in making any change, but suggests that the council always bear in mind the fact that the city's contract with the dam owners is near terminating and that the change to an alternating current must be made in the interest of economy and efficiency within a short time. His plea for cutting down expenses at every possible point will be enthusiastically seconded by the taxpayers. Other recommendations are along sound, constructive lines, and in most cases in direct accord with the council's aims.

With competent, experienced and well-intentioned men at the head of affairs, Thief River Falls will keep on moving forward, while at the same time the people will feel that their interests are being safeguarded at every point.

IT BRINGS THE CASH.

Never has the value of the dairy cow been so absolutely demonstrated as at the present time. While the grain farmer in all parts of the country is facing the most serious situation in his history, the man with the dairy herd finds himself in comparatively easy circumstances. In fact he is the only person who has not had the price of his product cut to a point where he operates at an actual loss.

The experience of one Pennington county man may be taken as fairly indicating the position of the dairy farmer at this time. Hans Anton, residing south of Thief River Falls, has pinned his faith to Holstein cattle, milking an average of 18 throughout the year. The smallest check received by him for one month's output from his herd was for $265, and the largest for $455. This is an average of $360 per month and a total of $4,320 for the year. In other words, Mr. Anton's cows each provided him with a gross return of $20 every month.

This dairyman's record is nothing unusual. It is probable that in certain sections of the country it might be considered very ordinary, in fact. It does not greatly exceed that of certain other farmers in this neighborhood, but it must be remembered that all those whose returns come anywhere near equaling those of Mr. Anton are dairymen. They are also, like him, advocates of the thoroughbred. They have quit throwing good feed into cows that do not pay and are conducting their farms on a business basis. With them the non-paying cow is forced to give way to one that produces profit.

The milch cow is the mortgage lifter of the Minnesota farm. She is the one dependable revenue producer when everything else fails. All she asks is sensable treatment and month after month she will be found adding to her own reputation and the bank balance of the party who does the milking. It has taken a long time for this fact to become established, but the number of converts is growing steadily and it will not be long until the farmer who attempts to make a success of his business without the milch cow as the mainstay will be regarded as a failure from the outset.

THE WEST IN THE SADDLE.

Senator Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota, has been named as the successor of the late Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania as chairman of the finance committee of the United States senate, the most important position in that important body.

McCumber is from the farming West while his predecessor was from the manufacturing East. This fact may have a tremendous influence upon legislation in the immediate future, particularly where the law making affects agricultural interests. While the new chairman is a strict doctrinarian from the Republican standpoint, his early environment and later experience has been such as to give him a clearer understanding of the importance of the farmer and the needs of agriculture than could possibly be the case with a man whose connections and interests are all in the East. That he has opinions of his own and is not afraid to express them was indicated by the stand he took against the majority of his party on the League of Nations question. Penrose was a very able man but the interests responsible for his election were not those to which the farmer could look with any hope of having his position understood. To this extent at least the change will be an improvement.

NO TIME TO QUIT.

Thief River Falls and Pennington county cannot permit the report to go broadcast that the people there residing refused to even make an attempt to raise a little something for the starving Russians. While the committee's action in asking to be excused from making a drive at this time was undoubtedly taken after careful consideration, yet it seems as if our people do not wish to be let off, and stand ready to meet this call to the extent of their ability just as they have met all that have preceded it.

We have gone down in our jeans to help the Chinese, the Serbians, the Turks—in fact no one has as yet made an appeal that has failed to get a hearing. There may be those who are of the opinion that the Russians are themselves largely to blame for the disasters that have overtaken them, but it is doubtful if any of us are in a position to form an impartial judgment on the subject. Anyhow, it will have to be admitted that a Bolshevik baby can get just as hungry as a Chinese baby or any other kind of a baby. The only thing to be taken into consideration at all is the fact that people—millions of them—are starving and that we are in a position to extend a helping hand. That hand may not be as well filled as on some occasions in the past, but it should be as willingly extended. It is admitted that the need is great and it is not up to us to work ourselves into a fever trying to discover the cause. We might better put in the same amount of energy trying to get help across to these people with the least possible delay.

The matter is being taken hold of by willing hands and the result will be satisfactory. It is only a question of setting the facts properly before our people. They have never failed yet and will not do so now.

Another lot of highway builders have Thief River Falls for their objective. A road to be known as the "Steel to Wheat" thoroughfare is being discussed by the business men of Cook and other points in St. Louis, Koochiching and Beltrami counties, and there is quite a lot of enthusiasm evinced over the project. The road would have Cook as its eastern and Thief River Falls as its western terminus. Good idea. We are now provided with excellent highways to the west, north and south. Should this proposed line from directly east become a reality the city will be the recognized hub of the greatest highway system within any one state in the Union.

With three such high grade candidates for congress as Steenerson, Selvig and Sagong, the Republicans of the Ninth district might be induced to loan one to the Democrats, who seem to be just a little shy of material for this post.

OBSERVATIONS

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

When it comes to chasing hard times away, Minnesota has the champion chaser of the eastern and western hemispheres. She's the dairy cow.

As a teetotal hell raiser in a small town there is only one thing that surpasses moonshine. Malicious gossip is the champion of them all.

It was a sort of hip-ocritical New Year's in the big cities, according to the police court records.

One safe political prediction is that when the election is over, Lieut. Governor Louis Collins will be Lieut. Gov. Collins. He has made good.

Between home brew and tax notices many Baudetters never know where their next headache is coming from.

Prices are finally dropping. Moonshiners in this section are now selling Angel Maker as low as $12 a gallon.

We are starting a chess club in Baudette, and if you haven't any more sense than to play chess you are invited to join.

About 1923 Region subscribers owe for their 1922 subscriptions. And we could use the money nicely.

"Big hands," says a coach, "are a great asset in basketball." And they are not to be sneezed at in a poker game either.

New Year's brought out the usual flock of lads who died drinking to each other's good health with wood alcohol.

If you like fiction do not fail to read the personal property tax list in next week's issue of the Region.

He Knew How.

There was an old geezer,
And he had a lot of sense.
He started up a business
On a dollar eighty cents.
The dollar for stock,
And the eighty for an ad.
Brought him three lovely dollars
In a day, by dad!
Well, he bought more goods
And a little more space,
And he played that system
With a smile on his face.

The customers flocked
To his two-by-four
And soon he had to hustle
For a regular store.
Up on the square,
Where the people pass
He gobbled up a corner
That was all plate glass.
He fixed up the windows
With the best that he had
And he told them all about it
In a half-page ad.

He soon had 'em coming
And he never, never quit,
And he wouldn't cut down
One his ads one jit.
And he's kept things humping
In the town ever since,
And everybody calls him
The Merchant Prince.
Some say it's luck,
But that's all bunk—
Why, he was doing business
When the times were punk.
People have to purchase,
And the geezer was wise—
For he knew the way to get 'em
Was to advertise.

BAUDETTE GENIUS HAS PONZI'S PLAN SKINNED

(Letter from Shorty O'Neil to Baudette Region.)

Dear Sir:

I have a proposition to present to you, and wish to ask your earnest and careful consideration of the same as I think there is an opportunity here which comes only once in a man's lifetime. I wish you would write me by return mail the amount of stock you will take.

The object of the company is to operate a large cat ranch in or near Baudette, where the land can be purchased cheap for this purpose.

To start with we will collect, say one million cats. Each cat will average twelve kittens per year. The skin will run from 10c for white ones to 75c for pure black. This will give us twelve million skins a year at an average of 30c each, making our revenue about $10,000 per day gross.

A man can skin fifty cats a day after a little practice and such a man can be hired for two dollars a day. It will take 100 men to operate the ranch and, therefore, the net profit of the ranch will be $9,800 per day. Does not this look good to you?

Now, as to feeding this large number of cats, will say that I have given the problem much careful study and have found a solution of the problem. Here it is: We will start a rat ranch near by. The rats will multiply four times as fast as the cats. If we start with one million rats we will have four rats a day for each cat. Now, then, we will feed the cats on the carcasses of the cats from which the skins have been taken, giving each rat one-fourth of a cat. It will thus be seen that the business will be self-supporting and entirely automatic all the way through. The cats will eat the rats and the rats will eat the cats and we will get the skins and the long green that we are looking for.

Awaiting your prompt reply and trusting that you will appreciate my proposition and the opportunity I offer you to acquire quick wealth, I beg to remain, Yours for indendence and wealth.

POSITION OF LEAGUE IN COMING CAMPAIGN

From the Hallock Peoples Press. (Non-Partisan.)

What will be the position of the Non-Partisan League in the next campaign is a question that is arousing great interest to persons both inside and outside the League.

One group of men and women inside the League, and we understand that the president, Mr. A. C. Townley will be the spokesman of this group, want to bring the Non-Partisan League back to Townley's original plan and make it a strictly non-partisan political organization. That means that the League should do, as was originally intended by Mr. Townley, endorse the best candidates that file for office, regardless of what party ticket they file on. It also means that the Non-Partisan League as an organization should not put up candidates of their own. The League then would not ask any person to file for office.

After the filings are in, if the Townley plan prevails, all candidates for office would be sent a questionnaire. They would be asked how they stand on the various planks of the Non-Partisan platform. Those whose previous record was the most favorable and whose principles conformed most closely with the principles of the League, would then get the Non-Partisan League endorsement for office. The Non-Partisan League was never intended to be a political party, but an independent endorsing organization. This plan would not give the politicians on the "inside" of the League the chance to ride through campaigns at the expense of the League. Of course the League would naturally spend some money to help elect those who would be of the most benefit to the League platform. It would make the League an organization working primarily for the farmer and labor program and not so much for candidates except insofar as men in office are necessary to get the program in operation.

Another group within the League will want to continue putting up a full state ticket as a distinctly League ticket. They will claim you cannot trust the promise of politicians and that we can only trust our own men.

A third ground will want the League to separate entirely from the old parties and help other progressive organizations to form a stronger political party. Their argument is that unless you have a strongly organized political party, you have nothing, and that the present Non-Partisan organization is too loose, lacks discipline, is uncertain and changeable. The third party men think now is an opportune time to start a new party and after it gets well under way it will be harder to break than the present organization that has no certain party home.

The result will probably be a compromise. At the present time the original plan of Mr. Townley seems to be the most practical one. There are numerous instances where politicians have sought the support of the League, and used it as a stepping stone to their own success, and when elected they turned their back deliberately on the League and refused to help carry out the very principles for which they were elected. Langer, of North Dakota, is one example, and there are others. We will not mention any names, but people can supply the names from their own knowledge. Let anyone file who cares to. The League should not ask anyone to file. And then such candidates who say, "I really think my office should be kept out of politics" can run on their own popularity and not have to be hampered by the support of a powerful political party.

All matters pertaining to the coming campaign will be settled by the farmers themselves in convention. The Non-Partisan League is an organization of the people, and the people who make up the organization will decide the course of the organization.

The Mayor's Message

Bi-Ennial Address of Mayor Bratrud to City Council.

To the Honorable Members of the City Council:

This body of men has again been honored by their fellow citizens by being elected for the handling of the affairs of the city for another two years. While this may be regarded in the light of an endorsement of our actions in the past, the fact nevertheless remains that it is toward the future we must now look and it is by present and future needs of the city that our course must be guided.

I congratulate you, as councilmen, upon the record you have made and beg leave to submit a few suggestions which I hope you will find of sufficient importance to merit your consideration during the coming term.

It is probably unnecessary for me to dwell upon the necessity for strict economy in the administration of the city's affairs. While conditions in Thief River Falls, as compared with other places in the country, are very good, yet the situation everywhere is such as demands the very closest scrutiny of public expenditures. The aim should be the holding down of the city's running expenses in every possible way to the end that taxes be made as light as possible.

The first paving contract entered into by the city has been completed and I am of the opinion that no one would now wish the work undone. As concerns the future, I would urge that no further undertaking along this line be entered upon except upon express order of a majority of the taxpayers who will have to foot the bills. If there is a desire for more paving the demand should come from the property owners.

The needs of the city for a supply of pure water is to you well known, and I have at this particular time nothing to present which would add to that knowledge. I believe every step you have taken during the past year has been in the right direction and resulted in a great improvement of the water supply. Doubtless, the subject will have to be approached with a view to its ultimate solution in the near future but I am not in position to recommend that any definite steps be taken at this time. If you find it possible to provide a better supply than we now have without adding too greatly to the tax burden of the citizens I would most heartily recommend such action on your part, but of this matter you are the best judges.

I am strongly of the opinion that a city scales should be installed. It has been proven in a number of towns in this section that such scales are self-supporting and provide great satisfaction to the public. With the office of city weighmaster might be combined a municipal employment office. This has proven a great convenience and a valuable aid in preventing unemployment in other cities of this size.

One of the serious problems facing the city at this time is the future of the electric light system. The change from the direct to an alternating current must be made in the near future, both in the interest of economy and efficiency. The contract with the power dam owners is also nearing termination and plans for the future will have to be considered. The only recommendation on my part possible at this time is that the council attempt to secure an expression of view and preference from the people of the city and be guided largely by such expression.

I strongly urge upon you the necessity of ascertaining the cost of operation of our city water and light department. The accessory and electric utensil department of the city should show a yearly profit and the accounts of this department should be separately shown. I recommend a monthly invoice of electrical supplies and accessories and that a system of bookkeeping be installed to show the monthly profit or loss from this department.

Within a very short time it will be necessary that something in the way of renovation and repair be undertaken on the auditorium interior. Unless something is done towards the upkeep of the building its value will deteriorate very rapidly. More attention should also be given towards keeping the assembly room and the stage clean as there have been many complaints on this score. In my opinion it would also be better if the management of the auditorium be vested in some person with an office in the building. The present plan is unsatisfactory from many viewpoints.

Permit me at this time to particularly express my appreciation for the manner in which the council has cooperated with the park board and the library board at all times. A nucleus for a park system has been secured at a very small outlay and the property already owned by the city greatly improved.

Gentlemen, I wish to thank you for the willingness you have at all times shown to embrace any suggestions for the common good, and for the cheerful co-operation you have at all times extended me. It is my earnest hope that these pleasant relations may continue, as in that way only can we work effectively together for the good of the community. Ours is a position of trust, and to us the people look as the instruments for carrying out their wishes. The closer we get to their viewpoint and the more nearly we are able to conform to their wishes, the better we will be able to serve them and the more creditable will be our records as public servants.

Respectfully,
JOHN BRATRUD, Mayor.

A new way to treat croup
Spasmodic croup relieved or warded off by rubbing on a vaporizing salve.

The old method of treating spasmodic croup with nauseating drugs is out of date. So is the vapor-lamp scheme that required the bedroom windows to be kept closed. Now mother rubs the little one's chest and throat with Vicks, arranges the bedding so that the arising vapors will be inhaled all night long, opens the windows to let in the blessed fresh air, and retires—confident of a good sleep.

Vicks has come to be the almost universal treatment for children's cold troubles, because it does away with dosing.

Vicks contains the old, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, etc.—combined by special process, so that while they penetrate and stimulate the skin, the ingredients are also released as vapors by the body heat and are breathed right into the lungs.

Just rub it on and breathe in the vapors

The Sky Is the Limit

No need for me to try and tell you folks what has been going on down at Oen's Store the past few days—you all know. I guess you will not forget this sale soon. It wasn't a sale—it was a regular riot from start to finish. Get this: I haven't started yet! Just come here Saturday, January 14, and watch the old Bargain Steam Roller iron the wrinkles out of this mammoth stock of goods. Mr. Oen has given me this one day to do as I please. I am going to call it Darnell's Day, and if you are not here we will both lose out.

Here Is the Idea

As a Merchandise Attorney and Estimator of Stocks I have a fairly good idea of the largest day's business ever done in this city. Here is the whole thing in a nut shell: I am going to beat the records! I have the prices and the largest stock in town. All I need is the buyers. Leave it to me! Prices talk! And they are going to talk here so you will hear them and know that this is not "just another one of those sales."

Respectfully,
G. A. DARNELL.

Be here Saturday, January 14, and see the Big Store go into action with the Fastest Low Price Selling that this city has ever witnessed! Get on your trading clothes! Let's all get busy!

THAT DULL ACHING

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and achy backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. Ed. Aga, 803 Horace Ave., N., Thief River Falls, says: "I had a spell of kidney trouble that put me in a bad way. My kidneys were weak and caused me all sorts of misery. I got very little rest and mornings I felt all tired out. During the day, if I stood for any length of time, my limbs would swell and pain me. I had such a dull, bearing-down feeling, too, and a dull, steady ache across the small of my back. My back gave out before my work was half finished. I had to go to bed finally and not until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills was I rid of the trouble. Two boxes of Doan's completely cured me and I have had no return of it."

"1922"

With this issue the Progress begins a new year, 1922. Did it ever occur to you what relationship there is between the name of our paper and the new year? It is simply this: our paper in 1922 must show progress over what it was in 1921. How about it, students of Lincoln high? Are you going to make the Progress really progress? Just sit down and think for five minutes over what the Progress really means to you, how often you have decided that the school paper is an important part of your school life. Make a New Year's resolution to make the Progress one of your foremost interests for the remainder of the year, and live up to it!—O. H. '23.

The Spirit of the New Year.

How much more alluring is a new path than one you have traveled many times! How much more attractive is a new building, or something you have not seen before! How you long for something you have not! You are not happy unless you have some desire that might be realized, something to look forward to. Thus it is with a new year. We look at a calendar and see we have 365 days of the new year ahead of us. What is to happen in these days? Is it going to bring us happiness or sorrow?

Think seriously of these things and forget the old year with its many prejudices and regrets. The new year is here with all its opportunities. Grasp the opportunity while you have a chance. Start right now and work to make your 1922 successful, for it is in your own hands only that the power lies.

To those who do this I should like to wish that "Fate, who spins your thread of life, use golden fleece the coming year." But idle wishing can do nothing unless there is the man or woman who has a purpose and is determined to carry it through.—Pearl Weeks '23.

Norse Story Receives Praise.

Superintendent C. G. Selvig of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, is a reader of The Times. That he reads it all is evidenced by the fact that he has found something in the High School Progress department which meets with his approval. A short story in the Norwegian language appearing there last week entitled "Julekiokkerne," has brought forth the following words of commendation from Mr. Selvig:

"Dear Editor: If I should write to you to say that I enjoyed thoroughly the story, 'Juleklokkerne,' (Christmas Bells) by Olive Aaland, '25, that I just read on the High School Progress page of The Times, I hope it will not be thought that I merely wish to flatter the writer.

"The story is beautiful. The language is exquisite. I believe unreservedly in our young people acquiring the use of good English, but shall we not also encourage them to see the beauty and feel the strength and grandeur of the language of the Norsemen?

"That simple little story moved me to write this to you, even at the risk of being late for lunch."

The above is a reprint from The Times in its issue of Dec. 29. We are taking the privilege of reproducing it in the Progress. It is a compliment to know that even so busy a man as Superintendent Selvig finds time to read our sheet. Thank you, Mr. Selvig.

My Pet Dog.

It was on a warm day in August that Snookums, my little pet, came to me. He was a very little dog, with long white, curly hair. His eyes, which were brown, had a mischievous twinkle in them. Snookums had formerly belonged to a family living in town, who, thinking he had eaten eggs, shot at him. After this Snookums escaped and in this way I claimed him.

He was very dirty when he first came, so that the first thing he had to do after having eaten his bread and milk, was to get into the tub and take a bath. This he had to do quite often and he began to like it, although at first he did not seem to think that it was a very safe place to go. Snookums' menu for breakfast was milk and potatoes; for dinner, meat, milk and other things. Then for supper he had his favorite dish, which was bread and milk. After supper he stood by a chair uttering a queer noise. Then I would have to fix a nice warm bed for him and wrap a coat around him. He would go to sleep feeling very comfortable.

Snookums was very fond of sweets, which I think was my brother's fault as he used to melt sugar lumps in water and feed him. Once when I had made fudge, I set it out on the porch to cool. Having forgot to close the door on the porch, Snookums came in and very generously helped himself. He also seemed very well pleased over what he had done.

Whenever mother brought meat into the house, Snookums would bite her in the heels of her shoes until she gave him some. He always had great sport with the kittens, drinking their milk and chasing them all around. He also thought that the kittens had no right to be in the house. When they came in, he would start growling and chase them out because he was afraid that I would pet them. He was very jealous.

Poor Snookums! He was taken sick last winter and died shortly after he had spent Christmas with us. I mourned very much for him and I don't think I shall ever have such a happy pet again.—M. B. '24.

A Freshie's Case.

I know a girl an' she knows me,
A "Softer-more" she seems to be,
She allus got a "Seizer" book
To witch she gives a terble liik.

I seen her in the hall one day,
She had the nisest dress, 'twas grey;
She lookt so very nice an' sweet,
Her shoes were shined up, oh, so neto.

Mebbe she won't get stuck on me,
'N all the fellers will jelous be.
I sed, Gee whinikers, I know,
I ware my Sunday soot, by Joe!

My mammie pressed my soot that nite,
I shone my shoes with all my might;
I've got her now, the little dawl,
When Friday came I just could bawl.

Now since I found my dream girl
I am just filled with vim,
I'll ask her to change that "Seize-her"
To this, meaning me, "Seize-him."

Mahnomen Losers.

In a rather slow, ragged game, played at Mahnomen Dec. 23, the local high school boys defeated the high school team of that village by the score of 28-4. During a large part of the game both teams played very poorly and although the result of the game was never in doubt, it was not until the last few minutes of play that our boys began to pile up the score. It is to their credit that their opponents were unable to score except on free throws, no field goals being secured by the Mahnomen boys.

In all justice to the Mahnomen boys, it must be said, in spite of the one-sided score, that they put up a good fight against odds. This is the first year they have had basketball in their school and until the present season some of their players had never even seen a game. They put up a clean, game, sportsmanlike fight and deserve a great deal of credit for the showing they made.

Little individual merit was shown on either side with the possible exception of Forrest Ralston, who excelled in shooting baskets.

Our boys left on the early train in the morning and returned the following morning. The early ride and long hours of waiting around before the game no doubt explains in part the comparatively poor showing of our boys against a green team. Nevertheless, they brought home another victory which will add one point to their credit in the final summing up of the season.

My Pet Crows.

My uncle gave me a pair of pet crows for my sixth birthday. The crows, being about five months old, were nearly half grown. Their names were Jimn and Pete. Jim was the quicker and smarter of the two.

They had their tongues clipped, so that they could be taught to talk and I soon taught them to say our names, and other words, like pretty, chair, girl, and boy. By the time they were a year and a half old, I had taught both of them to say simple sentences. Pete was also good at mimicing. He could imitate a chicken or a turkey so that it would be difficult to distinguish the difference. Jim liked things that shined, or anything that had bright colors. Once he took my mother's thimble and hid it. We afterwards found it in our yard covered up by some leaves. Another time he took a fork that was lying on the table, which we afterwards found beneath our granary.

I kept my crows for five years, when Pete suddenly disappeared. We could not get any trace of him anywhere. Jim died about a year later from old age.—Pearl Conklin '24.

A Correction.

In a letter received from Miss Julia Baumann, principal of the Roseau high school, she takes issue with the statement in the account of the debate with their team in the last issue of the Progress that she was surprised at the decision. Miss Baumann explains that for many reasons, which need not be recounted here, she had not dared hope for her school to win. This, however, was her feeling before the debate and not after. After hearing the debate, she explains, there was no question in her mind as to the relative merit of the arguments presented by the two sides. In her opinion, Roseau got up a far better debate than did our team.

We are sorry if we misconstrued her position and we are glad to make this correction.

Kindergarten Program.

The little ones enrolled in the kindergarten department in the Knox and Central schools entertained their parents on the last Wednesday afternoon before the close for the holidays at 2:30 with a most delightful program. Their room was prettily decorated for the occasion with festoons in Christmas colors, a fireplace, two well-trimmed trees, and drawings which the pupils had made. More noticeable even than the appropriate beauty of the room was the infectious spirit and joy of Christmas which prevailed among the pupils. Edmund Keene, taking the part of Santa Claus, distributed the presents. In giving the presents he asked each child, "Have you been good? Have you helped your mother?" etc., which added more Christmas spirit to the party. About 35 parents listened to the following program:

Songs: "Merry Christmas to You." "Once Unto the Shepherds." "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star." "Peace. Hang Up the Baby's Stocking." "Funny Old Man Made of Snow."

"Away in a Manger," by Lenore Dale.

When John Became a Man.

(By Henry Waale.)

It was at the very first break of day. An old alarm clock placed on a piece of timber up in Jim Watson's haybarn rattled away with exceptional force and persistence. Apparently it was trying to make up for time lost the previous day, which was Sunday, or else it was making a special effort at the beginning of a new week. Anyway the threshermen all hated this sudden and rude awakening. They were sleeping in the hay, lying about in all sorts of odd positions. Some of them were veterans in the threshing line. For many years they had shouldered their pitchforks at the first call of the steam whistle. These were already rubbing the sleep out of their eyes. Then there were members of a younger generation who thought that the sleep they could snatch between the bell and breakfast was the most precious in the world, and in pursuance of their custom and nature they merely rolled over and fell asleep again.

Among the last mentioned was John Ferguson, a bright fellow of about twenty. He was the son of the separator man who, as everyone knows, is the boss and brains of every threshing outfit. These two were sleeping under the same blanket, the oldest closest to the board where the old rattle-trap was placed. It was commonly called the gatling-gun by the threshers. Fact is, they had such profound dislike and disrespect for the thing that Mr. Ferguson must needs have parted with it a long time ago but for two things: he kept it only for his own good as he wanted to get up early mornings, and he was so very prompt to stop it at the very first alarm. But on this particular morning it didn't stop—just kept right on. John thought it very strange. It might have been, he reasoned, his father had awaked very early, had gone to look his separator over and forgotten the clock. But Mr. Ferguson was a sound sleeper, and such a thing had not happened before. While John was semi-consciously evolving these matters in his mind, he was aroused to action by the sleepy voice of Pat, whose Irish humor never failed him, as he drawled out, addressing the clock: "Ah, cut out that durn stuff, will you!"

It did, or rather John did. Then sitting up on his bed he reached for his shoes, the only article of clothing the thresherman doesn't wear for 24 hours at a time, excepting his hat or cap and possibly gloves, depending on the temperature in the sleeping quarters. His shoes on, he climbed down the ladder and out into the wealth of [illegible] morning. As he neared [illegible] Mr. Watson, the owner, [illegible] man never used more [illegible] absolutely necessary [illegible] anyone. He began:

"Your father came in early this morning; he had a pain in the side; we called the doctor; he'll be here in a minute."

A Plea For the Starving People of Russia.

To the Editor of The Times:

In view of the persistent appeals for relief of the starving people of the Volga region of Russia, please allow me a little space to state my views of the situation, several features of which may not be understood by some of your readers.

In determining whether the Russian people have a claim on Christian charity, it is necessary to rid ourselves of a few notions concerning their country. How many of our people, for instance, know that the Moscow district, the center of European Russia, is in the same latitude as Hudson Bay, or the city of Petrograd on a line with Sitka, Alaska, or their southern seaport, Odessa, as far north as Duluth? Making due allowance for European climates, it stands to reason that the struggle for existence in that country, under favorable conditions, would be far more intense than in other countries of that continent more exposed than Russia to the influence of the sea.

As to their actual conditions of life in normal times prior to the year 1900, lest some of our people harbor the delusion that the Russians have been living in reasonable comfort, which the large exports of grain from that country seemed to indicate, and that through their revolutionary zeal they have brought disaster upon themselves and therefore have only themselves to blame and should be left to starve, let me quote a few words from the greatest authority in the English language, the Encyclopaedia Britannica (Americanized edition.) Under the heading "Russia," where reference is made to the steady increase of export of corn from that country, I find the following: "This increase does not prove, however, an excess of corn, for even when one-third of Russia was famine-stricken, during the last years of scarcity, the export trade did not decline; even Samara exported during the last famine there, the peasants being compelled to sell their corn in autumn to pay their taxes. Scarcity is quite usual, the food supply of some ten provinces being exhausted every year by the end of spring. Orach, and even bark, are then mixed with flour for making bread." Notice that it says every year, which shows that starvation has been the normal condition of a large section of that people.

Whether or not their condition has improved after seven years of war, revolution, civil strife, blockades, anarchy, etc., I will leave to the imagination of the reader. How would the reader like to bring up a family of twelve children and give them a college education in such a country?

Now, as under such unfavorable conditions the people of that nation formed the unpleasant habit of marching under red flags, listening to radical orators, and otherwise behaving in a manner unbecoming good Christians, it seems that their rulers often found it necessary to bring them to their senses. As to the methods employed to infuse the proper amount of patriotism into them, I will quote, not a newspaper report, but the head of the Russian government at the time, the late Count Sergius Witte, premier under Czar Nicholas II, who was generally recognized as the ablest statesman of the old regime, and whom Americans will remember as the man who negotiated for Russia the treaty of Portsmouth, which terminated the Russo-Japanese war. In his memoirs, among other things, Witte relates this incident:

"During my premiership (1906) I received a despatch from Governor-General Sologub, describing the measures taken to suppress the uprising in the Reval district and requesting me to exert a moderating influence upon Captain Richter of the punitive expedition, who was executing people indiscriminately without the least semblance of legality. I submitted the despatch to His Majesty, who returned it to me with the following words jotted down opposite the lines describing the captain's bloody deeds: 'Fine! A capital fellow!'" (World's Work Magazine, November, 1920.)

How does that strike our American Legion boys as an incentive to loyalty? There can be no doubt that just such methods of government were largely responsible for present conditions in Russia. At least that is the way our histories account for the horrors of the French revolution. Witte also states that a reign of terror was foreseen, quoting a prominent statesman to this effect, referring to the loyalist mobs: "Today they massacre the revolutionary intellectuals, tomorrow they may loot the Czar's palaces."

I have quoted the above to show the connection between the revolution and the famine, for without the revolution there would today perhaps be no famine in Russia. There would have been no invasions, and any grain shortage would have been made up from accumulated stores or by purchases abroad by a recognized government using the national credit. As it happened, the frequent heavy requisitions by friend and foe forced the peasants in many cases to consume even their seed grain, with the result that the acreage last year was less than half of normal and a total failure on almost half of that caused the present condition. The Soviets not being internationally recognized, the Russian people have been for a long time without national credit. That is the worst feature of the situation, and until the condition is remedied by international arrangement, those people are forced to appeal to the generosity of other nations.

I have written enough to convince any fair-minded person that a situation exists which calls for a large measure of Christian charity, and when our good people consider the other large portion of the Russian race who have been swept from their own country by the storm and are dependent on neighboring peoples, they will thank God that they live in a country which has been able to give $20,000,000 for famine relief, and will have little regret if Congress sees fit to double the amount.

J. E. HAVEL.

Thief River Falls.

Says Fixed Price is Only Remedy.

Editor Times:

There has been a great hue and cry during the last year, and particularly during the last few months, for cheap money and improved credit facilities. This is quite natural under the conditions we are having, especially in the agricultural industry. The Nonpartisan League and various other farm organizations have all advocated and demanded relief along this line.

A few months ago, in apparent harmony and compliance with this demand for improved credit facilities, Congress passed the law reviving the so-called War Finance corporation, providing for cheap money to help out the agricultural industry. According to the law as it was represented in the newspapers at the time of passage, the government was to furnish money to the banks at about five per cent, and the banks were to be allowed to lend this money out again at a profit of about two per cent. In other words, according to the way this law was represented at that time the banks were to take this money and lend it out again at about seven and a half per cent. So far it seems that it is still hard for the farmers to get any sort of a loan, and they certainly don't seem to be getting any cheap loans where they do manage to get any loans at all. I am told that the large city banks are getting this cheap money, while some of the little country banks find it almost impossible to get any of it. At any rate it is now clear that the farmers are not getting any loans at seven and a half percent as was promised. I understand that at least some of the banks are taking their old loans and sending them in and getting government money on them, and that they are then taking the money which they secure in this way and lending it out at the prevailing high rates of interest. This whole thing needs some explanation from someone who knows the inside facts. As it is now, it certainly seems that the farmers are left holding the sack. Let us have an explanation from the Republican administration, and let them get right down to the point and tell us why these War Finance loans are not being made to the farmers at seven and a half per cent as was promised.

Was the purpose of the law to help out the farmers, or was it to help out the banks? As it stands now it seems someone is getting cheap government money and lending it out again at a nice fat profit. Let us have an explanation of this matter, and have the cards all placed on the table so that we may know all the facts. It is up to Senator Kellogg and other Republican officials who sponsored this law to explain.

However, the chief point that I wish to make is that all these proposed cheap loans and improved credit facilities will not help out the farmers in the long run. You can never get out of a hole by borrowing money, no matter what the rate of interest. It may give you a better chance by giving you an opportunity to straighten out later on at a more favorable moment than we have right now, but what the farmer needs is a just and fair price for his farm products so that he can pay up his loans. If the farmer gets a just and fair price for his grain, live stock and other farm products he will as a rule not need to borrow very much money at any rate of interest. Cheap loans and improved credit facilities are all good and well so far as they go, but let us remember that the farmer needs something else besides loans and credit.

Unless the time comes, and soon, that the farmer can get a just and fair price for his grain, live stock and other farm products a lot of the loans that have been made will never be paid. The time has now come when there will have to be a change, and the farmer will have to have a price at least equal to the cost of production if he is going to be able to continue and meet his obligations. The prosperity of the farmer depends not only upon how much he raises or produces on his farm, but equally as much on how much he gets for what he has produced when he sells. Don't let the farmers of the country fool themselves into thinking that a lot of credit and cheap loans will pull them out of the hole. Until we get a price at least equal to the cost of production, plus a reasonable profit, we shall simply continue to sink deeper and deeper into the hole.

Let us therefore all insist upon and demand a reasonable price on farm products based upon the cost of production. We need a guaranteed price on wheat and other farm products. This can be arranged through a revival of the U. S. grain corporation. If that is done we can get some relief during the coming year. There is no other remedy in sight for a long, long time to come. We may not always like the idea of a government fixed price, but we can see nothing else in sight to offer relief. Think this over and, unless you can see something better, write to your senators and congressmen urging and demanding relief along the lines of a guaranteed price based upon cost of production, plus a reasonable profit.

Favors Drainage Project.

To the Editor:

I read a short time ago a letter written by Mr. Carl Berg, Erskine, about the Red Lake drainage work. I have given this letter much thought and have been wondering why Mr. Berg, who does not live near the Red Lake river and who does not have land that will be assessed for this work, has tried to criticize, without first knowing what he is writing about. With your permission I would like to answer his article from the ground up.

Nearly all I own in this world is located where we are subject to flood damage so I feel that the truth should be told.

I know there has been a cry to have something done about this. Every year the situation will keep getting worse with every ditch opened to the river east of here. If something cannot be done with the river at reasonable cost to successfully give the required relief the sooner we can know whether this work can be done or not the better.

It is hard enough for the persons on the firing line to get reforms or improvements for the common good of the people in this world even if highly intelligent men, like Mr. Berg is thought to be, do not go out of their way to prejudice their fellowmen against things which must of necessity eventually be done.

Mr. C. G. Selvig, head of the agricultural school at Crookston, who is president of this drainage work, has received hundreds of letters from farmers asking him if he could not do something to prevent floods from drowning out crops in the Red Lake and Clearwater river basins. This I know to be a fact. Mr. Selvig also visited parts of the flooded area in 1919 and very many farmers urged him to get something started that would eventually give relief. Accordingly Mr. Selvig called a meeting at Thief River Falls, where I judge 300 or more farmers met and favored this work being started.

It surely would be bordering on insanity to have this worthy work dropped now after so much time, money, energy and intelligence have been put into it, only to have to commence all over again as soon as a good shower of rain comes along. We farmers are generally that way. We want drainage right after the crops are drowned out but as soon as the water has disappeared we go to sleep again as far as drainage is concerned, and dream that we never again will need it. And if anyone is so crazy that he can't go to sleep and insists upon going ahead in a sensible way to get protection (if such can be had at reasonable cost), then the rest of us surely do not want to pay any of the costs as it is feared that we might be taxed off from the great farm of ours, you know.

This is the old story we have heard since the first fellow started to talk about some sort of drainage ditch that ought to be established when there yet was none at all in this more or less swampy and flat country. But see what has been done through the drainage we now have, which, of course, is only partly done until we have proper outlets at the rivers—which is the very thing we now are in hopes of accomplishing. Just think what a howl we would all send out if the ditch banks that now make a good road (and is the reason why we have country roads at all) were to be put back in the ditch, even if we were thereby relieved from paying any of the costs of the ditch, of which the road alone is worth the total cost in most cases. So after all, it simmers down to this: If we are going to live like white people it behooves us to stick together in an unselfish spirit in this most important work.

As a general proposition, I will say this: That farming in general now does not pay, so we cannot now pay taxes, interest and expenses. But this fact has nothing at all to do with this drainage proposition. If we cannot sufficiently soon make farming pay we are done for or will have to lose the farms anyway. But in the event that we shall succeed in making farming pay, which we are in hopes can be done one way or another, then in such an event we would be in a better position still if our farms were protected. We would then be as near ready as possible, or in other words, we would then have the proper drainage so crops cannot be wiped away by floods.

We know this, that good prices do not help if lack of drainage kills the crop. Anyway, it behooves us farmers to do every sensible thing we can to make farming pay, which requires that we drain our farms, which will be for the good not only of the farmer himself but for mankind in general. To that end let us fight, because it is a very worthy thing to fight for, and I for one fully appreciate any and all help from men and women all along the line, regardless of what their occupation in life may be.

In conclusion I wish to state right here that I do believe in giving credit where credit belongs. I wish to pay my highest tribute to all members on this, the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy commission, for being honest, efficient and careful men, right on their job.

LOWDEN TO APPEAR WITH THIEF RIVER IN FRACAS TONIGHT

Injuries to Holzknecht and Kiland Made Securing of Another Player Necessary.

Three basketball casualties are to be recorded for the past week—all sufficiently serious for the teams affected. In the second game between Thief River Falls and Excelsior, Hutton, right guard on the latter team, crashed into one of his own teammates with the result that his nose was broken. He was rushed to a doctor's office and the damage repaired so far as possible but it is is more than likely that he will be out of the lineup during the remainder of the season. This is the most serious accident that has befallen a player on the floor in this city in the past two years and is very much regretted.

Alvin Holzknecht, the speed demon playing forward on the Thief River Falls team, will have to do his work on the sidelines for awhile. In a practice game on Monday night he somehow gave one of his ankles a wrench that puts him out of the game as effectively as if he had broken his neck. He is able to navigate on the peg without a great deal of trouble but the doctor in charge says that there must be no more basketball until the ligaments heal.

With Holzknecht out of the game a bad hole was punched in the machine, particularly at a time when the best available men are needed in the games with Two Harbors. Manager Connell immediately got into touch with Lowden, the Excelsiors' great performer at center, who will be here for the Two Harbors games and may finish this season in a Thief River uniform. This will change the lineup somewhat, the probabilities being that Plummer will be sent to guard in Holzknecht's place and Penney or Hadrath placed in the forward position vacated by Plummer.

An injury in the first Excelsior game, seemingly slight at the time, makes it inadvisable to depend much on Kiland for awhile. He gave his shoulder a nasty twist and, while he is willing to take a chance, it is not likely he will be permitted to do so.

EXCELSIOR FAILS TO STOP WINNING STREAK OF LOCALS

Two Games Taken From Fast Down-State Aggregation by Connell's Terrors.

Taking two games from the fast Excelsior team on the local floor Friday and Saturday makes Thief River Falls a contender for first position among the basketball quintets of this section if not of the state. Friday night's game went to the locals by a score of 35 to 22 and that on Saturday by 30 to 21. Both were excellent exhibitions of the indoor game but the superiority of the Thief River Falls team in both offense and defense was clearly demonstrated. The same teams with practically the same lineup met here a year ago and the result was the same—Thief River Falls won both contests.

In the first game Plummer was the star so far as garnering goals was concerned, picking off four in the first half and two in the second. Carlson made two field baskets and three free throws. Kiland, who was placed at center to spell Hadrath for a short time in each half, connected up with two, as did Hadrath, Holzknecht and Brown. Penney was sent in to finish for Carlson in the first game.

After Plummer had scored in the first few minutes of play, the Excelsior bunch seemed to get their bearings and ran up six points before the locals could again connect. The Athletics stiffened their defensive, however, and the visitors were held safe while the former continued to pile 'em up. The first half ended with the teams even—13 to 13. The second session, however, easily belonged to Thief River Falls. All the boys got into the scoring class and piled up 22 points while their opponents were securing 10.

In the second game Carlson was the bright particular luminary so far as counting up the baskets was concerned, totaling six and two free throws. Three are credited to Plummer, two to Brown and one each to Penney and Hadrath. Seven personal fouls were called during this game—the largest number in any contest thus far this season. The first session proved something of a snap for the locals, the score standing 16 to 5 at its close. In the second the visitors came back, however, and gathered 16 while the Athletics were running up 14. Lowden, the elongated center on the Excelsior team, was perhaps the star performer, there being seven baskets and three free throws placed to his credit during the fracas. Lent, who went in for Maughan when the latter was hurt toward the end of the game, managed to cage two before the closing gun was fired. In this half DeVries of the Excelsiors was charged up with four personal fouls.

Big Sale at Oen's Store Attracts Much Attention

An advertised bargain sale at the Oen Mercantile company's store is an unusual proceeding and when one is announced it is bound to create a good deal of interest. As will be seen by the announcement in another part of The Times today, the big store is offering some very unusual bargains, and while but few items are quoted in the advertisement, the public is assured that the price cut extends to practically every department in the establishment. Particularly will there be exceptional bargains in the clothing and dry goods divisions. A careful perusal of this advertisement will pay and a visit to the store will prove that this is a genuine price reduction sale. The figures quoted will be in force for a limited time only.

Compensation—and a Financier.
(American Legion Weekly.)

In the protracted campaign for the passage of the Adjusted Compensation Bill, there have been many battles which have not attracted the attention their importance warranted because of the smoke and the noise along the whole front. The fact that Hanford MacNider is now National Commander of the American Legion, however, gives new significance to one of those battles whose issues have not received as much attention as they deserve. This is the battle which ex-service men who are themselves well-to-do, or who personally are not in need of compensation, have been conducting to convince certain of their business associates who were not in the service of the inherent justice of the whole compensation cause.

Mr. MacNider has been one of the most conspicuous leaders in this phase of the compensation campaign, and the success of the effort has been recognized, since Chambers of Commerce in all parts of the country have gone on record in favor of compensation and prominent financiers individually have endorsed it. The moral consequences of the possible rejection of a national obligation have become increasingly apparent to men who might be inclined on the ground of their own selfish, pocketbook interests to oppose the compensation proposal, and many men of wealth who formerly opposed compensation have undergone a change of heart and viewpoint. This result has been obtained largely through the efforts of Legionaires, of the kind made by National Commander MacNider in the summer of 1920 after he learned that a business and personal friend, an influential Eastern investment banker, had made a large contribution to an anti-compensation fund. National Commander MacNider, himself the head of an investment banking company in Mason City, Ia., with a capital of $1,000,000, addressed a letter to his Eastern friend. This letter, published first a year and a half ago, is reprinted below because it expresses the viewpoint of the present head of the Legion and a viewpoint which still holds good.

"Mason City, Iowa.

"Dear ———:

"I was very much disturbed to note that the good house of ——— and ——— had been one of the heaviest subscribers to an anti-bonus and lobbying campaign. I hope the information was incorrect because, as a prominent member of your firm and as an ex-service and, I hope, a Legion man, I know that your advice and thought in such matters would naturally be followed.

"I don't want to pull a lot of sob stuff on you nor do I want to accuse you of lack of appreciation of what these lads did and what they went through for those good people who now holler the loudest, and who—even as you and I—are best qualified to stand the burden if it is one of extra taxation. No one has the right to say that these men should not have what they want, to begin with, and certainly no one has the right to take the stand that they should not be at least partially compensated for the months or years they put in the service.

"I know the arguments that are propounded against adjusted compensation—of the danger of our promulgating another gigantic pension drain upon the country—of selling our patriotism—of the uselessness of giving these men this money only to have them squander it—and all the rest. I could not help but be grimly amused to read the pitiful appeal of our President Emeritus to look back at our forefathers and to follow their noble principles—not mine, for mine came over in the steerage not so long ago, but his, and I presume, most of New England's. His own little college taught me that these Revolutionary gentlemen, and brave and and good they were—don't misunderstand me—not only demanded a bonus but demanded it before they would enlist, and a very alarming percentage deserted to re-enlist and catch this gratuity all over again. On top of that they pulled down about an Ohio county as a rewad afterwards, which makes our fourfold compensation scheme look exceedingly mild and very insignificant in comparison.

"But here is the point: No man who did not see these lads of ours in the line—and if I am not mistaken we ended up with nearly two million of them there, or perhaps patrolling the North Sea or doing convoy duty in one of those bouncing iron boxes—has any conception of what wonderful stuff young America is. I could give you a hundred examples of unbelievable heroism — men wounded and shattered sent back from the line to the rear would come staggering up again with food or water or ammunition for their buddies—men would run into the face of terrific machine gun fire to rescue a wounded comrade—a wounded man would give his gas mask to another unable to help himself, and die cheerfully himself choking with gas.

"Perhaps the most vivid instance that typifies it all to me was the night march before the jump-off on the 18th of July, 1918, southwest of Soissons, an operation now accredited I think, with turning the tide. We had some three hundred odd replacements (five weeks old in uniform) join us that night—Lord knows how they found us—and they were slapped under the end of the column. All night they plunged along the side of those roads which were jammed with artillery and transport moving up for the surprise attack—it was rainy, of course, and packs were soaked and heavier than lead—falling into shell holes, tearing themselves on the barb wire, floundering along single file, but every one of them hanging on like grim death to the man in front of him—every man knowing down in his heart that it was over the top in the dark of the morning with the chances not over fifty-fifty that he would ever see the sun shine again or his home town or the trees or the flowers—but hanging on for fear he would get lost and would not be able to do his part. Why? Because they were Americans.

"What has all this got to do with adjusted compensation? Just this, that these bucks, these plain enlisted men, and let me add right here that it was the fine, high, and wonderful spirit of the buck private which won this war for America, not G. H. Q., nor the general staff, nor the officers of the line, though they all did their part, these bucks, the lads you pass now every day on the street, your neighbor's boy, the lad who works for you, and, believe me, every one of them has the makings of the finest heroes the world has ever produced, have everything coming from their country and they at least should have an even chance with the birds who cheered them off and won the war here at home.

"Damn it, ———, if it wasn't simple justice they should have it anyway, but it is only justice. Those who do not need it need not take it. Let them give it to those who do or to their Legion post for relief work. There is no way to pick out which ones should have it. The only way to reach the deserving is to give it to them all. I could tell you of a dozen men I know, and any case would convince you.

"A lad from my old outfit wandered in here the other day, looking rather worse for wear, but cheerful enough at that. He wanted to know what I thought the prospects for a government loan were. He had a chance to buy a cow, and he wanted it. This is his story:

"On the day war was declared he was working as a farm hand just outside of town. He had saved up a couple of hundred dollars, had the prospects of renting a farm for the coming year, and intended to be married. But his country had declared war, and the next day he enlisted in the infantry, unable to see any other course clear. He had a furlough a month or so afterwards and he married the girl he was going to leave behind. This kid went through the whole show, over the top a dozen times and with all the hell bursting around him for months, that these good Americans here at home when the news rolled back from the western front might stick out their chests and say, 'Thank God, we're Americans.'

"Out of his $30 a month this lad sent all he had after his insurance was paid back to his wife, and true enough the Government doubled it, but she couldn't make the grade on that alone and she worked every week that he was gone, with the exception of one, in which their baby was born. He got back in August, last year, too late to take a farm, with his uniform still on and the $60 which proud America so generously gave him. He has had a hard time making a go of it because the profession of farm hand does not pay heavily and no one wants a farm hand with a family.

"Through the kindness of a former employer, he has 40 acres to make his living on this year, but as you know, the produce of the farm does not come in until fall. He wanted to borrow money enough to get this cow, and see if he couldn't at least pay up something on the grocery and other bills which had been accumulating against him while he was eking out his existence on the soil. That $60 did not even pay for a suit of civilian clothes for him, and yet this grateful nation which, as I said, stuck out its chest and hollered while this kid fought for them, is willing to actually combat the chances for this lad to get an even break.

"But in the last analysis, the question is this: Do you owe this man anything, or don't you? If you feel that you do, the heads of the Legion, their accredited representatives, not only should have your good will but your active support, and those of us whose income is going to be dug into hardest should be the happiest to have it so, and you know it.

"HANFORD MacNIDER."

THE SAME EVERYWHERE.

Wells Mirror: Merchants of Wells seem to take a more cheerful attitude in beginning business in 1922, although there is nothing yet in sight to warrant it. Simply, the feeling is that things can not be much worse and that better times are due to start soon. Merchants may not make the profit they did a year ago, but their business is on a more permanent basis already, which is better in the long run. Then there is not the fear that the bottom is going to fall out of the market. That is one of the bad features that is already past history.

WILL THEY HAVE A LABEL?

Wabasha Herald: With the moonshiners of this county advertising a convention to regulate the price of their product, it is not at all unlikely that we will soon hear of a national convention of Safe Breakers or a general call for the reorganization of the United States Mail Robbers' association, and maybe more of these allied orders like the Lawbreakers' Union, or the Killers' Klub. They are sure getting plenty bold enough to try it, and surely they have a strong enough representation.

GUMMER TRIAL BEGAN TUESDAY AT VALLEY CITY

Young Man Stands Accused of Murdering Miss Marie Wick of Grygla.

Case Being Tried Before Judge Cooley of Grand Forks, Following Change of Venue.

Crime For Which Gummer Must Answer One of Most Brutal in Annals of State.

William Gummer, Fargo hotel clerk went on trial at Valley City on Tuesday in Barnes county district court on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Marie Wick of Grygla, who was found beaten to death in a Fargo hotel June 7, 1921.

Eighty-seven witnesses are listed by the state in the information filed against Gummer, but according to William C. Green, Cass county attorney, in charge of the prosecution, many of them, notably guests in the hotel the night of the murder, will not be called as their testimony in minor details would cover identical points.

Photographs taken of the slain girl's body before it was disturbed are expected to be introduced in evidence, showing in detail the manner in which Miss Wick was tied to the bed with stripped bed linen, presumably before being beaten to death with the nozzle of a fire hose following criminal assault.

Change of Venue.

Gummer, who was arrested two weeks after the crime, obtained a change of venue from Cass county on the plea that feeling there was so intense against the crime that it would be impossible to obtain an unprejudiced jury.

Judge Charles M. Cooley of Grand Forks, senior judge of the First judicial district, will try the case.

History of Case.

The slaying of Marie Wick at a hotel in Fargo in June, 1921, for which William Gummer, the hotel clerk, was held, created a sensation in the northwest and officials characterized the crime as one of the most brutal ever committed in that section.

The body of Miss Wick, who was 18 year old, was found in room No. 30 of the Prescott hotel about 7 a. m. June 7, after she had registered at the hotel the previous night. She was on her way to Pettibone, N. D., from her home at Grygla, to spend a vacation with an aunt, and had stopped in Fargo to make train connections.

Gagged with parts of the bed clothing and trussed to the bed with blood-soaked pillow cases, investigation showed that the girl had been attacked before being beaten to death with the nozzle of a fire hose. She had been dead from four to six hours, according to Dr. P. H. Burton, county physician, who made the examination.

Authorities immediately plunged into the work of attempting to find the slayer, who apparently left no clues, and after eight days of investigation Gummer was arrested June 15 on a charge of murder in the first degree on complaint of William Green, state's attorney for Cass county.

Maintained Innocence.

Gummer, who is 22 years old and the son of a farmer living near Mayville, N. D., strongly maintained his innocence, but after the state, at a preliminary hearing, had submitted what it termed "incriminating evidence," he was ordered bound over to the Cass county district court for trial in November.

When his case came up at the November term of county court, Gummer, through his attorneys, asked for a change of venue, claiming that prejudice was so great in Fargo that selection of an impartial jury would be virtually impossible. He was granted the change by Judge C. M. Cooley of the county district court and the case ordered transferred to the Barnes county district court at Valley City.

Gummer's Version.

At the hearing State's Attorney Green introduced a statement which he alleged Gummer made to him admitting that he had visited the girl's room about 6:30 on the morning of June 7, a half hour before anyone else knew of the crime. Gummer said that Miss Wick had left a call for 6 o'clock and that he made his way into her room with a pass key only after he had failed to receive a response to repeated telephone calls. Shocked and afraid that he might be accused of the crime if he made known his discovery, Gummer said he then went back to his desk in the hotel lobby and after waiting 15 minutes informed Fred Lawrence, son of the hotel proprietor, that he was unable to get any response from the occupant of the room. Lawrence, he said, told him to look over the transom, and he then announced his discovery.

The last juryman to hear the evidence in the case was accepted yesterday.

The 12 jurors who were finally chosen in the case are all farmers: Fred Ladbury, Dazey; Fred H. Getchell, Valley City; Chris Olson, Ypsilanti; R. R. Kane, Spiritwood; Wm. Flach, Sanborn; Lloyd Samson, Valley City; Peter Rumer, Wimbledon; L. A. Sunde, Valley City; Geo. Ohm, Lucca; Chris Minch, Dazey; Theo. Thilmoney, Pillsbury, and Henry Helmers, Wimbledon.

It was expected that the first witness to be called would be the father of the murdered girl, Hans Wick.

Small Contributions Are Favored For Wilson Fund

Voluntary subscriptions for the Woodrow Wilson memorial fund will be solicited during the coming week. Chairman A. S. Sapero says that he has appointed a number of well-known citizens to act as solicitors and the funds will be turned over to the First National bank, C. L. Hansen having consented to act as treasurer. No large contributions are either expected or wanted. The apportionment for the entire county amounts to only 2 cents a head, or $200. The matter of contributions in the country districts will be left to the people themselves as it will be impossible to make any kind of a drive. There are many who would like to add something to this fund but whose circumstances at the present time make it impossible. It has therefore been decided to ask for dimes and quarters, a general participation being more important in the eyes of the committee than a large amount. Contributions may be left at the Supero store or at the First National bank. Every person who makes a donation will receive a beautiful engraved certificate from national headquarters setting forth the fact.

Morlan Bishop Promoted.

Morlan Bishop of this city on Monday took up his duties as assistant cashier in the office of State Treasurer Henry Rines, having been appointed to succeed George Olson, recently transferred to the post of deputy state public examiner. Mr. Bishop has during the past year been a deputy bank examiner in the employ of the state and the new position is in the nature of a promotion.

SETS ASIDE MONEY TO HELP FARMERS BUY DAIRY CATTLE

First and Peoples' State Bank Offers to Furnish Money for Securing Desired Stock.

At the annual meeting of directors of the First and Peoples State bank last week a step of great importance to Pennington county was decided upon. A reserve of $10,000 was established to be loaned out to farmers at 6 per cent interest, providing the money thus borrowed is used in purchasing dairy cattle. The aim of the bank officials in making this provision is to cut away everything in the way of red tape and make the money at once available. No annoying investigations are to be pursued and the conditions under which the loan is made are such that any man who has the barn room, the necessary fodder and is willing to milk cows can take advantage of it. All such are invited to call at the bank and make their wants known. A committee composed of well-known dairy experts will in a short time leave for points at which the required cattle may be purchased and it is important that the number wanted is approximately known.

The plan has the endorsement of the Pennington County Farm Bureau association and County Agent J. J. McCann will be among those sent out to make the selections. Other well known dairy men have interested themselves in the matter and will give all assistance possible.

While banks throughout the Northwest have for years given every encouragement to those who wished to engage in dairying, particularly where the farmer aimed at securing high grade sires to head his herd, the offer now made by this Thief River Falls bank is perhaps the most liberal ever announced. Not alone is it attractive by reason of the low rate of interest at which the money is to be loaned, but the service offered in securing the cattle will prove of even greater value. Just now high grade stock can be purchased at very reasonable prices in the older dairying sections to the south, but the northern farmer is not usually in a position to take advantage of the situation. He has not the cash necessary to make purchases of this kind, no matter how anxious he might be to do so. In many cases the end of his borrowing capacity has been reached and this new provision will give him another chance. He will even be spared the heavy expense of visiting the points at which desirable cattle are for sale, this detail being looked after for him by the most competent men in the community.

This move will give impetus to the dairying industry throughout a large section. Farmers have long realized that the dairy cow is their salvation but many have held off from engaging in the business because they were unable to get the proper start. Now that one bank has taken the first step it is more than likely that the same plan or one similar will become part of the general banking policy of the district.

Woman Elected Director Of Farmers & Merchants

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Farmers & Merchants State bank was held last week and a number of changes were made in the board of directors. Robert McGinn was re-elected president, Herbert Fuller, first vice president; Waldie Christenson, second vice president; Albert Lonson, cashier; Miss Effie Hamry, assistant cashier; F. E. McGinn, teller; Roy Barzen, bookkeeper. Miss Hamry, who has been assistant cashier of the bank since its establishment, is the first woman to be elected on a banking board of directors in this city.

Albert Lonson, John Morgan and Fred W. Johnson were chosen as members of the board of directors, replacing respectively Paul Engelstad, M. T. McFarland and L. A. Lampert.

Officers' reports showed that the bank has enjoyed a steady increase in business during the past year, the statement recently published showing the institution to be in excellent condition.

SMALL GAIN IN NUMBER PAYING PERSONAL TAX

List Shows City Has Increased While Remainder of County Has Dropped Back.

Five Townships Show Slight Gains, Others Fall Back About to Same Extent.

Decline in Prices is Indicated by Returns of Thief River Falls Merchants.

The personal property tax list, published in The Times today, contains the names of 2125 persons. Last year the number was 2076 and two years ago 2,008. Country districts generally and the two villages show a falling off while the city of Thief River Falls makes up for the loss.

In the county, outside of the three incorporated municipalities, the total number of personal property taxpayers is 1364 at this time as compared with 1416 a year ago and 1340 in the 1920 list. The total decrease is therefore only 52 in the farming section, which is a decidedly low percentage when conditions are taken into consideration. St. Hilaire and Goodridge both show a decline in population, the former dropping 19 and the latter 18. The city of Thief River Falls, on the other hand, shows an increase of 138 over a year ago, when the report showed a drop of 10 from the previous year.

Townships Generally Slump.

Only five townships in the county show an increase in the number of taxpayers over a year ago—Black River, Mayfield, North, Polk Center and Silverton. Goodridge and Sanders remain stationary and all the rest show a slight decrease. In only one instance does this amount to more than half a dozen, Rocksbury, where the decrease is 12, being the exception. The most populous township, according to the returns, is North, followed by Rocksbury. The one containing the smallest number of taxpayers is Goodridge, with 27.

The following table gives a comparison for the past three years:

	1921	1920	1919
Bray	42	46	41
Black River	48	47	46
Cloverleaf	49	54	50
Deer Park	56	61	61

St. Hilaire vil.	70	89	83
Thief River Falls city	652	514	524
	2125	2076	2008

Among the farmers, N. E. Beebe of Rocksbury and V. C. Noper of North are the heaviest taxpayers, the former being assessed $90.04 while Mr. Noper's contribution will amount to $80. The booby prize goes to Frank Suble of Cloverleaf township, who will pay the county treasurer 8 cents for being in possession of $100 worth of property.

City Stocks Are Low.

The fall in values during the year is well illustrated by the difference in the amount of taxes assessed against Thief River Falls business men. To a certain extent the figures also show that there has been a general effort to reduce stocks on hand. Last year there were 20 business houses paying over $500 each in personal property taxes, the total footing up to $21,297.49. This year the number has been reduced to 17 with a total tax roll of $16,463.92. There were eight concerns paying over $1,000 last year and five this year.

Following is a list of the business concerns in Thief River Falls whose personal property tax amounts to more than $500:

Oen Mercantile Co.	2,014.99
Thief River Grocery Co.	1,470.35
Farmers & Merchants bank	1,208.18
First & Peoples bank	1,170.08
Loken Brothers	1,115.43

Report Successful Year For Trinity Congregation

The annual meeting of the Trinity Lutheran church congregation was held on Tuesday afternoon. Reports of Secretary Lars Backe and Treasurer Carl B. Larson were read and showed that the church is free of debt and starts the new year with a good balance in the treasury. The past twelve months have witnessed a steady growth in the congregation and an extension of its work. Disbursements for all purposes during the year totaled $4,972.88 while the receipts were $5,504.09. The total assets of the congregation at this time are given at $31,183.47, credited to the following departments: Cash on hand and inventory, $24,831.81; Ladies' Aid society, $4,892.62; Young People's Luther league, $721.52; Boys' club, $97.46; Sunday school treasury, $93.83; Dorcas society, $546.17.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: T. E. Sweger, president; Olaf Ramstad, vice president; Lars Backe, secretary; Carl B. Larson, treasurer; M. V. Evenson, H. S. Dahlen and Jorgen Eide, trustees; J. J. Aga, E. A. Mostue, J. J. Weeks, A. G. Loftnes and Jorgen Adsero, board of deacons; Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, choir director; Mrs. Gaston Ward, organist; Gynther Tessum, superintendent of Sunday school; O. D. Ostby, J. O. Sethor, George Mostue, John Gullingsrud and C. M. Carlson, ushers.

KEATING IS NAMED AS ASSESSOR; HOFF KEEPS STREET JOB

Question of Salaries for Officials to be Decided at Meeting on Jan. 24.

P. J. Keating was chosen as the city assessor for the coming year by the council at its adjourned meeting Tuesday night. He received five votes to one for G. H. Sandum when the selection was ordered balloted on by the president.

O. O. Hoff, the present street commissioner, was unanimously re-elected.

Monthly reports of the various officers and the annual report of the cemetery commission were presented to the council and ordered received and filed. The report of the commission was very gratifying and showed receipts of $1,196.27 and disbursements of $503.42, leaving a balance the first of the year of $2,334.36 as compared with $1,642.51 a year ago.

The matter of fixing salaries for the coming year was laid over until the next meeting on Tuesday evening, Jan. 24.

A delegation of union men asked the council for a reduction in the charge for the auditorium for the mass meeting last Saturday night. The request was granted.

Potato Growers' Meetings At Three Central Points

Three meetings of great interest to potato growers will be held in Pennington county this month. The first is scheduled for Thief River Falls on Jan. 24, the second at St. Hilaire on the 25th, and the third at Goodridge on the day following. R. G. Rose, potato specialist on the university extension staff, and a representative of the Minnesota Potato exchange, will be the speakers. The hour of meeting in each instance is 1:30 o'clock in order that adjournment may be had in time to allow those attending to get home the same day.

Besides a program of general interest, plans for sending a potato exhibit to the winter crops show at Crookston will be discussed. The meeting will be one of much importance to the industry in Pennington county and it is desired that all who are interested in potato matters be present.

The principal topics taken up by Mr. Rose will include seed treating, spraying, seed plots and storage troubles, particular stress being laid upon ways of preventing the latter.

JUDGE OF PROBATE HOLDS JOB TO 1925 IS COURT RULING

Was Elected for Four Year Term in 1920, According to Highest Tribunal.

Judge of Probate Lars Backe will not be compelled to seek re-election with most of the other county officials next fall, according to a decision handed down by the state supreme court last Friday. According to this decision all judges of probate will hold over until Jan. 1, 1925.

The people voted for a constitutional amendment at the 1920 election extending probate judges' terms to four years, and the court holds that this applies to the judges chosen at the same election.

The point was settled by a three to two vote, Chief Justice C. L. Brown and Justice H. B. Dibell dissenting. Commissioner Edward Lees wrote the opinion. 'Construing the amendment adopted in 1920, the court says: "It is held that the amendment enlarged the terms of judges chosen at the general election in 1920, and that they took office in January, 1921, for a term of four years."

The case came up on a writ of certiorari. J. V. Mathews, probate judge of Lyon county, asked that R. R. Houdersheldt, county auditor, be required to accept his filing as a candidate for re-election in 1922. The writ is discharged, and the decision acts as a precedent for all other counties in the state.

FIRST MONTHLY MARKET DAYS OF NEW YEAR TO BE LAUNCHED BY THIEF RIVER MERCHANTS

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 23, 24 and 25, to Mark Greatest Concerted Bargain-Giving Campaign Ever Seen in Northwest—Slight Changes From Former Plan Are Announced.

So great was the success attending the monthly market days inaugurated by our merchants during the last six months of the year just past that they have decided to get an early start in 1922. They figure, and rightly, that there is greater need for reductions in prices at this time than is liable to be the case during the summer and fall months. By featuring these bargain events now they are also able to make greater reductions than will be possible after all the new goods for the spring season have been received and placed. In fact it is for the purpose of so far as possible clearing out the winter stock that these sales are put on, particularly by the wearing apparel dealers, who must make room for new arrivals within a short time. The plan of announcing the offerings has simply been changed from that followed in former years, that is all. Generally one or two merchants at a time hold these necessary reduction sales, the season being extended until far into the spring months. This system it is the intention to improve upon.

Concerted Action Counts.

The value of united action in a campaign of this kind having been demonstrated, it remained only to work out the details for continuing the plan. The elaborate Market Day editions of The Times which proved such an important feature of last year's bargain carnivals, will be discontinued in order to lower the cost and thus make possible even greater reductions in the goods actually offered. Each merchant will this year use whatever of space he may see fit and in whatever manner seems to him best. The agreement is, however, that all shall at a given time each month offer something in the way of an unusual bargain. This will have the effect of bringing everybody into line on pain of having their places of business passed by when the crowds arrive. The stores making the offerings will reap the benefit and those who fail to make any kind of a bid for business on these particular days will be the losers.

A Wonderful Start.

A glance at the advertisements in The Times today will convince the most skeptical of the genuineness of this great reduction program. Every kind of business and practically every store is represented among those who are making a bid for the Market Day business. The merchants are quoting prices for these three days that cannot be duplicated in any other city in the state at this time. Every item represents a saving for the buyer. In some cases the reduction in price is so great as to be astounding and can only be explained on the theory that the goods must be moved. Former prices and even actual costs have often been lost sight of in the effort to make this event the most impressive of the many bargain opportunities presented by the merchants of the city. There is a general agreement among them that in order to start the year's Market Days off with the proper impetus it will be necessary to provide something unusual in the way of attractions. These will be given in the nature of price cuts.

Free Gifts Omitted.

It has been decided that the giving of merchandise absolutely free, either through drawings or by other means, is not a wise practice. The disappointments are too many. Besides it is well understood that nothing is ever given absolutely free and that in some manner these donations must be paid for. The business men have therefore concluded that it will be better to give each customer exactly the same treatment, the eliminating of the cost of the goods given away free making it possible for them to make greater reductions on the articles actually purchased. Every thinking person will agree that this is a wise move.

Want All to Come.

There is practically no limit to the amount of goods to be sold at the prices quoted. Everybody who visits Thief River Falls on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 23, 24 and 25, will save a great deal more than the cost of making the trip, no matter how far from the city they may live. The business men of the city have the stocks and they are quoting prices that should make them move. The demand will no doubt be great but so is the supply. The man or woman who is looking for a chance to make their dollars go as far as possible should let nothing short of a blizzard keep them away from Thief River Falls during the first three days of next week.

SELVIG AND SAGENG SEEK ENDORSEMENT OF DISTRICT G. O. P.

Announce Themselves as Candidates for Congress Before Convention at Moorhead.

All doubts as to whether or not there will be opposition to Halvor Steenerson for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Ninth district were removed during the past week. State Senator Ole Sageng of Otter Tail county has made formal announcement of his intention to enter the district convention at Moorhead on March 20 and seek the endorsement of the delegates. C. G. Selvig of Crookston has also come out square-footed with a declaration of his candidacy. The latter, however, says that because of his position as superintendent of the Northwest School of Agriculture and the large amount of work devolving upon him in connection with the forthcoming winter show it will be impossible to give personal attention to the matter at this time and he will have to depend upon his friends throughout the district to carry on his campaign. This declaration naturally applies only to the pre-convention period as it is to be expected that he will get into the game in earnest in case he receives the district endorsement. Should this go to one or the other of his opponents Mr. Selvig states that he will abide by the decision, which is taken to imply that he will not in that case be a candidate in the primaries.

Senator Sageng will also seek the endorsement of the district convention, while according to reports Mr. Steenerson will make no active campaigns for delegates favorable to him in that body, preferring to make his principal fight in the primaries.

Duluth Pastor to Speak.

Rev. J. F. McLeod of Duluth, well-known throughout the state as a fine pulpit orator, will deliver the sermon in the Presbyterian church next Sunday forenoon and evening. An invitation is extended to everyone to come and hear him.

Olaf Neset Again Heads Poultrymen's Association

The annual meeting of the Pennington County Poultry association was held at the county agent's office on Monday evening. Reports of officers showed that the past year has been the most successful in the history of the organization and that the county has gained greatly in reputation through exhibits sent to other sections for display. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Olaf Neset, president; C. M. Buoen, vice-president; J. J. McCann, secretary; H. L. Schuster, treasurer. As directors the following were chosen: Mrs. William Vaghan, Highlanding; Mrs. Rachael Alexander, Lancaster; L. A. Westphal and B. N. Thorstad, St. Hilaire; C. Keller, Hazel; F. B. Conklin and Ed. Battenfeldt, Thief River Falls.

CAMBRIDGE COMES FOR TWO CONTESTS VERSUS ATHLETICS

One of Best Teams in Central Minnesota Here Friday and Saturday Nights.

Manager Connell has evidently determined that it is a waste of time for the Athletic basketball team to meet anything but the topnotchers. No sooner does he finish with one aggregation of national fame than he takes on another. Last week it was Two Harbors, one of the very best, who received the nearest thing to a beating they have encountered for a long time. Nothing but an uneven break in the luck prevented the Thief River boys from administering a drubbing to the state champions.

On Friday and Saturday nights another championship contender is to be taken on. The Cambridge team, high grade to their rubber soles, will try conclusions on the floor here and those who have not yet seen the home bunch in action should make it a point to be present at this time. Cambridge is the home town of Louden, the tall center who appeared in the position in last week's games and he will now come as the opponent of the locals. His brother is also on the team, as is Norton, picked by sport writers as one of the very best forwards in the United States. This team, like Two Harbors, has an unbroken series of victories to its credit thus far, but it is stated by experts that the bunch as a whole is not as dangerous as the Lake county outfit. If such is the case the Athletics should have something better than a show with them.

Whatever the outcome, it is sure to be one rip-snorter of a session. Carlson is none the worse for the injury received in the last game and Holzknecht has forgotten that he ever hurt his ankle. The others are ready to go faster and better than ever before in their lives. Game called at 8:15.

KNOX BUILDING IS FORMALLY OPENED TO PUBLIC FRIDAY

Principal Address Delivered by J. H. Hay, Former Superintendent of Schools.

The new Knox school building on the East Side was formally turned over to the public by the architects and contractors last Friday evening, appropriate exercises marking the transfer. The large assembly room was filled with residents of the district served by the school and there was a good representation present from other sections of the city.

On behalf of the contractors, W. W. Prichard, Jr., returned to A. B. Dunham, representing the architects, the keys to the building, which is perhaps the first structure of its size and kind ever completed within the time limit in the city's history. Mr. Dunham delivered a short address and in turn presented the plans and keys to Dr. H. W. Froehlich, president of the school board, who in a few words accepted them on the part of the public.

J. H. Hay, for many years superintendent of the city schools and at the present time assistant state commissioner of agriculture, delivered the principal address of the evening. His long experience as an educator and particularly his intimate knowledge of school affairs in this city and region made his selection for this service almost inevitable. At all times a forceful, convincing speaker, the particular occasion presented him with an exceptional opportunity of which he took full advantage. Mr. Hay recounted the early struggles of the schools in this city, and particularly the circumstances surrounding the history of the old Knox building. He complimented former and present school boards on their foresight in building for the future, it having been demonstrated in the past that no matter how far in advance of actual needs provisions were made, the demand was but a short time in catching up.

The speaker expressed his pleasure in again being among his old neighbors for the purpose of formally dedicating one of the finest school buildings in this part of the state.

A piano selection by Herman Bischoff, the blind musician whose home is in this city, was greatly appreciated by the large audience and an encore was insisted on. The high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Maude L. Johnson, added to the enjoyment of the evening by rendering a number of well-chosen numbers. A tenor solo by Carl Sundahl also proved a pleasing feature.

FARM MANAGEMENT TALKS BRING OUT GOOD ATTENDANCE

Many Interesting Subjects Discussed at Two Sessions Held in County Last Week.

Two hundred farmers attended the farm management schools held at Thief River Falls and Goodridge on Friday and Saturday. William Calvert of the extension division of the University of Minnesota was the principal instructor. He showed the importance of a high order of business management in connection with farming and urged that the same amount of judgment be displayed by the man following agriculture as by those in other lines. J. H. Hay, assistant commissioner of agriculture, spoke on agricultural conditions in the state generally and said he thought the northwestern portion was as well off as any. He also explained the new laws and movements inaugurated to help the farmer, saying he believed co-operation in marketing would solve many of his problems.

Gay Halvorson addressed the meeting for the purpose of explaining his resolution calling upon congress to enact a price guarantee law covering farm produce. W. J. Brown spoke in opposition to the plan, giving it as his opinion that if the farmers were provided with the necessary credit facilities they would not require anything in the way of a price guarantee. Mr. Brown also attacked the administration of the federal reserve bank, saying that as at present handled the funds of that institution went to swell the sums controlled by the big city banks while the farmer and country bank failed to get any relief.

Hans Anton was not at all certain that he favored fixing the price of grain at any minimum figure. He asserted that men who followed small grain farming always found themselves in more or less trouble and he doubted if it was up to the rest of the country to foot the bill through enforced higher prices when it had been demonstrated that grain growing was no longer a paying proposition.

President C. L. Hansen of the First National bank explained the plan under which the war finance corporation was endeavoring to extend help to agricultural districts. He said that the country banker in many instances is finding his situation but a slight improvement on that of the farmer and asked that the latter attempt to get a better understanding of some of the problems that confronts the banker.

At the close of the meeting a county milk testing association was formed with 16 charter members. A number of others signified their intention of joining in the near future. M. T. McFarland, Albert Johnson and Frank Hardesty were named a committee to complete arrangements for a permanent organization. It is the intention to secure the services of a competent tester and begin the work as soon as possible.

Could Probably be Used As a Moonshine Equipment

It is claimed that Alex Welch of the city electrician's force is responsible for spreading the story. A contraption having a number of pump attachments, hose connections, a boiler and a pipe to convey steam or hot water was delivered to the office of City Clerk A. H. Akre the other day. Alex at once declared that a mistake had been made in the address and that the contrivance was a still for the manufacture of moonshine and intended for someone else. The affair does not look unlike the popular notion of what constitutes a still, although no one in this neighborhood has ever seen the real article. Judge Tarrant had a good mind to confiscate the thing on suspicion when Supt. Legvold came along and explained that it was a machine recently ordered by the council for thawing out hydrants.

WILL MAKE DRIVE TO PROVIDE FUNDS FOR RUSS RELIEF

Receiving Station Opened in City and Campaign Will Wind Up With Big Dance.

A drive to gather funds for the relief of starving Russians will be conducted in Pennington county during the week of Jan. 20-27. This was decided on at a meeting of the committee held at the Commercial club rooms on Monday evening. Mrs. J. M. Bishop, chairman of the committee, called the meeting for the purpose of getting an expression of sentiment as to the best method to be employed in gaining the ends sought, and the response was very good. John Bratrud was named secretary of the meeting.

The original committee will look after the campaign and the following have been appointed to take charge of the gathering of funds and clothing in the outlying districts: St. Hilaire, Mr. Burkee and Mr. Hall; Goodridge, Mrs. Jenzen, Mr. Rockne and Mr. Olson; Mavie, Mr. Smith; Hazel, Mr. Borgie; township of North, Mr. Rustad. Ward chairmen for the city were named as follows: First ward, Bernhard Knudsen; Second ward, O. A. Naplin; Third ward, Frank Mousley; Fourth ward, Adolf Eklund.

Secretary Bratrud was instructed to call the attention of pastors and the officials of fraternal and civic organizations to the movement and solicit their assistance. It was decided to open a receiving room for clothing and other merchandise in the city and the same will be placed in charge of Mr. Quist, who has opened quarters in the basement of the public library. Anyone desiring to donate clothing or goods other than money may send same to this office and its forwarding to state headquarters will be looked after.

It was decided to give a dance for the benefit of the Russian sufferers at the close of the drive, the affair being placed in the hands of a committee composed of L. A. Lampert as chairman, Charles Lieberman, Geo. Loken, H. S. Snyder, L. H. Lawrence, C. W. Vorachek, D. F. Huldeen, Mrs. M. Helen Montgomery, Mrs. H. W. Froehlich, Mrs. Andrew Bottelson, Miss Lena Lonson and Mrs. H. A. Brumund.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Red Lake county motorists beware of the traffic cop at Thief River Falls if you visit the up-stream city during the coming motor season. The Gazette has given you a fair warning and mighty early, too. An ordinance was introduced at Tuesday evening's meeting of the city council in that city setting the speed at 16 miles per hour and anyone exceeding this speed will be subject to a fine of $12 for the first offense, $25 for the second and $50 for the third. A motorcycle cop is to be employed to run down all offenders of the new ordinance. If by accident we should get on the new pavement up in that city and forget the speed limit we are going to ask the Times and Tribune to refrain from mentioning our names. They don't look good in a jail story.

CHIPPEWA TRAIL IS OFFICIALLY ROUTED THROUGH THIS CITY

Highway Starts at Detroit, this State, and Runs to Grafton, North Dakota.

Thief River Falls has been officially designated as one of the points through which the Chippewa Trail will pass. At a meeting of the directors held at Red Lake Falls last week the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"That the Chippewa Trail association, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, with its principal office located at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, by order of its board of directors, duly authorized by a vote of the members of the association;

"Does hereby order and create an extension of the said Chippewa Trail to be as follows: Beginning at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, the northern terminus of said trail, running thence to St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls, Warren, Alvarado and Oslo, in Minnesota, Ardock, Minto and Grafton, in North Dakota, terminating at Grafton. The trail to be located over the highway between each town as designated by the board of directors. As established, the starting point of said Cheippewa Trail will be Detroit, Minnesota, and the terminus, Grafton, North Dakota."

The Chippewa Trail is an important highway established to create closer communication between the cities in western Minnesota and points in North Dakota. To the south it follows the general course of the Mississippi River Scenic highway, which also includes Thief River Falls as an important control point.

Government Designates Jan. 17-23 Thrift Week

The week of Jan. 17 to 23, inclusive, has been designated as Thrift Week by the postoffice department. Postmaster Morgan has been asked to bring the matter before the patrons of the local office in order that they may have their attention called to the exceptional opportunities for saving money presented by the government's new issues of savings stamps and certificates. Societies and civic bodies are also requested to give the subject all the publicity possible. School children will be given a chance to participate through the purchase of 10-cent savings stamps.

The aim of the government is to teach the value of prudent living, intelligent spending and systematic saving. Full particulars concerning these highly profitable and absolutely safe issues may be had upon application at the postoffice.

Stebbins Chosen to Head Automobile Association

At the annual meeting of the Pennington County Automobile association held at the Commercial club rooms on Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: F. J. Stebbins, president; Dr. H. W. Froehlich, vice president; E. M. Bennes, secretary; Nels Christianson, treasurer; delegate to state convention, F. J. Stebbins; alternate, G. C. Streeter.

The annual dues for the auto association were fixed at $2 and those for the Chippewa Trail association at $1 per year. A membership drive will be made in the near future.

THE REAL HOLD-UP MEN.

Dawson Sentinel: Will Hays has secured marine guards for the mail cars. If Will did more traveling he would know that it is on the dining cars most of the hold-ups occur.

ELIMINATE THE BOARDERS.

Roseau Times-Region: The cow is a mighty important factor on the farm these stressing times. Yet how many farmers know for a certainty whether they are just "keeping the cows" or if the cows are keeping them. The right kind of cow is the most efficient money maker on the farm today. But to save the profit she produces not only careful and sensible feeding is necessary, but also elimination of the boarder cows.

HE'LL PULL THROUGH.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: Like a gleam of sunlight shining through the gloom which overhangs the American farmer because of the low prices of farm products comes the declaration of the editor of the Dakota Farmer to the effect that the farmer need have no more worries than the average business man of the cities and towns and that the farmer will "come through"—he always has and he always will.

The farmer's situation is really no worse than that of any other class. It only looms large by reason of the fact that farm prosperity is the basis of all prosperity, and because the farmer, having confined his buying to absolute necessities, has helped to lessen the market for all other products. It is not right, of course, that the farmer should receive very small hour pay for his efforts, but small hour pay is better than no pay at all and the farmer has not yet and never will take the position that some workers do—that he would rather join the "soup line" or starve than work for small pay. For that reason there will always be a "farm market."

A return to normal farm conditions depends largely on a reduction of freight rates. And we believe if farmers around Sleepy Eye would write their congressman and demand that he fight for such reduced rates they would very soon get what they stand in need of.

WILL SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

The personal property tax list shows that there has been a slight falling off in the farm population of Pennington county during the past year. The decrease is not sufficiently large to be at all alarming, being very much lower than is the case with surrounding counties, but we have become so accustomed to showing an increase for each year that even a slight falling off is annoying.

While there are no figures at hand to prove that such is the case, it is certain that the farmers who have departed were among those who pinned their faith to grain growing. In spite of warnings and arguments these men continued year after year to plant large areas to wheat, with the inevitable result. They found that whenever there was a crop there was no price, while if they did secure a fair yield they could not sell it for enough to pay expenses. The story is the same everywhere.

The dairy farmer is the only man who is coming out of the present depression with his head up. For all others the season has been a struggle to say the least, while in many instances it has meant virtual bankruptcy. In a less acute degree the situation is the same even in normal years.

One Thief River Falls bank has undertaken to extend assistance to those who wish to engage n the dary business and others will no doubt follow suit. It is the wisest course that could be pursued and should not be confined to banks. Every agency for advancement in city and country should make this the primary object of its endeavors. The city will grow in exact proportion to development in the country and no faster. Prosperity among the farmers means prosperity for local business men, and dairying is the industry that will make both a certainty. The placing of 100 dairy farmers on as many 80-acre plots in Pennington county would mean more to the business men of Thief River Falls than the location here of a factory employing 500 hands. Factory workers are laid off in dull times, but the cow never quits. Pay days may become scattered or cease altogether, but the cream check is issued on the 20th of each month as regular as clockwork. The city man with a job may have his means of support removed without a minute's notice, but the man with the milk stool and pail maintains his income intact.

There is hardly an 80-acre plot in Pennington county that is not capable of maintaining at least ten cows. Roughly speaking, there are 5,000 farms of this size possible in the county. This would mean 50,000 cows were this ratio applied. Add 200 chickens to each such farm and the revenue would be something enormous. It is not likely that any such situation will be brought about very soon, but the possibilities are there. The goal is worth working toward even though we come a considerable ways from reaching it.

The business men of Thief River Falls should study dairying, preach dairying and dream dairying. They are dependent upon the farmer for their existence, while the farmer in turn is dependent upon the dairy cow. When this is thoroughly understood there will no longer be even a small decrease in the agricultural population of the county possible. Pennington will have more farmers and better farmers. The matter is so vital that it might be well to drop a large number of other propositions upon which we are engaged for the purpose of devoting more attention to this one matter of supreme importance.

Reduction of Wheat Acreage.

(McIntosh Times.)

Economic experts of the University of North Dakota are advising the farmers to reduce the wheat acreage from ten to twelve per cent, claiming there is a surplus of about that much wheat.

It sounds like good business logic. What does a big business enterprise do when it finds that a certain department is not paying for itself? First, the reasons for the failure are determined, and if it found that the cause is not with the management, the department is closed out. The farmer has found that wheat at less than a dollar and a half is produced at below cost. Therefore, if other crops can be produced at a profit, wheat should naturally become a smaller factor to say the least. The farmer is just as much a business man as the man who heads industrial enterprises in other lines. The farmer is just as much entitled to a fair profit as the other business men.

But the world needs wheat, and to cut off the supply may leave mankind hungry. There seems to be only one just remedy. Guarantee a price at which wheat can be produced without a loss. Then the good farmer can make a little more than a living and the world will be assured of the wheat supply.

It is time that in visualizing the industrial life of our country, we get the proper focus so we can see that agriculture is not something that shall serve only as a back-ground, but that it is a very important part of the panorama which must be clearly brought into relief.

Barber Shop "Whys."

Why does a haircut always cost the same no matter how much hair you have?

Why does a barber always ask you if you shave yourself?

Why is no barber ever satisfied with the weather?

Why does no barber ever have a good word for the last fellow that cut your hair?

Why does a barber always try to persuade you to buy out the shop when all you want is a shave?

Why does a barber, when drying your face, always overlook that little corner of your ear?

Why does your nose always begin to tickle just as soon as your hands are tucked under the covering?

Why is the foot-rest on the shine stand always too small for your feet?

Why does the shine boy always have a vigorous argument with the other shine boy right in the middle of polishing your shoes?

And:

Why is the best-looking manicure girl always working down at the other end of the room?

One evening a Silverton township farmer met his man with a lantern and asked him where he was going.

"Yes," replied the man, "and look what you got."

The June bride who used to kiss her husband good-bye every morning now yells "so-long" from the kitchen.

Whiskers.

They say that whiskers may be banned from Frisco to New York. The necktie manufacturers are putting up a squawk. The barbers are crusading for the nude, and shameful chin and all alfalfa gents are warned to haul their windshields in. The blustry days are coming and it's time to take a reef, the chest protector makers, they are starting in to beef. Just Keep On Keepin' On.

"If the day looks kinder gloomy
And your chances kinder slim;
If the situation's puzzlin'
An' the prospects awful grim,
And perplexities keep pressin'
Till all hope is nearly gone,
Just bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

Shunnin' never won a fight,
And frettin' never pays;
There ain't no good in broodin' on
These pessimistic ways.
Smile just kinder cheerfully,
When hope is nearly gone
And bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

There ain't no use in growlin'
And grumbling all the time
When music's ringing everywhere,
And everything's in rhyme.
Just keep on smilin' cheerfully,
If hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on."

Second Semester Changes.

With the opening of the second semester Monday, January 23, there will be two new teachers to help take care of the increased enrollment since the opening of school last fall, and to accommodate the thirty-four additional freshmen who will be graduated from the eighth grade at the close of the first semester. The new freshmen will take double periods of English and algebra and will complete these two courses in one semester, receiving the usual credit for each course.

The following subjects will be offered either as additional courses or in place of subjects completed at the end of the first semester: There will be a new section in English I to accommodate those who have one-half credit in that subject and to relieve the present over-crowded sections. A new section will also be organized in plane geometry for those who have one-half credit in that subject. Those who have one-half credit in other full year subjects will enter the regular classes in their respective subjects to complete their work. Physiology will be offered in place of botany, sociology in place of economics, solid geometry in place of higher algebra, commercial law in place of, advanced typewriting, penmanship and spelling in place of commercial arithmetic, advanced typewriting in place of beginning typewriting.

A new section of beginning typewriting will also be offered for those juniors and seniors who wish to take it. If the section is not filled with juniors and seniors, a few sophomores may be permitted to take this course. Mechanical drawing will be continued throughout the year for those who wish to complete a full credit in that subject. Manual training will be given to those who wish it in place of mechanical drawing. Freshman sewing will be followed by Freshman cooking and Freshman cooking by Freshman sewing. Civics will replace American history.

High school geography and beginning bookkeeping will be extra subjects. The first will be given to accommodate those pupils who are now carrying only three subjects and to replace sewing I for those who cannot take cooking I because the cooking classes will not accommodate as many pupils as the present sewing classes.

Beginning bookkeeping will be open to juniors and seniors who have not had the opportunity to take it in the past.—M. P. R.

Enrollment For Second Semester.

Last Friday the seniors enrolled for the final stretch of their high school careers. Saturday forenoon those eighth grade students who are going to be promoted to the first year of high school were enrolled. The regular freshmen were enrolled Saturday afternoon. The juniors and sophomores will be enrolled the early part of the week. The second semester will open Monday, January 23, and with everything carefully planned, there should be no interruption in the school work.

The Bare Sixteen Credits.

Many of our high school students are satisfied with earning the required sixteen credits for graduation, and few earn more than sixteen and one-half or seventeen.

Of all the freshmen enrolled at Carleton College last fall a large majority presented more than sixteen credits for entry. Many came to college with seventeen and eighteen credits. Some presented nineteen. Some time after the opening of school a survey was conducted to ascertain the grade of work done by these students. It was generally found that the students who did the most work in the high school also did the best work in college. Graduation should not be the only goal of the high school student. A far more important objective is to get all the work possible in the four years and to do it to the best of one's ability.

Our School.

Every time someone mars a desk, chair or other article of school furniture he is marring something that is his own. Schools are public property which belong to all of us. We should be just as careful in their use as if they belonged to us individually. It costs a great deal to keep up the appearance of a school building and its equipment. Indirectly, we all contribute to this extra cost in taxes, which are already burdensome.

During vacation much was done to improve the appearance of the building. The floors were refinished and the writing on the walls was removed as far as it could be. Those who misused their desks are requested to make good the damage. Let us use our school buildings and equipment just as carefully as we use our homes and our furniture, and we will save money and keep up the appearance of our fine high school.

Remember the Janitors.

Have you ever stopped to think that janitors are human like the rest of us folks? Has it ever entered your mind that they are the first on the job these cold winter mornings and the last ones through with their day's work? Do you know that they are doing everything that they can to make the Lincoln high school a pleasant place for both teachers and pupils? Do you realize that we have two excellent janitors?

Now stop and think, teachers and students! What are doing to make things pleasant for the janitors? If you have done nothing, you can easily do something without much effort. Just be a little more careful about your waste paper, your pencil shavings, and your gum and gum wrappers. School rooms are always difficult to sweep on account of the chairs and desks, and if each of us will just take a little pains to keep things off the floor, how much easier the work will be.

Mr. Hay Visits.

Mr. J. H. Hay, for many years superintendent of the schools at Thief River Falls, honored the high school pupils with a short talk at chapel last Friday. Mr. Hay, now assistant commissioner of agriculture, arrived in the city as the principal speaker at the dedication of the new Knox school. He spoke of the wonderful possibilities of northern Minnesota; of the many and varied crops that can be raised here; but emphasized that the "boy and girl crop" was greater here than at any place he had ever seen. "Minnesota," he said, "has over seven hundred thousand pupils in school this afternoon between the ages of five and twenty-one." He pointed out that, in spite of the depressed business conditions, the low prices, and hard times generally, there are still a great number of people who seem to be getting along pretty well. "I can't think of any knowledge," said Mr. Hay in closing, "that will do any more good than to know Minnesota." It is needless to say that the high school was very glad to see and hear Mr. Hay again.

Essay Contest Closed.

The Central school pupils have participated in the national essay contest on "How I Can Make the Highways More Safe." Some very excellent compositions have been written. That of Mary Alexander has been awarded first place locally and is the composition sent in from our city schools to compete for state and national honors. The national prizes are three and consist of the following: First, a gold watch and trip to Washington with all expenses paid; second, a gold loving cup, and third, a silver loving cup. Besides the national prizes, there is also a state first prize of a gold medal and $15 in cash, one second prize of a silver medal and $10 in cash, and nine third prizes, each a bronze medal and $5 in cash.

Naturally the competition in this contest has been very keen and a great many very excellent compositions have been submitted. It will, therefore, be a great honor to win one of the Minnesota prizes, to say nothing of one of the national prizes. Even though no prize is won it is nevertheless a signal honor to have written the best composition to be submitted from Thief River Falls, and Mary is to be congratulated on her achievement.

Honorable mention should also be made of the compositions submitted in our school by Frances Conklin, Lois Nicholson and Frances Shanahan. In the preparation of these compositions a great many facts have been assimilated and much interest has been aroused in this very important topic of public highways. Even though no other importance attached to the working out of this theme, the fact that they actually have become interested and have given serious thought to the question is of itself worth all the time and energy put on it.

State High School Athletic League.

Two hundred forty-one out of the two hundred forty-four high schools in the state are members of the Minnesota State High School Athletic association. These high schools have been grouped in sixteen different districts. Thief River Falls belongs to the first district, in which are included the following high schools: Ada, Argyle, Bagley, Baudette, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Fertile, Fosston, Hallock, Mahnomen, McIntosh, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Stephen, Thief River Falls, Warren and Warroad. All these schools have basketball teams that are now playing their regular league schedule. Each has its league standing and it is a race between all these schools to determine which ones will participate in a final tournament which is to be held March 2 and 3. This tournament will in all probability be held either in Crookston or right here in Thief River Falls. The eight schools making the best record out of the group will participate in this final tournament and the winner in this district tournament will participate in the state tournament to be held later on in March. Effort is being made to have information as to all games played in our division of the league sent to the different schools so that the league standings may be published from week to week and in this way the people may be kept informed as to the standing of the different teams. Watch for this information and see to it that our boys get the moral and financial backing that they need if they are to make the best possible showing.

Declamatory Contest to Be Held Here Jan. 27.

In connection with the Red River Valley Annual Winter shows, which are to be held in Crookston, there is to be held on Monday, February 6, a declamatory contest. All territory affected has been divided into five districts. Thief River Falls is headquarters for district No. 2. In this district have been placed the following schools: Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Warroad, Roseau, Bronson, St. Hilaire, Middle River, Newfolden, Strandquist, Holt, Greenbush, Badger, Karlstad, Lancaster. These schools are entitled to send a representative to a preliminary declamatory contest that is to be held in the high school auditorium on the evening of January 27. Not all the schools have as yet signified their intention of participating in this tournament. The following schools, however, have promised to have a representative in the contest: Lancaster, Greenbush, Red Lake Falls, Holt and Thief River Falls. The winner in this contest will represent the entire group at the Crookston meeting. The first prize is a silver loving cup, which becomes the property of the school winning it three times. There are second, third, fourth and fifth prizes, $10, $7.50, $5 and $2.50 respectively.

Wednesday Assembly.

The pupils are very much disappointed when the gongs do not ring a little early on Wednesday, as they enjoy the speeches not only of the outside speakers but also of the teachers. There have been some wonderfully good speeches so far this year and it is hoped to have many more before the year is over. Miss Chamberlain gave a very interesting talk on poetry and since her talk I am sure we have found poetry much more beautiful. Miss Leavitt's talk on astronomy has made us realize that there is real interest in watching the stars. We hope to hear from the other teachers soon.—R. K. '24.

Knox Dedication.

Insofar as extensive writeups on the dedication of our new Knox building appear elsewhere in this issue, no further mention of it is made in the Progress. Permit the Progress staff to say, however, that it takes a great deal of pride in the new building. It ought to prove an excellent feeder for the high school in years to come. It is one of the finest grade buildings in the Northwest.

Herman Bischoff Entertains.

The high school enjoyed one of its biggest treats of the year last Thursday when Herman Bischoff, who attends the school for the blind at Faribault, appeared in a number of piano and clarinet solos and several readings. Mr. Bischoff first played on the piano the Waltz in C Minor by Chopin and then the Prelude in C Minor by Rachmaninoff. He also played Mendelssohn's Spring Song on the clarinet. Then, too, he entertained with some very good impersonations of the songs of Harry Lauder. His rendition "When Apples Grow on Lilac Trees" was especially enjoyed.

Mr. Bischoff has a great deal of musical and general artistic talent, and his program was most thoroughly enjoyed.

Stock Judging Team.

A stock judging team from the agricultural department of our high school has won the silver loving cup offered by way of prize at two different mid-winter shows held at the agricultural college in Crookston. Though our agriculture department has been discontinued, we still have boys who have been on the team and we ought therefore to be able to do something this year, too. In line with the general policy of Thief River Falls, which is to do things, a team is being coached by Mr. Harner and Mr. Jardine, both of whom are experienced agriculture men, with a view again to be represented and if possible to win the cup for the third time and for keeps. It would be a fine achievement both for our high school and for the boys themselves. Thomas Belland, Raymond Muzzy and Clarence Smith were our team last year. They will again try for berths, as will Bert Umland and Henry Vorlicky. Good luck to you, boys!

What's Your College?

So that the students of our high school may early become acquainted with the different colleges and universities of the country, all catalogs and literature are assembled in a special place in the library where they are of easy access.

By studying these catalogs students are often inspired to great effort in their high school work and they will often be able to make a more intelligent selection as well as to arrange their high school course to meet specific requirements.

Two Defeats.

The Thief River Falls high school basketball team journeyed to the towns of Argyle and Stephen last Friday to meet the high school teams of these places on the basketball floor. They journeyed, they played, they lost, and came back home not daunted in spirit but determined to make amends for the defeats, in their future games.

In the game with Argyle the local boys started off in whirlwind fashion, holding Argyle down without a field goal while they themselves garnered nine points. But some fair spectator threw a horseshoe into the Argyle camp during the second half and they tossed in six field baskets with machine gun rapidity for a total of 15 points to Thief River's 13.

At Stephen the boys were out of form and couldn't get together with any consistency whatever, and when the whistle blew at the termination of the game the score stood 21-12, Stephen leading. In this contest Forest Ralston got all of Thief River's twelve points and was easily the star of the contest.

The writer cannot refrain from saying a few words in commendation of the fine treatment extended by Argyle and Stephen while on this trip. It is very gratifying indeed to the visiting team to feel upon leaving a neighboring town that they have received a square deal and courteous treatment. Such treatment tends for good sportsmanship, clean athletics, and raises the standard of not only the community extending it but also the community from which the visiting team comes.

Ella Krohn and Hershel Hanson Win First.

The final home elimination declamatory contest was held in the high school assembly room on Monday evening. The following program was given:

"Amaryllis" .... Girls' Glee Club
The Hungry Gross .... Shirley Anderson
The Necklace .... Ella Krohn
The Abolition of War ....
.... Emmett Shanahan
An Apostle of Peace ....
.... Hershel Hanson
"Lindy" .... Girls' Glee Club
Cutting from "Les Miserables" ....
.... Nora Lindquist
Sign of the Cleft Heart ....
.... Ruth Knutson
Pro Patria .... Lucille McGinnity
The Angelus .... Lillian Knight

The decision of the judges was then announced, giving for the girls first place to Ella Krohn and second place to Nora Lindquist. For the boys first place went to Hershel Hanson. Mr. Quale, Mrs. Larsen and Mrs. Rapacz acted as judges.

All of the contestants did very well and the decision was a close one. The audience was small but appreciative. By an admission fee of ten cents the Dramatic club secured $7.50 for their treasury.

The outcome of this contest determines that Ella Krohn and Hershel Hanson will be the representatives of our school in the district contest to be held soon. Ella Krohn will also be our high school's representative in the Red River Valley district contest which is to be held here Friday evening, January 27.

Ask Webster.

How often we find pupils in our classes who tell us that they know the answer to the question, but that they just can not state it. Oftentimes we know that they know, but they are not able to give expression to their thoughts. This is often due to the fact that their vocabulary is limited. The remedy for this defect is a more frequent use of the dictionary. The time spent in looking up words is more than saved in understanding the lesson. "Knowledge is the key to mystery and study is the key to knowledge."—A Teacher.

Latin Club Meets.

The weekly meeting of the Girls' Superior Latin club was held in Miss Stebbins' room Thursday evening, January 12. Roll call was taken and the minutes of the previous meeting read after which Miss Stebbins spoke to the club. On account of the small attendance and the basketball game at the auditorium, the meeting adjourned for the evening at about 8 o'clock.

A Few Don'ts.

Don't write on the walls because Mr. Rapacz says paint costs money.

Don't leave your books on the radiator and on your desk because they disappear.

Don't whisper because you might be asked to study after four o'clock.

Don't drop your waste paper on the floor because it makes sweeping difficult for the janitors.

Don't leave the windows open after four o'clock. Conserve the fuel.

Don't chew gum in school because you are learning a bad habit.

Don't forget that you must be up to grade in your work before you will be permitted to play basketball.

Don't come tardy because there are few good reasons for tardiness.

Tyson-Ostlund.

Miss Alice Tyson, a member of the class of '24, was united in marriage to Mr. E. Ostlund of Mud Lake. The couple will make their future home at Golden Valley. The sophomore class extends to them their heartiest greetings.

Alumnus Honored.

Our high school was much pleased to learn last week of the recognition of the ability of one of her sons, Morlan Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bishop, is the person in mention. Since his graduation from high school in 1910 he has been steadily climbing until he has just now been appointed assistant cashier in the state treasurer's office. The high school congratulates him and wishes him abundant success in his new position.

Administration's Corner.

Where Does the Money Come From With Which to Run Our Schools?

The principal source of revenue for the maintenance of any public school system in Minnesota is a tax on the assessed valuation of the real estate and the personal property of the district. In a district where the assessed valuation is low, therefore, the tax rate in mills, that is in tenths of a cent on the dollar, must necessarily be high. In a wealthy district where there is much and valuable real or personal property, a low tax rate in mills will bring into the treasury a lot of money. The amount of money needed will necessarily vary with the size of the school, measured in equipment, courses of study, number of pupils, and the number of teachers. An analysis of this item for our district will be made in the next issue of The Progress.

Though, as already explained, the bulk of the money needed is raised by local taxation, the state offers aid in various forms. In the first place, it has a permanent school fund, the interest on which is known as the Endowment Fund. This income amounts to about one and one third millions a year. Then there is a state tax of one mill on all assessed property in the state. The money thus raised is known as the Current School Fund. There is also a county levy of one mill which is known as a part of the District Tax. The above funds are prorated, that is divided equally, among all districts that meet the requirements in accordance with the number of children of school age that have attended school in the district for a period of forty days or more during the school year. In the past several years, this apportionment has amounted to a little more than $4.00 a child. Our district, therefore, which has approximately 1500 pupils meeting this requirement, receives, in round numbers, $6000 from this source. Finally, each legislature appropriates certain sums of money to be distributed in accordance with the principles set forth in the following stated purposes:

1. To assist in providing equal educational opportunities for all the school children of the state.
2. To assist in establishing certain generally accepted minimum standards for all the public schools of the state.
3. To assist school districts whose tax levies for maintenance are exceptionally high.
4. To stimulate educational progress by grants of state aid for superior efficiency and high standards and for desirable educational undertakings not yet generally established.
5. To provide for the maintenance of teacher training departments in high schools.

(Next week will give tables showing just to what extent our schools are affected by the above.)

OBSERVATIONS

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

This is a great year for the poor. The government has removed the luxury tax from steam yachts.

Just because the moonshine made in Baudette lives only a few days, don't get the idea that it is weak.

If the C. N. R. cuts off any more trains, the Region will have to come to the rescue and build a few more railroads.

You will generally find Baudette at the top or thereabouts. It is even located at the top of the United States.

When we look over our subscription list it is hard to believe that man is made of dust.

You've probably noticed that when a lad says that he knows where he can dig up a bottle of real old stuff he always gets a big audience to listen to the sordid details.

There isn't much sickness in Baudette this year aside from the severe pains many of us feel in the vicinity of the pocketbook.

The M. W. A., R. N. A. and I. O. O. F. all had big meetings this week, but I. O. U. is still leading all organizations in town when it comes to membership.

There are many recipes to cure hard times, but wearing a funeral face isn't one of them. Perk up.

One thing we refuse to lose a night's sleep over is the dispute of the Hill heirs over Jim's millions. There are still 67 installments due on our typesetting machine.

Judging by the number of divorces granted to wives in Minneapolis and St. Paul, many women are looking for new men. It appears to be a habit with them. Even when a wife doesn't want a divorce she tries to make a new man out of the one she has.

Just Keep On Keepin' On.

"If the day looks kinder gloomy
And your chances kinder slim;
If the situation's puzzlin'
An' the prospects awful grim,
And perplexities keep pressin'
'Till all hope is nearly gone,
Just bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

Shunnin' never won a fight,
And frettin' never pays;
There ain't no good in broodin' on
These pessimistic ways.
Smile just kinder cheerfully,
When hope is nearly gone
And bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

There ain't no use in growlin'
And grumbling all the time
When music's ringing everywhere,
And everything's in rhyme.
Just keep on smilin' cheerfully,
If hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on."

Second Semester Changes.

With the opening of the second semester Monday, January 23, there will be two new teachers to help take care of the increased enrollment since the opening of school last fall, and to accommodate the thirty-four additional freshmen who will be graduated from the eighth grade at the close of the first semester. The new freshmen will take double periods of English and algebra and will complete these two courses in one semester, receiving the usual credit for each course.

The following subjects will be offered either as additional courses or in place of subjects completed at the end of the first semester: There will be a new section in English I to accommodate those who have one-half credit in that subject and to relieve the present over-crowded sections. A new section will also be organized in plane geometry for those who have one-half credit in that subject. Those who have one-half credit in other full year subjects will enter the regular classes in their respective subjects to complete their work. Physiology will be offered in place of botany, sociology in place of economics, solid geometry in place of higher algebra, commercial law in place of advanced typewriting, penmanship and spelling in place of commercial arithmetic, advanced typewriting in place of beginning typewriting.

A new section of beginning typewriting will also be offered for those juniors and seniors who wish to take it. If the section is not filled with juniors and seniors, a few sophomores may be permitted to take this course. Mechanical drawing will be continued throughout the year for those who wish to complete a full credit in that subject. Manual training will be given to those who wish it in place of mechanical drawing. Freshman sewing will be followed by Freshman cooking and Freshman cooking by Freshman sewing. Civics will replace American history.

High school geography and beginning bookkeeping will be extra subjects. The first will be given to commodate those pupils who are carrying only three subjects and replace sewing I for those who c not take cooking I because the co ing classes will not accommodate many pupils as the present sew classes.

Beginning bookkeeping will be o to juniors and seniors who have had the opportunity to take it in past.—M. P. R.

Enrollment For Second Semester.

Last Friday the seniors enrolled the final stretch of their high sch careers. Saturday forenoon th eighth grade students who are go to be promoted to the first year high school were enrolled. The gular freshmen were enrolled Sat day afternoon. The juniors and sop omores will be enrolled the early p of the week. The second semes will open Monday, January 23, with everything carefully plann there should be no interruption in school work.

The Bare Sixteen Credits.

Many of our high school stude are satisfied with earning the requ ed sixteen credits for graduation, few earn more than sixteen and o half or seventeen.

Of all the freshmen enrolled Carleton College last fall a large irjoty presented more than sixt redits for entry. Many came to c lege with seventeen and eight credits. Some presented ninete Some time after the opening of sch a survey was conducted to ascert the grade of work done by these s dents. It was generally found th the students who did the most wo in the high school also did the b work in college. Graduation sho not be the only goal of the h school student. A far more impo ant objective is to get all the wo possible in the four years and to it to the best of one's ability.

Our School.

Every time someone mars a desk, chair or other article of school furniture he is marring something that is his own. Schools are public property which belong to all of us. We should be just as careful in their use as if they belonged to us individually. It costs a great deal to keep up the appearance of a school building and its equipment. Indirectly, we all contribute to this extra cost in taxes, which are already burdensome.

During vacation much was done to improve the appearance of the building. The floors were refinished and the writing on the walls was removed as far as it could be. Those who misused their desks are requested to make good the damage. Let us use our school buildings and equipment just as carefully as we use our homes and our furniture, and we will save money and keep up the appearance of our fine high school.

Remember the Janitors.

Have you ever stopped to think that janitors are human like the rest of us folks? Has it ever entered your mind that they are the first on the job these cold winter mornings and the last ones through with their day's work? Do you know that they are doing everything that they can to make the Lincoln high school a pleasant place for both teachers and pupils? Do you realize that we have two excellent janitors?

Now stop and think, teachers and students! What are doing to make things pleasant for the janitors? If you have done nothing, you can easily do something without much effort. Just be a little more careful about your waste paper, your pencil shavings, and your gum and gum wrappers. School rooms are always difficult to sweep on account of the chairs and desks, and if each of us will just take a little pains to keep things off the floor, how much easier the work will be.

Mr. Hay Visits.

Mr. J. H. Hay, for many years superintendent of the schools at Thief River Falls, honored the high school pupils with a short talk at chapel last Friday. Mr. Hay, now assistant commissioner of agriculture, arrived in the city as the principal speaker at the dedication of the new Knox school. He spoke of the wonderful possibilities of northern Minnesota; of the many and varied crops that can be raised here; but emphasized that the "boy and girl crop" was greater here than at any place he had ever seen. "Minnesota," he said, "has over seven hundred thousand pupils in school this afternoon between the ages of five and twenty-one." He pointed out that, in spite of the depressed business conditions, the low prices, and hard times generally, there are still a great number of people who seem to be getting along pretty well. "I can't think of any knowledge," said Mr. Hay in closing, "that will do any more good than to know Minnesota." It is needless to say that the high school was very glad to see and hear Mr. Hay again.

Essay Contest Closed.

The Central school pupils have participated in the national essay contest on "How I Can Make the Highways More Safe." Some very excellent compositions have been written. That of Mary Alexander has been awarded first place locally and is the composition sent in from our city schools to compete for state and national honors. The national prizes are three and consist of the following: First, a gold watch and trip to Washington with all expenses paid; second, a gold loving cup, and third, a silver loving cup. Besides the national these schools to determine which ones will participate in a final tournament which is to be held March 2 and 3. This tournament will in all probability be held either in Crookston or right here in Thief River Falls. The eight schools making the best record out of the group will participate in this final tournament and the winner in this district tournament will participate in the state tournament to be held later on in March. Effort is being made to have information as to all games played in our division of the league sent to the different schools so that the league standings may be published from week to week and in this way the people may be kept informed as to the standing of the different teams. Watch for this information and see to it that our boys get the moral and financial backing that they need if they are to make the best possible showing.

Declamatory Contest to Be Held Here Jan. 27.

In connection with the Red River Valley Annual Winter shows, which are to be held in Crookston, there is to be held on Monday, February 6, a declamatory contest. All territory affected has been divided into five districts. Thief River Falls is headquarters for district No. 2. In this district have been placed the following schools: Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Warroad, Roseau, Bronson, St. Hilaire, Middle River, Newfolden, Strandquist, Holt, Greenbush, Badger, Karlstad, Lancaster. These schools are entitled to send a representative to a preliminary declamatory contest that is to be held in the high school auditorium on the evening of January 27. Not all the schools have as yet signified their intention of participating in this tournament. The following schools, however, have promised to have a representative in the contest: Lancaster, Greenbush, Red Lake Falls, Holt and Thief River Falls. The winner in this contest will represent the entire group at the Crookston meeting. The first prize is a silver loving cup, which becomes the property of the school winning it three times. There are second, third, fourth and fifth prizes, $10, $7.50, $5 and $2.50 respectively.

Wednesday Assembly.

The pupils are very much disappointed when the gongs do not ring a little early on Wednesday, as they enjoy the speeches not only of the outside speakers but also of the teachers. There have been some wonderfully good speeches so far this year and it is hoped to have many more before the year is over. Miss Chamberlain gave a very interesting talk on poetry and since her talk I am sure we have found poetry much more beautiful. Miss Leavitt's talk on astronomy has made us realize that there is real interest in watching the stars. We hope to hear from the other teachers soon.—R. K. '24.

Knox Dedication.

Insofar as extensive writeups on the dedication of our new Knox building appear elsewhere in this issue, no further mention of it is made in the Progress. Permit the Progress staff to say, however, that it takes a great deal of pride in the new building. It ought to prove an excellent feeder for the high school in years to come. It is one of the finest grade buildings in the Northwest.

Herman Bischoff Entertains.

The high school enjoyed one of its biggest treats of the year last Thursday when Herman Bischoff, who attends the school for the blind at Faribault, appeared in a number of piano

Stock Judging Team.

A stock judging team from the agricultural department of our high school has won the silver loving cup offered by way of prize at two different mid-winter shows held at the agricultural college in Crookston. Though our agriculture department has been discontinued, we still have boys who have been on the team and we ought therefore to be able to do something this year, too. In line with the general policy of Thief River Falls, which is to do things, a team is being coached by Mr. Harner and Mr. Jardine, both of whom are experienced agriculture men, with a view again to be represented and if possible to win the cup for the third time and for keeps. It would be a fine achievement both for our high school and for the boys themselves. Thomas Belland, Raymond Muzzy and Clarence Smith were our team last year. They will again try for berths, as will Bert Umland and Henry Vorlicky. Good luck to you, boys!

What's Your College?

So that the students of our high school may early become acquainted with the different colleges and universities of the country, all catalogs and literature are assembled in a special place in the library where they are of easy access.

By studying these catalogs students are often inspired to great effort in their high school work and they will often be able to make a more intelligent selection as well as to arrange their high school course to meet specific requirements.

Two Defeats.

The Thief River Falls high school basketball team journeyed to the towns of Argyle and Stephen last Friday to meet the high school teams of these places on the basketball floor. They journeyed, they played, they lost, and came back home not daunted in spirit but determined to make amends for the defeats, in their future games.

In the game with Argyle the local boys started off in whirlwind fashion, holding Argyle down without a field goal while they themselves garnered nine points. But some fair spectator threw a horseshoe into the Argyle camp during the second half and they tossed in six field baskets with machine gun rapidity for a total of 15 points to Thief River's 13.

As Stephen the boys were out of form and couldn't get together with any consistency whatever, and when the whistle blew at the termination of the game the score stood 21-12, Stephen leading. In this contest Forest Ralston got all of Thief River's twelve points and was easily the star of the contest.

The writer cannot refrain from saying a few words in commendation of the fine treatment extended by Argyle and Stephen while on this trip. It is very gratifying indeed to the visiting team to feel upon leaving a neighboring town that they have received a square deal and courteous treatment. Such treatment tends for good sportsmanship, clean athletics, and raises the standard of not only the community extending it but also the community from which the visiting team comes.

Ella Krohn and Hershel Hanson Win First.

The final home elimination declamatory contest was held in the high school assembly room on Monday evening. The following program was given:

"Amaryllis" .... Girls' Glee Club
The Hungry Gross....Shirley Anderson
The Necklace .... Ella Krohn
The Abolition of War ....

Mr. Quale, Mrs. Larsen and Mrs. Rapacz acted as judges.

All of the contestants did very well and the decision was a close one. The audience was small but appreciative. By an admission fee of ten cents the Dramatic club secured $7.50 for their treasury.

The outcome of this contest determines that Ella Krohn and Hershel Hanson will be the representatives of our school in the district contest to be held soon. Ella Krohn will also be our high school's representative in the Red River Valley district contest which is to be held here Friday evening, January 27.

Ask Webster.

How often we find pupils in our classes who tell us that they know the answer to the question, but that they just can not state it. Oftentimes we know that they know, but they are not able to give expression to their thoughts. This is often due to the fact that their vocabulary is limited. The remedy for this defect is a more frequent use of the dictionary. The time spent in looking up words is more than saved in understanding the lesson. "Knowledge is the key to mystery and study is the key to knowledge."—A Teacher.

Latin Club Meets.

The weekly meeting of the Girls' Superior Latin club was held in Miss Stebbins' room Thursday evening, January 12. Roll call was taken and the minutes of the previous meeting read, after which Miss Stebbins spoke to the club. On account of the small attendance and the basketball game at the auditorium, the meeting adjourned for the evening at about 8 o'clock.

A Few Don'ts.

Don't write on the walls because Mr. Rapacz says paint costs money.

Don't leave your books on the radiator and on your desk because they disappear.

Don't whisper because you might be asked to study after four o'clock.

Don't drop your waste paper on the floor because it makes sweeping difficult for the janitors.

Don't leave the windows open after four o'clock. Conserve the fuel.

Don't chew gum in school because you are learning a bad habit.

Don't forget that you must be up to grade in your work before you will be permitted to play basketball.

Don't come tardy because there are few good reasons for tardiness.

Tyson-Ostlund.

Miss Alice Tyson, a member of the class of '24, was united in marriage to Mr. E. Ostlund of Mud Lake. The couple will make their future home at Golden Valley. The sophomore class extends to them their heartiest greetings.

Alumnus Honored.

Our high school was much pleased to learn last week of the recognition of the ability of one of her sons. Morlan Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bishop, is the person in mention. Since his graduation from high school in 1910 he has been steadily climbing until he has just now been appointed assistant cashier in the state treasurer's office. The high school congratulates him and wishes him abundant success in his new position.

Administration's Corner.

Where Does the Money Come From With Which to Run Our Schools?

The principal source of revenue for the maintenance of any public school system in Minnesota is a tax on the assessed valuation of the real estate and the personal property of the district. In a district where the assessed valuation is low, therefore, the tax rate in mills, that is in tenths of a cent on the dollar, must necessarily be high. In a wealthy district where there is much and valuable real or personal property, a low tax rate in mills will bring into the treasury a lot of money. The amount of money needed will necessarily vary with the size of the school, measured in equipment, courses of study, number of pupils, and the number of teachers. An analysis of this item for our district will be made in the next issue of The Progress.

Though, as already explained, the bulk of the money needed is raised by local taxation, the state offers aid in various forms. In the first place, it has a permanent school fund, the interest on which is known as the Endowment Fund. This income amounts to about one and one third millions a year. Then there is a state tax of one mill on all assessed property in the state. The money thus raised is known as the Current School Fund. There is also a county levy of one mill which is known as a part of the District Tax. The above funds are prorated, that is divided equally, among all districts that meet the requirements in accordance with the number of children of school age that have attended school in the district for a period of forty days or more during the school year. In the past several years, this apportionment has amounted to a little more than $4.00 a child. Our district, therefore, which has approximately 1500 pupils meeting this requirement receives, in round numbers, $6000 from this source. Finally, each legislature appropriates certain sums of money to be distributed in accordance with the principles set forth in the following stated purposes:

1. To assist in providing equal educational opportunities for all the school children of the state.
2. To assist in establishing certain generally accepted minimum standards for all the public schools of the state.
3. To assist school districts whose tax levies for maintenance are exceptionally high.
4. To stimulate educational progress by grants of state aid for superior efficiency and high standards and for desirable educational undertakings not yet generally established.
5. To provide for the maintenance of teacher training departments in high schools.

(Next week will give tables showing just to what extent our schools are affected by the above.)

OBSERVATIONS

(W. T. Noonan in Baudette Region.)

This is a great year for the poor. The government has removed the luxury tax from steam yachts.

Just because the moonshine made in Baudette lives only a few days, don't get the idea that it is weak.

If the C. N. R. cuts off any more trains, the Region will have to come to the rescue and build a few more railroads.

You will generally find Baudette at the top or thereabouts. It is even located at the top of the United States.

When we look over our subscription list it is hard to believe that man is made of dust.

You've probably noticed that when a lad says that he knows where he can dig up a bottle of real old stuff he always gets a big audience to listen to the sordid details.

There isn't much sickness in Baudette this year aside from the severe pains many of us feel in the vicinity of the pocketbook.

The M. W. A., R. N. A. and I. O. O. F. all had big meetings this week, but I. O. U. is still leading all organizations in town when it comes to membership.

There are many recipes to cure hard times, but wearing a funeral face isn't one of them. Perk up.

One thing we refuse to lose a night's sleep over is the dispute of the Hill heirs over Jim's millions. There are still 67 installments due on our typesetting machine.

Judging by the number of divorces granted to wives in Minneapolis and St. Paul, many women are looking for new men. It appears to be a habit with them. Even when a wife doesn't want a divorce she tries to make a new man out of the one she has.

PRESENT STATUS OF RED LAKE DRAINAGE PROJECT

Editor Times:

I am advised that Mr. Reed, drainage engineer of the U. S. Indian bureau, expects to send Red Lake drainage report recently submitted by Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy Board to Commissioner of Indian Bureau C. H. Burke today with his recommendations. Early action by Commissioner Burke is hoped for. Viewers on Red Lake project will be appointed when final plans are approved by the Interior and War departments. Ever since Feb. 21, 1921, when congress passed the Red Lake bill, active work has been put on Red Lake project. It was materially expedited when the legislature on April 19 last appropriated funds for the surveys.

On Oct. 28 a preliminary hearing was held at Bemidji and on Nov. 22 and 23 a conference with the Indian Bureau officials was held at Washington. On account of the meager data regarding Red lake itself and the run-off area, George W. Walker, chief engineer, and Adolph F. Meyer, consulting engineer, have had to go forward very carefully in order to be sure of their ground.

Following the Washington conference, Mr. Meyer prepared his report, which was submitted Dec. 31, 1921. It is a lengthy one, including over 16 pages with 16 maps and diagrams.

Without doubt the Washington officials will submit their decision as soon as it is possible for them to do so.

ASKS PROTECTION FOR ANIMALS IN WINTER

Editor T. R. Falls Times,

Dear Sir: Your paper having a large circulation, and being extensively read, I hope you will kindly give space to a brief article in behalf of our dumb friends, the domestic animals of the farms. A season of the year is now at hand when many domestic animals are facing a period of more or less severe suffering and neglect. The writer of this letter was born on a farm and has lived there all his life so that he feels that he is tolerably conversant with winter conditions facing domestic animals on some farms. When we say "some" farms we do so purposely, because happily the conditions mentioned in this letter are found only on a few farms. Most people whether on the farm or in the city, have enough decency and humanity to take care of their animals. However there are some everywhere who seem to be utterly devoid of all instincts of humanity and decency, when it comes to taking care of their animals. This article and the statements made herein are based, not upon guess or hearsay, but upon actual observations. It is written not from malice or spite, not out of personal animosity, but in the hope that it may help to awaken the public conscience, so that these conditions may be removed, and life made a little easier for our domestic animals. What needs to be done is to arouse and awaken every neighborhood, so that they will no longer tolerate such conditions in their midst. If our newspapers will only take hold and give the matter a little publicity, conditions will soon improve.

This letter is written with conditions on some farms in mind because the writer is best acquainted with conditions on the farm. It will no doubt apply to conditions in the city too in just as many cases.

I am not going to deal with the question of food or not enough food for the animals, because that is something that cannot always be helped. People have to live according to their means, and domestic animals according to the means of their owners. However most people can give their animals at least reasonable protection and shelter against the weather. At least they can always let the animals have the use and benefit of what shelter there is on the place. There is absolutely no excuse for having domestic animals standing outside in the yard, or along the sheltered side of a barn, with their backs arched up like a new moon. There is one and only one reason for such conditions where they exist. People who have their animals standing outside all day, during the winter, when they don't care to be outside themselves, are simply too lazy to do the extra cleaning in the barns, and too conscienceless to care for the suffering of their animals.

It is not an altogether uncommon sight to see horses and cattle turned out, early in the morning, even on cold winter days, and left to shift for themselves all day as best they can. It is not such a rare sight to see horses and cattle wandering around the yard on cold winter days until late at night. Now, why do animals have to suffer in such a way on some farms? Why is it that some people will keep their animals outside all day, when it is so cold they don't care to stand around outside themselves? What can it be except laziness, or an utter indifference to the sufferings of animals?

Frequently, habitually, on some farms, cattle have to sleep outside on the cold, frozen ground, even in rain and snow until far into the month of November. Even this last fall, during the snowfall in the early part of November, there were cattle that had to sleep outside. Think these matters over; do such things happen in your neighborhood? Can you have much respect for people who will treat their animals in such a way?

The writer has lived in northern Minnesota about thirty years, and remembers two or three instances of seeing horses and cattel turned out early Sunday forenoon, on cold, bitter winter days. At noon the folks would go visiting at some neighbors, where they would sit and gossip and play cards until late at night. During all afternoon until dark the plaintive bellowing of the cattle could be heard, as they stood around outside. Gossiping away the day, sitting next to a warm fire, while at home the helpless animals stood outside in the cold. Fine people is it not? When one sees instances like this, is it any wonder that one feels tempted to wish for the return of the whipping post of old colonial days? Anyone who has kept his eyes open knows that on some farms it is no uncommon sight to see the farmer, dressed in his sheepskin coat or vest, turn his cattle out of the barn, and then hurry back into the house because he thinks it is too cold to work outside. He does not wish to be outside himself, but he does not care about his animals.

Cruelty of this sort is not confined to horses and cattle. On farms where one animal suffers, you will generally find that they are all mistreated. As a rule the cat and the dog are generally kicked out to shift for themselves, even in the coldest of weather. Not even is care exercised to see that they get into the barn, and if they don't happen to be around when the barn is closed for the night they are simply left outside without the slightest thought or consideration. What do such people care if pussy's ears are frozen off and Rover's paws frost-bitten, so long as their own precious hide is warm in bed. Some people want to keep cats and dogs, often a whole circus of them, but they absolutely will not go to the trouble of taking care of them. You can see cats and dogs with nothing but the skin and bones everywhere, on the farms and in the cities and they are living skeletons just simply because some one wants to keep them, but does not want to feed them or take care of them in any way. There are some people like that in every neighborhood. Look and you will find them.

Neither is it an uncommon occurrence to find chickens lying dead under their roosts on cold winter mornings, on some farms, and in all likelihood in our cities too once in a while. There are people who like to have eggs to sell and eat, but who feel that any kind of shelter is good enough for the hen. She isn't worth a great deal like a horse or a cow, so what is the difference. Cheaper to put a bunch of chickens alone in a henhouse, that they can't possibly keep warm, and so let them freeze and perhaps drop dead under their perch, than to build or fix up a warm and comfortable place for them. Too much bother to keep them free from vermin and so they have to sit all winter by themselves in some shack, instead of having them in the barn with the rest of the animals, where it would be warm.

These are some common forms of cruelty to animals that you will find on some farms. They are so common that we do not always notice them. They are not as a rule caused by a lack of means, because all farms as a rule have shelter for their animals. Why then are animals left to stand outside without the benefit of what shelter there is on the place? Why is it so hard for some people to go to a little extra work and fix up the buildings for their animals? Is it because of laziness or is it because of a lack of principle or conscience?

We have laws in regard to cruelty to animals, but so far as the more common forms of cruelty to animals are concerned, the law has been allowed to sleep. County attorneys, sheriffs, constables and the public at large have ignored the matter and allowed it to go on. The press and the pulpit have rarely mentioned the subject. In many communities where the coarser forms of cruelty to animals would be immediately prosecuted, exposure to cold and snow are passed up without much comment.

Are things going to continue in this way? Is it not time that the public conscience was aroused and that we heard from the press on the subject. You women folks now have the right to vote and can make yourself felt. Take hold of this matter in your clubs and see what can be done. If you don't believe these conditions exist, look around in your own neighborhood and chances are that you will find them. You will see horses and cattle standing outside in the yard when you would not think of being outside yourself. You will see cats running around minus their ears, and dogs jumping around on three legs, squealing to get in. You will hear of chickens being found dead under their roosts on cold winter mornings, simply because their owner will not have them in the barn with the other animals, and will not fix up a warm place for them.

Now when you read this don't get hot under the collar. It has no personal object, but is written for the benefit of our domestic animals. The question is not whether you like this letter or not. The person who will use his animals in the way I have indicated will not like publicity. He will not like to have his neighbors notice what he is doing. He is a disgrace to the neighborhood and a detriment to the agricultural industry and the sooner we get rid of him the better. This letter is not written to please him. The question is whether or not conditions are as I have indicated. If so, is it a fair and decent way to treat a helpless animal? Give the matter a little [illegible] thought [illegible] eyes open and see what is going on in your community during the winters.

I hope the Times will kindly give space to this letter and that the press will generally take hold of this matter. It is not a pleasant subject to deal with but it is a necessary one. Let us have some searching publicity and discussion of this subject and conditions will soon improve.

Very truly yours,
F. J. MASON

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Thief River Falls. No Thief River Falls resident who suffers backache, or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

E. L. Krogstad, railroad brakeman, 523 State Ave., N., Thief River Falls, gave the following statement Nov. 30, 1917: "When I was living up in the Roaring River district, the hard water disordered my kidneys. Every morning I woke up with a terrible pain through my kidneys and my back became weak and lame. It hurt me to stoop or bend in any way and my kidneys acted irregularly. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they fixed me up in such good shape that I haven't been troubled since."

On Aug. 8, 1921, Mr. Krogstad added: "The cure I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills has been a permanent one. I sure think Doan's are a good remedy and I gladly confirm [illegible] statement."

2 EXTRA PERIODS NEEDED TO DECIDE SATURDAY'S GAME

Two Harbors the Victor But Given the Hardest Tussle of Their Entire Career.

Nothing but the hardest kind of luck prevented the Thief River Falls Athletics from taking one of the games against Two Harbors last week. In the first contest, played on Friday night, the home boys seemed to stand just a little in awe of the visitors, particularly during the first half. Coming back with more confidence they played a good game and although defeated by a score of 19 to 28, put up an exhibition that added much to their reputation and gave rise to the hope that the second game might turn out differently.

It nearly did. The Athletics started out scoring within a few minutes after the game opened and kept up to such good purpose that when the half closed they were slightly in the lead. Fine team work on both sides characterized this part of the game and while the visitors' time after time started plays that looked as if they would prove successful in breaking down the defense of the locals, the latter always managed to have something in reserve that upset the calculations. Louden, the tall center borrowed from Excelsior for this series, failed to get his bearings in the first game, but proved a tower of strength in the second. His fine work helped materially in keeping the visitors from scoring while his shooting eye showed a great improvement over the previous evening. Plummer for some reason did not make as good a showing as in some of his previous games, particularly when it came to locating the hoop. Carlson played a good consistent game and had it not been for an accident that put him out of the contest just before the visitors made their last and winning basket the result might have been different.

In the opinion of a good many observers the two guards, Holzknecht and Brown, were the stars of the entertainment. The former was favoring a bum ankle, acquired in practice, but he seemed to forget the handicap and if anything added just a little to his usual speed. Brown is at all times a bulldog sort of performer, never letting up on his man once he has managed to get a line on what the other fellow is trying to do. They make a great team and it is very probable that they have not always received full credit for their exceptional work.

Two extra periods were required to settle the fight on Saturday night. At the end of the second half the score stood 25 to 25. Five minutes of extra play was agreed upon but no score for either side resulted. Another similar period was ordered and both teams started in to make the winning basket. At this critical period Carlson went out by the injury route which no doubt had its effect on the playing of the rest of the bunch. Two Harbors made a spurt that landed the ball near their goal and managed to cage a shot when the period had only about two minutes to go.

It was a great game and kept the fans on their feet most of the time. The visitors admitted that it was one of the hottest contests in which they have played this year and praised the locals highly for the quality of basketball they are putting up.

The Cambridge team comes for two games on Friday and Saturday and next will be a contest with the Crookston team in that city. That the latter will prove something of a gasp-producer may be inferred from the fact that Two Harbors defeated Crookston on Saturday night by practically the same margin as the locals were downed, the score there being 25 and 26, but with no extra periods. Crookston defeated Cambridge by close scores in two games the first of the week, but the latter was winner over Bemidji last night by a score of 31 to 19.

Union Labor is Menaced Say Federation Officials

There was a good turnout of union labor men at the mass meeting held in the auditorium last Saturday evening, when E. G. Hall, president of the state federation, and J. J. Manning, field representative of the label division of the American Federation of Labor, were the speakers. Mr. Hall spoke on union labor topics generally, maintaining that organization on the part of the workers was more than ever a necessity as the big employers of the country have banded themselves together for the purpose of opposing the aims of the workers at every turn. The wedge that it to prove the undoing of all that has been achieved by union labor for the American workman is the open shop, said the speaker, and he maintained that the so-called "American Plan" of those who are carrying on the campaign in its favor is essentially un-American. In its last analysis the open shop means taking away from the laboring man the right to bargain collectively with the employer, he said, leaving the individual to deal with organized capital at every turn. He urged upon the workers the necessity for sticking more closely than ever to union principles and making a fight for their constitutional rights.

Mr. Manning spoke on the value of the union label in the fight being waged by the working man. He said that this emblem attached to an article of any kind assured the purchaser that it had been produced under conditions such as all Americans can approve and was a guarantee of quality in workmanship. He asked his hearers to see that the label was on every article of whatsoever kind they might be purchasing, as in this way can the union principle best be advanced.

Will Sell Tags to Help Blind Persons in State

A committee of the Woman's club, with Mrs. A. S. Sopero as chairman, will conduct a tag sale next Saturday for the purpose of raising money for the Minnesota State Organization of the Blind. The general impression is that the state, through its institutions, already is taking care of those who have lost their sight, but such is not the case. According to the last census report there are 1600 men and women in Minnesota for whom the schools can do nothing as no one over 21 years of age is admitted to these institutions. Out of the total number more than 1,200 lost their sight after maturity and were thus left without any possible means of gaining a livelihood. The desire is to raise $60,000 by popular subscription for an industrial home, to be located somewhere near the twin cities. Here the pursuits suitable for the blind will be taught, thus providing an agency for making them self-supporting. Cabinet making, piano tuning, typewriting and the operation of machinery will be among the branches taught, as well as a number of others in which the blind make splendid progress after special training.

A general canvass will be made and small contributions looked for. The committee would rather have a large number of dimes and quarters than a few donations for large sums. It is a matter in which the people should be interested and this tag sale is therefore statewide.

Assumes Former Position.

H. M. Olson, who recently returned from Minneapolis where he had resided about a year, is again employed at the Oen Mercantile company store, his particular field of operations being the clothing department. Mr. Olson is a young man who has made rapid strides in mastering the merchandising game since he first entered the employ of the company and will prove a valuable addition to the store organization.

Steenerson Asks About Fictitious Freight Rates

Charges that "fictitious" freight rates are charged on dairy supplies and agricultural implements shipped to certain points in Minnesota were made in a resolution introduced Monday by Representative Halvor Steenerson.

The measure requests President Harding to transmit to the house all information in his possession or in the possession of the interstate commerce commission "relative to the alleged practice of charging freight on butter tubs made and shipped from Duluth and other points in Minnesota to Red River valley points in Minnesota, plus freight from Elgin, Ill., and also relative to the practice of charging freight on agricultural machinery shipped from points west of Pittsburgh to points in Minnesota, plus freight from Pittsburgh."

The president is asked to inform the house "by what legal or other authority such discriminatory practices are upheld and fictitious freight rates permitted to be charged."

Supports State's Contention.

Congressman Steenerson, at the request of Ivan Bowen, member of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission, on Monday submitted to the attorney general of the United States an argument in support of the state contention that the stockyards act does not take away from the state the right to continue to do the weighing and feeding of the livestock coming into the yards at South St. Paul. The secretary of agriculture recently turned over this question to the department of justice.

John Loengen of Bronson was in the city yesterday on business.

Society and Club

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

About 75 interested citizens attended the meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. Christ Storholm on Tuesday afternoon. The second anniversary of the national constitutional prohibition victory was fittingly observed by splendid talks and papers by the members.

Rev. Clinton Cook in his talk spoke of the wonderful progress made in temperance work since the time of the international convention which he attended in Portland many years ago, at which time Miss Lillian Stevens was the world president.

Mrs. J. M. Bishop's address on the subject, "Shall Law be Sovereign in the United States?" was listened to intently, comment among those present indicating that she had struck the keynote of the whole matter. The speaker made it clear that unless individuals themselves took a public stand for what is right and for law enforcement that little could be accomplished. The entire subject was handled in a masterful manner and showed that the speaker had gone into the matter thoroughly.

Too much cannot be said for the untiring efforts put forth by the president, Mrs. James O. Sether, in making the local organization the success that it is today. In the course of Mrs. Sether's remarks on Tuesday she quoted the following words:

"Wherever Old Glory flows, where the liquor traffic lives, if it lives at all, it lives like an outlaw, a thing to be hunted, cursed and hounded."

Students' Musical.

The third of a series of recitals by the pupils of Mrs. C. O. Erickson will be given at her home tomorrow afternoon at 4:30. The numbers to be played are as follows:

BANK JOB ON DAY HE GRADUATES

E. M. Anderson, now with the Citizens National Bank of Crosby, is by no means the first student of Dakota Business College, Fargo, N. D., to get a bank position the day he graduated. Here's why. Northwestern bankers know that D. B. C. graduates need little "breaking in"—that actual banking methods, as well as text-books, are taught in this unusual school. Indeed, some 218 bank officers are themselves "Dakota" graduates.

North St. Louis County People Want Highway to This City and Red Lakes

(From Cook, Minn., Journal.)

Senator Fred Bessette and wife of Orr spent Christmas with relatives at Bemidji, and while there the senator addressed the Bemidji Commercial club, explaining the merits of the land-clearing law he succeeded in having enacted at the last session of the legislature. This measure met with the hearty approval of the commercial club of that place.

Senator Bessette sounded that body on the proposition of a state Babcock highway from Cook west through the Bear river and Big Fork countries to Northome, thence west on the south side of Red lake to Thief River Falls, where it would connect with state highways No. 32 and 33.

Senator Bessette immediately discovered that the proposition was a live one and has not only the hearty endorsement of that body but the commercial bodies in the western part of the state as well as the range cities.

While there Senator Bessette had a conference with the secretary of the commercial club, who will take up the matter with commercial bodies in the western part of the state, and with Secretary Saxby at Hibbing, of the Northern Minnesota Development association, and a delegate convention will be held at Bemidji in the near future for the purpose of organizing a "Steel-to-Wheat" highway association.

The purpose of this organization of the commercial bodies and various civic bodies in the northern part of the state in a compact organization to use its influence in having the Steel-to-Wheat highway added to the state highway system by the legislature at its next session.

The value of this highway cannot be estimated, as it would traverse a part of the state that has several thousand farmers who have practically no outlet to markets, besides it would make an opening to the hundreds of thousands of acres of idle lands in the northern part of the state.

Cook being practically the eastern terminal of such road and gateway to the Vermilion lake resorts, would be strictly on the map.

The Journal near the close of the last session of the legislature, when the Babcock bill was before it, took up the project of this east and west highway across the northern part of the state with the several commercial bodies along the proposed route, with favorable replies. It was not deemed advisable to embarass the consideration of the Babcock measure and it was thought best to drop it for the time being. However, in our correspondence, at the suggestion of George J. Francis, the genial cashier of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Cook we used the title of "Steel to Wheat Highway," which promises to be its permanent title.

In view of our position and the benefits derived, Cook should organize unit No. 1 of the Steel-to-Wheat Highway association.

Red Lake Falls Man is Accused of Bootlegging

Ed. J. Keifenheim of Red Lake Falls was bound over to the grand jury Thursday by Justice E. G. Buse on the charge of selling a pint of moonshine to Wm. Phillon of the same city. Justice Buse's action followed a preliminary hearing that consumed the better part of two days. The complaint was signed by Mr. Phillon, who charged that he was made drunk by the liquor he says he purchased.

County Attorney Fred L. Farley conducted the case for the prosecution, while Boughton & Boughton represented the defense. The prosecution introduced the evidence of the complainant and of Jos. St. Martin and Herbert Porter, age 19, who swore they both bought moonshine from Keifenheim. Percy Miller, age 16, witness for the state, testified that he had assisted in securing liquor for Phillon. The defendant took the stand on his own behalf, as did his father, John Keifenheim, and Jos. Sobeck. The grand jury to act in the matter will assemble at the March term of the Red Lake county district court.

There was so much local interest in the case that it was necessary to transfer the hearing to the big court room.

ONE OF OUR TROUBLES.

Warroad Pioneer: A few years ago much Canadian money was spent in Warroad, by trainmen and other transients from north of the line. Then came the difference in value, and the Canadians bought only what they absolutely had to have here, because their dollars were worth only 80 cents. Now the difference is getting smaller, and the Canadian trade is reviving somewhat. Everyone here has hopes to see the two kinds of dollars at par again. This is an illustration on a small scale of what has happened to our trade with all the world. It may tickle our vanity to have our money worth more than that of other nations, but it doesn't get us any business.

Dols; Whist "booby" prize, package of cherry high-balls to Chester Dols; First prize in rummy, box of candy to Miss Delma Dols. Dols and L. L. A cut-glass water set was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Holm as a remembrance from their friends at Rosewood. Mr. Ranum thanked them for all commercial connections and social pleasures that they had shared during their two years at Rosewood and Mr. Holm responded, expressing his regret at leaving his friends just now and was thankful for all their kindness, which although greatly appreciated could not be fully reciprocated and ended by introducing his successor, O. FARM BUREAU ASKS CUT IN MACHINERY

Lower Prices Are Public Necessity, Farmer Delegation Tells Board of Control.

Prices on farm machinery manufactured at the state penitentiary must be drastically reduced, representatives of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation told the state board of control at a conference last week.

The demand for reduction in farm machinery prices was one of the first acts of the new farm bureau administration. The delegation representing the farmers was headed by J. F. Reed, new president of the state federation, and included F. F. Lammers, vice president, and J. J. Jacobson, George Freeman, Thomas Cashman and J. D. Pyle, directors.

The farmers' dollar is worth only 61 cents in comparison with the price of products he has to buy, the farm bureau representatives said. Prosperity cannot be restored until the price of machinery and other commodities the farmer must purchase is brought down somewhere near the value of the things he has to sell, they declared. The penitentiary, a public institution serving the whole state, is now supported entirely by the farmers, Mr. Reed said. He argued that machinery prices should be cut and all citizens, if necessary, share the expense of maintaining the prison. The machinery plant was established originally to compete with private manufacturers and compel the mto charge a reasonable price, the farmers pointed out. A drastic price cut is necessary, they said, to make the prison machinery plant a real competitor with private firms and carry out the intent of the law.

Married Women May Hold Jobs in Postal Service

A new ruling by the postmaster general is of interest to married women who might wish to become employes in the postal service, and also to those now in the service who might decide to get married. Heretofore only single women have been permitted to hold positions under the regulations of the department but the new order makes no distinction. This information was received this week by T. S. Brokke, clerk of the civil service commission in this city. It means that any person of either sex may hereafter take the required examinations and, if otherwise qualified, the fact of a woman's being married will not act as a bar to her appointment.

Bridge Railings Are Bad For Little Girls' Tongues

There is one little girl in this city who will never again try to warm up a steel bridge railing with her tongue in the winter time. She is none the worse for her first attempt, but any desire to make further investigations along this line has effectively been checked.

Two residents of the East Side approaching the First street bridge on Sunday morning were met by a girl about eight years old who was in a great state of excitement over the plight of her sister, perhaps two years her junior, who was frozen fast to the railing at the other end of the bridge. The men hurried to the spot and found the youngster unable to release herself, her tongue being held by the frozen metal. While one took off his gloves and attempted to heat up the spot with his bare hand the other went to the drug store of Andrew Bottelson for some water. The prisoner was rescued and never uttered a peep to indicate that she was either frightened or hurt. A few drops of blood, however, showed that the skin had been punctured.

HIS BACK IS UP.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Politicians always have told the farmer he was the backbone of the nation, and just now members of congress find that the backbone's back is up as a result of the failure of politicians to prove their love by loyalty.

GIVEN CREDIT FOR BUSINESS LOSSES IN INCOME TAX DEAL

Important Ruling Should Be Studied By Merchants in Filing Income Report.

Specific attention of all taxpayers is called to a new provision in this year's law which allows the taxpayer to take credit for any loss in business sustained in the year 1921 or any subsequent year, in the income tax return rendered in the two succeeding years in which a profit was made. For example, a concern or individual whose business operations at the close of business Dec. 31, 1921, showed a loss of $2,000, would make out a return disclosing that loss, and if at the close of business in 1922 he found that he had a profit of $1,000 on which he would have to pay tax he could then set up as a credit against this $1,000, part of the loss sustained in 1921. The balance of $1,000 could be used as a credit against any profit made in 1923. A taxpayer can readily see why he should by all means file a return this year and disclose his loss in order that he may be on record and thereby secure the advantage of gaining a credit in the two succeeding years as allowed him in the event he makes a profit during those years.

Small business concerns doing a business of $5,000 or over during the past year must file a return and are liable to a heavy penalty for failure to do so, regardless of the fact that they may have no profit large enough on which to pay tax, or eve though they suffered a loss. Further information regarding the new law may be obtained from representatives of the government, who will be sent to each community to explain the workings of the law.

The act provides that a married person, living with husband or wife, whose net income for 1921 was $5,000 or less, shall be allowed a personal exemption of $2,500. If the net income of such person was over $5,000, the exemption is $2,000. Under the revenue act of 1918 the personal exemption allowed a married person was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income. The normal tax rate remains unchanged, 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income, above the exemptions, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income.

Too Much Newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Dalquist, who are spending the winter in California, sent The Times a copy of the Midwinter number of the Los Angeles Times, one of the largest issues ever turned out by any paper in the history of the country. There are 272 pages altogether, largely devoted to Los Angeles and California topics. It is a great production but there is too much of it for perusal at this distance.

Rural School Spelling Contest at Winter Show

Abel Svobodny and Frances Hincik represented the rural schools of Pennington county in the 1921 Red River valley rural school spelling contest. This year another contest will be held for which boys and girls are now busily preparing.

The annual contest is held during the Winter shows and Northwest School Farmers' Week meeting at Crookston, which come this year from Feb. 6 to 10. A committee was appointed by the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association to have charge of this event, including County Superintendents E. K. Sampson, Ada; N. A. Thorson, Crookston, and Erba Pouliot, Red Lake Falls. The rural school spell-down will be held on Feb. 10, lasting all day, with the final oral spell-down taking place in the armory in the evening as a regular part of the farmers' week program. Cash prizes will be given to the best spellers in the 11 valley counties in addition to free railway fare.

Two other contests held in connection with this big week are the declamatory and essay writing competitions.

TIDEWATER SCHEME IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Expected That Construction of Giant Enterprise Will Be Begun in Short Time.

Approval is given the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway by the international joint commission in its report, which has been transmitted to the American state department and the Canadian government.

The report will be transmitted in a few days by the state department to congress, and it is said that inasmuch as consideration of the project was undertaken by the commission at the direction of congress, the report will not be made public until submitted to congress.

The commission, it was learned, however, has unanimously approved the project, which contemplates construction of a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the ocean, through the St. Lawrence, of sufficient depth to enable sea-going vessels to enter the Great Lakes. The commission also was understood to recommend the beginning of construction in the near future, or as soon as possible.

FIRST CONVENTION TO BE HELD MAR. 18

Local Committees Must Make Public Names of Delegates Saturday, February 11.

Republicans of Minnesota will meet in St. Paul at 11 a. m. March 31 to endorse party candidates for state office and formulate a party platform under a call issued Saturday by the Republican state central committee.

The committee completed arrangements for 97 conventions, covering county, congress and state, adopting without objection the tentative program arranged by Charles R. Adams, state chairman. Sixty-three members of the committee and 63 proxy holders attended the session, which adjourned after completing its business in about two hours. It was declared the most harmonious session of the state committee in many campaigns.

One-third of the delegates present were women, indicating a large proportion of the delegates at the conventions to be held before the primary convention will be of the fair sex also, in the opinion of the male members of the committee.

Representation in the state convention was fixed at 1,088 delegates. County conventions will be held on March 18 at 1 p. m., while [illegible] conventions will be held March 30 at 1 p. m. The Ninth district convention will be held at the Moorhead court house.

Pennington county is entitled to six delegates in the state convention. Four counties—Hennepin, Ramsey, St. Louis and Stearns—will have a majority of the delegates at this gathering. In the district convention Pennington county will be entitled to three delegates while Red Lake county has but two, Clearwater three and Marshall eight. There are 13 counties in the district, which has 89 delegates. Of this number Otter Tail, Polk and Clay will have 45.

It seems to be the general opinion among the readers of The Times and their friends that the time for entering the Salesmanship Campaign has passed. This is a mistaken idea. Right now is the opportune time to enroll.

The impression has been created that it requires a lot of money, time and experience to win in a campaign of this kind. This is another mistaken idea.

One of the university professors in a lecture recently made the following statement: "Every person has the right and privilege of making a mistake, but making a mistake intentionally is inexcusable." If you have made the mistake of not enrolling in the Salesmanship Campaign to win the Buick and other Grand Free Prizes, you still have time to overcome it. Enroll today and acquaint your friends and neighbors that you are in the campaign to win.

Go to them and show them what it means to you to have them help. The world likes a hustler and will reward one.

It is safe to say that never before in your life have you had the opportunity of earning over $1,600 in prizes. By nominating yourself and winning the Buick, you can earn better than $200 a week for the eight weeks that the Salesmanship Campaign will last.

You may have made many mistakes in your life before, but in justice to yourself you must not pass up the opportunity offered you now. Turn to the announcement on another page, cut out the coupon and mail it today. Every minute you waste is giving the other fellow the lead that by rights belongs to you. Be good to yourself and decide to give yourself the pleasures that this big wonderful Buick Six can bring you. The other grand free prizes on the list are not to be "sneezed at." The Ford touring car offered as second prize, is used as the first prize in many contests, while the $150 Victor, the lady's or gent's diamond, or the lady's or gent's gold watch are not to be overlooked. A ten per cent commission will be paid to all persons not winning a prize, on all subscription money they send in. So you can readily see there is no possible chance for you to lose in this campaign.

You can't afford to hesitate—you can't afford to delay. Put this question up to yourself: "What can I do in the eight weeks this campaign lasts which will net me better than $200 a week?" You can't go wrong by starting now. When someone else has won you are going to be mighty sorry you did not heed the warning when you had the opportunity. Don't let anyone tell you that you cannot win. You have just as much right to be a winner as anyone else. But first you must convince yourself that you want to win, and the first step toward doing that is to enroll. You will never be sorry after you have won the big $1,595 Buick and the $25 nomination prize.

$25 In Gold For You.

A purse of $25 has been set aside by The Times, to be given to the person who nominates the winner of the Buick. You can nominate yourself and when you have made the Buick "your Buick" receive the $25 nomination prize.

District Creamery Officers Elected Here Last Evening

A meeting of the executive board of District No. 14 of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association was held in the city last evening for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. The following were elected: E. O. Moliness, chairman, Erskine; Stuart McLeod, first vice chairman, Goodridge; H. P. Nygaard, second vice chairman, Halstad; C. B. Goodrich, secretary, Greenbush; Ed. Rydeen, treasurer, Clearbrook. N. C. Lindberg of Perley was chosen field representative. He has had 12 years experience in the creamery business and is at the present time secretary of the buttermakers' association of the district.

The Fourteenth district is one of the largest in the state, embracing ten counties with a total of 55 creameries. The butter output for the district in the year 1920 was 4,851,401 pounds, of which Pennington county is credited with 705,619 pounds, the product of four creameries. Marshall county with eight creameries produced only 536,123 pounds during the same year. Secretary Goodrich states that about three-fourths of the creameries in the state have thus far joined the association.

The officers elected at the meeting in this city will be referred back to all creamery associations in the district for ratification.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS CHANGING OVER TO ALTERNATING PLAN

Engineer Says Only Portion of Available Power is at Present Made Available.

The matter of changing the city's electric light system over to what is known as an alternating current plant is engaging the attention of the city council at the present time. At the meeting held Tuesday evening George M. Sheppard, a consulting engineer of St. Paul, appeared and made a proposition for doing the necessary preliminary work. He said that the city was unable under the present system to generate anywhere near all the power that could be made available if the change were made and that sooner or later the work would have to be undertaken.

Mr. Sheppard submitted figures giving the costs for making the survey, the probable amount of power that can be developed, the consumption now and an estimate of what may be the requirements of the near future, the cost of a new switch board, and whether or not an addition to the present building is feasible or if a new one will have to be constructed.

A thorough report of the conditino of the present dam will also be among the things undertaken by Mr. Sheppard's firm if his proposition is accepted, as well as the flowage in the river now and prospective. For this service a charge of $500 will be made, or if only a report on the river is wanted it will be provided for $200.

The council decided to take no action at this time. The matter will be discussed fully by the members and the opinion of the power users and taxpayers generally sought before any definite step is taken.

Pennington Farmers Will Double Acreage of Spuds

Fifty potato growers attended the meeting held in the farm bureau office on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of listening to a talk by R. C. Rose, plant pathologist of the University of Minnesota extension division. The speaker particularly discussed the value of standardization of varieties and the best strains for planting in this latitude. His talk was followed by a discussion on potato diseases, spraying materials and the machinery used for the various potato pests.

It is the opinion of many of those attending the meeting that the potato acreage in Pennington county will be almost doubled this year. Meetings are to be held frequently for the purpose of considering the best means of caring for and marketing the crop during the 1922 season. Exhibits of potatoes will be sent to the farm crops show at Crookston on Feb. 6 to 10.

Models of the correct potato types are on display at the farm bureau office for the benefit of those who wish to select good show samples.

Crookston Excited Over Rumored Removal of G. N.

The people of Crookston were considerably concerned last week over the report that the division offices of the Great Northern were to be removed from that city to Grand Forks. A committee of representative business men waited on officials of the road at headquarters in St. Paul ready to present arguments protesting against any such action, but were assured that they had been misinformed as to the nature of the contemplated proceeding. They elicited the information that absolutely no change is to be made in the present arrangements at Crookston, excepting that a part of the force in the superintendent's office will be transferred to Grand Forks. This includes the time keeping and accounting divisions and the dispatcher's office, in which the work of handling the train orders and car movements is done.

The railroad, by taking this action, will increase the jurisdiction of one superintendent so as to cover two divisions instead of one, the move being in the interest of economy. Officials disclaimed any intention of making changes that would materially affect the status of Crookston.

CREAMERY PAID PRODUCERS $600 PER DAY IN 1921

Total Returned to Patrons For Butterfat During Year More Than $220,000.

Cream Receipts Show Increase of 26¾ Per Cent; Price Fell Off 15¾ Per Cent.

Annual Meeting of Association to Be Held in This City on Saturday, Jan. 28.

The Thief River Falls Co-operative creamery received a total of 581,826 pounds of butterfat last year as compared with 419,680 pounds in 1920, an increase of 112,146 pounds or 28¾ per cent. There was, however, a falling off in the amount of cash received for butter, amounting to 15½ per cent. This decrease is accounted for by the decline in price. Two years ago the average net price received for butter was 55.47 cents, while according to the report of Secretary Peter Engelstad, printed in full in another part of The Times today, it dropped to an average of 37.52 cents during 1921.

The total amount of cream received during the year was 1,794,495 pounds, an average of more than 4,750 pounds per day. Patrons were paid a total of $220,213.02, or over $600 for every day in the year, including Sundays. The total is about $40,000 less than last year, this decrease being equal to the entire business of the creamery in 1912.

Nearly 2,500 pounds of butter more per month than in 1921 was sold to patrons in the city of Thief River Falls. Last year the total disposed of through this source amounted to 123,925 pounds as compared with 94,398 pounds in 1920. The quality of the cream produced improved nearly one per cent, testing 28.81 for the year just closed as compared with 27.96 per cent for the previous period. The milk test remained stationery at 3.67 per cent.

The receipts of butterfat in 1921 were almost six times as great as in 1907, the first year of the creamery's operation. The growth has been steady and in some instances remarkable. Mr. Engelstad's report shows that there were two years in which the receipts slumped—1912 and 1917. The following years, however, more than made up for the decline. There was also a slight falling off in the quantity of butterfat produced during 1920, due to the unusual scarcity of hay and the high prices paid for beef animals.

Lowest in Five Years.

Not since 1916 has the price been as low as during 1921, when the average fell to 42.78 cents for butter fat and 37.52 cents for butter. The highest price paid was during 1919, when the average reached 63.7 for butterfat. The price received for butter at the creamery at that time was 57.10 cents. The lowest average price paid patrons for butterfat in the entire history of the creamery was in 1908, when it reached 26.78 cents per pound.

The Monthly Receipts.

Receipts for butter sold by the creamery never fell below $12,000 in any one month during 1921, while the best record was $40,000. Following is a report of the receipts as submitted by Treasurer S. O. Lee:

January	$13,222.29
February	14,479.03
March	18,487.06
April	17,604.74
May	20,117.60
June	35,753.21
July	40,808.16
August	35,037.07
September	24,920.14
October	21,354.85
November	13,887.04
December	12,591.77

Ten patrons of the creamery received more than $1,000 in cream checks during the year, three of these passing the $2,000 mark by good margins. There are 61 names in the list of those whose annual receipts totaled more than $500.

The showing made by the association during the year is highly gratifying to both officials and patrons. It shows that the business is steadily increasing and that the territory served by the creamery is gradually being extended. The butter produced is of the highest quality, commanding premium prices in the Eastern markets to which it is shipped. The policy followed is such as to inspire confidence among those who send their supplies to Thief River Falls and the institution enjoys a reputation for fair and liberal dealings with its patrons such as but few similar institutions in the state have gained. Secretary Engelstad is particularly pleased over the improvement in quality indicated as this proves there is a steady effort being made in the direction of clearing out the scrubs and providing a higher grade of cattle on the farms from which the creamery draws its supplies.

The annual business meeting of the association will be held at the Commercial club rooms in this city on Saturday, Jan. 28, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

Tax Figure Too Low.

Carl Froseth, shoe and harness merchant, says that an error was made in the personal property tax figures printed in The Times last week. The paper gave his assessment as $159.59 whereas it should have been $100 more than that. Mr. Froseth says he is aware of the fact that the error would make no difference when he came to pay up, but he does not want his neighbors to think he is trying to dodge his taxes.

MAYOR BRATRUD TURNS OFFICE OVER TO BE RUN BY BOY SCOUT FOR DAY

Mayor John Bratrud will cease functioning as the administrative head of the city of Thief River Falls next Friday night and on Saturday morning Willis Nason, representing the Boy Scouts, will take charge. It is expected that this one day will prove enough for Willis and that the office will be handed back to the mayor on Sunday morning.

Master Nason will be mayor for a day. He will give any necessary orders to the police and fire departments, receiving all kicks against the administration of affairs generally and smile at all compliments—if there should be any. Mr. Bratrud will probably be on hand in case anything of a serious nature develops, but will keep as far in the background as possible.

CHANGE IN LINEUP FOR GAMES WITH RANGE CHAMPIONS

Louden Permanently Joins Athletics While Plummer and Holzknecht Drop Out.

The Gilbert basketball team, champions of the Mesabe range, will meet the locals on the floor in this city on Friday and Saturday nights. Interest will be added to the first game for the reason that a large share of the proceeds will be turned over to the committee in charge of the funds for the relief of starving Russians. The dance which follows this game is under the auspices of this committee.

The Gilbert team has a long string of victories to its credit and only one defeat. The latter was sustained in a close game with Two Harbors. This would indicate that the aggregation is in exactly the same class as Thief River Falls and the games here should be exceptionally good exhibitions.

Roy Louden of the Excelsior team will finish the season with Thief River Falls. Plummer and Holzknecht will not again appear with the locals, the former having joined Bemidji while Holzknecht will take an indefinite rest. Manager Connell will likely place Louden at guard with Brown and use Kilund, Hadrath and Penney alternately at center. This plan will be tried out in the Gilbert games, it is understood, with a view to getting a slant on the proper lineup for the contest with Crookston early in February.

The games on Friday and Saturday will be called at 8:15 o'clock sharp.

VIEWERS SUBMIT REPORT ON RIVER

Clearwater to Lose Two-Thirds of Present Length When Job is Completed.

E. A. Mostue of Thief River Falls, Andrew Christianson of Mentor and F. S. Erdman of St. Hilaire, who have been engaged the past six weeks in viewing the land affected and making their report showing the estimated cost of the project of straightening, widening and deepening the Clearwater river, have completed their report.

The lands affected in the Clearwater project are in Red Lake, Pennington and Clearwater counties and the diminished Red Lake Indian reservation. The report shows that if straightened in the proposed area the river will be reduced from 143 miles long to 47 miles and this will also aid in the drainage of a large amount of land which is now untillable because of its being subjected to continual floods. The report further shows the estimated benefits and damages to other lands accruing from the proposed changes.

The completed report has been turned over to Chas. E. Boughton, Sr., attorney in the project.

To Select Candidates For Regional Spelling Match

Each rural school in Pennington county having a candidate intending to enter the regional spelling contest to be held in connection with the winter crop show at Crookston, is requested to have such candidate present him or herself at the office of Superintendent Geo. M. Gunderson on Feb. 8, for an elimination contest to decide upon contestants to represent the county. The examinations will begin at 1:30 p. m. and will be in charge of officials of the Teachers' Progressive league. Two of the best spellers in the rural schools of the county will be selected to make the trip under the guidance of Mr. Gunderson or some responsible person selected for the purpose by him.

The sectional contests have already been held, and the winners are prepared for the semi-finals.

NO CHANGES IN CITY PAY ROLL FOR NEXT TERM

Salaries of All Officials and Employes to Remain as Established Last June.

E. O. Erickson Reappointed as Chief of Police; Dr. Biedermann Health Officer.

Math Barzen Appointed Member of Park Board to Succeed Dr. C. R. Crandall.

No salary changes were made by the city council on Tuesday night when the question of fixing the rate of pay for the ensuing term was taken up. But one change was made in the appointive offices, Mayor Bratrud naming Math Barzen to succeed Dr. C. R. Crandall on the park board. The latter expects soon to remove from the city.

E. O. Erickson was re-appointed chief of police for a third term and Dr. Jacob Biedermann again made health officer. The council failed to approve of the mayor's appointment of Ed. Brooten as night patrolman, the vote standing three and three. Mr. Bratrud withdrew the appointment but state that there was nothing to prevent Mr. Brooten being appointed by him as a special police, the process being repeated every 30 days. It is understood that the officer intends leaving the city within a short time and the mayor stated that he saw no necessity for announcing a change at this time. Different arrangements will in all probability be made in any event when it comes time to name the motorcycle policeman recently authorized by the council.

Salaries Remain the Same.

A new schedule of prices for rent of the auditorium was adopted, as follows: Functions given for charitable purposes at which no admission is charged, $20; dances and theatrical entertainments by home companies, $30; all outside companies, $40.

A general advance in salaries all along the line having been granted last June no change was at this time thought advisable. The amount to be received by each city officer or employe is as follows: Mayor, $100 per year; councilmen, $100; city physician, $200; health officer, $100; attorney $65 per month; clerk, $145.75; deputy clerk, $132.25; treasurer, $25; chief of police, $100; patrolman, $90; street commissioner, $115; municipal judge, $95; poor matron, $35; janitor of jail, $15; superintendent of water and lights, $184; first electrician, $132.25; second and third electricians, $120.75; first engineer, $143.75; second and third engineers, $128.50; superintendent of incinerator, $92; garbage collector, $75; janitor of auditorium, $80; assessor, $500 for years in which the real estate taxes are assessed and $400 otherwise. President Brumund was named as a committee to meet with the cemetery board for the purpose of deciding on the amounts to be paid sexton and secretary.

A petition was received asking for the establishment of a sewer on Crocker avenue between Mussey and Taft streets. As there are a number of similar requests expected in the near future the matter was laid over in order that bids for all the work may be advertised for at the same time.

Tribune to Be Published as Weekly in the Future

J. S. Arneson, publisher of The Tribune, announced in Tuesday's issue that the paper will hereafter be published as a weekly, coming out on Tuesdays. The Tribune has been issued twice a week since its establishment but Mr. Arneson states that in the interest of economy a change is advisable at this time.

Boys Give Picture Show to Help Out Blind Fund

Everybody is doing something to help the blind people of the state. One day this week Clifford and "Bill" Froehlich and Ned Biedermann put on a "show" for the benefit of the fund now being raised. The little fellows started out in their neighborhoods with a stereopticon machine and gave exhibitions of pictures in homes, using a sheet pinned on the kitchen wall as a screen. At the close of each performance every person in the audience was given an apple. A total of 22 cents was raised, but it is reported that part of this went to cover unavoidable "expense," the balance being turned over to the committee in charge.

Farm Bureau Chiefs Take Part in Big Conference

J. F. Reed, now president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, has been invited to take part in the national agricultural conference called by President Harding. He will sit in the Washington conference as the official representative of Minnesota's 73,000 farm bureau members.

H. B. Nickerson, president of the Minnesota Co-operative creameries association, Inc., and vice president of the Twin City Milk Producers, also has been invited to the conference.

The farm bureau, it is expected, will be represented by its national officers and by the president of every state farm bureau federation. The American federation is preparing to tell the administration and the representatives of the public and of other industries in the conference, vigorously and emphatically, that the welfare of the whole nation depends on immediate and effective measures to bring practical relief to the farmer.

Deputy Sheriff Hurt

Paul Midderigh, deputy sheriff and court house custodian, was quite badly hurt last Saturday and as a result is barely able to get around with the aid of a crutch. He was in the basement of the court house while another man was throwing a load of cordwood down from the outside when a heavy stick struck him in the leg with such force that he thought the bone was broken. An x-ray examination showed that such was not the case but the flesh and veins are bruised to such an extent that it will take some time before he is able to navigate with his customary agility.

GOOD RESPONSE TO APPEAL ON BEHALF OF STARVING RUSS

Everything Donated For Big Dance Which is to Wind Up Drive on Friday Night.

Sale of tickets for the Russian relief dnace to be given at the auditorium on Friday night is progressing in a highly satisfactory manner. The fact that there are one or two other functions advertised for the same evening is making no difference, it being realized that the most important thing connected with the program is the securing of the dollar for aid of the Russians. It is certain, however, that there will be a large crowd present and that everyone will have a good time.

Music for the dance will be donated by the band and Snyder's orchestra. Mr. Snyder says that he expects to be able to secure about 16 musicians to play for the dance, as many who are not in the regular organization of which he is leader have expressed themselves are only too glad to contribute their services in such good cause.

The Russian relief campaign is being carried on with a great deal of energy. Not only will a substantial sum of money be realized, but there will be a good deal in the way of clothing and produce available for shipment to state headquarters when the drive is over. The situation in the famine districts of Russia is said to be beyond realization by people in other parts of the world and relief is being rushed from every section of this country, which is the only one in the world just now in a position to extend a helping hand.

Donations may be sent to Mr. Quist, who has opened offices in the basement of the library building for the receipt of clothing and produce.

ASK CONGRESS TO ESTABLISH PRICE OF $2 FOR WHEAT

Tri-State Grain Growers Association Also Endorses Co-operation in Selling.

Resolutions asking congress to fix the price of wheat at $2 a bushel and advocating co-ordination of existing farm movements and co-operation between farmers' organizations, were adopted, and Dr. John Lee Coulter, head of the North Dakota Agricultural college, was elected president at the closing session of the Tri-State Grain Growers' convention at Fargo on Friday. G. W. Randlett, vice president, and W. C. Palmer, secretary, were re-elected.

Dr. Coulter succeeds Dr. John H. Worst, who announced his retirement last night, after more than 20 years of service as president of the organization. Resolutions of appreciation were adopted, and Dr. Worst was given a rising vote of thanks.

Other resolutions adopted urged farmers to obtain a fair price for their products through the organization of orderly marketing by co-operative enterprises; urged economy in taxation and government administration; asked for a continuance of the war finance corporation; recommended placing a duty on grain and foreign importations of clover and alfalfa seed; favored legislation establishing the Great Lake-St. Lawrence deep waterways project, and asked that the principles of the war finance corporation be made permanent.

Encampment Meeting.

There will be a meeting of Riverside Encampment No. 22 at Odd Fellows hall on Friday evening, when the Patriarchal degree will be exemplified. There are a number of candidates awaiting advancement to the encampment and it is expected that these will be on hand.

McKerrow's Successor Named.

J. S. Montgomery has been named as the successor of the late W. A. McKerrow as manager of the Central Co-operative Commission association at South St. Paul. Mr. Montgomery was closely associated with his predecessor in the conduct of the Farmers Consolidated Marketing agency.

HALT FORCED IN GUMMER TRIAL; RESUME MONDAY

Illness of Attorney Delays Proceedings in Wick Murder Case at Valley City.

H. J. Hagan Testifies He Heard Nothing Unusual Until Awaking in Morning.

Newspaper Man Writes Vivid Description of Prisoner as He Appears in Court.

The trial of William Gummer, alleged slayer of Marie Wick, young Grygla girl, in a Fargo hotel last summer, is not expected to be resumed at Valley City, N. D., until Monday morning. William Green, state's attorney of Cass county, whose illness caused postponement of the trial Monday, has been unable to continue with the case. He expected to be ready Monday, however.

No session of court was held Tuesday. Immediate adjournment was taken after the court convened. C. C. Wattam, assistant state's attorney of Cass county, arrived Tuesday night to aid Green in conducting the trial Thursday. James Milligan, deputy sheriff of Cass county, is expected to testify Monday regarding tests made at the hotel to determine what might haev caused the sounds heard by roomers the night of the tragedy.

May McIans, chamber maid at the hotel where the killing occurred, is also expected to be called Monday to testify to sounds she is alleged to have heard at 4 a. m. the morning of the murder. This testimony is expected to throw some light on the second attack said to have been made on the assault victim.

When hearings were resumed last Saturday morning the prosecution indicated that it would undertake to prove the signature of "James Farrell, Willmar," that appeared on the register at the Prescott hotel on the night of the murder, was written by Andy Brown, Gummer's roommate. Brown, held prisoner since September last, identified a number of letters as being written in his handwriting and also identified a page of names that he wrote in the office of the state's attorney, William C. Green, on June 14 inst, as being in his handwriting.

These were offered as evidence for the purpose of comparison with the signature "James Farrell" as it appeared on the register the night of the murder. No explanation has been made of Farrell's signature, the state having accounted for every other occupant of the hotel that night.

Hagan Called.

H. J. Hagan, former president of the Scandinavian-American bank of Fargo, who occupied room 31 that night from 1:10 a. m. to 7 a. m., said he had heard no disturbance in the hotel during the night; that he first knew of the crime some time after 7 a. m. when two men came to his door and asked him if he had heard any disturbance during the night and examined his room.

Hagan said Gummer was on duty when he came in shortly after 1 a. m.; that Gummer took him to his room; that he had been on the train more than two days and was very tired and went to sleep right after he got to bed.

Dr. Paul S. Burton testified as to the cause of death. Dr. Burton stated it was either suffocation, fracture of the skull or hemorrhages or a combination of the three. He also gave testimony on what the state expects to base its theory of the motive leading to the murder.

Hose Nozzle Produced.

All of the lodgers at the hotel who were placed on the witness stand yesterday were able to account for themselves satisfactorily during the night of the crime. None of them heard of the affair until the following morning, although one of them, O. Deichert of Craigville, Minn., was awakened by a noise some time during the night. His room was on the floor above that on which the murder was committed.

The fire hose nozzle with which it is claimed Marie Wick was clubbed to death, was placed in evidence and was identified by James Milligan, deputy sheriff of Cass county, who stated he found it in searching the hall of the second floor of the hotel the day following the crime. The nozzle was with the hose, he said, but not attached to it, having been bent to some extent.

The end of the nozzle, it is claimed, fits a dent found in the wall beside the head of the bed in which the body of the murder victim lay, and the theory of the state is that the murderer accidentally struck the wall there while beating his victim over the head with his improvised weapon.

Gruesome Exhibits.

Exhibits which were put in evidence Saturday were the most gruesome which have thus far appeared in the case. They include the following articles:

Part of the frame, the mattress and sheets, pillows and blankets of the bed in which Marie Wick lay. All of these are daubed and soaked with blood. The pillow case, found stuffed into Marie Wick's mouth and the bandages with which it was tied there. These also are soaked with blood.

Pictures showed the unfortunate girl's body as it was discovered and the blood bespattered walls of the room. These exhibits were identified by Fred Kraemer, sheriff of Cass county, and the undertaker who prepared Marie Wick's body for burial.

Kraemer testified that when he examined the door connecting the two rooms the next morning, it was locked and the keyhole stuffed up, and that the dust and cobwebs between the door and the frame indicated that it had not been opened for some time past.

The sheriff was, however, cross examined by W. H. Barnett, Gummer's attorney, regarding the presence in Hagan's room of a Bible stained with blood and certain blood stains on the door leading from Hagen's room into that of Miss Wick.

What Manner of Man is This?

A staff correspondent of the Grand Forks Herald who is covering the Gummer trial at Valley City for his paper, has written his impressions of the prisoner and finds it impossible to make up his mind as to what kind of a man he is. A study of the young fellow as he appears in the court room fails to give any indication of what is going on in his mind and outside of rare exhibitions of nervousness he does not seem greatly concerned over the outcome. Following are the impressions gathered by the Herald's observer:

William Gummer, the young Fargo hotel clerk who is charged with the commission of one of the most hideous crimes ever perpetrated in North Dakota, presents a curious study as he sits day after day in the court room listening to the unfolding of the evidence through which the state hopes to prove that he was the man who ravished and killed Marie Wick on the morning of June 7 last.

The first thought that strikes an observer on seeing Gummer is the boyishness of his appearance. He looks even younger than 22, which is his age, and at the first glance he appears to be a clean cut, quiet, good tempered boy, far from the type one would naturally associate with such a fiendish crime as that of which he stands accused.

But as one observes him in the court room from day to day this feeling wears off, leaving one of doubt as to just what manner of boy or man this can be who can sit for hours scarcely moving a muscle, and apparently absolutely impassive as the net of circumstantial evidence is woven about him.

Then it is that one begins to notice Gummer's eyes. They are dark blue and at the first glance rather pleasant in expression, but when Gummer is brought into court each day and settles himself into a seat with his attorneys facing the witness box, with his back turned to the audience, his eyes seem to immediately settle themselves into a fixed, unblinking stare that seems almost uncanny.

Apparently this stare is focussed on some point beyond the witness box and it scarcely seems to waver, there is hardly the blink of an eyelid for hours at a time while the witnesses are giving their evidence.

This fixed stare is typical of Gummer's whole demeanor in the court room. He scarcely moves. Very rarely he leans forward to catch some important bit of testimony but the greater part of the time he sits impassive, immobile, staring fixedly into space, his face as unchanging and expressionless as though carved out of stone.

Only once during the trial has he lost this perfect control of his features. This was when the blood-stained bed clothing from Marie Wick's room was brought into court and shown to the jury. Then Gummer's eyelids dropped, and blood which he could not control mounted into his face.

It was only by watching Gummer's hands that one can gather any idea as to what his feelings are, as the state unfolds the case against him.

He sits with his hands clasped in his lap. The hands do not move, but sometimes as an important bit of evidence is presented one can see the muscles grow taut, and the previously loose clasp tighten, until the knuckles grow white. This was the case Monday when the state's witnesses were giving testimony to fix the time of the crime of which he stands accused.

But the tight clasping hands furnish the only indication of the hopes and fears which must be coursing through Gummer's mind as he sits on trial for the most serious offense of which a man may be accused. Otherwise there is practically no break in his uncanny impassivity.

Only a man with iron nerves, and the consciousness of innocence, or an abnormal degenerate with his mental and moral senses completely atrophied, could maintain this attitude from day to day during the long strain of the trial.

Which of these Gummer is, the jury must determine in its verdict.

WHEN EVERY MOVE HURTS

Lame every morning, achy and stiff all day, worse when it's damp or chilly? Suspect your kidneys and try the remedy your neighbors use. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. C. E. Cruzan, 610 Knight Ave., W., Thief River Falls, says: "My kidneys weren't acting properly and caused me a great deal of annoyance. I was also in misery with my back. At times it was so sore and stiff that when I stooped it was about all I could do to straighten again. I easily tired and it seemed my housework was a burden. I became somewhat discouraged because of this condition and not until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills did I begin to feel like myself again. Three boxes of Doan's restored me to good health and strengthened my kidneys."

CAMBRIDGGE WINS BY POINT IN BEST GAME YET PLAYED

Locals Maintained Lead Up to Very End of Saturday Evening's Great Contest.

The Cambridge basketball team won two games from the Thief River Falls Athletics last week. One of these was a somewhat ragged affair which the locals deserved to lose, while the other was one of the best exhibitions over seen here and was won by the visitors only after the hardest kind of a fight and the removal of Carlson because of injuries.

On Friday night the score was 30 to 17 in favor of Cambridge. The latter team had Norton, all-American star, in the lineup, but he did not make a sensational showing. Taken as a whole the team did not make any great impression in this contest, the only reason for its winning being the poorer game played by the locals. The latter simply could not put the old-time ginger into their work and besides found it difficult to locate the cage, even under the most favorable circumstances.

Saturday night's game was different. Both teams were evidently bent on retrieving the prestige lost by the punk exhibition of the previous evening and the fun started early. Plummer and Holzknecht were not in this last game, their places being taken by Penney and Hadrath, with Kiland as extra. The latter had not fully recovered from an injury received in a previous game but put up a fast, snappy fight. Larson, a new man, was given a try-out and while he did well seemed to lack confidence. Penney and Hadrath both surprised the spectators by the quality of their performance, giving such good account of themselves that their work has been a subject of comment on every hand since the game. Carlson played under a handicap, the ankle recently wrenched giving him no end of trouble. He worked with braces which he was compelled to readjust from time to time and he was finally forced to quit the game just at the most crucial period. He stuck until within a few minutes of the end but had to give up. Brown, one of the most dependable players in this section, covered his position faultlessly and contributed his full share to the great exhibition.

The Thief River Falls team kept a good margin of lead all through the first half. The boys were going like a well-oiled machine and even Norton's wonderful basket shooting could not overcome their fine team work. In the second half the visitors started crawling up but up to within a half-minute of the closing whistle the locals had the edge. At this period Carlson was put out of business, something that always seems to have a depressing effect on the rest of the bunch. Cambridge staged a great last-minute rally and with Norton as the centerpiece managed to get two through the hoop, winning by one point.

Roy Louden shared honors with Norton on the visiting team. He has been signed by Thief River Falls for the rest of the season and will appear in the games against Gilbert on Friday and Saturday.

Gamble-Schibsby.

The following account of the marriage of Donald Phelps Gamble and Miss Edith Schibsby at Minneapolis is taken from the Minneapolis Tribune:

With cybotium ferns, pine trees, Southern smilax and lighted cathedral candles forming a beautiful background for the attractive gowns of white, primrose pink and hydrangea blue worn by the bride and her attendants, marriage vows were exchanged last evening in St. Mark's Episcopal church by Miss Edith Schibsby and Mr. Donald Phelps Gamble, son of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Gamble, two prominent members of the local younger set. Eight hundred guests witnessed the service read at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Philips E. Osgood, rector of the church.

For a half hour before the service Stanley Avery, church organist, played a program of nuptial music. He used "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" as the processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional.

White satin ribbons were stretched down the center aisles of the church by two of the ushers, Messrs. Herbert Bruce Peffer, brother-in-law of the bride, and Vincent McLane. They were followed by the other ushers, Messrs. Silas M. Bryan, another brother-in-law of the bride, John W. Gregg, Robert Gamble, a cousin of the bridegroom, all of this city; Norman Bradish of St. Paul and Ralph Sheldon of Thief River Falls.

Miss Eleanor Eastman, one of the bridesmaids, entered alone, followed by Mrs. Winston B. Newell (Florence Hendrickson) and Miss Alice Wheelwright. Mrs. Herbert Bruce Puffer (Marian Schibsby) immediately preceded her sister, the bride, who came in alone.

The bride was met at the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage, and by the bridegroom and his best man, Dr. John Douglas Simpson. She wore a lovely gown of Crepe Romaine fashioned along simple lines with the sleeveless bodice finished with a boat neck. Through deep armholes extending to the waist line and bound in self material, a satin slip showed through. A soft girdle of the crepe extended into a short side train finished with a spray of orange blossoms. A three-yard length train of chiffon, draped with a scarf of Brussels lace, was caught at the waistline while the tulle veil caught at the back of the head with a semi-wreath of orange blossoms and fell to the hem of the train. The veil was held in place with a cap of Irish point lace. A shower of freesia and lilies of the valley made up the bridal bouquet.

The four attendants wore gowns fashioned similar to that of the bride, Mrs. Puffer wearing primrose pink and the other three hydrangea blue, with French flowers in forget-me-not and wistaria shades in their hair. The matron of honor carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas shading from lavender to deep American Beauty, while Mrs. Nowell and the Misses Eastman and Wheelwright had bouquets of violets and lavender and pink sweet peas.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception attended by 125 guests was held at the Minneapolis club when Mrs. Silas Bryan (Fannie Schibsby), sister of the bride; Mr. Michael Schibsby, father of the bride, and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gamble, received with the young couple. Spring flowers in lavender and pink shades were used about the receiving room and a mound of sweet peas and tulips formed the centerpiece on the bride's table with lavender candles in candelabra placed at either end.

Mr. Gamble and his bride left late in the evening for New York, where they will spend a week, after which they will be at home in Thief River Falls. For traveling the bride is wearing a Russian blouse dress of blue poiret twill heavily embroidered in bright shades of red, blue and yellow, and a hat of black satin.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Monday afternoon, Feb. 6, and will be strictly social, in the nature of a valentine party, and arrangements will be in charge of Mrs. T. L. Melgaard. It was the intention of Mrs. Rounds through this plan to give some club in the state an opportunity to make a little money but the local organization felt the honor of being chosen from numerous clubs throughout the state merited a donation. The quilt, made in lavender and white material, was on display at Loken's store Monday and received much favorable comment.

The School Paper.

Almost every high school and college of any size now publishes a school paper. The editing and publishing of this paper gives rise to many perplexing questions, none of which seem to be satisfactorily answered at the present time. First, there is the actual work of editing the paper. Shall it be the work of a journalism class, which both edits and publishes the paper? Shall it be directed by a staff selected (and how) from the whole school? If the last method is adopted, shall the staff furnish all the material as well as edit the paper, or shall the student body furnish the material? Then there is the accepted purpose of the paper, which must in a large degree determine the policy of the editing staff. It may be a publication for printing the best literary productions of the students, it may be a simple newspaper to acquaint the public with happenings at school, or it may be the official organ of the student body, expressing the sentiment of the students on any matter of common interest as well as the current news. There is also the question of proportion. How large a portion is to be devoted to editorial comment, how much to news, and what amount shall be reserved for humor? Shall the paper be put out entirely by the students, or may the faculty help in raising the standard? These are but a few of the problems that confront the editors of a high school paper. Taking it all together, the lot of the pioneers in scholastic journalism is not an irresponsible one.

Progress, Rah!

The Progress staff, in an effort to arouse more interest in our high school paper, staged a pep meeting at chapel last Wednesday. Several vocal and "instrumental" selections were provided as entertainment. Various members of the staff addressed the pupils briefly and told of the difficulties they had encountered in putting out the paper. This was followed by Supt. Simley, who urged everyone to contribute and to help put the Progress on a better and more interesting basis. Our high school paper, it was pointed out, is not fulfilling its original purpose, that of serving as a mouthpiece for student-faculty opinion, but has become almost completely a staff paper.

It is to be hoped that the rank and file of the student body will wake up to the fact that each one is individually responsible for every issue, and will, accordingly, take a more active interest. There is a splendid opportunity for making this one of the best school papers in the state, since there is a large enrollment at Lincoln high, and since we have nothing to do with the actual publishing of the paper except to furnish the material.

Beginning with the Freshmen, each class will be given a chance to show its journalistic ability in preparing one issue of the Progress. This will, possibly, serve to arouse more competition in contributing material, but, even if such is not the case, it will at least give the staff a much needed rest so that, when they return to the job, a more varied and interesting school sheet will be provided as the "traveling representative" of Lincoln High.

Efficiency.

When a manufacturer buys machinery he is greatly interested in the percentage of efficiency, in other words how much of the work expended is put to use. If we consider that both our material well-being and our enjoyment of life depend on getting the most results from the least effort we may also take an interest in our own efficiency. How, then, can we attain the greatest efficiecy? A machine is efficient when it is neither overworked nor under-worked. It is the same with people, including students. Each one of us should know just what our capacity for work is, and then keep the load factor as near 100 per cent as possible.

Parents and Teachers to Meet Basket Ball.

By special request, the following letter from the Minnesota Education association is published in the Progress with this issue:

"To Members of Parent-Teachers Associations:

"Circular No. 1, dated Dec. 31, 1921, has, in all probability, reached you and contents been digested.

"At an informal conference called by Mr. P. E. Carlson, president of the Minnesota Education association, Jan. 9, we were informed that Mrs. Milton P. Higgins, president of the National Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' associations, would be in St. Paul on her way to the coast Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

"After considerable discussion, Mr. Carlson himself favored calling an unofficial conference of the Parent-Teacher division of the M. E. A., at which time the advisability or inadvisability of organizing this division along the lines of the national association be considered. However, it is understood that no official action can be taken until the next regular annual meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association, the purpose of the conference being to discuss the proposal of making or not making the Parent-Teachers' division of the M. E. A., a branch of the National Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' associations. The conclusions reached and the recommendations drafted at this conference are to be presented for discussion and consideration at the annual meeting in October of this year.

"Therefore the executive committee of the state association has seen fit to call such unofficial conference, at which Mrs. Higgins will be present, and you are cordially invited and urgently requested to attend.

"The members of the Council of Mothers' Clubs and Parent-Teachers' associations of St. Paul and Minneapolis will open their homes for those attending this convention. If you desire to accept this cordial invitation kindly write Mrs. J. R. Donahue, 692 Dayton Ave., St. Paul, or the president at 3405 Humboldt Ave. N., Minneapolis.

"Please register at headquarters in Y. W. C. A. The opening session will be held Jan. 31, at 8 p. m., in Y. W. C. A. auditorium, 123 W. 5th St., St. Paul.

"With the one desire to serve the clubs and associations of the state in the best and highest way, I am

"Very truly yours,

On Notebooks.

Notebooks are considered invaluable aids to the 20th century student. Perhaps they are. But may it not be that they, as well as any other "aid" or prop, can be overused? Does it not often happen that much knowledge goes to the notebook instead of the brain? When a statement is jotted down in a notebook, the brain is relieved of it, and may never take it up again. It is true that notebooks are used for "future reference." But how often in the future, unless the matter is again taken up in class, is it ever referred to? If your head will hold it, absorb it mentally; if not, store it in your notebook or any other place. It doesn't matter. (Editor's note: A little knowledge of psychology will establish the reason for the notebook. Briefly, organizing and jotting down the principal facts, it has been proved, will "clinch" it for you.)

Miss Leavitt Talks on Stars.

(Owing to an oversight this report was omitted from last week's issue.)

On last Wednesday, during the chapel period, Miss Leavitt talked at the general assembly and chose as her subject the stars. She pointed out that the study of the stars, which seems to some to be too remote from man's ken to be interesting, is just as much a branch of nature study as that of birds and flowers. By using the blackboard, Miss Leavitt explained some of the constellations which are at present visible in the evening sky, showing their position in relation to each other. She told of the early Greeks and Romans who studied the stars, their beliefs and thoughts about them and the stories they made up about them.

It is to be hoped that other and equally interesting speeches may be enjoyed by the high school pupils in the future.

Bessie Elofson Honor English Student.

Macalester college of St. Paul has announced a high school composition contest.

They are planning to issue, in February, a special number of their Gateway Magazine, in the form of a high school anthology which will contain the best written work of the high school pupils of Minnesota. To secure these compositions they have asked that all high school English departments send in the best examples of their work. From this they will make selections for the Anthology. The authors of the five best compositions included will receive medals. The Anthology will also publish an honor roll, containing the name of the best writer of every high school.

In our school, selections for the Anthology were all made from the work of the Juniors and Seniors, and a Senior, Bessie Elofson, was named as our representative for the honor roll. The following compositions were sent in:

"Too Late," poem, Bessie Elofson; "A Change of Heart," story, Gladys Maland; "Grandmother," description, Lucille Curtis; "Value of Our Bird Neighbors," exposition, Conrad Hovie; "The Near East Problem," story, Pearl Weeks.

Thirty-Four Promoted to High School.

Short commencement exercises were held in the Central building on Friday afternoon, Jan. 20, at 3 o'clock honoring the graduation of 34 students into the high school. This class presents singularities peculiar to itself alone in that it is the first class to be graduated from the eighth grade in the middle of the school year and in that every one of the 34 pupils is entering high school at this time. The class is made up of students who have spent a year and a half or more in the eighth grade, others who have been taking some work in high school besides completing their eighth grade subjects, and some who have entered from nearby schools. The following splendid program was given:

Song, "Star Spangled Banner" School
Piano Solo, "Lustspiel," by Keller Bela, Lois Nicholson.
Violin Duet, "Where the Mississippi Flows," Henry Arneson, Leigh Anderson.
Piano Solo, "By the Waters of Minnetonka," Lawrence, Theresa Fuller.
Address, "Habits," Dr. Froehlich.
Vocal Solo, "Barefoot Trail," Carl Sundahl.
Address, "Does it Pay and is it Possible for You to Go on With Your Education?" Supt. I. T. Simley.
Presentation of Class, Miss Tandberg.
Presentation of Diplomas, Supt. I. T. Simley.
Song, "America," School.

The following received their diplomas:

Theresa Aakre, Nellie Borger, Clara Bucholz, Jesse Davidson, Delma Dols, Elva Effinger, Donald Fiterman, Rhinehold Habedank, Julia Johnson, Harley Kast, Roy Langevin, Walter Larson, Nobel Larson, Ida Ice, Orville Lufkin, Ward Mathewson, Bernice Moen, Alma Myrold, Edna Olson, Clifford Overum, Pauline Parenteau, Francis Parenteau, Pauline Pawling, Melvin Peterson, Edna Phillips, Esther Rustad, Otto Saugen, Melvin Saugen, Myrtle Shane, Sylvia Torkelson, Hilda Waale, Salome Wikel, Richard Zeh.

Athletes Banqueted.

Football Captain For Next Year Elected.

In appreciation of the work done in athletics by our high school this year, the football and basketball boys were entertained at a 6:30 o'clock "eats" last Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Rapacz, and Mr. and Mrs. Simley. The banquet was held at the Simley home. The table, which had been built in the form of a T, was decorated in the high school colors and presented an inviting appearance.

The menu was as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Roast Pork Apple Sauce
Riced Potatoes, Gravy
Escalloped Corn Pear Salad
Pickles, Jell, Rolls
Pumpkin Pie a la Mode
Coffee, Candy

After having done justice to the "feed"—and the boys did dive in in true football fashion—Mr. Simley pounded the gavel and presented himself as toastmaster. "Kip" LaBree, "Bob" McGinn, "Rusty" Anderson, "Toby" Holmgren, "Chuck" Herron, "Ernie" Barzen, Loyal Arnold and "Cliff" Sorenson, as well as Coach Stenhoff and Mr. Rapacz, responded to calls by the master of ceremonies. Football, basketball, and pep, with a lot of each, was the general line of talk.

When both gastronomic and forensic features had been done for, the football letter men proceeded to elect a football captain for next year. The honor was bestowed upon "Rusty" Anderson. In the usual "well chosen few words," "Rusty" thanked the boys for the honor and assured them he would do everything in his power to do what he could at all times for the good of the team and the school.

Basketball.

Last Thursday night in the auditorium the Thief River Falls high school scored its second victory over the Mahnomen team. The game was fast from the first to the last whistle and the local team showed a good improvement over their last contest. La Bree sprained his ankle during the first minute of the game and he may be lost to the team for the next few weeks.

In the preliminary game the Freshmen defeated the eighth graders by a score of 8 to 7.

The crowd was better than usual, but still there were too many pupils the next day asking how the game turned out.

Ralston led the scoring with five field baskets and one free throw. The lineup was Ralston, rf; C. Sorenson, lf; LaBree, c; Arnold, lg; Bischoff, rg.

January 27.

Don't forget the declamation contest which is to be held in the high school auditorium next Friday evening to select the person who will represent our district in the Red River Valley contest at Crookston, Monday, Feb. 6. The schools that will compete in this contest are Greenbush, Holt, Lancaster, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. This is a worthy undertaking and ought to have good support. A nominal admission fee will be charged to help pay the expenses of the judges. Come, and prove to the people of our district that Thief River Falls is the proper place for holding all contests.

Administration's Corner.

The Local School Tax.

Last week there was explained briefly in this column the system of school support in Minnesota. This week there is offered an application of that system to the local situation.

Our school district is comprised of approximately twelve sections of land including the city of Thief River Falls. It extends six miles east and west and includes in this strip sections twenty-five to thirty inclusive. To the north of this strip, and adjacent to it, are two sections. To the south, and again adjacent, are approximately four sections. The greatest width, therefore, north and south, is three miles while the length is six miles.

Herewith are tables showing the assessed valuation and the various school taxes:

Valuation: Real estate and Personal Property	$1,796,443.00
Money and credits	741,964.00
Total	$2,538,407.00

Taxation: County mill tax	1.0 mills
Special levy for schools	44.5 mills
State loan	6.2 mills
Total for schools	51.7
Total for other purposes	52.4
Total for all purposes	104.1

It will be seen that approximately one-half of the taxes go for school purposes.
